Vic Burtt was a hero and a goat practically within a few minutes of each other. The leftfielder erred badly in the second, but redeemed himself later with a brilliant barehanded leaping stab of a hard Peterborough drive to his section of the pastures. Ken Peacock's throw from deep centre field on another occasion to nip a Pete run at the plate had the faithful standing on their feet.

But for the sheer oldtime baseball with all its color and whatnot the Port Hope – Napanee game yesterday was one for the little red book. It was a stirring battle with both sides tying the score at least four times and the game ending in a twelve-innings four-all tie when the shadows lay too deeply across the diamond. Ed. Hooper, Napanee hurler, went the route for the Gibbard crew and turned in a masterful exhibition. He should have emerged a winner but some loose fielding on the part of his mates, who at other times were brilliant, cost the righthander the victory.

Port Hope paraded three hurlers in an effort to cop the nod but the home town crew matched them hit for hit and run for run and the result was the dead heat. Smith, starting hurler, received a nasty blow behind the left ear from a Hooper pitch and had to be removed from the game.

• • •

But there were other attractions too. It has been many a moon since Napanee baseball fans saw the limbs of the law called to the scene and help clear the dugouts and playing field of rabid fans, whose bottled courage stood them in good stead — at least for awhile. Fights broke out near the Port Hope dugout. Bleacher lawyers dashed to the field of combat when arguments ensued. A couple of Port Hopers, red schnozzles flashing in the afternoon sunlight, offered medical advice when Smith was hurt. Umpire Don Thomas had his hands full ordering the culprits from the field and finally cleared the Port Hope dugout of the heckling citizenry.

• • •

A couple of well-known Belleville citizens acted as cheer leaders for the Port Hope section in the crowded stands. While their resemblance to the accepted standard of cheer leaders, as is seen at college football games, was remotely distant, nevertheless they gave a finished performance in their own natural style. In fact the cops put the finish on it, after two or three attempts on the part of the "boys" to instil some vitality into the Port Hope rooters.

NAPANEE BATTLES PORT HOPE TO 4-4 TIE IN 12 FRAMES

Scored Tied Four Times With Hooper of Home Team Going Route

In a ding-dong battle that saw the score tied four times the Napanee Intermediate "B" baseball squad and that of Port Hope battled to a four-all draw in Napanee yesterday afternoon. And at the end of twelve innings the teams were still all even when Umpires Eddie Schreider and Don Thomas called the game on account of darkness.

It was a nip and tuck battle from start to finish with some spectacular baseball being dished up to eleven hundred fans that packed the stands and bleachers in the Gibbard Memorial Park.

The game was the second to the two-of-three series, Port Hope winning the first by a 1-0 score in a ten-innings struggle on their home diamond. The third game will be played in Napanee on Saturday afternoon beginning at 4.15.

An unfortunate incident occurred in the first part of the second innings when Smith, starting pitcher for Port Hope was struck in the head by one of the Napanee hurlers fast shoots. He was painfully injured and a doctor in the crowd, after attending him, ordered him out of the game.

Went Entire Route

The hero of the piece was sturdy righthanded Ed. Hooper, who went to the mound for Napanee. He went the entire route of 12 innings, struck out seven and lashed out a clean single for good measure. His mates bobbled behind him at times, and had his fielders played airtight baseball the issue would have been settled at the end of the regular nine innings. The usually reliable Gordy Curry, leftfielder for the Gibbardian crew dropped two easy flies in his territory that if he had clung to the ball the Napanee squad would have evened the series.

The Port Hopers paraded a trio of pitchers in an effort to pull the game out of the fire. Smith, unfortunately was injured after being nicked for a single in the first and he was relieved by Woods, another righthander. Woods lasted until the seventh when the home town crew got to him for two hits and a walk for the two clinching runs and he was sent to the showers in favor of one, Bateman. Bateman not only retired the side but he held the Napanee team to one hit over the six innings he worked. He struck out 4 and was particularly good on a couple of occasions when a hit meant a run.

Tightened in 12th.

Incidentally in the twelfth innings, Hooper rose to some sort of pitching heights after Phillips first man up had lashed one of his shoots for a clean triple. Hooper forced the next batter to pop to the catcher, struck out the next and threw the following hitters weak grounder to first in plenty of time for the put-out.

Hooper was touched for nine hits all told, three being clustered in the first innings, and another trio in the eighth when Port Hope tied the score at four all. The remaining three were were scattered over the remainder of the pastime.

Keeler, first man up for Port Hope lined the first pitch to right field for a clean hit. He was sacrificed along and two successive singles by Edwardson and Zealand shoved him across the plate. Napanee got that run back in the second innings on hits by Jocko, Hooper and Vick.

They forged into a one-run lead in the third after Curry who tripled galloped home on Brennan's single, but the Hopers came back in the same innings to tie the score on a hit and two errors. The visitors assumed a one-run lead in the fifth on Zealand's triple and Curry's error, but in the seventh the Gibbardville crew scored two to give them the lead on Walt Gerow's three-bagger, a walk and Murphy's single to right.

Four-all in Eighth

Port Hope made it four-all in the eighth when they got to Hooper for three consecutive hits before the sturdy righthander could settle down. From that point on until the end of the twelfth when the game was called it was nip-and-tuck baseball with both teams waiting for the breaks which never came.

Napanee garnered ten safeties off the three Port hurlers, one off Smith, eight off Wood in 5 innings and one off Bateman in six.

Curry got a double and single for Napanee with Murphy also donating a pair of bingles to the cause. Other hitters were Gerow, Vick, Brennan Jocko, Van Vlack and Hooper. Zealand clouted a triple and single for the Ports, with Keeler, Dawley, Edwardson, Phillips, with a triple, Currelly and Bateman helping with safe smashes.

St. Louis Fan Will Get Seat At World Series

New York, Sept. 18 — (AP)— Joe Prine, a St. Louis Cardinal fan, is sure to get one of the 14,000 bleacher seats New York Yankees will put on sale for the opening game of the World Series but if you haven't ordered your ticket yet, don't bother.

The Yankees have long been sold out and Brooklyn Dodgers stopped accepting applications after midnight, so your only chance now is to line up behind Joe in the free-for-all for bleacher seats and standing room.

Ebbets Field, where three games are scheduled provided the Brooks clinch the National League flag as expected, has a seating capacity of 35,000 compared with Yankee Stadium's 75,000.

Prine, 57, arrived from St. Louis by bus and at 10 a.m. yesterday he took up his position at the bleacher entrance to the home of the American League champions.

He said he had been first in line for several World Series openers since 1906 and wanted to "do it again."

Police arrived as news photographers taking pictures and told Prine he would not be permitted to start a line at the Stadium 13 days in advance of the opening game. They promised Prine, however, that if he would return on the eve of the game the police would see that he got his No. 1 position.

What's Doing in Sport

By JACK SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Sept. 18 — (CP) — Practically everything connected with the 1948 Olympics will be on a push-button basis except the competitors.

Electrical timing, photo finish for track and field events, accurate measuring apparatus, complex telephone and telegraph circuits, radio for control of marathon races, electrical judging machines for fencing, signally apparatus for judges, the right gas for the Olympic Flame and fuel for the torches all come into the plan.

One of the most intricate instruments is an electric-timing apparatus for track and field. The trigger of the starter's pistol will synchronize with recording instruments at the finish line. Different systems of this timing will be used for cycling, horse jumping and rowing.

In cycling, the winner will cross a strip laid on the road at the finish line; in the equestrian jumping events, the horse breaks a thread; watches, operated by photo-electric eyes, will be used in rowing events.

An unusually-ticklish job has been posed in the 400-metre hurdles. Inside and outside positions are nearly 150 feet apart and it was found the competitor on the outside would hear the firing gun more than 1/10th of a second before the man on the inside.

Experts straddled the difficulty by choosing a spot an equal distance from each competitor, which will give all an equal chance of hearing it simultaneously.

Bill Bowes, 39-year-old Yorkshire and England cricketer who has averaged more than 100 wickets a season during his 20 years with the county club, has retired from first-class cricket. He spent four years in German and Italian prisoner-of-war camps and now finds he isn't up to the "great physical strain" of county play.

"I feel that to continue first-class cricket would be a mistake" he told Yorkshire club directors. "It is time that experience made way for the honest endeavour of youth."

Everybody laughed except the blokes who had their shillings on Housey-Housey when the horse threw his rider at the starting gate and set off at an easy lope down the five-furlong course at Birmingham with the red-faced jockey hot on his heels.

Housey-Housey then turned off to gallop up the back stretch, presenting the picture for the delighted crowd of the animal running one way and the jockey, still in the five-furlong course, the other.

Housey - Housey soon had enough of this foolishness, cantered up to the starting gate but there was no one around to stop him, so he took a little run into the country. He was caught after the race and, as he came under starters' orders, his backers lost their money.

Dizzy to Appear On Mound In Team's Last Game

St. Louis, Sept. 18 — (AP) — Jerome Herman (Dizzy) Dean, who's been talking about St. Louis Brownie pitching from a broadcasting booth all season, has signed a contract to get out on the mound for a one-game appearance with the American League cellar dwellers.

The one-time St. Louis Cardinal hurling star signed the player contract yesterday and probably will get a chance to find out if his "high, hard one" has any effect on today's hitters in the season finale. Salary was not announced.

Brownie manager Harold (Muddy) Ruel said at Boston he would use Dean on the last day of the season against Chicago White Sox Sept. 28 "providing the White Sox are assured of their place in the race and we are assured of ours."

It has been six years since "the Diz" went on the voluntarily retired list and it was seven years before that when the Texas ball player gave sports editors something to write about with his 30 victories against only four losses with the Redbirds.

Arm trouble caught up with Dean after his "big" year with the birds and in 1938 he was sold to Chicago Cubs for $180,000 and three players — one of Cardinal president Sam Breadon's money-making sales.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

New York, Sept. 18. (AP)— The mark of success as a pitcher is winning 20 games a season (remember when it used to be 30?) and from all indications there won't be many pitchers holding out for more pay next Spring. . Two major league elbowers— Brooklyn's Ralph Branca and Cincinnati's Ewell Blackwell— have made it to spare with 21 victories each. Three or four others still can attain the coveted 20 . . .and in the minors, the same situation prevails. . . .Figures for 11 minor leagues appearing in this week's sporting news show just eight pitchers who have won 20 or more games. . . Top man on this list is Clarence Beers of Houston with 25 victories in the regular season.

Short Sighted

Bobby Bragan, the Dodgers bullpen catcher, was bracing baseball writers and even Secretary Harold Parrott the other day asking if he couldn't get an extra pair of World Series tickets. . . ."Who do you want them for?" Parrott finally demanded. . . ."Me and Rex Barney," came the answer. "We can't see so good from the bull pen."

One-Minute Sports Page

Among the entries for the United States Women's Golf Championship next week are Mrs. Sam Byrd, wife of the reformed baseball player who now is a Detroit golf pro, and Mrs. Fred Apostoli, whose husband still makes with the fists. . . Paul Richards, Buffalo's "Bad Boy" manager who was soaked two $100 fines this season, is slated to manage a ball team this fall to tour Venezuela — where they toss misbehaving ball players into the sneezer.

End of the Line

Jack Baer, Oklahoma University baseball coach, is coming up next Spring with a second baseman named Kelly Green . . . How did that guy ever escape Notre Dame?

BATA SHOEMEN TAKE MARINES BY 3 TO 1 COUNT

First Game of Int. 'A' O.B.A. Playdowns Lost by Petes Through Comedy of Errors

In a game that sparkled at times with sensational fielding and at others resolved into a comedy of errors, the Batawa Shoemen took the first game of their two-of-three Intermediate "A" second round playdowns from the Peterborough squad at the Exhibition Grounds last night by a 3-1 score. Definite arrangements for the second game were not settled at the time of writing.

Another near record crowd saw a game that was productive of some fine hurling on the part of a duo of Batawe flingers, costly errors on the part of the Peterborough infield and some heavy clouting at intermittent periods.

Eleven errors were committed all told, seven of them by the Peterborough squad with the Shoemen kicking in with the remaining four. The Batawa outfield pulled off some spectacular plays and at the same time the Petes infield were busy kicking the ball around.

Did Fine Job

Bowman, starting hurler for Batawa did a fine job for six innings, setting the opposition down with five hits for the only Petes' runs of the game. His control was good for he did not issue a single pass and he sent down two via the strikeout route. He went out of the game with a one run lead and Gordy Muffitt took over. The ace hurler handcuffed the Petes not allowing a hit or a run for the three innings he worked and striking out four of the ten batters to face him.

"Scotty" Maudsley, former C.O.B.L. veteran was touched for ten over the nine innings and was deserving of a better fate. His mates played loosely behind him when errors were costly although he was clouted for several clean hits.

By all the rules of baseball the Shoemen should have won by a 2-1 score. The second run garnered by them was practically handed to them on a silver platter in the fifth innings when the Petes infield fell apart.

The Shoemen scored their first run in the first inning when the Petes shortstop who miscued no less than five times bobbled Spencer's bid for a hit. Cook sacrificed him to second and he came home when Watson drove out a Texas Leaguer over the shortstop's head.

They accepted with gratitude the gift of their second run in the fifth. The Petes shortstop again bobbled Burtt's drive and then obligingly threw the ball over the third baseman's head. Came a passed ball and Burtt trotted to third. Rankin's grounder was miscued by the Petes first baseman and Burtt came home. Bowman went out and Spencer lined a triple to deep left field, but Cook was an easy out to end the innings.

The Petes tied the score with their only run of the pastime in the second innings, when Scriver drove out a triple over Burt's head and scored on Burtt's error. They threatened in the third innings when Cornwall, Petes, third baseman who had got to second by virtue of being hit by the pitcher and a Shoemen error, died at the plate when Ken Peacock's sensational throw from deep centre field nipped the runnerby inches. Two singles in succession in the fifth put the Petes in scoring position but Bowman bore down and retired the next two runners to end the innings.

Spencer Paves Way

Spencer paved the way for the third Batawa run in the eighth with a clnsingea with a clear single to right field and advanced on Cook's second sacrifice of the game. Aquino grounded out and Watson drove the runner home with his third hit of the pastime. Solmes followed with another single but Peacock grounded out to end the innings.

Fielding highlights included a smart double killing by the visitors and Burtt's smart barehanded stab of Crowe's bid for a double in the fifth.

Watson, paced the Shoemen attack with three safeties with Solmes getting a brace of singles. Spencer hit a triple as did Scriver of the Petes.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

(By The Associated Press)

Ted Williams, Red Sox — Filed out, hit his 30th home run with two mates aboard, doubled to left field and singled to right in the first game. Flied deep to centre, struck out, flied out, singled between second and third basemen, as latter played shortstop's position in second game.

Johnny Mize, Giants—Grounded out, hit his 48th homer, bounced a double off the left field wall, and struck out in his next two times at bat in the first game. Rapped his 49th home run, flied out, singled to centre, doubled to left and fouled out in the second game.

Lou Boudreau, Indians — Made one hit in four times at bat, a single as the Indians shut out the Senators 7-0.

Jackie Robinson, Dodgers — Slammed his 11th homer, doubled in another run and walked in four official times at bat as the Dodgers beat the Pirates 4-2.

Stan Musial, Cardinals — Got one single in four times at bat, but drove in three runs as Cards lost to Boston 10-8.

Joe DiMaggio, Yankees — did not play.

Dodgers Can Clinch Pennant By Winning One Contest And Skidding Cards Drop Another

Brooks Open 9½-Game Bulge by Defeating Pirates While Cards Lose to Braves

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Brooklyn Doegers can clinch the National League flag today provided they win and St. Louis Cardinals lose. The Brooks opened up a 9 1-2 game bulge last night by defeating the Pirates 4-2 in Pittsburgh while Boston Braves were shallacking the Cards 10-8 in St. Louis. Any combination of two can sew it up now. The Brooks have nine games left to play and the Cards twelve.

Jackie Robinson got the Dodgers and Pitcher Hall Gregg off on the right foot by rifling his 11th homer into Greenberg Gardens in the fourth inning. Don Lund, a rookie outfielder, duplicated the feat in the sixth. Gregg, although he needed help from Hank Behrman in the eighth, was the winner and Fritz Ostermueller, was the loser.

The Braves pounded out 15 hits including a home run by Carvel Rowell to hand the Cards their fifth straight setback. The Cards, who also made 15 hits, rallied in the closing innings, chasing winner Bill Voiselle and Clyde Shoun, but were halted by Si Johnson in the ninth after scoring three runs. Red Munger was the loser.

Hot Battle for Second

The battle for second place in the American League continued to wax hot as Boston Red Sox moved into that spot, a half game ahead of Detroit. The Red Sox split their doubleheader with St. Louis while the Tigers dropped both ends of theirs to the Athletics in Philadelphia.

After losing the opener to the Browns 9-4 despite a three-run homer by Ted Williams, his 30th, the Red Sox won the second when righthander Joe Dobson pitcher a one-hit 4-0 shutout. A broken bat single, looped into right field by Wally Judnich in the seventh inning, prevented the Red Sox righthander from hurling a no-hitter. Dobson struck out four and walked six to register his 17th victory against seven defeats.

Stretches Hitting Streak

Johnny Pesky, with five hits in the twin bill, stretched his hitting streak through 22 straight games, longest in the majors. The Red Sox fine shortstop, now has 197 hits, tops in both leagues.

The Athletics knocked the Tigers out of second place when they beat the Bengals 6-4 and 8-6, coming from behind in each game to win. A five-run eighth inning against Art Houtteman won the opener. Phil Marchildon of Penetanguishene, Ont., registered his 17th victory in the nightcap.

Allie Reynolds boosted his chances of hurling the World Series opener for New York Yankees when he pitched his team to a 5-0 triumph over Chicago White Sox in the Yankee Stadium. He fanned eight for his 18th victory. He has lost seven.

Allen Gettel hurled a six-hit 7-0 shutout for Cleveland over the Senators in a night game at Washington to move the Indians within a game of third place.

Johnny Mize rapped out his 48th and 49th home runs of the season to tie Ralph Kiner of Pittsburgh for the major league lead as New York Giants divided a doubleheader with the Cubs in Chicago. The Giants won the opener 9-3 and the Cubs took the second game slugfest 12-10.

First Train Ride For 130-Year-Old

Uppington, South Africa, Sept. 18 —(CP)— April Sprinkaan, a 130-year-old African of Uppington, is busy preparing for his greatest experience, a 1,000-mile rail journey from Uppington to Louis Trichardt — his first train journey.

This is because Piet van Zyl, the farmer who has cared for April for 30 years, is moving to the Louis Trichardt district. Mr. van Zyl has arranged for his aged native retainer to have a comfortable journey, to which April is looking forward with great interest.

Edmonton, Sept. 18 (CP) — Don't be surprised if a western Canada golf circuit is formed in the not too distant future. The idea is past the rumor stage and officials around these parts are hopeful that it will click with officials in other provinces.

Following the Alberta golf tournament here early this month the visiting professionals and the executive members of the A.G.A., got together on the idea. There was much discussion about the years to come and the feeling is that such a circuit is badly needed.

Stan (Edmonton Journal) Moher notes that the Alberta Open at which close to $2,000 was distributed in prize money was easily the tops for the prairies. The forming of such a circuit with bigger prize money, he says, is all that is needed to arouse interest in the game and to bring some of the better known Canadian and Pacific Northwest golfers to western Canada cities.

Moher believes that now that the fellers are out all that is needed is a little enthusiasm from Saskatchwan and Manitoba and the circuit is a sure thing. British Columbia, he continues, is all for it.

Just what will happen by the time the golfing season rolls around next year remains to be seen, concludes Moher, but one thing is certain — the idea is a good one and certainly has possibilities. For the betterment of the sport from the onlookers angle and for keener competition "we hope the formation of such a curcuit is not far off."

Mrs. Eddie Bush Stays in Running With 4 and 3 Win Over Cobourg Player

Toronto, Sept. 18, (CP)—Mrs. J. H. Todd, champion of British Columbia, produced the major upset of the Canadian Ladies' Open Golf Championship, eliminating Medallist Marjorie Row of Windsor's Essex County Club with a 6 and 5 trimming as the classic tourney moved through the second day of match play at the Toronto Club yesterday.

Mrs. Todd's victory was the more amazing in that she trailed Miss Row by ten strokes Monday when the brilliant young shotmaker from Detroit led a field of 134 to take medal honors with a pair 78 in the qualifying trials.

Another Vancouverite figured in the second outstanding match of the day. Mrs. Hugh O'Callaghan took Britain's only representative, Mrs. Mary Tetley, of Royal Ashdown Forest, to the 20th hole and won when a three-foot putt by the tall hard-hitting Englishwoman rimmed the cup.

Four Toronto women and two United States players are still in the running for top honors. Grace Lenozyk of Newington, Conn., took the most one-sided triumpn of the tourney, winning every hole but one and clinching her victory on the 10th to down Mrs. H. R. Armstrong, of Toronto Weston.

Mrs. Eddie Bush of Detroit, ousted Mrs. Lionel Ross of Coburg, 4 and 3, in a match between wives of golf professionals.

Mrs. F. J. Mulqueen, of the host club, defeated her clubmate, Mrs. J. A. MacDonald, 5 and 4.

Most of today's excitement promises to come in matches between Mrs. Todd and Miss Ada Mackenzie; and Mrs. Mulqueen, who won the title and the Duchess of Connaught Gold Cup when they last were competed for in 1938, and the sturdy Mrs. Bush, who is playing a strong game.

JOE KROL SPARKS ARGOS TO 34-25 WIN OVER TIGERS

One of the Largest Football Crowds in Hamilton's History Looks On

Hamilton, Sept 18 —(CP) — Fancy-passing Joe (King) Krol, playing in the manner that sparked his team to two straight Dominion football titles, last night spearheaded Toronto Argonauts to a 35-25 victory over Hamilton Tigers for their first win in three games in the Big Four this season.

Before 12,000 fans, one of the largest football crowds in Hamilton's history, the big, triple-threat Argo, halfback scored 14 points and overshadowed the Tigers' ace American import, the highly-touted Frankie Filchock.

Criticized strongly for his performances in the Argos' two previous games, Krol went all out against the Tigers as he scored two of the Scullers' six touchdowns. He converted four of the majors and was the spark to the Scullers' wide open attack which brought them from behind a 7-0 Tiger lead taken in the first quarter with a single and the first of their four converted touchdowns.

Quarterback Bill Stukus also scored two touchdowns for the Scullers with outside Pete Titanic and quarterback Fred Doty getting one each.

Jerry Walsh, Tigers' hard-plunging half, went over for two of the four Hamilton majors. The others went to Jack Stewart and Nick Pathouski. The former scoring on a spectacular run through centre and the latter when he fell on the ball behind the Argo goal-line after a kick was blocked.

PITCHING AND BATTING STARS

(By The Associated Press)

Pitching, Joe Dobson, Red Sox — Pitched a 4-0 one-hit victory over the Browns, a single by Wally Judnich in the seventh inning robbing him of a no-hitter.

Batting, Barney McCosky, Athletics — Got five hits in eight times at bat, scored two and drove in two runs to lead the A's to a double victory over the Tigers 6-4 and 8-6.

The Death of a Doll

By Hilda Lawrence

CHAPTER 16.

I'd like, he went on thoughtfully, to see how Miss Brady lives. There we have unmistakable quality and the preposterous innocence that too often goes with it. A twenty-five-cent weekly allowance until she was eighteen; a careful exposure to the procreative process when she was old enough to have a dog and properly call it a bitch; a well-schooled belief that sin is spelled with the same scarlet A that Hester Prynne wrote . . . Would a grown-up child like Miss Brady stay on the tracks when she met a situation that refuted her code and turned her world upside down? Or would she do as most children do, turn savage and strike? Turn and strike. Lie and run . . . It was worth thinking about. Rich Miss Brady, poor Miss Brady, who read all the books and knew all the words and was younger than Moke and Poke. Resigning because she was fed up. Tut-tut, he grieved, not fed at all.

Someone rapped smartly on the living-room door, and he hurried to open it. A girl stood in the hall, stooping as if she wanted to disguise her height.

"I'm Kitty Brice," she began. "Miss Small said you—"

He knew her. When he reminded her of their first meeting she wasn't amused, although she pretended to be. He talked persuasively, apologized for taking her away from her work, condemned his own job ruefully, asked questions and seemed not to need the answers. After a few minutes he was almost sure she was telling the truth, not all of it, but enough

"I didn't pay much attention that night she came," she said. "She was dopey, so I didn't pay attention. You always hope somebody nice is coming, but they never do. I don't know why they're digging her up like this. Trouble for everybody."

"I know," he sympathized. "But suicides always stir some people up. Like my client, for instance. She doubts the suicide theory. Do you, even a little?"

"No. She was dopey. But—"

"But what, Miss Brice?"

"I don't know anything, but some people did talk. You know, whispering. There's always somebody in a place like this that whispers. About anything. And this time they really had something. Like why does a girl jump out of a window when she's only lived in a place two days and didn't get any mail, or phone calls, or anything. It won't do you any good to ask me who said that, because I don't know. I just picked it out of the air. And I don't say I believe it, either."

He nodded. "You know, I can't help wondering why she wasn't missed that night. She was a new girl. I'd have thought the rest of you would watch her, help her have fun. Didn't you see her at all?"

"Get somebody to show you the costumes. You wouldn't know your own mother."

"But there was an identifying mole on Ruth's mask. Didn't you know that?"

"Sure I knew. That was one of those secrets that was too good to keep. Everybody knew. But I don't remember seeing her."

"Were you in costume too, Miss Brice?"

"Sure. Everybody was, except Heads, maids, and Plummer."

"Plummer?" he asked

"Ethel Plummer. She works at the desk, too, and she's kind of old. She talked to Miller once or twice, I know that."

"I see. Well, that's all for now, thanks. You were fine."

He opened the door and Kitty seemed glad to go.

"Good evening," he said to a girl waiting outside. "Come in, please. You are—"

"Jewel Schwab."

He was surprised to find that he liked and pitied Jewel on sight. She leaned against the door and watched him with a sleepy look.

"Sit down, Jewel. Do you know why I want to see you?"

"Yes, sir."

"Were you a friend of Ruth Miller's?"

"No, sir."

"Mind if I ask you a few questions anyway?"

"No, sir."

"Fine. Jewel, you're a very important person for two reasons. You were the first girl to reach Ruth Miller's body and you also operate the elevator. You see and hear things. Now, on the night of the party did you recognize Ruth when she rode in your car?"

"Yes, sir."

"You did? That's interesting. How did you know it was Ruth?"

"She was with April. You always know April."

"Of course. I forgot about that. You couldn't mistake Ruth when she was with April. But when she left the party and went up to her room, did you recognize her then?"

He heard the faint note of alarm in her voice. She heard it, too, and tried to cover it up with a tuneless little whistle.

"Jewel," he said reproachfully, "stop kidding me. Of course you took her up, you can't get in trouble for that. What's the matter with you?"

"I didn't take her up. She lived on seventh, and I never went to seventh after the party began. Other floors, but not seventh." Only her big hands, gripping her raw, red elbows, betrayed her nervousness.

"You're sure?"

"Yes, sir." She whistled again, with elaborate indifference, and examined the room with a bored look. It said he was wasting his time as well as hers. "I made three trips, that's all," she went on carelessly. "Miss Small said I didn't have to make any, she said the girls could run the car themselves, she said I was to enjoy myself. But I made three trips anyway. But not Ruth Miller."

"Three, eh? How do you know one of your passengers wasn't Ruth? If they all looked alike, and if she wasn't with April that time."

She looked over his head again. "Because I know where I went. I never went to seventh. The first trip was —two girls for fourth. I remember it was fourth because they talked disguised and I had to ask the floor twice. And they wanted me to wait for them and I did. And the next trip was one girl by herself. To sixth. I don't know who she was. I remember it was sixth because I went past the floor and had to go back."

"Easy to walk from sixth to seventh, isn't it?"

"If you want to."

"What about the third trip?"

"Mrs. Marshall-Gill. She wanted fifth, this room here. This one. She always comes to this room here to fix her face. After I took her I came on down and went in the lounge to watch the dancing. I never went near the car again. It was 8:35 when I went in the lounge. It was Carlin's band on the radio right after the news."

A break, he told himself. She's volunteering the time. Shrewd, or coached, or self-rehearsed.

"I'm interested in that girl who rode up to sixth," he said. "Do you think she stayed there?"

"I don't know. I only know I didn't bring her down. People ran the car themselves after I quit."

"What about Mrs. Marshall-Gill?"

"I don't know. Maybe somebody went up and got her." Her eyes wandered around the room. "But she got down all right. I saw her myself, over by the elevator, 15 or 20 minutes later."

"Fifteen or 20? Are you sure?"

"Carlin's band was still on."

She started to whistle again.

"Jewell, will it upset you too much to tell me how you happened to be the first girl on the scene?"

She made a small sound, like a sigh of relief. He knew why. They had come to a safe place, a safe place for everybody. Ruth Miller had been long dead when Jewel went into the courtyard. The trap had been sprung, the trapper had vanished.

"That's no secret," she said. "Everybody knows what I did, everybody knows it was me. We had our masks off. Everybody knew each other then."

She said she had gone to her room at midnight. Some of the others had stayed downstairs. And she had opened her window and seen Mrs. Cashman and her dog in the court. "They were coming through the gate. I watched because sometimes the dog upsets our garage. Then I heard her holler, not loud, but surprised. I thought she'd found something that was our property so I went down. I live on second and it didn't take long, and I went right out the front door without speaking to anybody. And when I was half in the court I heard her scream. And then I saw it."

'THE MONEYMAN' ROMANTIC FARE BY TOM COSTAIN

Sir Adam Beck's Biographer Writes Tribute to Press for Aiding Hydro Chief

(By The Canadian Press)

To those devotees of Dumas' D'Artagnan and avid plumpers for a post-war renaissance in romantic fiction, Canadian-born Thomas B. Costain's "The Moneyman," (McClelland and Stewart), will be happy fare.

The author of "The Black Rose," "Ride With Me" and "For My Great Folly" shows a singularly keen knack for weaving tireless research and backgrounding, stand-out characters and tumultuous history into readable, exciting escapism from today's bleak headlines.

A weak, uncertain, unstable individual, Charles is surrounded by characters of astounding decision, ability and vision. Agnes Sorel, his mistress, for example—and Jacques Coeur, his moneyman.

Born a commoner, according to historical fact, in 1395, Jacques Coeur became the first of Europe's great merchant princes. He built up trade between France and the lush Levant until his wealth was the greatest that had ever been held by a private citizen.

Was Humanitarian.

But the moneyman had eyes for more than wealth. In his way he desired to raise the social and economic levels of all classes and, above all else, wanted to substitute world trade for war between nations.

Summoned to court he had a profound influence on weak Charles and established a close liaison with wise, beautiful Agnes Sorel. There, too, the moneyman directed war against the English invaders and devoted his own fortune to see them flee from Normandy.

But "The Moneyman" is not all Coeur, Agnes and Charles. Between them runs a stream of fantastic creations — including a Scottish soldier of fortune and a "brave" knight who was a bully but feared to fight for France.

As summer wanes, Tom Costain can supply much for fallow imagination.

A tribute to the press appears in W. R. Plewman's "Adam Beck And The Ontario Hydro," (Ryerson):

"Sir Adam and Hydro owed much of their success to the aid of the newspapers of the province. Adam Beck was a political giant but he could not have established the Hydro without the ardent support of Ontario Newspapers."

The author, who through two world wars wrote a daily column—"The War Reviewed" — for the Toronto Star, states further:

"Newspaper men liked Adam Beck, as they do most men who provide them with good copy. Their fondness for the Hydro chief went deeper. . . . He frequently talked with amazing candor to newspaper men . . . Ontario's Hydro is a reminder of the great public good that can come from the devotion of the press to a common good."

HURRICANE RAKES CITY OF NEW ORLEANS

VISHINSKY ASSAILS AMERICAN FOREIGN POLICY

Russian's Speech Called 'Hitlerian' By Observers

No Sign Russia Will Quit U.N. if Marshall Plan Carries

New York, Sept. 19 —(CP)— Russia today pressed swiftly for United Nations action on her demands to curb what Andrei Y. Vishinsky yesterday called "criminal" war propaganda in the United States.

Secretary - General Trygve Lie disclosed he had received a formal request from the chief Russian delegate to have the proposal added to the agenda of the assembly, now in its third day of general debate.

The new Vishinsky move cleared the way for a preliminary test, possible later today, on the Soviet resolution.

Vishinsky's speech outlining Russia's policy was delivered in terms of violent condemnation that shocked most of his listeners.

Veteran observers described the Vishinsky speech as "Hitlerian" as he drew upon almost every conceivable source to prove that the United States in particular was plotting for war against Russia and declared that Russia wanted only peace and prosperity for her people.

In a 92-minute tirade of rapid Russian, Vishinsky gave not the slightest indication that Russia placed a shred of confidence in American or British intentions and promised his delegation would fight to the end against the American plan for strengthening the organization by weakening the veto power with which Russia has blocked majority decisions 20 times.

Vishinsky was one of a long list of speakers, most of whom, including Louis St. Laurent, leader of the Canadian delegation, preceded him.

Reference to 'Bases in N. Canada'

The Soviet delegate made no direct reference to Canada but he did refer to "bases in Northern Canada" which might place United States attackers closer to Russian towns.

His build-up of an aggressive American war propaganda machine supported by the United Kingdom, Greece and Turkey, seemed to echo the rantings of Hitler in 1938 and 1939.

One veteran of all United Nations activities said Vishinsky's remarkable tirade seemed to be under the impetus of fear. In any event it was designed to instill fear into the hearts of any who would believe him and particularly in the hearts of Russians who would be in that class.

Vishinsky said his speech had been prepared for him and it was headed "for peace and friendship of nations against the instigators of a new war."

Long Plan Seen in Speech

The speech seemed to have been the product of long research and planning.

It gave not the slightest hint that Russia would desert the U.N. if the Marshall plan of reform carries in the General Assembly, which it undoubtedly will since the veto does not apply there. But he promised his fellow delegates a real fight.

The business part of Vishinsky's speech was the proposal of a resolution calling for countries to put the lid on publication of war propaganda, and for the implementation of last year's resolution for armament regulation.

Vishinsky attributed to the United States the entire fault for failure of agreement on control of atomic energy, charging that the United States wanted to be dominant in this field and that the system of inspection involved in the American control plan was "national espionage" thinly disguised.

Russian and other Slav groups applauded several times during the speech and there were several groups in the public seats who were obvious sympathizers. Some Arab delegates applauded Vishinsky's solemn declaration that "such a thing (as Russia aiming at aggression) is impossible."

Canadian delegation opinion of Vishinsky's address was varied but none of it was approving. St. Laurent did not comment for publication but some of his associates were outspoken.

Solon Low, leader of the Social Credit group in the House of Commons, said he was "so sickened I felt like jumping off Brooklyn Bridge.

"It reminded me so much of Hitler's ravings."

'Old Stuff' Says Liberal M.P.

Walter Tucker, Liberal member of parliament for Rosthern and leader of Saskatchewan Liberals, said the speech was "old stuff" to him because he had been hearing that sort of thing for years.

The unofficial delegation reaction from those who have had a great deal of experience was that Vishinsky's speech was the most harsh and unfriendly ever heard in a supposedly friendly international gathering.

"It would be a bad thing for unity if other delegates answer him in kind," a delegate said. "But it is unlikely any will do that and Vishinsky knows that. But it was hard to take."

The reference to Truman came when Vishinsky said the President's recent speech at the inter-American Defence Conference in Brazil emphasized American plans to maintain strong military forces without mentioning American "obligations" under the United Nations to seek disarmament.

Great Britain May Give Up Mandate Over Palestine

London, Sept. 19 — (AP)—The British cabinet may decide tomorrow to surrender the mandate over Palestine which the League of Nations gave this country.

Sources said today the Foreign, Colonial and War Offices had agreed Britain should quit Palestine, but no attempt to impose singlehandedly a settlement by partition. Britain's views will be presented later to the United Nations, whose Special Commission recommended partition between Jerusalem under U. N. trusteeship

COURTYARD NEAR PLANT BELIEVED SCENE OF MURDER

Vigus And Miss Scott May Have Been Going To the Factory When They Were Attacked

Toronto, Sept. 19 (CP)—A high-walled courtyard at the rear of the paper box factory where 39-year-old George Vigus was plant foreman may have been the spot where he and Iris Scott, 21 were strangled the night of Sept. 10, police say.

Aluminum paint on the heels of shoes worn by the married man and the attractive stenographer was the clue that led police to the courtyard. A large storage shed on the western side of the yard recently was covered with aluminum paint.

Vigus often visited the plant at night and police say he and his girl friend may have been heading for there when attacked in the darkened courtyard. Their strangled bodies, stuffed into a luggage compartment, were found in Vigus' small coupe on a lovers' lane in west-end High Park early last Friday morning.

Vigus Garroted

An autopsy revealed that Vigus had been garroted, Miss Scott strangled with bare hands, possibly after a struggle.

Police last night questioned George Vigus, Jr., son of the murdered man, and Walter Broadbridge, a friend of young Vigus, at police headquarters. After the questioning the youths drove away in their own car.

Broadbridge is the youth who, when riding in High Park last Thursday, saw the Vigus car parked near a monument and telephoned Vigus, Jr. The elder Vigus had been missing from home since Wednesday night. Examination of the car led to discovery of the bodies.

Vigus and the girl ate supper together at a North Toronto restaurant the evening of Sept. 10. Investigators said it was possible they went to the plant after the last workers left about 8:30 p.m.

Police have appealed to citizens who might have seen Vigus' small black car on the factory parking lot or in the vicinity the night of the slaying to come forward with the information.

They know already that the death car was driven to High Park about 2:30 a.m. Sept. 11 and abandoned there. It remained parked there almost 24 hours before the bodies were discovered in it.

Peter Scott, father of Iris Scott, yesterday applied to Surrogate Court for disposition of the slain girl's estate and notified the court the girl left no will to dispose of her estate of 'under $400.' Mr. Scott was granted an order to dispose of the estate which included about $284 cash and bank deposits.

WOMEN WARNED

Montreal, Sept. 19 —(CP)— Morality squad authorities today warned women answering advertisements for accommodation to be cautious and take along a friend because it had come to their attention that in some cases the advertisements were a blind for men seeking to make advances towards the women.

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

(Associated Press Foreign Affairs Analyst)

Russia's violent diatribe in the assembly of the United Nations yesterday serves at least one useful purpose: It makes clear that Moscow is determined to pursue without deviation the international course it has been following ever since the end of the war.

This means that the Soviet world revolution for the establishment of Communism will continue along lines already established. Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vishinsky's pronouncement was not only a fierce attack on the United States which stands in the way of aggressive Communism, but it was in effect an explosive "no" to all suggestions for any U.N. moves which might hamper Russia's ambition to Sovietize the globe.

That's a logical strategy for the Soviet Union to pursue in view of the present international situation. Most of the eastern hemisphere is in a chaotic economic state which has reduced many countries to stark privation, including hunger. This is the day for which Communism has dreamed ever since the world revolution was conceived when the Bolshevists came to power 30 years ago.

What more natural than that Russia should make the most of its opportunity? The only new thing in the situation is that Moscow has tabled its cards — a move which was forced upon it deliberately by State Secretary Marshall's challenge in the assembly Wednesday.

Vishinsky's speech wasn't constructive, and obviously wasn't meant to be. It was a capable job of two-fisted street fighting, which included calling of names.

It was, of course, a cry of defiance but many delegates

WEST PROVINCES AWAIT DECISION PROPOSED PLAN

Union Insists on Conciliation on a National Basis in Their Strike Action

(By The Canadian Press)

A proposal for a conciliation scheme sponsored jointly by the provinces held hopes today for settlement of the strike of upwards of 12,000 packinghouse workers now in its sixth day on a country-wide basis.

The United Packinghouse Workers of America (CIO), on strike against Swift Canadian, Canada Packers and Burns and Company for wage increases averaging 17 cents an hour, insists on conciliation on a national basis.

Indications last night were that the four western provinces — British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba—were nearing agreement on a Saskatchewan-initiated plan to appoint a common conciliator to mediate the strike.

Premier Drew of Ontario was reported considering the plan. Some observers expressed belief that if Ontario agreed to it, Quebec and New Brunswick would fall in line.

The plan calls for the men to return to work during conciliation—a step the union already has rejected in a settlement formula put forward by the Ontario Labor Department—but Premier Garson of Manitoba said last night a compromise might be reached on this issue.

Still Negotiating

The union still is negotiating for a new contract with Swifts, which offered a three-cents-an-hour wage increase. Canada Packers and Burns which offered a five-cent boost, so far insist on the unionists returning to work before conciliation starts.

Meantime the meat scarcity grew steadily worse across the country. Big city chain grocery stores and other concerns with vast cold storage facilities continued to sell meat but supplies neared exhaustion in small butcher shops.

Fish consumption jumped 35 per cent in Montreal as meat stocks dwindled rapidly. The city had plenty of poultry and dealers predicted that the steadily increasing demand for fowl could be met. Restaurants cut down on meat dishes.

Winnipeg planned to study its regional strike situation in the light of an order permitting the Prices Board to issue slaughter permits to farmers or retailers. To enable meat to be brought into the city for rural districts, Winnipeg would have to relax civic regulations.

Prospect of relief from Toronto's ice shortage faded when it was announced the union had refused to permit 11 of its members to operate an ice plant owned by Canada Packers which supplies 16 independent dealers. It had been suggested that proceeds from sale of the ice be donated to charity during the strike and both Canada Packers and the dealers approved the arrangement.

THREE CONVICTS SOON CAPTURED AFTER ESCAPE

Absence Not Noted Until Arrest at Gunpoint by Police

Boston, Sept. 19—(AP)—Three dangerous convicts, one serving a life term, made a phantom-like escape from heavily guarded State Prison before dawn today with such smoothness their absence was not noted until two had been captured at gunpoint by police.

First word that the men had cut their way out came when police reported they were holding two men who apparently had fled from the institution.

A quick survey of cell blocks revealed that the lifer and two long-term prisoners had cut their way through a foot-thick cell wall, scaled a 50-foot ventilator and dropped to the yard to climb a 22-foot wall.

The recaptured men were identified as Earl R. Baker, 37, serving a life sentence for murder, and George H. Baker, 35, Boston, serving eight to ten year concurrent sentences for breaking and entering. The third man was George Hayes, 30, serving 12 to 15 years for armed robbery.

Police reported the recaptured men were taken without a struggle.

One of the heaviest police concentrations in years milled around the prison area directly after the break and streets were blocked off near Bunker Hill monument where Hayes was believed trapped.

Lanagan said the guard of the cell block from which the men escaped was a rookie who had been at the prison only two weeks.

50,000 More Japs Evacuated From N. Tokyo

Tokyo, Sept. 19 (AP)—An additional 50,000 Japanese were being evacuated from northern Tokyo today as a weakened dike and tidal backwash threatened new inundation of a wide area of the capital's flatlands.

Simultaneously, United States army reports placed the death toll on the flooded Kanto plain at a new high of 2,000. Kyodo news agency reported 1,798 dead, 652 injured and 2,142 missing.

Allied headquarters' public health and welfare section said three thickly populated wards of Tokyo would be inundated if a weakened dike gave way on the Naka River, on Tokyo's northern boundary.

Some 350 American soldiers were safely back at their headquarters after being marooned for four days by flood waters sweeping northern Honshu.

THREE GUNMEN CAPTURED IN OTTAWA HOTEL

Believed to be Trio Who Held Up Oshawa Taximan and Robbed Him of $120

Ottawa, Sept. 19. (CP) — City police, holding three men for the kidnap-robbery of taxi-driver Austin E. Bennett of Oshawa, Ont., announced today they had found Bennett's automobile here and a fourth gun supposedly owned by the arrested trio.

Captured early today in a downtown hotel, the three men were being held without charge meanwhile for identification by Bennett, who was robbed of $120 yesterday and ejected from his car by three men who drove off in the machine.

The detained three, who were spotted by a patrolman from the description of the robber group, gave their names as Bruce Bay, London, Ont, Raymond LaFrance of Ottawa and Robert Nicholson of Sudbury, Ont.

Detective Inspector Leonard Green said today that a few hours after their arrest city police had located Bennett's cab at the corner of Sherwood Drive and Hamilton Street here.

He said other police assigned to an express office in the city had picked up an automatic pistol consigned to LaFrance from Toronto.

Three other guns, one of them loaded, had been found in the room where the three were picked up, two of the men in bed and one half-undressed.

Despite Bennett's original belief that one of the men who robbed him was Nicholas Minille, escaped prisoner from Kingston Penitentiary, police said none of the men held here was Minille.

Ingersoll, Ont., Sept. 19 (CP)— Police throughout Oxford County were alerted today after a service station attendant's report that men resembling Ulysse Lauzon and Donald (Mickey) McDonald, escaped convicts, had stopped here to purchase gasoline.

The attendant, John Clark, said the two men, driving a taxi stopped for gas, then drove east toward Woodstock. He telephoned Ontario Provincial Police here and the report was relayed throughout the country.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, Sept. 19 —(CP)— Synopsis: Weather continues clear and very warm over southwestern Ontario while over the remainder of the province it is considerably cooler with clear weather in northern sections and a band of rain and scattered thunderstorms across Georgian Bay and Haliburton regions. This band of precipitation is moving very slowly southward. The tropical hurricane now is centred about 125 miles south of Pensacola, Florida, and is beginning to move slowly northward.

Streets Covered Inches Deep With Foliage, Limbs

New Orleans, Sept. 19 (AP)— The dead centre of a howling, devastating hurricane today moved over New Orleans at 9.40 a.m., after winds up to 90 miles an hour had raked the city and environs, doing heavy damage.

Residents were warned not to be fooled by the dead calm, the lifting clouds and the cessation of the rain that masked its centre.

The storm, the weather bureau said would strike again in full fury, from the opposite direction, and rage for hours more.

The tropical hurricane which moved across Florida last Tuesday with multi-million dollar devastation and at least five fatalities ripped into the lower Louisiana coast shortly after 6 a.m.

Front 20 Miles Wide

The weather bureau said a front 20 miles wide with high velocity winds was bearing down on this city of 600,000 now swollen with uncounted thousands of refugees.

Mayor Delesseps S. Morrison proclaimed a state of emergency at 7:30 a.m. and ordered all persons to "remain indoors, off the streets, and keep out of the downtown area unless it is absolutely necessary. The situation is well in hand and all agencies are functioning 100 per cent in the protection of life and property."

The purpose of the proclamation was "not to alarm anyone" but simply as a precaution.

The order was issued shortly after a massive sign had thundered into downtown Canal Street from the top of a department store. No one was injured.

Near Pontchartrain Beach, a huge roof-top clock 40 feet tall was torn to bits by gusts of 75 miles an hour. Streets in New Orleans, lined by gigantic oaks, were green-carpeted to a depth of several inches by foliage and torn branches.

Approximately 8,500 persons huddled in New Orleans' Municipal Auditorium and 20,000 were estimated to be sheltered in the city's 40 schools.

Health Centre Unroofed

The New Orleans health centre was unroofed shortly after dawn and one of the three storey brick walls caved in under the pounding of hurricane winds.

Screeching winds heralded the approach of the storm, which already had dealt heavily in havoc and distress for South Florida. At its core, hardly more than 100 miles from the Mississippi River's mouth just before dawn, the winds roared at velocities up to 100 miles an hour. Storm warnings flew all along the gulf coast.

Heavy gales swept out 200 miles from the hurricane centre, harrying the Gulf Coast from northwest Florida to Louisiana. They sent thousands of panicky refugees seeking safe shelters and prompted property owners to take all possible precautions.

Wind-driven rain added to the apprehension and discomfort of the population in most places in the storm region.

New Orleans and the neighboring Louisian - Mississippi coast had not had a storm disaster since 1915 when 350 persons lost their lives. Most of the city's buildings are of durable construction but several wartime housing centres waited for their first test from storm violence.

Florida saw the last of the great storm's peak fury Wednesday at midnight when it screeched out into the Gulf of Mexico at Fort Meyers on the west coast and began weaving along off shore. The state today was in the dreary, fatiguing clean-up, patch-up stage of its storm visitation.

Damage Tabulated

A late but far from complete tabulation placed the south Florida property loss at $12,000,000 in only six urban centres — approximately $5,000,000 at Palm Beach and West Palm Beach, $3,000,000 at the Boca Raton-Miami airfield, $2,000,000 at Miami Beach and $1,000,000 each at Del Ray Beach and Fort Myers.

This did not include colossal losses to citrus and vegetable growers as the storm tore a 150-mile long path from noon to midnight Wednesday, from east to west coast, with winds 120 miles an hour and higher, neither did it take in innumerable individual losses and damages.

At least five Floridians lost their lives from the storm. Hundreds received minor injuries. Thousands were driven from their homes and suffered hunger and other hardship.

As the storm approached the Mississippi mouth today, those from low-lying marsh areas told of seeing racoons and muskrats scurrying for higher ground. They also saw birds trying to flee, only to be blown into the bayous and creeks by the wind.

New Orleans put into force a "hurricane plan" calling, among other things, for transport planes from Memphis to rush food and supplies to stricken communities.

Four Feet Snow At Pincher Creek, Roof Collapses

Calgary, Sept. 19 — (CP) — Snow, reported as deep as four feet at Twin Butte south of Pincher Creek, covered Southwestern Alberta last night, blocking the main highway through the Crow's Nest Pass and disrupting power lines.

All dirt roads in the south half of the province were practically impassable as the snow and rain continued, and most of the gravel roads were in bad shape.

Weighed down by tons of wet snow and ice, the Pincher Creek curling rink collapsed with a roar at 7:45 p.m. Thursday. No one was injured.

Meanwhile six motorists who became snow-bound on the road from Waterton to Pincher Creek Wednesday night finally reached town after spending the night in their cars.

Big branches were broken off trees by the weight of the snow, and electric light power was disrupted three times as power lines collapsed. Telephone lines were down.

Canadian Legion Urges Action To Cope With Housing Situation

Ottawa, Sept. 19 — (CP)—Maj.-Gen. C. B. Price, Dominion president of the Canadian Legion, in a letter to Prime Minister Mackenzie King made public today, said Canada's housing situation constitutes "a national emergency" and urged immediate government action to "realistically come to grips with the problem."

The letter, second from the Legion on housing within a week, said it was more than ever "alarmed at the rapidly-growing extent to which dissatisfaction about living accommodation is being used to undermine law and order."

It suggested the government should:

1. Build more wartime houses for rent.

2. Encourage private enterprise in the building of low-cost houses under the legion's suggested plan for home-ownership.

Charging that the efforts of many thousands of married veterans to rehabilitate themselves was being thwarted by "lack of decent shelter" and that the measures already taken by the government "are proving inadequate to meet the nation's housing needs." Many thousands more units of wartime housing were needed to rent.

"The Canadian Legion is still of the opinion that its proposal to revise the National Housing Act mortgage loan requirements, as related to living units costing $7,000 or less, is one that ought to

Ottawa, Sept. 19 (CP) — The battle of the loaf of bread may develop into a first-rate anti-price-rise in Ottawa where housewives and their husbands are taking action against the rising cost of living.

Just a few blocks from Parliament Hill more than 150 Ottawans last night staged a protest meeting to discuss means of bringing their displeasure to the attention of the government. Sponsored by the Ottawa Consumers Organization, the meeting started out with bread as the chief item on its menu, but finished off with a meaty discussion on everything from petitions to plebiscites.

It was decided that a petition which the Consumers Organization has been circulating throughout the capital this last week, and which urges the return of the subsidy on flour, should be forwarded to the Federal government. The petition has been endorsed by 23 churches of seven different denominations.

The meeting also recommended that a delegation visit the Parliament buildings, asking to leave it up to the people of Canada whether they want a return to price control and subsidies.

It also approved a resolution urging that similar groups across the Dominion unite in a general

Prices of Grapes Set by Board

St. Catharines, Sept. 19—(CP) — Prices of grapes for processing in Ontario has been fixed at $95 a ton for 1947, it was announced here Thursday by officials of the District Grape Growers and Marketing Board. The agreement, signed in Toronto Wednesday, set the price $2.50 a ton higher than last year and an increase of $30 a ton on the 1939 price. One official said the price was the highest ever paid by processors but added that the increase would barely cover added costs of growing and marketing during the last year.

Belleville Fair With its Wealth Of Splendid Attractions And Exhibits Is Worthy of Generous Support

On Monday, what is predicted by a justifiably proud Board of Directors to be the best yet, the Belleville Exhibition opens its annual three-day show.

The epitome of concentrated effort; the best ideas promulgated in other outstanding fairs of the district, and original plans for improvement, this year's Exhibition with its augmented prize list and record number of entries, bids fair to outshine any other function of its kind in this part of the province.

It is truly called the "Agricultural Show Window of Hastings County." It is more than that. It is a part of the community life of the Production County of Ontario, urban as well as rural.

From the oxen days of 100 years ago when sturdy pioneers were wagon and buggy-drawn over rough trails, to the present highly mechanized age, the Fair has recorded a steady march of progress.

Outstanding Attractions

This year, directors claim, the Fair will reach exhibitive and entertainment heights never before offered to the fair-going public. And inasmuch as the greater majority of exhibits are of Hastings County origin, it is expected that residents of the county will turn out to support a function, that after all, is part and parcel of them.

The success of the Fair, especially during the past few years, has been more or less directly due to the efforts of a hard-working board of directors. They have spared neither time nor effort to bring the best in exhibits, entertainment, and other phases of a fair to the residents of this county and district. This year their efforts have been rewarded with extraordinary success. The best Hastings County has to offer, agriculturally, industrially, educationally, has been augmented by outstanding features and exhibits from the province.

Good Livestock Exhibits

The horses, livestock, sheep and swine exhibits outrank any of previous years. The grounds have been modernized. Handsome new buildings have been erected. A floodlight system has been installed through the efforts of the City Parks Board. The race track has been brought to a near-perfect condition. Midway and stage entertainment is the best the province has to offer. City business and industry have donated $1,100 in prizes. The displays of merchandize and products of industry mark the the life of the city.

All in all, the 1947 Belleville Exhibition is worthy of the best support the county and district can give it. It is Hastings County in exhibitive miniature. It is not just a fair. It is an institution; a living tribute to the efforts and pride of the scions of those illustrious pioneers who first called Hastings their home. Reflecting Agricultural life of Eastern Ontario, the Exhibition bids fair like Tennyson's "Brook" to "go on forever."

Fred E. Martin, Rawdon Township farmer, charged with arson and attempted murder in connection with the burning of his farm home last May, was found not guilty by the Supreme Court assize jury here late Thursday afternoon. The jury was out just less than one hour before they returned their verdict.

On the arson charge Martin was found not guilty because the jury found he was insane at the time he committed arson and was acquitted on account of this temporary insanity.

As result of the verdict Mr. Justice Wilson ordered Martin kept in custody at a mental institution to undergo treatment.

In ruling Martin insane at the time he set fire to his farm home in Rawdon Township, the jury did not accept the evidence of two psychiatrists who testified that in their opinion the accused was normal mentally and considered there had been no change in his mental capacity for the past number of years.

Dr. C. H. McQuaig, Kingston, stated Martin was mentally normal at the time he had examined him and further stated he had a borderline intelligence. Dr. W. A. Cardwell, Whitby, also stated Martin was normal mentally but he considered his intelligence higher than "borderline."

Jury Addressed.

Addresses to the jury by counsel and by the judge took up a greater portion of the time during Thursday's session which saw cross examination of Clifford Luery by Defence Counsel Arnott.

Under cross examination Luery stated that he had stayed at Martin's "off and on" since 1928 and admitted he had refused to leave the place despite having been ordered to do so by Mr. Martin.

The one other Crown witness called during Thursday morning's session was Allan Sine, who with Ray Sine and Stan Royle had rescued Luery, Mrs. Cassidy and the Martin's daughter, Jennie, from the burning home.

Defence Counsel Arnott called no defence following conclusion of the Crown evidence and in his address to the jury maintained Martin had not intended to murder anyone when he set fire to his farm home last May 6th. "Martin had fired the home because he had considered this the only way to get Luery out of the house," he said.

Annual Tag Day For Blind Saturday

The local branch of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind will make its annual appeal to residents of Belleville and district on Saturday to "lend a hand to their blind neighbor." Saturday will be the annual tag day, proceeds of which go to purchase comforts to make life easier for the blind in Hastings County.

Not All Blind Get Pension.

Contrary to popular opinion, not all blind persons receive the blind pension, it was pointed out by an official of the blind organization. As has been the case when application is made for the old age pension, a means test is also given applicants for the blind pension. This means if the applicant's income is above the very nominal figure set as a standard, the applicant is not eligible for assistance.

Police Believe Death Suicide

Barrie, Sept. 19 (CP) —Provincial Police today continued their investigation into the death of 27-year-old Stewart Dobson whose body was found yesterday in a field near Fergusonvale, 12 miles north of here, with a bullet in the heart.

Last night County Crown Attorney Frank Hammond said that circumstances surrounding the death of the former Barrie policeman indicated suicide. Earlier, the possibility of robbery was discounted when police found that $1,800 Dobson had withdrawn from a bank two days before his death was still in his quarters in a Barrie rooming house.

The body was found by a farmer, Samuel French, not far from Dobson's car which was parked at the side of a country road. The body was on the opposite side of the road, with a Belgian nine-millimetre revolver nearby, from which one discharged cartridge had been ejected. Dobson had a cigarette in his hand.

Dobson was a policeman in this Simcoe County town until last year when the Ontario Provincial Police assumed law enforcement duties in Barrie. Since then he had been employed as a truck driver by a local firm. He had been separated from his wife and little son for a month.

Six Injured In Car Crash

Guelph, Sept. 19 (CP) — Six persons were injured, two seriously in a two-car collision last night on Paisley road, four miles from here. All six are in hospital.

Injured were W. W. Buchanan, 81, chairman of the Guelph Cemetery Commission and former reeve of Guelph township; his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Buchanan; their son, Wallace, and his wife, all of Guelph and two brothers, Nyle and Rod Weber, of Breslau.

Police said the cars, driven by Wallace Buchanan and Rod Weber, crashed at an intersection and overturned, pinning the occupants in both machines. Extent of the injuries suffered by the six persons has not been determined but the two women were reported to have been most seriously hurt.

User of Phone Takes Assistant At His Word

"May I use your telephone" shouted an elderly gentleman, apparently hard of hearing, as he entered a Front Street store the other day.

The manager of the shop was in the rear at the time. He came to the front and gave his assent to the gentleman's request. Then he went out to do his daily business with the bank.

His assistant was working in the shipping department at the back of the place. He was unaware that the gentleman was using the phone.

A minute or so later, the elderly gentleman, who secured his number, yelled in a loud voice, "Is so-and-so there?"

The shop assistant looked up from his work as he heard the voice. Thinking it was addressed to him, he shouted back. "No he's not here."

Two Juveniles Found Guilty Of Trespassing

Trespassing of two young juveniles on railroad property last July had its sequel in police court this morning as the two lads appeared before Magistrate T. Y. Wills in juvenile court. The two lads pleaded guilty to the charge, their parents being assessed $2.50 costs and the lads receiving a lecture from court officials as to the dangers of trespassing on railroad property.

Inspector Hayes in giving summary evidence stated he had been driving parallel to the tracks near the C.P.R. station when he saw the two lads running along the track beside a moving freight train. One of the lads grabbed the hand rails of a box car and pulled himself up to ride for a few feet before dropping back to the ground.

"If these two lads were to see persons at morgue without arms or legs as result of doing this very thing they would appreciate the dangers of what they were doing," commented Assistant Crown Attorney S. Gordon Roberison.

Francis Leween Held for Theft

The popular saying that the law never forgets was found to be only too true by Francis Leween, former resident of the Mohawk Indian Reservation who for the past several months has been residing in the United States.

Home ties proved too strong for Leween and he returned to the Reservation to attend the Mohawk Fair on Thursday with the result that he was arrested on a theft charge which had been standing since last March. Jacob Green of Shannonville had then lost a suit together with some cash, with result that a warrant was sworn out for Leween. However, before the warrant could be executed he had gone to the United States.

Thursday at Mohawk Fair, police chief of the Reservation, Chief Gordon Brant, saw Leween and remembered that he was wanted by police. Provincial police were notified with result that Leween was picked up Thursday evening at the Council House dance.

VISHINSKY'S

noted that it was straight-from-the-shoulder Red propaganda which would make prime reading in Russia and would impress satellites and temporizing nations.

However, we shall make a mistake if we don't also take this speech to be a declaration of policy by the Soviet government.

The language which Vishinsky used has shocked a multitude. Your correspondent has attended many international conferences in various parts of the world and cannot recall anything even approaching the deputy foreign minister's war-mongering charges against the United States and even against individuals.

Well, what does all this add up to? Naturally a lot of folk today are looking anxiously at their war barometers to see how they read. Well, so far as I see we are no nearer war today than we were before Vishinsky unburdened himself. That being so, we still can accept it as a fact neither Russia nor any other country wants war. All other things aside, the Soviet Union isn't ready for war and won't be for many years.

Of course, if nothing happens to stymie the world revolution for the spread of Communism, the time will come when it will break against the shores of great countries which will fight to keep it out.

Only Canadian 'Inventor' Named Is Dr. J.B. Collip

The only Canadian "inventor" recorded in the World Almanac is Dr. J. B. Collip, new dean of the Medical School, University of Western Ontario, London.

In a list of United States and "foreign" inventors extending over 366 years, and including such names as Galileo, Daguerre, Nobel, Dunlop, James Watt, Thomas Edison, Sperry and many others, Dr. Collip is the sole "Canadian" entry.

The entry is made in respect to Dr. Collip's medical discoveries. He is currently working on hormones, the material produced by cells of ductless glands.

When Dr. Collip moved to London recently from McGill University the event marked one of the largest transfers of research equipment and staffs ever undertaken by Canadian universities.

He was formerly director of the research institute of endocrinoloy at McGill.

Dr. Collip is a native of Belleville and secured his early education in local schools.

Scouts and Cubs To Hold Jamboree

Fire Destroys Ball Grandstand

Watertown, N.Y., Sept. 19 — (AP)—The grandstand at the Jefferson County fairgrounds here also used as a baseball park by Watertown Athletics of the Border Baseball League, was levelled by fire of undetermined origin early today.

The stand was in flames a few hours after some 4,000 fans had occupied the structure last night to witness a game between the Athletics and Ogdensburg Maples. The blaze spread to the dugouts, destroying some baseball equipment.

Race horses stabled in nearby buildings were led to safety.

Warning of another depression unless immediate corrective action is taken, G. W. Goodwin, of the Ottawa Board of Control, said that only by positive steps on the part of the ordinary people would results be achieved. He added that the world was watching the losing of the peace —through such seemingly simple things as the increase in the prices of bread, milk, and meat.

The woman's side of the story was brought into the picture by Mrs. Katherine Harris, Ottawa social worker, who told the group: "It used to be that a person could get along with no frills — just bread, butter and milk — but now if you've got bread, butter and milk, you've got the frills."

"...if the government would tell us why these rising prices have to be...and tell us any way we could help keep them down, then we would feel more satisfied."

CHEESE BOARD

A total of 3,657 cheese, all white were offered on the Belleville Cheese Board Thursday evening. All were sold at the one price of 25 cents.

Aside from selling of the cheese no business was conducted on the board, although there was brief discussion regarding changing the meeting date when W. R. McCreary stated if cheese were brought to the dock warehouse sooner, it would benefit transportation. No action was taken on this suggestion, nor on a further suggestion that the board discontinue meeting each week.

CANADIAN LEGION

receive favorable consideration immediately.

"We believe that a 3½ per cent interest rate is a sound economic rate for loans on low cost housing, having in mind that interest on the forthcoming issue of Canada Savings Bonds is to be at the rate of 2¾ per cent.

"Despite amendments, the cost of the loan to a veteran is still too high, due to the 4½ per cent interest rate and to the practice of basing loans on some hypothetical lending value rather than on actual expenditures, thus increasing the initial cash equity."

The letter went on to say that Reconstruction Minister Howe in a letter to the Legion had indicated that a reduction in the interest rate from 4 ½ per cent to 3½ per cent did not need legislation but could be done by order-in-council.

The letter said the Legion fully appreciated that from the Underwriter's point of view, 90 per cent loans based on today's inflated costs would involve a high element of added risk. But to offset this there was the knowledge that in the past National Housing Act loss experience on small individual mortgage loans had been negligible and in any event the extra underwriting risk would be more than justified because it presented "the only practical means available whereby to ease the need for the outright subsidization of living accommodation."

TWO HANGED FOR MURDER

London, Sept. 19 —(Reuters)— Two young Londoners were hanged today for the murder in April of Alec de Antiquis, 34-year-old father of six children who was shot while trying to prevent their escape after they had tried to rob a London jeweller's shop.

The third member of the hold-up gang, 17-year-old Terence Rolt, was also found guilty of murder but because of his youth escaped the death sentence and now is in prison.

Past, Present, Future

The forefathers of the Dominion were a stout race to whom so much is owing by the nation today.

"One hundred years ago the Governor-General, Lord Elgin, at a banquet following the opening of a railroad between Montreal and Lachine, spoke of the significance of what was being done," says Montreal Gazette quoting the words of the Governor-General of that day, "I trust that the time is not far distant, when this railroad will be but a link in the chain, which, if it does not bind together the two oceans, will at least unite the various dependencies of Great Britain in North merica."

It is a far cry from the Canada of that time to the nation of today with its railroads stretching across the continent, and linking up with the American lines. Today Canada has railroads which touch a great number of communities directly. That day a century ago was one of slow travel with nothing of the comfort of travel in this twentieth century which is possible to every Canadian and to every visitor to the Dominion in travelling by rail or on road or by plane. There is a vast change from the mid-nineteenth century to the mid-twentieth with changes marking so many of the things to which we are accustomed.

The men of a century ago and throughout the history of this country have been enterprising and to them is owing the magnificent heritage to which Canada of the twentieth century has fallen heir.

Pride in ancestry which made so much possible in Canada is a justifiable pride. There are some kinds of pride of course which are not based on true values and worth but the pride of Canadians in their country's past is the worthy kind, for what Canada is today is in no small part due to the foresight, the loyalty and labor of the forefathers who in that early day had the shaping of the destiny of this country.

Today Canadians have too their part in the making of the Canada of the days ahead. It is an honored role which they are privileged to assume and all indications point to the great service the people of today can render future ages by being truly Canadian in every aspect of their lives. In a brief period of time Canadians have come to find the respect which the nations of the world show them and the recognition the name and effort of Canada have achieved especially in recent years through the all-out service of her citizens in the last war.

It is well that they realize this part their country and they as citizens are destined to play. They have but to read the newspapers to discover Canadians occupying the centre of attention at the General Assembly of the United Nations where Canada's voice has been heard and is being heard.

Again and again Canada's voice has been heard in the great councils of these days following the greatest of wars and the nations listen to the opinions of that nation.

A century and less ago Canadians could hardly have foreseen Canada playing her present important role in world affairs before the United Nations General Assembly.

Menace to Traffic

Cars with only one headlight burning are the cause of anxiety to drivers on the highways at night. One of the reasons for the uncertainty in meeting a car with one headlight is that it may be taken in the dark for a motorcycle. Another question raised by the appearance of the one-eyed cars on the highways is that the drivers meeting the single-lighted vehicle, if they judge it is a car with one light dark, cannot tell which lamp is lighted.

The car with one lamp unlighted is a serious menace to traffic.

Science Hopes to Aid

As if to emphasize the importance of every effort of science in the conquest of nature so that she may be brought to help man's needs, one of the worst hurricanes has struck the Florida coast. It was only the other day that it was announced that scientists were going to experiment and try to prove that such violent upheavals can be calmed and brought to disappear by making the storm drop its moisture by the sprinkling of clouds of moisture with dry ice and so causing precipitation.

Those who live in tempest and hurricane quarters of the globe will wish science every effort in trying to calm the disturbances of the elements which at times cause so heavy losses and bring so much suffering.

Safety is a Habit

It only saves a few seconds, or a minute or two at the most, when you try to beat a light or cut a corner. And yet for the sake of that few seconds many a driver is courting death or permanent injury. Day after day the toll of accidents caused by carelessness makes sorry reading but all too often the lesson to be found in these accounts is not heeded.

All three of these incidents were the direct result of carelessness. Traffic signals and rules were disobeyed to save a few seconds and the drivers of the cars not only endangered their own lives but those of the bus passengers as well. Yet these drivers would claim that they were careful drivers if questioned. They know the rules but don't follow them. Like all other regulations they are only effective if obeyed and the only way to obey them is to make it a daily habit to follow every precaution.—St. Catharines Standard.

Toy Guns

In the Montreal story police officials were quoted as saying that "about 50 per cent of cases of armed robbery in recent years involved use of life-size toy pistols." And an officer of the Quebec Provincial Police declared that "possession of toy pistols had brought about the downfall of many juveniles, 14 to 16 years," by making it easy for them to commit armed robberies.

These are the opinions of men constantly fighting crime and hunting down criminals and cannot be disregarded lightly. They make a perfect and unanswerable case against the toy pistol.—Woodstock Sentinel Review.

The Terroristic Brand

Belligerent Zionism's resort to the melodramatic in the publicizing of what it considers a people's grievance marks it as a terrorist movement, beyond the pale of law.

Bombings, bank robberies, hangings — these clearly indicated its character to most people no directly concerned with the Palestine issue. Some, however, classified them as isolated reactions to suppression and refused to acknowledge their true meaning.

The fantastic plot to "bombard" London, considered in conjunction with the earlier "explosive letter" campaign, should eliminate all doubts.

Unfortunately, such projects are also apt to compromize Zionism's legitimate case in the public mind, and influence UN reaction to its probing committee's Palestine report.—Montreal Herald.

Genius does what it must, and talent what it can.—Owen Meredith.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST
(Copyright, 1947, Edgar A. Guest)

HOME-LIFE

The very rich, I oft say,
Are folks who miss a lot of fun.
A butler puts their coats away,
And someone gets the gardening done.
At eve they sit them down to dine,
Not knowing what the meal will be,
And thought it may be extra fine,
Their guests the cook will never see.

And they have maids to make the beds,
With nurses for the children small,
To comb the little tousled heads
And answer every childish call.
But everything is done for hire,
And all is proper as can be,
Though ease and comfort I desire,
I would not be from trouble free.

At times the dishes I would dry
And help the supper board to clear,
And should I hear the baby cry—
Although I knew a nurse was near—
I'm sure I couldn't be content
Whenever came a crying spell
Until up to the room I went
To get the word that all was well.

Though weary oft we grow of care
And tedious tasks that must be done,
I'm sure the duties that we share
Can be considered partly fun.
We long for rest; but when we may,
And we are left to dwell alone—
The children grown and gone away—
We find the joy of home has flown.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Did the Constitution sanction slavery?

As originally adopted in 1789 the Federal Constitution did not mention slavery by name but recognized the legality of the "unmentionable institution" in various euphemistic phrases.

"Slavery" does not occur in the Declaration of Independence, the Articles of Confederation of the Constitution in its original form.

The first and only occurrence of the term in the Constitution as it now stands is in the 13th Amendment, which was adopted in 1865 and which abolished slavery.

This Amendment reads: "Neither slavery nor involuntary servitude, except as a punishment for crime whereof the party shall have been duly convicted, shall exist within the United States, or any place subject to their jurisdiction."

The language of this Amendment was modelled after a provision in the Ordinance of 1787, adopted by Congress under the Articles of Confederation to establish the government of the Northwest Territory. That provision reads: "There shall be neither slavery nor involuntary servitude in the said territory, otherwise than in the punishment of crimes, whereof the party shall have been duly convicted."

The framers of the Constitution used various devices to allude to slavery without mentioning it by name.

Article 1, Section 2, Clause 3, says: "Representatives and direct taxes shall be apportioned among the several States which may be included within the Union, according to their respective numbers, which shall be determined by adding to the whole number of free persons, including those bound to service for a term of years, and excluding Indians not taxed, three-fifths of all other persons."

Section 9, Clause 1 of the same Article says: "The migration or importation of such persons as any of the States now existing shall think proper to admit, shall not be prohibited by the Congress prior to the year one thousand eight hundred and eight, but a tax or duty may be imposed on such importations, not exceeding ten dollars for each person."

This provision authorized the Federal Government to prohibit the importation of slaves after 1807 and at the same time permitted it to levy a tax on slaves imported until the foreign slave trade was abolished.

The 14th Amendment does not mention slavery, and the 15th Amendment, which became effective in 1870, says simply: "The right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of name, color, or previous condition of servitude."

For many years before the Civil War, slavery was referred to euphemistically, in polite circles as "the peculiar institution."

COST OF LIVING BONUS

Welland, Sept. 18 — (CP) — Local municipal and utility employees will receive weekly wage increases of $4.40 retroactive to Sept. 15 in the form of cost-of-living bonuses.

The increase was announced today by the Welland Hydro Electric Commission for all its 30 employees. City council voted a similar increase for 101 employees.

Prime Minister King is Called To Ontario Bar

Toronto, Sept. 19 — (CP) — Prime Minister Mackenzie King, who has never formerly studied law, was called to the Bar of Ontario Thursday in a ceremony at Osgoode Hall where his father, the late John King, was a lecturer for many years.

The special honor was conferred at a Convocation of the Upper Canada Law Society, which made him an Honorary bencher. Thirty-nine Osgoode Hall graduates, including three women, were presented with barristers' certificates.

After the Convocation, Mr. King was presented as a barrister to Chief Justice Robert S. Robertson and took an oath of allegiance to the King and the prescribed oath of Barristers-at-Law.

The Prime Minister is the fourth public figure to be made an Honorary Bencher of the Society. The others were the late King Edward VII; the Duke of Windsor, then Prince of Wales, and the late Lord Tweedsmuir during his term as Governor-General of Canada.

'Part of History of Canada'

J. Shirley Denison of Toronto, moving that Mr. King be made an Honorary Bencher, said the Prime Minister's life had been "part of the history of Canada" and that history would recognize him as "one of the greatest of Canada's sons."

He said that during the Rebellion of 1837, the Prime Minister's grandfather, William Lyon Mackenzie, had led one force south to Toronto. The late Samuel Lount had led another force. They were to meet at Osgoode Hall, barricaded and filled with armed men, some of them the judges of that day.

S. L. Springsteen of Windsor, Ont., who seconded Mr. Denison's motion that the Prime Minister be made an Honorary Bencher, is a great-grandson of Samuel Lount's brother.

Worthy of Vocation

In an address at the Convocation, Mr. King urged the newly-admitted barristers to "walk worthy of your vocation" by maintaining legal standards and upholding the high principles of law.

"Believe me, there is no force in the world greater than the force of example. The world has never been more in need than it is today of men who will uphold the Right and who will battle for truth and justice."

All parts of the world were being drawn into a single "indivisible" community. Lawyers were custodians of the rights of all men and of justice "in the relationships of nations as well as of individuals."

"I would advise all young men whose callings necessitate much of speaking in public — whether in courts of law, in parliament or from the pulpit — to cultivate the habit of accuracy."

Young persons had a "great responsibility" in that they should consider not only the immediate effect of their words and actions but also the interpretations placed on them in all parts of the world.

Plumbers Told Of New Code For Province

Windsor, Sept. 19 (CP) —Minimum standards of plumbing and sanitary engineering in Ontario both rural and urban communities are expected to result from the uniform provincial plumbing code to be considered at the next session of the legislature.

This was the information given yesterday to more than 100 delegates to the annual convention of the Ontario Association of Plumbing Inspectors and Affiliates.

Dr. A. E. Berry, director of sanitary engineering for the Department of Health at Toronto, outlined the proposed code which will be considered by the Association before being submitted to the legislature.

"It is obvious to anyone with plumbing requirements that it is highly desirable to have uniform standards of plumbing," said Dr. Berry.

He declared any worthwhile code would have to contain provision for necessary inspections both in rural and urban centres. It was proposed to appoint a chief plumbing inspector for the province who would examine plumbers for licencing.

The annual banquet held last night was featured by introduction of H. E. Roseborough of Sudbury as the new president, succeeding Fred Whitehead of Toronto.

Mr. Roseborough had earlier extended an invitation to hold next year's convention in Sudbury and the executive took it under consideration.

V. S. Baker of London, secretary-treasurer, told the covention that there was no re-inspection of old plumbing in most municipalities, a situation which he said should be remedied.

He also reported on a questionnaire submitted to members during the war. This showed a wide variance in salaries paid to plumbing inspectors. Only 10 of 32 communities reporting had boards of examiners for licensing plumbers.

DRINK WHEN YOU DRINK

When drinking water or any other beverage with a meal it is wrong to use the liquid to wash down unmasticated or incompletely masticated food. Eat when you eat and drink when you drink, but don't forget that an important part of digestion occurs in the mouth while you are chewing, particularly breadstuffs, cereals, vegetables, and digestion of cooked starch by the ptyalin in the saliva, and this digestion continues for half an hour or more after the food is swallowed. In order to get the full benefit of your food of course you must have a full complement of masticating machinery—your own or your dentist's.

If there are several teeth missing perhaps it would not be worth while having functionally efficient dentures installed now—you probably won't live long enough, to enjoy them. It beats me how many people who pretend to be intelligent are content to limp along with several teeth missing, because they imagine people won't notice their wretched edentulous state if it is only the back teeth that are missing, or because they just won't appreciate the value of a tooth or a good denture to replace it.

Carbonated water, soda water, "sparkling" water, seltzer water, as it is variously called, is plain water, in which carbon dioxide is dissolved under pressure. When the pressure is released the gas comes out of solution in bubbles. Occasional indulgence in this charged or "fizz water instead of plain water is harmless enough.

The fresh fruit juices or ades, sweetened or unsweetened make the best beverages for young persons.

Finally the answer to a frequent query about the effect of sucking or chewing and swallowing ice, natural ice or ice from the refrigerator, is that so far as I know the habit is harmless, as is eating snow, although drinking cold water is more refreshing.

The day of empirical medicine is over, I like to think. Empirics were old time physicians who disregarded all theory, experimental tests or studies and science and based their treatment on experience alone. Thus if the blacksmith begged for pork and beans when he was desperately ill, was allowed to have his wish, and got up and returned to his work at the forge next day, pork and beans was the best treatment for such an illness—and the tailor had to eat pork and beans when he developed the same illness, even if it killed him.

Not that present day medicine or therapeutics is free from empiricism, but we doctors like to sound off about our "scientific" principles and methods, although when any one is rude enough to ask for a few specific instances we're hard put to it.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Bobby-Sox

Curious to know your views in regard to bobby-soxers and the small amount of clothing they wear. Are they not more subject to tuberculosis, pneumonia and colds.

(A. D. H.)

Answer—They are not. From the viewpoint of hygiene and health the less clothing anybody wears at any time, with due regard for personal comfort, the better, in my opinion.

How to Use Calcium

I'm not sure I understand just how you said to use calcium for rheumatism. (Mrs. W. R. G.)

Answer—Send stamped envelope bearing your address, for pamphlet "Calcium and Rheumatiz". Or inclose ten cents in addition for booklet "The Calcium Shortage."

One Got Away

It seems as though most doctors want to take the tonsils out for everything from dandruff to pain in the heel nowadays. If I had listened to our school doctor, both of my children would have had their tonsils removed. But I did not consent to it, and later my son passed the Navy aviation examination with his tonsils intact.

(Mrs. S. T.)

Answer—From a glance at the throat of the average school child any day in mid-winter, a doctor of orthodox ways is likely to give such advice. If the doctor were a little better informed he might have another look, say next June, and find that the tonsils would not require removal after all.

IN DEEP SLEEP

New York, Sept. 19 — (AP) — Fiorello H. La Guardia, 64, gravely ill of a pancreas condition, today remained "in a deep sleep from which he cannot be aroused," Dr. George Baehr, his physician, said.

The former mayor collapsed Tuesday night at his home. An operation June 18 had shown that his ailment would not respond to surgery, the doctor said.

After serving 12 years as mayor of New York City, La Guardia in 1946 became Director-General of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration.

Gold Can be a Big Headache Either too Little or too Much

By FORBES RHUDE
(Canadian Press Business Editor)

Ottawa, Sept. 19 — (CP) — Everyone is interested in gold — so, let's talk about gold.

They are talking about it on Canadian stock exchanges where there was a rumor Wednesday, later denied, that the government had decided to pay a premium for its production.

Britain's Foreign Secretary Bevin talked about it the other day and the least he was called was "cockeyed" and if you join in this conversation you had better be prepared to be cockeyed too.

It seems that once upon a time, as Babylonian mothers used to tell their puzzled children, it was all very simple.

You had a piece of gold—some one admired it and gave you a hind quarter of beef for it, or the current version of the new hemline. It was as simple as that. If you had gold you could buy anything.

'Gold Standard'

Let's go on — on to say 1914, when "gold standard" was an untarnished phrase standing for the utmost in national monetary respectibility in the best of worlds.

You could take five dollars or a pound sterling to the bank and get gold for it. And if a country bought more from another country than she sold to it, she paid off the difference in gold.

Came the First World War and that matter of getting gold for your money went out the window.

It came to be regarded as good thinking that the value of a country's money lay in what it would buy within the country which issued it. That is, if it would buy your needs and reasonable luxuries, it wasn't necessary that you should be able to ask for gold.

However, it still was considered that a country which bought more from another country than she sold to it, should pay the difference in gold, and that its real value was in the settling of these international balances.

Then came the depression of the '30s. Britain and other countries went off the then "gold standard" and the settling of international balances with gold also went out the window.

Gold Retains Confidence

That doesn't seem to have left much of the "gold standard." But the human race has an age-old confidence in gold. Part of this may be instinctive faith, part of it may be sound thinking. Whatever it is, there is a lot of the "standard" left in the old metal.

Which brings up the subject of the present most tangible reason for world respect for gold: the United States will pay $35 an ounce for it.

Why the United States continues to do this is something for her treasury officials to explain.

Perhaps she just thinks it is the sound thing to do, or perhaps she is horrified to think what would happen to the world economy, including her own, if she stopped buying it.

For the United States willingness to buy gold is about the only universal yardstick of values left. If you wish to go to the trouble, you can value virtually anything in terms of gold at $35 an ounce.

The United States now holds nearly $22,000,000,000 worth of it, of which $12,500,000,000 is stored at Fort Knox, Kentucky.

When Foreign Secretary Bevin commented that this might be redistributed the United States was shocked. She had bought it and couldn't see any sense in redistributing it and then buying it back again. Perhaps Mr. Bevin meant something else.

Four Big Producers

The chief gold producers are South Africa, Canada and the United States herself, with Russia an unknown but interesting factor.

Canada's production, beyond her internal needs, is sold to the United States to help settle her adverse trade balance with that country; in effect she uses it to buy goods.

Just now the crux of the gold problem is that no one has very much of it, except the United States (and possibly Russia), and the Second World war wiped out or impoverished much of the productive power of the world, leaving the Americans, and particularly the United States, virtually the only undamaged production plant in the world.

The rest of the world is crying to the bins and factories of the Americans for goods. They certainly haven't gold with which to pay, and as yet they haven't the production to pay with goods.

Britain aims to increase her production so she can pay with goods for what she buys. There is little talk of gold or the need of gold in this; it is regarded as very incidental as compared with production.

Wants to Keep Reserves

Yet Britain is extremely loath to part with any of the gold reserves which she still retains; for, to repeat, there's a lot of the "Standard" left in the old metal even if many violently disagree with the place it has had in world affairs.

There's a grim note too. In a world of absolute security and trust there might be little need for gold. But so long as there is insecurity people seek it because it represents security — it will buy anything, and there's where we and everyone else since the dawn of history, came in.

Canadian Zoo Stresses Native Wild Life

This summer Quebec's Zoo marked its 15th year of existence. Born out of the depression through the efforts of Deputy Minister of Game and Fisheries, L. A. Richard, it has become one of the outstanding attractions around Quebec City. It is the pride of a handful of men whose work gave the province, perhaps Canada, its only zoo with an accent on Canada's own wild life. With more than 155 exhibits, mammals, birds, water fowl, from western, central and eastern Canada, the zoo has drawn close to 200,000 visitors this year. The management is in the hands of the Quebec Zoological Society. In the rotogravure section of The Standard this week are five pages of photographs depicting various types of Canadian wild life. Little Benny's Note Book

I had to go to the market for ma, Puds Simkins going with me for a favor on account of not having anything elts to do, and on the way back we stopped to look in the window of the Kristal Kandy Kitchin, and there was 2 gerls standing there looking in already.

Being bewty looking gerls both dressed in blue with the same color yellow hair hanging down, making them look like twins, which maybe they were, and one said, Oh look, chocklit mushmellows, 80 cents a pound. I wonder if they'd sell 10 cents werth? she said.

Giving me a idea how to show off in frunt of them, and I said to Puds, Hay, do you know something?

What? Puds said, and I said, I got a good mind to go in and buy 10 pounds of assorted mixtures. The only thing is, I still got about 5 pounds left at home, up in my room, and some of it's libel to get stale, I said.

The best candy they sell here costs $5 a pound and every piece is rapped in gold paper, Puds said. That's the only kind I ever buy, he said, and I said, I might go in and buy 3 or 4 pounds just for luck, only the truble is, I've got all these packages.

If that's a hint for me to carry the candy for you, nothing doing, Puds said. I got 15 pounds here yesterday, and that's all the candy I intend to carry for at least a week, believe me, he said.

Oh well, let's go to the drugstore instead and order 5 ice creem sodas each, I said, and Puds said, Okay, let's go.

And we kept on going, and I looked back and the 2 gerls were holding their mouths to keep from laffing too loud.

Probably proving they had their doubts.

Dr. G. Faulkner Gives Address To Life Underwriters

Members of the Quinte Life Underwriters' Association held the first gathering of the new season in the form of a luncheon meeting at Chez Henri on Thursday with the newly elected president, Mr. F. G. Creeggan presiding. Under the auspices of the Mutual Life Assurance Company, the program was devoted to an interesting address by Dr. George Faulkner on "India" in which he presented in a realistic fashion an experience of the war when he was attached to the British Army in the Indian campaign against the Japanese.

Dr. Faulkner was introduced by Mr. Percy McGuire who referred to his service as private with the British Infantry and his transference to the Medical Corps when it was learned that he was a physician. Dr. Faulkner was then appointed to the Indian Medical Corps.

In his address Dr. Faulkner told of the human side of a soldier's life, taking a ten-day period. Servicemen were a happy lot for they had learned not to worry beyond a day. When a detachment was informed that they would be in the first group to be transported by glider beyond the Japanese lines, and realized that they had never been in a glider, they didn't worry. The flight wasn't going to take place today so there was no point in worrying about it yet.

Story of Sixteen Men.

The story of sixteen men in that flight was the theme of Dr. Faulkner's talk. He told of the humor in even the most hazardous moments of his experience. The glider in which this group was to travel was also to contain the brigadier's horse but in loading the animal on the back of the glider was damaged. Another was substituted which had never been flown and then when the flight was under way, the tow plane was shot down and the glider pilot cut off the tow rope, landing in the Burma jungle in a Japanese infested territory.

Dr. Faulkner recounted each day's dangers and lighter moments as the party advanced under the command of Peter Fleming, the well known writer. The coolness and complete fearlessness of this officer under the most trying difficulties and situations reflected, the speaker said, the attitude of all "public school men" he had met and made one realize that this class, often joked about, had such stamina and courage, such resource in the face of danger, that one was filled with admiration at their prowess. The party was brought through the Japanese lines to their own lines with the loss of only one man, this disaster having occurred when he was one of four non-swimmers who had to be brought across a river without boat or raft.

Britain Can Come Through.

In concluding his address, Dr. Faulkner again referred to the fine ideals and attainments of the British officers and said that a country producing such men could come safely through its most difficult days.

During the business of the meeting it was announced that Mr. Charles Lundy would be the new secretary, Mr. Ralph Knowlton treasurer and chairman of the membership committee, and Mr. Frank Douglas would be a director.

Members welcomed back to their meeting Mr. Ralph Morden after a long period of hospitalization. The president presented to Mr. A. G. Stackhouse the Life Underwriters' National Quality Award. Mr. Don Williams, on behalf of the Association, expressed appreciation to Mrs. Colling for her work as press secretary and said that members regretted the fact that she would be leaving Belleville for Kingston but that their good wishes accompanied her.

An officer is inspecting one of the cases of anti-personnel mines which the U. S. is now shipping to Greece as part of a supply of the sinews of war to help the Greek army defend the country from attack. These mines are planted on roads and highways, and have proved deadly against infantry. The U. S. began to feed the Greek armed forces on Sept. 1, when the British turned over that task to America. Now it is food for Greek guns.

Expects Rockets Will Replace Heavy Guns on Battleships

London, Sept. 18. (CP)—Rockets will supplant 16-inch guns as the main weapons of the newest battleships "in a year or two", say the editors of Jane's Fighting Ships, authoritative directory of naval power.

The 1946-47 edition of Jane's, published today, said both Britain and the United States were revamping their navies for a possible era of atomic warfare.

The foreword said "There is plenty of support for the belief in the aircraft carrier as the capital ship of the future". There is no doubt that the temporary suspension of work on the U.S.S. Kentucky (45,000-ton Iowa class battleship) and Hawaii (27,500-ton battle cruiser) may be ascribed to the intention to incorporate rockets in their armaments," the new edition said.

"In a year or two, therefore, the rocket will have graduated as the main weapon of the capital ship, amounting to nothing less than a revolution in naval ordnance. Moreover, from official utterances, it would seem that the United States Navy looks to guided missiles of exceptional accuracy and range to counter attacks by aircraft carrying atom bombs."

The recent British Admiralty statement stressing the possibilities of atomically-propelled warships was mentioned.

In the opinion of the Admiralty, the book said, "The implications of atomic energy. . . are by no means limited to defensive aspects and may lead to enhancement of naval power in a highly modified form and with wide offensive and defensive commitments.

". . .The period for which it (the atomically propelled warship) could stay at sea would be limited only by other and generally less urgent problems, a vital factor of the ship proved less vulnerable than the harbor."

Information regarding the Russian Navy "continues to be scanty", the forword said. It added:

"It is difficult to credit the report that the 35,000-ton battleship laid down at Leningrad in 1939 has reached the launching stage, since it seems improbable that sufficient material for her construction can have been made available."

The publication said distribution of the former Italian navy may raise a problem. "It seems probable that some of the smaller allied powers, notably Greece, may come in for a share of the spoil."

Distribution also has to be made of nearly 250 destroyers and smaller craft of the Japanese fleet, in which China is interested, Jane's added.

For the first time details are published of the two Japanese warships, Musashi Yamato and Hyuga Ise, the largest battleships with the biggest guns ever known, sunk by the United States forces during the war.

The full load displacmeent of the Musashi was believed to have been at least 60,000 tons. Main armament, Japanese officers have said, was nine 18-inch guns each firing a 3,200-pound projectile. The weight of guns and mounting was believed to be 180 tons.

Anti-aircraft armament was reported as 12 five-inch, 16 47-m.m. guns. Each accommodated 12 bombers and 12 reconnaissance aircraft. Neither had aircraft on board when in action off Cape Engano in October, 1944, Jane's said.

Handyman Admits Slaying Housewife

Grand Rapids, Mich., Sept. 18 (AP)— The house-dress strangling of Mrs. Betty Ann Roberts was admitted orally last night, police reported, by an unemployed handyman who told them he had known the comely 21-year-old victim only a few hours.

Detectives indictated they would place charges against Dale Beauchamp, 26, after he had finished giving them a written statement.

Mrs. Roberts' body, a worn cotton dress wound tightly about the neck, was found yesterday afternoon stretched across the bed of her downtown Grand Rapids apartment. She was fully clothed.

Beauchamp first told police he had found the woman dead when he came to the apartment to meet her after making her acquaintance three years earlier in a bar.

Under questioning later, police reported, the slightly-built handyman admitted in his oral statement that he killed Mrs. Roberts in her home "because she called me bad names."

"I told her I wouldn't take those names from anyone, not even my wife," the officers quoted him. 'But she kept yelling at me and I told her to shut up or I'd tie her up. When she kept hollering I tied her up with the dress and left."

The victim's husband, Forrest, told police he had been at work all day at a bakery and had no knowledge of his wife's slaying until called by officers.

Mayors Prepare Housing Brief For Federal Govt.

Ottawa, Sept. 19 — (CP) — A Federally-subsidized, low-rental housing program for the Dominion was believed in preparation today for presentation to Reconstruction Minister Howe by the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities.

The mayors, who voiced their housing criticisms strongly at their annual convention in Winnipeg, met here today in a 12-man central group and were understood to have drafted a strong protest to the federal government over its handling of the housing crisis.

Actual terms of the brief could not be determined last night.

Other problems, including financing of Old Age Pensions and taxes, were presented yesterday to Health Minister Martin and federal finance representatives. Delegates said they received promises of "considered attention" and added they had a "very profitable" three-hour meeting.

The federation made three main recommendations in their hearings yesterday:—

1. That the Dominion institute a subsidized, low-rental and purchasing housing program along the lines incorporated in the report of the sub-committee on housing and planning of the advisory committee on reconstruction and that these facilities be made available to private builders.

2. That the federal government assume responsibility for devising ways and means of "rationalizing the housing construction industry in Canada."

3. The Federation appealed to "everyone" concerned in housing in Canada to strive towards "a more wholesale housing of all income groups throughout the country."

Government authorities said they had made no commitments but had undertaken to bring the various resolutions presented to the attention of the government heads.

RECORD CHICK PRODUCTION

Truro, N. S. — (CP) — Nova Scotia hatcherymen produced more than 2,100,000 chicks this year — 15 per cent more than last year — and the bulk of that number was hatched one month earlier than usual. The increase was attributed chiefly to greater efforts to meet the British egg contract.

Farm Workers' Wages Higher

Ottawa, Sept. 18 (CP) —The Canadian farmhand, who once toiled from dawn to dusk for $20 a month and "all found," is fast moving into the big-money class.

He now is earning, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today an average of $4.13 a day and $82.75 a month where the farmer provides his board, compared with $4.04 and $75.28, respectively just a year ago.

Where the farm worker provides his own board, the average rates are $5.17 a day and $109.03 a month against $4.95 and 100.62, respectively, this time last year.

These wages, reported as at Aug. 15, are higher than at any time since comparable statistics became available in 1940. Except in the case of monthly wages with board. Saskatchewan wage rate are the highest among the provinces, while Prince Edward Island's are the lowest.

Scarcity of labor and the maintenance of a high level of farm income have been important factors in the increase.

Varied Farm Oper[illegible]

Tomato growers are busily engaged picking and hauling their crops, some to Belleville and some to the factory in Trenton. The hot weather of the past few weeks was a great help to the corn, which looked almost hopeless earlier in the season. A few have their corn picked and taken to the factory with the greater majority coming to maturity within the next ten days. Low-lying fields could not survive the continued wet weather of the Spring and many farmers have light crops.

Most fall wheat was sown before the showers of the weekend Some of the more energetic, have reported their potatoes dry, and late beans harvested.

One sees fields plowed, but the fall plowing in general is far behind the usual schedule and many are still cutting hay, and second crop of alfalfa.

All in all, it has been a fair season, considering the lateness of the warm, growing weather, and we are again reminded of the promise that "seed-time and harvest shall not fail".

Presto Music Club

The first meeting of the 47-48 season was held at the home of Dorothy and William Connor on Monday evening. The following officers were installed:—

President, Dr. Locke; Past President, Ada Macdonald; Secretary Helen Cook; Treasurer, Bessie Franklin; Press Reporter, Norma Arkles.

The following program was presented:—

1. Piano (a) Brudder Sinkiller and His Flock of Sheep."

(b) "The Lonesome Whistler" Guion (Alec Gordon).,

2. (a) "Winter Lullaby" Dekovan.

(b) "I'll Walk Beside You" Murray (Irene Brown).

3. Violin (a) "Meditation from 'Thais.'"

(b) Elegie, Massanet, Dr. Locke.

TRINITY WOMEN'S CLUB

Madoc (Special) —Trinity Women's Club met at the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Johnson on Tuesday evening with a good attendance of members and the husbands and friends as their guests.

The meeting opened with the singing of "O Canada" and members answered the roll call by telling how and where they spent their vacation.

Correspondence was read of thanks and appreciation from Miss Meggett for donation from the club. Mrs. K. Holmes was appointed custodian of the club books. The club decided to purchase two baskets for the church.

Mr. Poulter interviewed the club regarding a church bulletin

The business meeting closed and the ladies retired to the lawn to join the men in a social time around a large bonfire that was built by Mr. Johnson on the lake shore. Mrs. Farrow moved a vote of thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Johnson for the use of their cottage.

VACATION STILL ON

Boyne Falls, Mich., Sept. 19 — (AP) — Summer vacation was still going on today for 200 school children of this agricultural district who cannot get back to classes until their partly-constructed school building is completed.

A total of $97,000, $22,000 in insurance on the school that burned down last year and $75,000 raised in a special bond issue, has been spent on the building, but the school board indicated about $30,000 more would be needed before it could be finished.

State officials said they would withhold school aid because, they maintained, payment is illegal unless classes are in session. The five school board members then resigned.

French Toast With Tomato Soup

Today's cooks are learning to use condensed soups in many kinds of dishes. For soup cookery is both practical and clever. Condensed soups come already prepared. They contain choice, and often market-scarce ingredients. And each is a finished, perfectly blended flavor, packed in a concentrated form, so that the contents of a can may be doubled without the flavors losing savor.

French toast, for example, becomes a satisfying, savory main course dish for luncheons or light suppers when the bread is dipped in condensed cream of tomato soup. Soup gives an exotic spicy flavor, a gay crimson color, adds food value to the dish.

Many tedious steps in the preparation of a dish are out, when soup is in. Mixing a sauce, doling out seasonings to taste, building up the body of a dish—all these and more are done with; for condensed soups already have these jobs accomplished for you. Because they shorten several cooking processes, condensed soups save time, fuel, and effort. Try soup cookery yourself and see.

Tomato French Toast

2 eggs
1-2 teaspoon salt
1 10-oz. can condensed cream of tomato soup, undiluted
Bread

Beat the eggs lightly, season with salt, and add the undiluted soup. Blend thoroughly. Then dip bread into this mixture. When well soaked with the crimson sauce, fry bread on both sides until lightly browned. Top with cheese sauce and serve with salad.

Cheese Sauce

2 tablespoons shortening or butter
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk
2-3 cup grated Canadian cheese

Melt the shortening, add the flour and blend well. Add the milk gradually. Cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Season with salt and pepper. Add the cheese and heat slowly, stirring constantly until cheese is melted. Pour over Tomato French Toast Makes eight good-sized slices.

Why Not to Address Invitations ". . .And Family"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am to be married in December and my mother and I are beginning to figure out how many invitations and announcements to order. We don't wish to seem skimpy about the number, of course, but still we don't want to exceed the necessary number. One way it seems possible for us to save is in not sending individual invitations or announcements to members of a family. But still I believe I remember reading in your column that it is not correct to write, "Mr. and Mrs. John Smith and family." Will you please direct us about this?

Robena

It is not good form to address an invitation or announcement to "Mr. and Mrs. John Smith and Family." To begin with, it looks and is colloquial, definitely on the provincial side, and unnecessarily so. Also, this inclusive form of address naturally doesn't give compliment or honor to the individual members of the family. And, most important, it doesn't make clear for whom the invitation is really intended. Mr. and Mrs. John Smith wonder. . .Are their children included in the invitation? . . . .Or does it mean that the older children are invited and not the younger children? . . And what about Mr. Smith's mother or some other relative who lives with The Smiths?

It's proper to use only one invitation to a family, but it's sensible to address the outside envelope to "Mr .and Mrs. John Smith" and on the inner envelope to write the names of the members of the family who are to be included in the invitation. For example:

Mr. and Mrs. Smith
Miss Mary Smith
Miss Dorothy Smith
Mr. Gerald Smith

Hours For a Golden Wedding at Home

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

For an At Home to celebrate a Golden Wedding, would the hours 3 to 5 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m. be suitable?

R. A.

Yes, any hours in the afternoon or evening are suitable that are convenient to the couple who are celebrating this anniversary, but usually the At Home hours are 3 to 6 or 3 or 4 to 7. Sometimes when the anniversary date falls on a day during the week that is not convenient for the couple or celebration is held on either the Saturday or Sunday following the anniversary date, and the party given in the late afternoon.

Improper for Sister to Give Bridal Shower

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am to be maid of honor for my sister, and since none of her friends have come forward with the suggestion that they give a shower for her, my mother thinks that I should give the shower. Is this correct? I had always thought that it was not correct for a member of the family of the bride-to-be to give a shower, but Mother thinks that it is not correct for a member of the family to give a shower if any other shower is planned. Which is right?

Anita

You are right . . .whether or not other showers are planned for the bride-to-be, it is not considered proper for a member of the family of either the bride or the groom to give a shower. The reason is the unattractive obviousness of the "bid" for gifts.

You Must Write Bread-and-Butter Letter after a Visit

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

To settle an argument between my sister and me, will you please answer this question: If, when you are leaving after a short weekend you thank your hostess and host, and then when you return home you send your hostess quite an important and expensive gift with a card enclosed on which you write, "Thank you for a wonderful visit," is it still necessary to write a bread-and-butter letter?

Adelaide R.

Yes! Regardless of thanks expressed when you leave and no matter how important and expensive the guest-gift you send, you must write a bread-and-butter letter to your hostess as soon as possible after you return home. It should be within two or three days.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

You're Not Ready For Marriage

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a girl of 17. A year ago, I met a fellow of 25. He is now in the service, but has been writing me letters telling me he loves me, and I know I love him, although I am not yet thinking of marriage.

He has asked my age many times, but I have always stalled on telling him, because I am afraid he will consider me too young for him. Before I met him, I had an affair with another fellow.

He is soon to return from service, and my two questions are: If he really loves me as he says he does, do you think my age would matter? And should I tell him about my affair?

Frances

Dear Frances:

If this young man is a wise person, he will want to wait until you are older before marrying you no matter how much he may love you. And you yourself should see the wisdom of waiting.

No girl of 17 is ready for marriage, besides which, the very fact that you made the kind of mistake you did shows that you are very far from maturity, and that you have not acquired either judgment or self-control, both of which are qualtities very much needed in marriage. If you were to marry this man before you develop them, it is not at all impossible that you might find yourself being led astray again by some chap with whom you happened to become infatuated.

As for confessing that you have already had an affair, I suggest that you wait awhile before making any decision about this, too. For all you know, nothing may come of this romance anyhow. Either one or both of you may have a change of heart before you get around to talking about marriage and decide that you aren't in love with each other after all.

Picking Up People By Mails Inadviseable

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am writing you in answer to the letter printed in a recent column of yours signed "Lonesome".

I am a widow of the same age as the gentleman who wrote the letter, and would also be interested in meeting someone, as I am a very lonesome person. Perhaps you could also help me by telling me the name of some club or society where I would meet men and women of my age, or even some way I could meet this gentleman.

"A Lonely Widow"

Dear "Lonely Widow":

If you read the letter signed "Lonesome", you undoubtedly also read my answer to it, in which I said that picking people up through the mails was a very poor idea, and that there are much better ways of meeting people than that.

I think that you should look around your town for a good place to start acquiring more friends, which usually means to join some community group. It makes very little difference what type of organization you choose, provided, of course, that it is a thoroughly reputable one. If you attend a church regularly, there must be groups there you could join which carry on interesting activity programs. If there's a Red Cross chapter in town, join that, and get interested in working for others. Every community has a number of such social service organizations that are always eager for volunteers. Don't take an upstage attitude toward all-woman groups, either, since it's not at all impossible that you might meet eligible male relatives through them.

The point is that the way to make new friends is to go where people are, and, if you are a cheery, companionable person, one friend always leads to another.

Her Boy Friend's a Bashful Dancer

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have been going out with a boy for two years, but can never get him to go dancing. He is a very good dancer, but is too bashful to dance where there is a crowd of people. He dances with me at home, but as soon as he steps on my feet, he stops dancing. Please tell me how I can get him to dance.

"Perky"

Dear "Perky":

The best way to help your boy friend overcome his bashfulness on the dance floor is to enlist the help of your girl friends.

Since he is willing to dance with you at home, start by inviting one or two of your girl friends, with one or two boys, over to your house for the evening. Explain to the girls in advance that this boy is really a good dancer, but is very shy about asking girls to dance, and tell them that if he doesn't invite them, when you turn on the radio or phonograph dance music, you'll depend on them to persuade him. They can easily do this by telling him jokingly that this is a Leap Year dance or something.

Don't make dancing the chief feature of the evening, however. Play games for most of the time, and then suggest that you have a dance or two just before going-home time. Otherwise, the bashful boy may be unhappy all evening. Next time, the same group might meet at somebody else's house and repeat the program and so forth, until eventually, the suggestion might come that you all go out to some public place to dance.

A Nice Girl Who Ought to Be Appreciated

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have been going with a girl for over a year, and I am pretty certain she loves me as I love her. But I still have little doubts about her.

The first is that she and I will have so much fun together all evening, but when I go to kiss her, she sort of shies off. I know that some girls do not think it's right to kiss, but I would like to know your oponion of that.

Another thing is, I have never asked her if she loved me and she has never said it, and I am wondering if you could give me some hints as to how to ask her about this. I am not much of a love talker, as they say.

"H. T."

Dear "H.T.":

If your girl doesn't want to kiss you when you haven't even told her you loved her, that just shows her very good sense. I wish there were more girls like her.

It is perfectly true that kissing is a much more casual thing today than ever before, and that it doesn't have to be taken seriously. But entirely aside from any question as to whether such kissing is "right" or "wrong", the fact still remains that it's cheap. And a girl who prefers not to cheapen herself in such a way, but to save her kisses for the time when she will really mean something by giving them, is a girl with a fine set of values. Instead of thinking there's anything peculiar about her, you ought to feel flattered that such a nice girl likes you.

You haven't told me your ages, but if you're sure you're old enough to take such things seriously, then why not just pull yourself together and tell the girl you love her? If you're really all steamed up about her, the words ought to come out practically by themselves.

And incidentally, if you do want her for your wife, take my advice and start practicing right away on ways of telling her you love her. Nothing makes a girl so happy, or keeps her so contented, as to be constantly assured that her man think she's the most wonderful thing in the world. Conversely, if he doesn't keep telling her, it makes her very unhappy indeed.

Her Fiance Makes a Poor Showing

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a girl of 19, and have been going with a fellow off and on for three years. Five months ago, he asked me to marry him, and I accepted.

Since then, he doesn't call when he says he will. The past couple of Sundays we were supposed to go out, and he has gone with the boys instead. He goes with a crowd, and when he's with them I don't even exist for him. They are a bad influence on him in a lot of other ways, too.

He says he loves me, and I do him, but when he acts like this, it make me wonder. Please advise me what to do.

"C. O'C."

Dear "C. O'C.":

If your young man would rather go out with his own friends than be with you, then I'm afraid he doesn't love you as much as he says. A man who is really in love would rather be with his girl than with anyone else in the world. In fact, it's hard for anyone to keep him away from her.

Moreover, if these companions of his are the kind who have a bad influence in him, he's not the kind of person you ought to marry.

If you want my advice, it's to tell this chap he'll have to choose between you and these unsavory friends of his. If he tells you you're his choice, and you then find he continues to hang around this crowd, you'd better send him about his business and look for someone more worth-while. You are sure to be sorry if you don't.

Facing The Facts of a Situation

One of the things for a person to do when confronted by a problem is to get clearly in mind what the problem is. So many people who write me about their emotion tangles are twice as confused as they need to be, just because they have never taken the trouble to analyse the problem down to its fundamentals. In most cases, they have not even realized the necessity for doing this. And in many other instances, I am afraid, even if they succeeded in uncovering the rock-bottom issues, they fail to recognize them, or are unwilling to do so.

A woman who writes me a letter complaining about "the odd unattached women who go out among married people causing distress and suspicion by their innocent, sneaky ways," is one of those, I am inclined to believe, who may be reluctant to face the actual facts of the situation, even when they have been pointed out to her.

Her complaint arises from the fact that one unattached woman apparently makes a play for her husband whenever they encounter her at a party. She says:

"I have a friend of many years' standing who insists on having a certain woman friend of hers in her home every time she invites my husband and myself there. This woman monopolized my husband until I could not continue being a good sport, and told my friend so in no uncertain terms. Now she accuses me of being jealous and in fear of losing my husband to this woman. God knows that is far from the truth."

Now right here, in the beginning, she is refusing to face the fact that she obviously is jealous. Whether she is actually afraid of losing her husband, I would not venture to say. It doesn't necessarily follow, just because she doesn't care to see him flirting with another woman. But she would put herself in a much better position to solve her problems if she would be honest enough to admit jealousy.

Now let's go on from there.

"Things got so bad," she continues, "that other people began to notice this woman making a spectacle of herself with my husband, and I began to feel left-out and humiliated. I talked to my husband and tried to make him see how foolish he is, but he claims he is only trying to be a gentleman. This is causing a lot of arguments between us."

The second fact that this woman should face is that she shows a very decided tendency to put the larger share of the blame for this situation on the wrong person; that is, this woman. No woman is able to flirt with a man unless the man is responsive. If her husband wanted to discourage the flirtatious spinster's advances, there is nothing in the world to prevent him. To put all the blame on her is like getting angry at the hammer when you pound your finger with it.

My correspondent goes on to say that the woman in question is known to have had an affair with somebody else's husband. But this seems to me somewhat beside the point, for, here again, she would have got nowhere if the man had not been willing.

The letter concludes with this question:

"Why do these women go into their 30s without finding some unattached male for companionship? What fun do they get from going among married people and trying to win happily married men?"

Here she is again, you see, blaming the woman bitterly, not only forgetting what I have just been saying — that it takes two to make a flirtation — but ignoring the fact that such women are greatly in a minority.

It seems to me that, in a case of this sort, a wife would be wise not to let herself be vixenish about "the other woman." However much she may be at fault, the husband who is an easy mark is more so. But this does not mean that the wife should go after her husband tooth and nail on the subject. It is silly of him to make a spectacle of himself, of course, but if it doesn't go any further than a harmless flirtation at a party, the wise wife will either laugh it off or ignore it.

Fashion Flashes

GOING PLACES constantly is the happy lot of the well-done little black dress. Black silk crepe, softly draped on the high-throated bodice, has a beautifully draped skirt that is drawn up to one hip, where the drapery ends with a big grosgrain chou, spattered with sequins.

NEW TREATMENTS give interest to the alligator bag. Fine alligator is worked into a beautiful, soft, box-type pouch bag, detailed with all-over soft chevron quilting, and a wide bar of gilt metal across the flat top. Wide handle.

INTO THE SUNLIGHT and out of his dark burrow comes the mole, for moleskin is staging a come-back. One milliner uses it for a group of pretty hats. A wide-brimmed sailor with full, squared crown, is of pink felt, the brim faced with moleskin dyed a deep wine red. Matching fur scarf.

BIG TIMES ahead for the fur-trimmed cloth coat, with the removal of the war-time tax. Soft green woolen is used for a smart coat, its very full, rippling, flared back accentuated by the deep border of nutria. Small, full collar of the fur over softly rounded shoulders.

WIDE CIRCULATION, come fall, for the fur-trimmed jacket costume suit. Black wool crepe is used for the simple, short-sleeved dress with a rhinestone studded belt that curves out in front. The little matching jacket has notched collar and wide, rounded revers of snowy ermine. Hem is very cut away in front. Definitely an important costume.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Treatment of Dry Skin

Loud and long are the lamentations of the girl who is afflicted with an oily skin. She wears powder pads out by the dozen. Her nose shines like a good deed in a naughty world. Yet an oily skin is in a more healthy state than an excessively dry one that is likely to show premature wrinkles because nature is not properly lubricating the epidermal surface. Dead cells form rapidly, and the outer layer of the skin fluffs off in tiny flakes — a terrible kettle of beauty fish! Neither the drys nor the oilies are pleased with themselves. If you have a normal complexion, thank your lucky stars and, for goodness sake, take care of it.

The drys must be fussy about the soap they use; even the blandest may kick up high coloring, cause discomfort. If this happens, one must use a cosmetic meal. Creamy cosmetics canhot be used too lavishly. Make-up must be removed with a thin cream; a soothing emollient must be applied after the soap and water or the cleansing meal is used. The lubricating agent must remain on at night. The flesh will absorb it eagerly; in the morning there will not be a sign of it. Plenty of friction during the application is recommended to urge the circulatory streams to bring nourishment to the tissues and cutaneous structures.

Dryness is caused by inactivity of sebaceous glands that were designed for the express purpose of keeping the skin soft, smooth and healthy. They may have gone on strike because they have not had the nourishment they need. It is advisable to add more fat to the diet — two slices of bacon for bread, plenty of mayonnaise on breakfast, more butter on the one's salad. Beauticians, these days, aren't relying simply on local treatment of complexion defects. They are stressing the need of special diets, outdoor exercise, deep breathing, plenty of sleep. Cosmetics play a big part in the preservation of good appearance, but health and hygiene are greater, more important factors.

Sometimes the skin is dry because it is thirsty. The victim of this pulchritude worry does not drink enough water. Let her experiment, watch results. She should take a glass of water before breakfast, one between meals, one at bedtime. Tea, coffee or other beverages will complete the three pints of liquid that the physical organism should have daily.

The diet should be balanced. It must include the protein that is found in meat, fish, egg white and the curd of milk; the carbohydrates found in sweets and starches; and a little more than the usual allowance of fats.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

No, no, Nanette. There is nothing for you to worry about when partner makes a one-jump response. He is simply telling you that this hand contains two sure among enough tricks to help make a game.

Your opening one bid shows five tricks. His one-jump response shows the balance needed for a game. This means six tricks if the decided trump is a minor; five if the decided trump is a major.

You understand it right, Nanette. If the jump is an assist in a major suit, it shows five tricks. If the jump is an assist in a minor, it shows six tricks. Each is help for a game in that suit.

Since trump is thus decided by the assist, the definite number of needed tricks is known in advance. Because 11 tricks are needed for game in a minor; only 10 in a major.

What about a jump takeout? Has the trump suit been decided? No. So, the final trump suit may be in a major or a minor. For all the players yet know, it may end in a minor.

So, you see, any jump takeout to a different suit must say it is prepared for a suit that may need the most tricks. Thus, it must promise six tricks to make sure of a total of 11 in the pair.

This tells us a jump takeout always shows six tricks. A takeout from a minor to another minor; from a minor to a major; from a major to a minor; from a major to another major; each shows six tricks.

♠K 9 8 2
♥A K 9 8
♣K 6 4

What is the first response by north? A one-jump takeout bid to three hearts. This does not decide what will be trump. So, it shows six tricks. And being immediate, the one-jump also shows two sure.

The idea is very easy to see. Partner is no clairvoyant. He is not expected to know what you intend to do later. Or what suit will be trump. Pass the crystal ball.

The Movie Column

By HOWARD E. HEYN

Hollywood, Sept. 19 (AP) — Some of the promising young players around Hollywood are beginning to wonder if biographical films are the kiss of death. More than one potential star introduced to fame by the life-story medium has gone into at least partial eclipse thereafter.

Larry Parks and Robert Alda were much Heralded in "The Jolson Story"" and "Rhapsody in Blue." Since "The Jolson Story" Parks has worked in two pictures, "The Swordsman," still unreleased, and "Down to Earth," only now reaching the screen.

Alda's debut, as Gershwin, was delayed almost two years. After finishing 'Rhapsody in Blue" he went into "Cinderella Jones," which was held up until after "Rhapsody" was released. And thereafter he got a series of supporting roles until finally his Warner Bros. contract was terminated by mutual consent.

I asked Alda what he thought of such situations as his and Parks.'

"There are many reasons of course, why things work out the way they do," he said. "I can understand why they held 'Rhapsody in Blue.' They wanted an unknown in the role of Gershwin. But I think it would have been smarter in developing a star, to follow up 'Rhapsody' quickly with a really outstanding picture to support the personality they had introduced so loudly.

"Parks' case was a little different. His role as Jolson, after all, was impersonation — even to blackface. We didn't see Parks. Mine as Gershwin, I think, was considerably more in the nature of characterization. Look how much beter Cornel Wilde fared. He had a biographical role in 'Song to Remember' —Chopin. But he was one of those boys whose services were shared by two or three producers. Each tried to outdo the other. That sustained his prestige.

"However, I was one of the luckiest guys in the world, and don't think I didn't know it. What happened to me happens to one actor in a thousand. I'd never been in a picture before I played Gershwin."

Alda was not, as it happens, without theatrical experience. He got it the hard way — in burlesque and vaudeville, over a rugged period of 12 years. He knows what disappointment is like. And that is probably why he is confident his career will right itself.

AT THE BELLE

"THE YEARLING"

Jack Karr, who reviews motion pictures for the Toronto Star, was in New York at the time "The Yearling" was having its long run at Radio City Music Hall, and his report of this outstanding Technicolor film which is coming to the Belle theatre, Belleville, on Saturday, is worth reading. Jack evidently liked the picture:

Certain parties we know would hoot with derision if we told them they'd fall for a picture which has to do with a little boy and a fawn.

To which we have only one thing to say: Haw! Haw!

These parties simply haven't figured on the power of Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings, M-G-M, or a youth named Claude Jarman, Jr., who was yanked out of some school or other and thrust in front of a technicolor camera. Furthermore, they haven't figured on the appeal of the adorable fawns in "The Yearling".

That's the picture we're talking about—which may very well win the Academy award.

For one thing, there is some of the handsomest photography your eyes have ever rested upon. There is this Jarman kid who endows the screen with the most engaging, juvenile antics ever filmed. And there is a fawn (or fawns) which should open up a new category for best performance of the year.

The setting of "The Yearling" is rough country. Penny Baxter and his wife have hewed out a settlement for themselves, raising what food they can, and going into town once or twice a year for what other supplies they need. And it is here, after losing three children, that they have raised young Jody, a wide-eyed youngster who is in love with the whole world and its wonders. In his loneliness, Jody wants a pet, and when he has the opportunity of "adopting" a motherless fawn, his cup is full to overflowing.

But fawns have a habit of growing, and growing fawns, hungry beasts, are no respecters of the hard work of human beings. Jody's pet eats up all the crops on the little farm and must be destroyed. When Ma Baxter takes a rifle, fires and succeeds only in maiming the animal, young Jody has to finish the job himself. And there, friends, is one of the most heart-tearing scenes ever in a film. Fortunately, the studio has put the brakes on before it hurtles the whole thing into a vale of tears.

In the adult roles, Gregory Peck, a gaunt and gangling sort, is right fine as Farmer Baxter, a good-hearted, doddering fellow, devoted to his son. The father-son devotion is one of the keystones of the film, incidentally, and is admirably handled.

Jane Wyman's part as Ma Baxter is a tremendously difficult role. Gruff and harsh, she seems to dislike her son until it is explained that her gruffness is simply the self-protection of a woman who has lost three babies, and who is afraid of the hurt she will suffer if her fourth is taken from her.

Complete Collapse of St. Louis Cardinals Presages Shakeup That May Cost Dyer His Job

Marion, Kurowski and Pollet May be Traded or Sold

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The complete collapse of the St. Louis Cardinals, presaging a general shakeup that may cost manager Eddie Dyer his job. Has tongues wagging around the baseball world as Brooklyn Dodgers ease into the World Series. Now the Brooks can do no worse than tie and the magic number combination has been reduced to one.

Losing six straight since they took the middle game of the decisive Dodger series, the defending world champions now are threatened with a third-place finish. They can be mathematically eliminated tonight if they lost to the Braves.

Some of the high priced Cardinal talent which has passed its peak form probably will be peddled during the off season. Unconfirmed reports have Marty Marion, Whitey Kurowski and Howie Pollet slated for other pastures before a new season. The monied Phillies and Pirates, mired in the second division, are the logical markets.

Moore May Be Man

The man who is most often mentioned in St. Louis as a possible successor for Dyer, if Breadon does not renew his contract is Terry Moore, who will be given a "night" tonight. It could be symbolic.

Brooklyn blew a chance to apply the mathematical clincher when they bowed to Pittsburgh 8-7.

Record Total

The New York Giants' record home run total hit 211 for the year on Bobby Thomson's two-run clout in the third inning of their 9-5 edge over Chicago. Sheldon Jones, relieving Larry Jansen in the third, recorded his first victory.

Cincinnati's Ed Erautt, a late starter, earned his fourth victory of a disappointing freshman season, as the Reds clubbed Dutch Leonard for 15 hits in a 9-4 decision.

Frank (Spec) Shea hurled his first complete game since July 5 when he threw a four-hitter against Chicago for a 3-1 victory. Shea had a shutout until Rudy York homered in the ninth.

Boston rallied from a six-run deficit to outslug St. Louis 10-6, with Sam Mele's five hits leading the parade.

Rookie Bob Kuzava, up from Baltimore, hurled a five-hit shutout as Cleveland drubbed Washington 4-0, advancing within a half game of third place Detroit in a night game. Detroit and Philadelphia were not scheduled.

KINGSTON WINS FROM PETES IN JUNIOR SERIES

Athletics Win Under Lights by 12-5 First Game of Junior "A" O.B.A. Playdowns

Kingston, Sept. 19 (CP)—Kingston Athletics trounced Peterborough Travellers 12-5 last night under the lights at McGaffin Stadium in the first game of their O.B.A. junior A playoff series. The A's took advantage of 12 costly errors to crush the invaders. Only three Kingston runs were earned.

Big George Lay, on the mound for Kingston, gave up 11 hits but was nearly invincible in the pinches. He struck out 13 and was affored steady support by his mates.

It was a close game for the first five frames with the A's holding a 4-3 lead. But in the sixth the Petes began to blow, kicking in with three miscues, while the A's scored two runs.

The story was the same in the seventh as the Travellers fell into complete disorganization. Although only getting two hits, Kingston pushed across four runs—again the Petes committed three errors.

The Petes staged a mild uprising in the ninth when Curry singled and scored on Collins' triple with one out. Collins strolled across the plate on wild pitch. But next two batsmen were easy victims to end the game.

Corkery pitched five-hit ball for six innings but was given little support. Backstop Al Menzies led the hitting attack for Petes with three consecutive singles. Pagett also looked to be the best fielder on the Peterborough team.

The second game of the best of three series will be played in Peterborough Saturday.

Rex Morgan, 26-year-old lineman, is such a tackle and coach George Munger has ruled that the things Morgan has been doing to the University of Pennsylvania squad must contine no longer.

Morgan picked up the Hobby of hypnotism in Europe and brought it with him to Penn's training camp here. Since the, strapping six-footers have been barking like dogs, sleeping in peculiar positions and otherwise acting like persons possessed.

And possessed they were — with the "evil-eye" of Morgan. The jut-jawed tackle was able to make his teammates do practically anything under the influence of his hypnotic suggestions.

At first Morgan's antics and those of his victims were the laugh of the camp. But then coach Munger began to doubt the advisability of mesmerism on gridiron.

Munger called Morgan into conference and issued his nohypnotism edict. It's all right if Morgan practices his hobby on Penn's other football opponents—but not on Penn's players.

"I don't know whether it would work in a game. After all there has to be some hypnotic expectancy, and besides it takes time— anywhere from 30 seconds to an hour dending on the subject."

Morgan gave a demonstration several days ago how hypnotism might be employed during a football game. Using a team mate as a subject, the big tackle fixed him with a steely glint.

"You are about to receive," Morgan said, "the hardest blow of your life."

Morgan then touched the other lightly with his left forefinger and the player dropped to the floor as though he had been pole-axed. And no one but Morgan could bring him out of his trance.

SYRACUSE CHIEFS ONE GAME UP ON BUFFALO BISONS

Hank Sauer Hits 2 Homers as His Team Wins by 6-2 Score

(By The Associated Press)

A one-man home run outburst by Hank Sauer last night put Syracuse Chief one up on Buffalo Bisons in the best-of-seven International League final playon series.

Sauer, who hit 50 round trippers in the regular season and two in the semi-final series with Montreal, last night added two more to his string as the Chiefs whipped the Bisons 6-2 before 11,476 Buffalo fans and took a 2-1 series lead.

In tonight's fourth game, the Chiefs are expected to send Dixie Howell to the mound in search of a third Syracuse victory, while Andy Bush will attempt to even it up for the Bisons.

Hank Perry Buffalo's starting pitcher, contributed mightily to his own downfall when he booted Gene Corbitt's holler after two were out in the third. Frankie Drews promptly punched one out of the park, Sauer followed suit with the first of his circuit blows and the Chiefs had sewed up the battle.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

New Haven, Conn., Sept. 19. (AP)— After Yale's footballers took a pounding, physical and otherwise, in a "secret" scrimmage with army the other day, Fred Nadherney, a rugged halfback, expressed the belief that Yale could take the Cadet in a regular season game . . . Coach Howie Odell just grinned and disagreed when that statement was reported to him . . . "Those fellows play too hard and rough," Howie exclaimed. "You had to be right down on the field with them to realize how hard they hit. I wonder if they play like that all the time? . . . Odell went on to point out that the Cadets hadn't run for any real long gains. "I'm surprised they didn't score more," he added. "They were always in our half of the field pounding for first downs." Albie Booth, now one of the top football officials, came along and tossed in his opinion. "Don't forget army has had a lot of good players who were overshadowed by Davis, Blanchard and Tucker the past few years. They have a good team." . . . "Yeah, interjected a listener. "But I'll bet you're glad you don't have to get out of Blanchard's way this year."

One-Minute Sport Page

Even if Glenn Davis should get his damaged knee repaired and leave the army, there's considerable question about his playing. . John W. Rogers, producer of the West Point Movie, has an exclusive contract on his services for a year after the film is released and which specifies no pro football. . .Frank Gentle of London's Harringay arena is conducting negotiations here to take midget auto racing to Britain.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor.

There is a strong possibility that Belleville will be represented in the Border Professional League next year. Plans for the operation of a pro squad were tentatively laid at an enthusiastic meeting of city business men and others held here last night.

* * *

Discussion consisted mainly of the advantages of such a club to Belleville and what it would mean not only to the city but to its baseball-playing youth as well. While nothing of an absolutely definite nature was arrived at, the consensus of those present was that an organization be formed and plans laid to secure a franchise in the Border Loop.

* * *

Another meeting will be called next week when Mr. Jack Ward, Ogdensburg, N.Y., president of the Border League, will be here to discuss matters with city representatives. In all probability, Peter Campbell, Toronto Maple Leafs, and Nelson McGaffin, owner of the Kingston Ponies Baseball Club will be present.

* * *

This city has, perhaps more natural advantages for the successful operation of a pro ball club than many other cities in the district. It was pointed out that the territory from which fandom could be drawn is as extensive or more so, than any other team in the loop. This city has an excellent lighting system, and with certain major improvements, a baseball field that should rank with the best.

* * *

The suggestion that professional baseball be left alone for two or three years, because in his opinion it would cause a bad effect on the amateur brand, voiced by one present, was met with a chorus of opposition. It was pointed out that in every centre where a professional team is operated, amateur squads have increased by leaps and bounds.

* * *

Professional baseball provides not only a better brand of the pastime for the fans, the meeting felt, but an incentive for the youth of the city. Junior and intermediate players would have something to shoot at. The younger fry would have the opportunity of seeing how the game should be played, and would use the pro players as a style to emulate.

* * *

If the response of the fans to night baseball here, as evidenced in the capacity crowds that have attended the last two or three intermediate games at the Exhibition Park, is a criterion, then there is no reason why professional baseball would not be a success here. As we have mentioned before in this pillar, the floodlight game has taken a strong hold of the fancy of baseball enthusiasts in this city and district. And pro ball would, in our opinion, draw a lot of those people who care for that type of baseball and nothing else.

* * *

Add to this, a renewal of the ancient and sometimes bitter diamond rivalry that has always existed between Belleville, Peterborough and Kingston baseball teams and you have another reason why the box office turnstiles would click right merrily when these squads meet.

* * *

Replying to the suggestion at last night's meeting that a revival of senior baseball would be more to the point than the introduction of the professional calibre, a baseball authority present stated that senior baseball, in this district, with the advent of professional teams in Kingston and Peterborough, has joined the ranks of the "late departed."

* * *

Introduction of the professional brand would cause junior players to scoff, prehaps, at the thought of joining an intermediate or senior squad. It would create an ambition to become a pro in the minds of the teen-agers and with this in mind they would go all out in an effort to make the grade.

* * *

And as a parting shot, speaking financially that is, if and when Sunday baseball comes into being, the masterminds of the Kingston, Belleville and Peterborough teams at least, would have no worry regarding empty coffers. Golf, why not baseball?

* * *

The newly-formed executive of the Belleville Junior Hockey Club goes into their first official conclave since the election at last week's meeting, tonight at eight o'clock. The new prexy, Jack Yanover, will be in the chair and much important business is on the agenda. Yanover brings to his new job plenty of experience. In 1933 he piloted the Picton Intermediate "A" baseball squad to the Ontario finals. The team, with its ace lefthander "Warpy" Phillips, was defeated in the third and final game in Guelph, after Phillips and the famous Lefty Goldsmith of Southampton had each won 1-0 and 2-0 shutouts over each other.

* * *

The 1947-48 edition of the Army, Navy, Air Force Veterans Intermediate "A" hockey squad (brother try and get that one in a 24-point heading) should be one of the smartest-dressed teams in the district come hockey time. According to the powers-that-be, new uniforms have been ordered, and the lads should look smart, egad, in their new bibs and tuckers.

* * *

They will wear sweaters with red bodies and white sleeves, panties of red with white stripes, and red socks with white circles. The letters "ANAF" will adorn their manly bosoms and the numbers will be painted fore and aft. Nifty and neat, if not gaudy.

* * *

This afternoon come four of the clock, the Batawa Shoemen started the second game of their Intermediate "A" playdowns with the Peterborough nine. Efforts were made, at the request of the Petes, to play the game here under the lights tonight, but Belleville Exhibition activities prevented it. Further efforts were inaugurated to have the game played at the Batawa diamond on Saturday afternoon, but it appears a number of the Petes' squad are scheduled to play football on that day, so that was out. In each case, Batawa offered the entire gate to the visitors. As it happened the original plan was adhered to and the Shoemen trekked to Peterborough this afternoon.

* * *

It appears the Peterborough Intermediates don't draw financial peanuts in their old home town, and being human, would like to have played where the lettuce is the greenest and thickest. Some of the boys near threw conniption fits when they were told the "gate" the other night was over $400. "Omigawd," muttered one after he was revived, "is there that much dough in the world?"

* * *

If you care for a joyful Saturday afternoon's diversion, don't by any means fail to take in the baseball game in Napanee tomorrow. It is the third tussle between Port Hope and the Gibbardville gang, and if it is anywhere near a repitition of the Wednesday joust, it will pay you to walk down. The teams battled to a four-all tie in twelve innings (despite what "Daisy" says) and wotta game. It had all the color of an old-time baseball brawl, with the trimmings thrown in for good measure. And it is a safe bet that the Port Hopers will bring everything with them including the Town Hall and the traditional pump. Game starts at 3.30.

MEL OTT ENDS PLAYING CAREER WITH THE GIANTS

Manager Removes Name From Roster to Make Way for Rookies

New York, Sept. 19 (AP)—The 22-year Major League playing career of Mel Ott, manager of New York Giants, came to an end today when Ott announced that he had removed his name from the club's active player roster.

Ott said he took the step to make room for the addition of rookies who will be used in the lineup between now and the end of the season. The 38-year-old Ott, who started in the big time with the Giants in 1926, holds the modern Major League record for service with one club. His other marks read like an index page to the record book. He has been manager of the club since 1941.

He holds the National League marks for most home runs, runs scored, runs batted in, total bases (5,041), bases on balls (1,708), extra base hits (1,071), and extra bases on long hits (2,165). For eight years he knocked out 30 or more home runs a season—another record.

Ott led the league in home runs in 1936, 1938 and 1942 and was tied for the leadership in 1932, 1934 and 1937. He was the league's leading outfielder in 1935 and had the most assists in the 1929 and 1942 seasons.

Ott's last home run, No. 511 in his career, came on his first trip to the plate last season. Shortly after that, his knees began giving him trouble and, within a few weeks, he was spending a large part of the time on the bench.

If he desires, Ott always can reinstate himself as an active player, but it appeared doubtful that he ever would.

(Canadian Press Sport Writer)

Toronto, Sept. 19 — (CP) — The football season is still young but already doleful walls have gone up from the bleachers over the "Americanization" of the Canadian game. Most deeply mourned is the apparent demise in Eastern Canada of the lateral-passing end-run, long the favorite weapon of senior rugby football teams.

The loudest protest arises from Jim (Toronto Globe and Mail) Coleman, who laments that in five senior games in Toronto this season, the "dashing end-run has been notable only for the infrequency with which it has been attempted."

After witnessing a recent clash between Lew Hayman's Montreal Alouettes and Toronto Argonauts and detecting only two plays by the Montrealers that even looked like an end-run, Coleman develops his song of sorrow into the following refrain:

"What has happened to lachrymose Lewis Hayman, long the most articulate champion of the end-run? It was Hayman, whose fast-passing Argonaut' teams taught the Western Canadian invaders the futility of attempting to win a Canadian championship with American-style teams . . .

"It was Hayman who said that Canadians should never sacrifice the end-run for the power tactics of American football . . ."

But Coleman sees a ray of hope in what he calls "the fact the Western Canadians have learned their painful lesson."

When the Argos visited Winnipeg for two pre-season games early this month, he says, the Bombers scored a touchdown.

"And how did they score it? Yep — you guessed it! The Bombers scored on an end-run!"

What's an Amateur?

Commenting that "Canada has all but severed relations with the sanctimonious individuals who determine Olympic hockey policy", Rex (Guelph Mercury) Macleod speculates on the puzzlement of future sports historians as they "pore over Olympic records and debate the sudden collapse of Canada as the dominant factor in the hockey world."

The Amateur Athletic Union, he points out, defines an amateur sportsman as "one who engages in sport solely for the physical, mental or social benefits he derives therefrom and to whom sport is nothing more than an avocation." And the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association says tersely that an amateur is "a player who does not sign a professional contract."

The C. A. H. A. definition of an amateur has been found unacceptable to the International Olympic Committee meeting in Zurich, Switzerland, says Tex, but he concludes: "Actually it isn't important if Canada is represented in the Olympic championships. Canada can prove here superiority in hockey at any time, under any conditions, against any nation, no matter what a handful of mid-Victorian badgers have to say about it."

CHAPTER 17

"Who came out next?"

"Everybody. Out the kitchen door, out the front, some looked out the windows. Miss Brady got the doctor and police. They didn't know who it was. Even when they cut the mask off they didn't know. Then they saw her ring. It was her ring they knew her by..."

She stopped talking and her head snapped back. She was listening. He listened too. Someone was coming down the hall with quick, firm steps.

Jewel had the door open before he was out of his chair. It was Miss Brady.

"Well," Miss Brady said. "Having your kind of fun?" Jewel sidled away.

"You came back too soon," he said dryly. "How about taking me to see Lillian Harris?"

"What for? She can't talk. She's unconscious."

"Even so, I'd like to see her."

She didn't speak to him again until they came to the door. 'You can't go in," she said. "I'll leave it open and you stand right here. And be good enough to keep your mouth shut. There's a blind girl in there. she's the one I'm worried about. I don't want her to know anything about you."

Her finger was on her lips when she opened the door quietly. That, he saw at once, was a sign to the elderly woman who sat between the two beds. The only light was a night lamp on the bed table.

"It's me, April," Miss Brady said. "I'm not coming in, I only want to know how you are. Have you had your dinner?"

"Yes, Miss Brady. I'm all right."

He saw —her then, huddled in a deep chair. She was tiny, fair, and too fragile.

'Any change, Mrs. Fister?" Miss Brady whispered.

He hardly heard her. Lillian Harris was the still figure on the bed. She was swathed in bandages and covered to the chin. Her face was a waxen oval marked with pale lips and dark; curling lashes, and if she was breathing he couldn't see it. He started forward. The woman at the bedside stood up and shook her head. He stopped where he was.

The woman and Miss Brady spoke to each other in the language of looks. Neither moved, even the childish girl in the chair was motionless, but he could feel and hear a cordon form between him and the bed.

Miss Brady took his arm and they were out in the hall again; the door closed behind them and he heard a key turn on the inside.

The packroom door was ajar, giving a glimpse of nondescript luggage; a clean paper tablet hung on the wall beside the phone. There was another door a few feet away, marked "Bath." "Is that the one?" he asked.

"If you mean Harris, yes."

"Help yourself," she invited. "It's none of my business how you waste your time and your clients' money."

It was not a large room; one tub in an alcove, one shower, one washbasin over by the window. He stepped into the shower and examined the faucets. "Harris looks to be about five feet six," he said easily. "So the faucets are all wrong for a bump on the head. A full inch too high. If they were lower I could understand what happened. Slip, stagger, wham."

"It was the floor," she said. "It's concrete. If she slipped and struck her head on the floor, that would do it."

"Don't you think it's a little small for that?"

"What is?"

"The floor space. Not much more than a square yard. She'd have to be double-jointed . . . ."

He walked over to the window leaned from it and looked up and down. There were lights on the ground floor but only a few above it. They were bright patches on the dark walls. One of the patches was the window in the room to his left. That window was closed. Ruth's window, once. Lillian's window now. There was another light directly over it, and that window was partly open. The shade was drawn, but there was perhaps an inch of space between it and the sill. Something that looked like a sheet of white tissue paper fluttered on the sill.

As he watched, the paper was caught in an eddy of wind. It turned on the sill and writhed, it rose and fell as if it were alive, and spiraled down into the court.

"What was that?" Miss Brady's voice was like a whip.

"Oh. For a minute I thought— That's my bedroom. Miss Small is wrapping Christmas presents and the place is a mess. She isn't very tidy."

"Have you got a music box in your bedroom?"

"Not any more." She was startled. "Why?"

"I thought I heard something that sounded like a music box. It's stopped now."

"I did have one but it disappeared several days ago. Miss Small knew how much I liked it so I suppose she found another to take its place." She laughed softly. "Now I'll have to act surprised, thanks to you . . . Really, Mr. East, we've got to get out of here. What comes next?"

They were in the hall. "Miss Brady," he said, "I'd like to see Ruth Miller's suitcase."

She was abiable and amused. "I've done that and you know it. There's the packroom, get it out yourself. It's a straw affair, just inside the door."

He found the case. "Unlocked?"

"Yes." She watched, incuriously.

He unfastened the imitation leather straps and threw back the lid. Her sudden gasp was as genuine as his own. Ruth Miller's clothing was a jumbled heap; someone hadn't cared what happened to it. A thin summer dress, faded by too many washings, lay on top. And on top of the dress was an enamel box. He took it up carefully. "Your disappearing property, Miss Brady?"

"Yes."

"Yes," he agreed.

"I don't get it," she said. "I don't understand."

"That's easy. Somebody wanted it, took it, and hid it. To be collected at a later date. Can you think of a safer hiding place than a suicide's suitcase? A suitcase that had already been searched?" While he talked, his thumbnail traced the deep carved lines that bit into the metal base. "Pretty thing," he admired. "Substantial, too. Cloisonne on solid bronze. French . . . Easy to pawn. Easy to smuggle out of the house in a coat pocket, but that didn't happen. This little gadget said something to somebody . . . I'd like to keep it for a while, do you mind?"

"No, but—"

"I'll give it back. I may even find your thief, quietly and without involving you. What tune does it play? Something about love, love, love?" His fingers found the opening catch.

"Don't!" she said. "They'll hear you in there!"

He knew what she meant. The room with the locked door was less than two yards away. That's where Lillian Harris was swathed like a mummy because she had hurt her head.

He hesitated, fearful of moving too fast. He couldn't afford to lose the precious ground he had just gained. But he wanted an audience, any audience, residents, servants, staff. He wanted someone to say, "Get this. You know that detective? Well, he's playing Miss Brady's music box up on the seventh floor. He's a nut."

That would mean something to somebody. That would tell somebody the box was no longer safe.

He raised the lid of the box as Moke and Poke rollicked through the door and stopped abruptly. The tinkling tones rang down the hall with gentle, plaintive insistence.

"Believe me if all those endearing young charms that I gaze on so fondly today—"

"What are you girls doing here," Miss Brady asked. "You know this it out of bounds while Lillian is-sick."

Moke held up a paper bag. "We brought her grapes." Her eyes were on the box, wide and incredulous. He saw Poke's hand reach out and touch Moke's. It looked like a warning.

"She can't eat them now," Miss Brady said. "Keep them until tomorrow."

Mark beckoned. "Say, you kids. Look what we found in Ruth's suitcase. What do you think of that?"

"Pretty," Moke said.

"It's Miss Brady's," he went on. "She lost it. And now it turns up in Ruth's luggage."

Moke and Poke looked straight into his eyes and said nothing.

They stood in a circle under the dim light, and three of the four faces were blank. Mark snapped the lid and the music stopped. He picked up the suitcase. "Thanks, Miss Brady, you've been very helpful. I'm taking this temporarily, you'll get it back with the box. . . . Miss Small's room again?"

"Yes. I'll come with you."

"Don't trouble, please. These girls will announce my sex and proximity . . . Come along, you two."

Down in Miss Small's room he seated Moke and Poke with a flourish. "Now," he said, "take that look off your faces and eat your nice grapes yourselves. And when you've got your voices back, tell me why this little box knocked you for a loop."

"I know that. It was stolen from Miss Brady." Gasps followed his statement. "Well, . what's wrong with that, except that it isn't nice?"

'Play Rooms' Make for Contented Cows Say Sask. Farm Experts

By GEORGE V. FORSTER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Swift Current, Sask., Sept. 19—(CP) — Dominion Experimental Farm officials here claim to have discovered the secret of contented cows.

What is needed for a state of bovine satisfaction, they say, are "play rooms" for the cattle, large roomy sheds where they can get the exercise denied them in stalls.

Old time farmers may laugh at what they term such "pampering" of cows, but the agricultural engineers retort that modern specialized farming requires specialized buildings and they are busy drawing up plans for buildings to cover every need.

The result may be that the old familiar barns with their high hay-lofts and rows of livestock stalls will disappear from the western scene — not overnight, but over a period of years.

Means Fatter Purses

The nursery-like buildings replacing them will be a far cry from the first rude cow sheds which appeared on the prairies but, the experts claim, the cattle will be contented — and farmers' pocket books will be fatter.

G. N. Denike, chief agricultural engineer and assistant superintendent of the Experimental Farm here, says that buildings suitable for a dairy farm are not necessarily best for a wheat farm.

In the average dairy farm, for example, fodder is stored in the building where the cattle are quartered and milked. Dairymen say the best temperature for milking is not the best temperature for quarters and better milk production results at correct temperatures.

Three Buildings Ideal

The ideal dairy farm requires three buildings — which can be built at a lower cost than the conventional barn. There is a small milking shed, equipped with a milking machine and facilities for sterilizing cans and kept at the correct temperature.

Then there is the "play room." Thirdly: modern methods of packaging feed permit a fodder shed from which feed can be transported easily and quickly to the cattle.

Also slated for disappearance is the repair shop, found on most western farms, where farm machinery is overhauled.

Instead of elaborate repair shops, engineers advocate small sheds where necessary minor adjustments can be made. They also recommend a protective coat for equipment and outside storing rather than a storage shed.

Electrification will make further changes in building and permit installation of motors for elevating grain, pumping water and chopping, mixing and seed-cleaning operation.

Work All Night To Rescue Man Trapped in Well

Warner, N.H., Sept. 19 —(AP) —Trapped more than 21 hours at the bottom of a 20-foot well that caved in on him, Norman Woods, 23, was extricated after 100 volunteers and state police worked all night to dig him out. His condition was not determined immediately as he was rushed to hospital.

Rescuers, including 80 per cent of the town's men, formed bucket brigades to carry sand from a circular trench being dug around the well. They hoped to shore the trench and dig into the pit to carry Woods out.

Woods, trapped at the bottom of the 20-foot excavation was unable to move from his waist down. His legs were held fast by timbers and other debris.

He donned an oxygen mask at intervals during the night and spoke a few encouraging words to his young wife when she appeared on the scene. The oxygen was supplied to counter impure air in the well.

HURRICANE LEAVES 13 DEAD, 500 INJURED

Three Bodies Lay Housing Problem In Lap of Govt.

Federation of Mayors Terms Issue National Emergency

Ottawa, Sept. 20. (CP)—The government had before it today urgent representations from three national bodies for immediate action on Canada's admittedly-critical housing shortage and all stressed that the initiative to get things done lay with the federal administration.

Parliament hill was a busy place yesterday as the Canadian Legion, the Canadian Welfare Council and the Canadian Federation of mayors, and municipalities made themselves heard on the housing question all termed a "national emergency".

The Legion sent a letter to Prime Minister King over the signature of Edmonton President Maj.-Gen. C. B. Price. The Welfare Council and the Mayors' Federation sent delegations to see Reconstruction Minister Howe within an hour of each other.

The mayors presented a studied brief outlining a seven-point Dominion-wide program designed to provide the credit for low income families hoping to build a home and a subsidized, low rental housing plan for those who otherwise would not be able to get adequate accommodation.

The federation delegation—representing almost every housing-harassed city from Halifax to the West Coast—told Mr. Howe flatly that the responsibility for initiating such a plan as they outlined belongs to the federal government "and does not end until every Canadian family is properly and adequately housed."

The Welfare Council brief urged a national rent reduction fund and amendments to the National Housing Act to permit extention of loans to municipalities entering the housing field. It urged a long-term government policy to maintain residential construction at a high level.

Criticized Controls

The council said flatly it was evident government action was needed to assure a decent home for every Canadian and criticized controls on materials and labor and said they were negative actions encouraging evasive, black-market tactics.

Gen. Price's letter to the Prime Minister said housing constituted a national emergency requiring immediate government action. The government should build more wartime houses for rent and should encourage private enterprise in the building of low-cost houses under the Legion's suggestion plan for home-ownership.

The Mayors asked:

1. Immediate establishment of a national rent reduction fund providing an annual rental subsidy with appropriation for the fund to be voted by parliament.
2. Local taxation on low-rent housing projects be computed by capitalizing at five per cent the maximum rent which the aggregate of tenant families occupying any project would normally pay for non-subsidized housing; or that municipalities contribute an equivalent ration to the rent reduction fund.
3. That the Federal government investigate more intensely possible technological economies in construction, even including building experimental housing in selected communities, something also asked by the council.
4. That the National Housing Act be amended if necessary to provide more liberal lending facilities with the government guaranteeing loans of 100 per cent for a dwelling not exceeding $5,000 in construction costs; 90 per cent of any additional amount, up to $2,000 and 70 per cent of any amount in excess of $7,000.

Works Minister Against Station Being Licensed

Calgary, Sept. 20 (CP) —Alberta Works Minister Fallow told the Board of Governors of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation yesterday that approval of a commercial licence for a French language radio station at Edmonton would be "intolerable" to Albertans and might lead to "absurd and hopeless confusion."

As the first public sessions the board has ever held went into their second day, Mr. Fallow opposed granting of the application by Radio-Edmonton Ltd. and he was joined by Walter Blake, manager of CKUA at Edmonton, a non-commercial station owned by the Alberta government.

But there were no spirited scenes as occurred Thursday when the governors and representatives of those opposed to granting of licences to French language stations became involved in a series of charges and counter-charges that religious prejudices are behind both support for and opposition to establishment of such stations.

Yesterday the board heard M. V. Chesnut of CJVI Victoria oppose granting of a licence for a second station in the British Columbia capital and H. C. Freeman at CKGB at Timmins, Ont., make representations against approval of a licence for a bilingual station in that Northern Ontario city. The Timmins application is in the name of F. H. Trudeau of Timmins. Mr. Trudeau did not appear.

Mr. Freeman said in opposing a second licence for Timmins that there are nine cities in Canada with higher populations than Timmins but with only one station. He claimed authorizing of second stations for small centres will lead to a definite deterioration of program quality on both stations.

There had been no demand for French language broadcasts in the Timimns area and French people formed only a small portion of the population of the Porcupine gold mining area.

One Year Term Imposed in Motor Manslaughter

Toronto, Sept. 20 —(CP)— William J. Hogan of Toronto, convicted of motor manslaughter in the death of Herbert Williams, a passenger in the automobile Hogan was driving when it crashed into a street railway working crane, was sentenced to one year in reformatory.

Mr. Justice R. W. Treleaven said in sentencing Hogan he was taking into consideration a broken hip the convicted man suffered in the crash. Hogan appeared in court using crutches.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, Sept. 20 — (CP)—Synopsis: The weather is cold over all of Ontario, with clear skies in eastern sections and overcast over southern and western sections. Widespread showers are occurring over Northwestern Ontario. These showers are expected to spread slowly eastward. The tropical storm now is centred near Shreveport, Louisiana and is weakening rapidly as it moves further inland.

U.K. Cabinet Holds First and Final Discussion of Report on Palestine

By FRASER WIGHTON

London, Sept. 20. (Reuters) — Prime Minister Attlee presided today over a full meeting of the cabinet specially called to make final decisions on British policy toward the United Nations Palestine commission's partition recommendations.

The meeting also was planned to "brief" the British delegation on the subject for the second general assembly of the U.N. in New York.

Colonial Secretary Creech Jones, who returned by air from the West Indies conference in Jamaica, attended the meeting. Foreign Secretary Bevin was also present.

This was the first and final discussion by the full cabinet of the majority and minority recommendations of the U.N. Palestine commission.

Official quarters underlined the point that the cabinet's decisions on Palestine would not be disclosed until Creech Jones addresses the assembly next week.

The official government attitude towards the Palestine report, which proposed partition in two years, has never been disclosed.

But it was believed that Britain does not feel inclined to shoulder responsibility alone over the probably troubled transition period.

F.H. LA GUARDIA, FORMER MAYOR OF N.Y., DIES

Political Leader Has Been in Coma Since Tuesday When He Collapsed in Home

New York, Sept. 20 — (AP) — Fiorello H. La Guardia, 64, three times mayor of New York and former director - general of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration, died today.

The fiery political leader had been in a coma since Tuesday night when he collapsed at his home. His health had been failing since last June when he underwent an operation which disclosed an insurable pancreas condition.

"In his death the people of the city, the state and nation have lost a great, patriotic citizen," O'Dwyer said.

"I fully believe that his unselfish devotion to the people and his untiring and energetic efforts to promote public welfare contributed to a great extent to the failing health which culminated in death today."

Died in Sleep

La Guardia died in his sleep, Dr. George Baehr, attending physician said. Dr. Baehr had been at the La Guardia home since 7:30 p.m. last night. Dr. Meyer Karsh, another physician, also was there.

When La Guardia died at 7:22 a.m. EDT, his wife, their two children, Erik, 15, and Jean, 13, and Mrs. La Guardia's sister, Miss Elsie Fisher, were at his bedside.

La Guardia was well-known to Canadians. In addition to his colorful career as New York's mayor, he was known for his work on the Canadian-United States Joint Defence Board. He was a frequent visitor to the Dominion and made a number of speeches there.

He was also interested in the St. Lawrence seaway and power project, proposed by factions in both Canada and the United States to provide power and deep-water transportation in the St. Lawrence River.

Fluent in Languages

The diminutive La Guardia — he was five feet, three inches — was a rough and ready exponent of the "get tough" school of politics. His caustic tongue was noted for its whiplash agility in exchanges with political enemies as well as for its fluency in foreign languages.

In his campaigns and during his years in office he addressed national groups in New York in their native language — Italian, German, French, Yiddish or Yugoslav.

Known to New Yorker's as "The Little Flower" "Butch" or "The hat" — the latter derived from the distinctive type of headgear he preferred — La Guardia was the first reform mayor the city ever re-elected.

In 1933, La Guadia, as a successful fusion candidate, took office to find that the city had been denied further financing by banks. He went to work on the problem and before long was obtaining money from the same bankers who had refused to accept city bonds.

Uranium Ore Field Said To Exist Hundred Miles North of Peterborough

Peterborough, Sept. 20—(CP)— The Peterborough Examiner says today in a newspage story that a uranium ore field lies in a 100 square mile area about Wilberforce in Cardiff township, some 100 miles north of Peterborough.

The paper reports that tests by eminent geologists and uranium experts show that there is a main ore body of uranium and secondary deposits of fluorspar in the districts embracing both Peterborough and Haliburton counties. Just a few miles from Wilberforce, one mining company is extracting radium from the ore body.

The company, known as Fission Mines, is carrying on open - pit mining and is also taking ore from one shaft. The paper reports that specialists in uranium reported to Ottawa authorities some time ago on the presence of uranium and at that time were bound to secrecy after consultation with research council authorities.

H. G. Pitt, consultant engineer at the development, said there were several mines in the area years ago but they ceased operations. He said rural residents in the area might find it profitable to mine ore on their own properties where there is not sufficient to support mining operations. He reported that property values in the area have increased from $50 to $300 an acre.

The Examiner said it has been "reliably reported" that uranium ore from the Wilberforce area was used in the manufacture of the first three atom bombs in the United States.

WRECKED PLANE'S OCCUPANTS SAID 'POSSIBLY SIGHTED'

Some of 28 Who Parachuted Said to be 60 Miles from Wreckage in N. Luzon

Manila, Sept. 20 — (AP) — A mass aerial search brought reports today of the "possible sighting" in favorable terrain of some of 28 passengers and crew members who parachuted into midnight darkness from a post United States Army transport plane over Northern Luzon.

The United States 13th Air Force, to which the abandoned two-engined craft was attached, said its wreckage was definitely located 160 miles northeast of Manila, and that search pilots also radioed word of the "possible sighting" of personnel 60 miles farther north.

The terrain there was described as "generally favorable" for parachute landings, which are hazardous at best.

Location of the wreckage indicated the plane, pushed from its course by foul weather, was about 30 miles west of its direct Okinawa-Manila course when the pilot ordered all aboard to jump. Efforts to locate the craft by radar and give the pilot his bearings had proved futile, as his fuel ran low.

Thirty-five army planes began the vast search at dawn, covering seas and islands of the whole northern Philippines area. Several navy aircraft joined, scanning Luzon's rugged east coast.

The last message from the pilot was received at 20 minutes past midnight. He said he had already ordered the passengers to jump and was then abandoning ship himself.

He had radioed earlier that he was flying on instruments and uncertain of his position, due to severe thunderstorms and generally bad flying conditions.

Meets Fiancee After Ocean Flights And Chilly Vigil

London, Sept. 20 — (AP)—Oren Crowe, 39, a cook from Reading, Mass., was reunited with his bride-to-be in Wales today after two trans-Atlantic trips in six months and a chilly vigil in the London airport waiting room.

Finding no one to meet him at the airport Wednesday night, Crowe paced the premises four hours. Then he learned that his fiancee, Mrs. Irene Harvard of Barry, Glamorganshire, left for Wales two hours before his plane set down, believing his flight had been indefinitely delayed.

Crowe first flew to Britain in April, but doctors said he had impetigo and refused to permit him to clear quarantine.

He proceeded to the Welsh community by rail Friday.

HOLDS RECORD RUN

Capetown, Sept. 20 —(Reuters) —The record for the New York to Capetown run is held, not by any of the ships which have recently averaged 18 knots for the trip, but by the liner Queen Mary. The Queen Mary's log, just made available, shows that in March and April, 1940, on her first voyage from New York to Australia to embark troops, the liner reached Capetown in 11 days, 20 hours, 27 minutes, averaging 25 knots.

MOSCOW ANXIOUS TO CONTROL ITALY UNDER RED SWAY

Italy is Moving Through Stormy Atmosphere, Distress, Discontent

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press Foreign Affairs Analyst)

Where will the Red lightning strike next?

That's a natural question in view of Soviet delegate Vishinsky's United Nations speech which by implication made it clear that Russia intends, come hell or high water, to pursue its scheme of world revolution for the establishment of Communism. We may have our answer in Italy's critical situation.

That war-shattered country is treading close to a left-wing political upheaval. The life of the government under Premier Alcide De Gasperi, leader of the slightly right-of-centre Christian Democratic party, is in grave danger from a powerful and concerted attack by the Communists and Socialists, whose representatives were ousted from the cabinet some time ago.

But this is no ordinary fluctuation of political fortunes involving merely tenure of office under the same form of government. The extreme left is reaching for power.

The situation is complicated by economic chaos which has provided fertile ground for tillage by the Communists and pinks and they haven't neglected their opportunities. Among recent activities they have been co-operating in planning a huge, country wide demonstration for today against the cost of living and against Gasperi's government—"against the speculation and egotism of privileged capitalistic groups."

Called Prelude to Revolution

Some Italian newspapers have described the demonstration as a "prelude to revolution." Palmiro Togliatti, Russian-trained Italian Communist leader, yesterday denied this. However, he did say that "there is a will for revolution in large strata of the Italian people."

Meantime, for the last 12 days there has been a strike of 1,000,000 farm workers, egged on by the extreme leftists, in Northern Italy. This strike, which finally was settled yesterday, placed crops in jeopardy at a time when the Italian peninsula is suffering grievously from food shortage. This, of course, has added to the discontent of an already distressed population.

In this stormy atmosphere Italy has moved toward a climax which the extreme leftists intend shall involve the downfall of the Gasperi government in one way or another. The Communist-Socialist combination hope to achieve the overthrow of the government next week on a vote of no-confidence in the constituent assembly. If that fails — what? Are we witnessing a "prelude to revolution?"

AUTUMN BEGINS TUESDAY MOVIES ON PLANES

London, Sept. 20 —(Repters)— British South American Airways will shortly become the first British air line to install a movie theatre in trans-oceanic aircraft. Passengers to and from Britain will watch the showing of full length feature films and shorts in flight, sometimes in advance of the general release in Britain.

Old Stone Quarry Half A Mile From City Business Section Looks Like Small Klondike

Prince Rupert, B. C., Sept. 20—(CP) — Gold, the lure of the north, today had Prince Rupert, a coastal city of 9,000, under its spell.

Gold was the talk of the town. Gold was accidentally discovered in the quarry rocks when a road construction crew set off a blast that uncovered the precious metal.

Veteran prospectors claimed the "find" showed high-class ore, one placing the value at $75,000 a ton, but no official assay has been made. Some reports said fabulously-rich nuggets had been found.

M. Shannon, Vancouver construction engineer, whose crew set off the discovery blast, said: "It sure looks like the goods. It's thrilling and exciting."

Shannon was back to work yesterday, directing his road building, but the weekend may bring news.

A score of claims have been taken, some right on the roadway, and the veteran gold seekers and hopeful amateurs now await the arrival of a steam shovel.

Vancouver, Sept. 20 — (CP)— Although Prince Rupert is reported abuzz with excitement over a possible gold strike, the city's woman mayor, Mrs. Norah Arnold, hasn't succumbed to the gold fever — yet.

Visiting friends here, Mrs. Arnold, who obtained first knowledge of the gold found from newspaper reports, said: "I don't think I'll stake a claim."

"If it will benefit Prince Rupert, I'm all for it," said one of British Columbia's two women mayors. "If there's a gold rush, they'll have to take what comes as far as housing is concerned."

Meat Situation Grows Worse

Quebec is prepared to co-operate with the other provinces in bringing about settlement of the nation-wide strike of upwards of 12,000 packinghouse workers now in its eighth day.

But there can be no question of Quebec renouncing its rights, Premier Duplessis asserted last night when he revealed his province's decision on a Saskatchewan suggestion that the provinces get together and appoint a single conciliator.

He pledged Quebec's co-operation in a "just and equitable" settlement of the strike for higher wages by the United-Packinghouse Workers of America (C.I.O.) providing the settlement came "within the Canadian constitution and conformed to provincial legislation."

Earlier Premier Drew of Ontario said he had told Saskatchewan's Premier Douglas the Ontario government had not yet received an official report on the nation-wide union vote on an Ontario proposal to end the strike by conciliation or arbitration preceded by the strikers going back to work.

Claims 200,000 Hindu, Sikhs Killed in Outbreaks in W. Punjab

New Delhi, Sept. 20 (AP) — Master Tara Singh, Sikh leader, estimated today that some 200,000 Hindus and Sikhs were killed in recent communal outbreaks in the west Punjab (Parkistan) while less than 100,000 Moslems lost their lives in the east Punjab (India).

Tara Singh told reporters that the Pakistan killings included "mass murders" in the Bhawalpur state, which is affiliated with Pakistan and has a population of 70,000 Hindus, 3,000 Sikhs and more than 1,000,000 Moslems.

"I emphatically refute the Paristan propaganda that this was a Sikh rising, motivated to create a Sikh homeland," he said. "Even if all the Sikhs in the world concentrated in the east Punjab, the Hindus will be 70 per cent and the Sikhs only 30 per cent."

He accused the Indian and east Punjab governments of 'complete apathy in the protection and relief of Hindu and Sikh refugees and partiality towards Moslem refugees."

Liaquat Ali Khan, prime minister of Pakistan, was in New Delhi today to confer with Indian authorities [illegible] disposition of refugees from communal riots.

A military spokesman reported scattered communal disorders in the united provinces of India, adjacent to Delhi province, and said "stern warnings" had been issued to villagers in the area, which has a considerable Moslem population.

Property Damage Across Afflicted Area Immense

Bureau Says Storm Dying Out in Northern Louisiana

New Orleans, Sept. 20 —(AP) —An 11-day-old hurricane, born in the Caribbean sea, was dying out early today in northern Louisiana after a rip-roaring career across southern Florida and the Gulf of Mexico coast where it left at least 13 dead and around 500 injured.

Property damage across the afflicted Florida area and from New Orleans eastward to Biloxi, Miss., on the gulf coast was immense and, so far, immeasurable.

At last reports, the United States weather bureau placed the centre of the storm in mid-Louisiana, moving on the northwesterly course about 15 miles an hour. Winds of 35 to 50 miles an hour, with gusts up to 60 within 100 miles of the centre, were reported.

The weather bureau said the hurricane in its dying convulsions would make its way with rain and squalls into southern Arkansas and that by this afternoon the winds should have diminished to 25 to 35 miles an hour.

With seven already reported dead in southern Florida in the wake of the storm, a meagre radio report received by an amateur radio operator in Jackson, Miss., from the naval reserve station at Gulfport, Miss., told of six being killed by the storm in the Gulfport-Biloxi area and some 400 being injured.

Only bare information was obtainable, but the picture in that Gulfport resort area was grim: battered houses, splintered boats and first aid workers driving themselves through the night to administer first aid by flashlight to some 400 injured collected in the naval reserve armory at Gulfport.

Cuts 250-Foot Swath

And, as an aftermatch of the hurricane, a tornado rose at Apalachicola, Fla., cutting a 250-foot wide swath for three miles. One hundred were injured, 14 seriously.

From Biloxi westward to New Orleans information poured in by every conceivable means which indicated that region was a mass of wrecked houses, ruined vacation cottages, destroyed crops, and boats staved in from stem to stern.

Railroad causeways were reported down or under water. So were highways. Seawalls were badly battered. Bayous were in flood with a great area inundated.

And all through the region

FEED THE TERMITES

Indianapolis, Sept. 20 — (AP) — Frank N. Wallace, state entomologist, suggests it's much better to feed your termites than to fight them.

Wallace said termites have no special appetite for floors, walls, or walnut panelling. They prefer to be outdoors and it would be best to have an old woodpile in your backyard to keep them from getting hungry for your house.

Edsel Ford Estate Of $131,548,434 To be Distributed bate Court today authorized Mrs. Eleanor Clay Ford to distribute, as administratrix, $131,548,434 of the estate of her husband, the late Edsel B. Ford.

The action indicated agreement had been reached between Mrs. Ford and the Internal Revenue Bureau concerning the value of her husband's share holdings in the Ford Motor Company. This had been in dispute since Edsel Ford's death in May, 1943.

At that time Mrs. Ford said the stock was worth $58 a share; the revenue bureau claimed $190 a share was a better valuation. Today's authorization accepted a valuation of approximately $90 a share.

The Probate Court order disclosed for the first time that the estate included 1,153,509 shares of Class "A" non-voting stock in the Ford Motor Company; personal property valued at $11,030,829, and 59,411 shares of Class "B" voting common stock in the Ford Company.

Under the terms of the Edsel Ford will, all his children share in the Class "B" stock; the personal property was left to Mrs. Ford, and the Class "A" stock, plus $148,487.50 worth of real estate, was bequeathed to the Ford Foundation.

Pending in Probate Court in Detroit is settlement of the even larger estate of the elder Henry Ford, who died last April 6, leaving a fortune estimated at the time at as much as $500,000,000.

H. Montegue, 18, Instantly Killed Near Deseronto

Pinned beneath the windshield of the converted army truck which he was driving when the vehicle overturned on a curve one mile west of Deseronto, Hubert C. Montegue, 18, of Toronto, was instantly killed shortly before noon Friday morning.

A passenger in the truck, William McNaughton, 34, also of Toronto, suffered from shock and a bruised back, but was not deemed seriously enough injured to go to hospital. He was treated at Deseronto.

The two men were reported to have been travelling west during a slight rain when on a curve near Deseronto the truck skidded on the wet pavement and overturned in the ditch. There was only a canvas top over the cab and the driver was pinned beneath the windshield.

Both men were employees of the Department of Planning and Development, Toronto, the truck being owned by the department. O.P.P. Constable Chas. Siple investigated.

Racing Popular

Harness racing has always been a papular sport in this part of Ontario and the splendid card offered by the Exhibition Board of Directors should satisfy the most fastidious fan. The track is in excellent condition and present indications point to one of the best meets in this area in many years.

Ex-Mayor George O. Tice, veteran horseman and starter will be in the judge's stand on Tuesday and Wednesday and will get the horses away in his usual masterful style. Mr. Tice was warmly commended by Napanee Fair offifcials the other day on the capable efficient manner in which he handled the races at their function.

Price of Honey Takes Spurt

Spring chickens sold at 45 cents the pound, with older fowl quoted at 40 cents. A few ducks were offered at about 55 cents the pound, one vendor quoting up to $4 for large birds.

The outside market was a profusion of autumn garden and orchard produce. Tomatoes were readily available at 30 cents the small basket, while corn sold at 30 cents and up to 40 cents per dozen ears. Potatoes were 50 cents the peck with bunched vegetables selling at a dime.

McIntosh apples sold at 80 cents the peck with Baxter and Wealthies bringing 70 cents. Grapes were offered for the first time with blues bringing 65 cents and green grapes 70 cents the basket. Black and White Show, Baby And Beauty Contests Make Stirling Fair Grand Success

Calf and Swine Clubs of Rawdon Also Exhibit While High School Holds Achievement Day

Despite a sudden drop in temperatupe and a threat of rain which undoubtedly kept a good many from attending, the 1947 version of Stirling fall fair held Friday lacked nothing from the standpoint of good exhibits and other feature attractions.

With top coats as much in evidence as they would ordinarily be on a late November day, the faithful who braved the chilly wind were rewarded by the unusually fine Black and White show as well as other cattle exhibits and a horse show, to a beauty contest and the ever-popular baby show.

100 Cattle in Show

As is customary at Stirling Fair the Black and White Day show drew well over 100 head of the finest Holsteins in the county with seven county breeders showing their stock. Judge for the Holstein show was Jim Henderson of Kingston. Added features of the fair from a standpoint of farm stock were the achievement day programs of the Rawdon Calf Club, the Stirling Boys' Swine Club and the Stirling High school achievement day.

Senior and reserve grand champion bull in the Black and White show was exhibited by Jack Burnside of Madoc with the reserve senior champion bull being shown by Emile Masse, Sidney township. The junior champion and grand championship bull was shown by Herbert Watt, Foxboro, with Max Burnside showing the reserve junior champion bull senior calf.

Among the horse exhibitors were the Wilson Lumber Co., Murney Heath, Dave Hollinger and Chas. Bonisteel. The horse drawing contest was won by J. Fry of Campbellford with Doyle of Marmora taking second and Heath of Rawdon taking third.

Mayor Follwell Opens Fair

Mayor Frank S. Follwell officially opened the fair indicating his pleasure in opening this, one of the oldest fairs in the county. "Fall fairs," he said, "were a splendid example of the co-operation which must be shown if the world was to continue at peace."

The latest in farm machinery was exhibited by district dealers, while the exhibits of vegetables, both in the junior and regular classes were splendid. Ladies' fancy work and culinary art, drew its customary number of exhibitors.

Splendid Beauty Show

Possibly one of the best attended features of the program was the beauty show in which seven district girls and young women entered. Winner of the contest was petite Margaret Haggerty of West Huntingdon, while Joyce Barnhardt of Belleville, was second. Third place winner was Mrs. Clifford Heath of Stirling, and fourth place Miss Ann Lavender of Marmora. Contest judges were Mayor Frank Follwell and ex-Mayor Harry Rollins, who donated the fourth prize.

There were contests too for the kiddies with the bicycle races for various clashes being popular. Winner for the boys class under 15 were Doug. Wannamaker, Bob Rogers and John McGrory. Girls—winners for the same class were Agnes Chambers and Isabel Fox. Over 15—John McCory, D. Wannamaker and E. Copeland.

In the fiddlers' contest Delbert McComb of Bonarlaw bowed his way to victory, while Art Wood and Delbert McComb were the winners in the mouth organ contest. Mrs. Mather of Hermon, proved herself best with the hammer as she topped her competitors in the nail driving. Other winners in this contest were Doris Wiley of Stirling and Mrs. Robt. Hoard, C. Fitchett and J. Payne were the best at weight guessing. Neil Hubble and Craig Watson took the singing honors with Misses Sharon and Geraldine Wilkinson taking third place with a duet number.

By approval of the crowd Leah McInroy, Jim Hamilton, Mr. and Mrs. H. Richardson, Mr. and Mrs. W. Woods, and Lenore and Murney Bateman took the honors in square dancing.

Seven-Inning Tie

For the sports minded there was softball with arch rivals Glen Ross and Stirling Legion hooking up in a seven-inning game which concluded in a seven-all tie. In the tug-of-war Rawdon outpulled their Stirling rivals in two straight pulls.

It took two hours for Dr. George Faulkner of Belleville, to judge the 15 entrants in the two classes of the baby show. Assisting in getting the young hopefuls ready for the judge were Mrs. Don Campbell and Mrs. Ray Shortt.

Winners in the 1-6 months' class of the baby show were Baby Bird, Wilson and Ashley, while in the 6-12 months' class were Baby Clement, M. Bateman and Faulkner.

A full program of horse racing was offered for the fair patrons with two classes of harness racing, one running race and one race for ponies being on the card. Starter was Ross Turley, Frankford. Pony race winners were Delbert Hough, Glen Anderson and E. Graham.

54 Houses Carried Away in Few Seconds by Storm

Aboard United States Coast Guard Cutter Macoma off Grand Bahama Island, Sept. 20 — (AP) — Four barefooted Negroes who rowed out from shore in darkness reported last night that a 12-foot tidal wave swept across the little island village of West End on Grand Bahama Island and smashed half the town's houses at the peak of a 125-mile hurricane Tuesday night.

They reported no known deaths and few injuries but many ill from bad water and others with heavy colds.

"Some of the people tied themselves to trees when the storm hit," said Lorenzo Smith. "The tidal wave came at 10:30 p. m. and carried away 54 houses in a few seconds.

The Macoma prepared to move hundreds of loaves of bread, huge 27-pound cheeses, cases of coffee, sugar, canned meat and milk for children ashore today.

CITY PUT ON SPOT

Omaha, Sept. 20 — (AP) — Norman D. Graves of Kearney, Neb., put the city of Omaha on the spot.

On the back of a cheque remitted for a $1.50 traffic fine, Graves wrote a 103-word apology for "the great mental anguish suffered by a business visitor..." by endorsing the cheque, the city would have to sign the apology. The city clerk decided to subordinate the city's pride and endorse the cheque, apology included.

Father on the Farm

He Couldn't Stand Bossy Women

By KENNETH C. CRAGG

Father never got over the time Aunt Effie came up from the city to help him run the farm.

He hadn't asked for Aunt Effie's help but that was of small consideration. When his sister decided that poor father (she always thought of her brother as "poor," poor in luck, his marriage and in his ability to cope with the world) needed help, he had only two courses open to him: accept it or be read out of that part of the family dominated by Aunt Effie.

It is doubtful if Aunt Effie would have severed relations for long because it was too much like cutting off the nose to spite the face. Clearly, if she broke with father she would no longer be able to lord it over her brother, and Aunt Effie was not capable of lengthy sacrifices.

Family Rows Distressed Him

But father, who seldom even answered back to mother and was distressed by family rows, accepted her offer. Afterward he told the horses about it while he was currying them and they heard a vivid and sharp, but reasonable fair description of Aunt Effie. At least it seemed that way from what could be heard from the feed-door up in the barn.

By the time his sister and her child, a girl child, with many of the winsome characteristics of a turkey gobbler with gall stones, arrived, it had been made known to the wider connection, that "poor" father had begged for dear Aunt Effie to help him.

While Aunt Effie had more determination than was good for her, no one ever denied her a sterling character. She had emerged from a farm homestead at a time when nice girls were expected to settle down and help their mothers, learn housework, the hard way, and marry, if they were so fortunate as to attract a man. She went to the city, and with considerable courage and determination carved out a relatively successful business career.

She married late in life and much to her relatives' surprise, produced the child, Betty. Many thought she had been a bit hasty.

The pair of them arrived early in haying and Aunt Effie immediately took over responsibilities of planning and management.

She faced her first crisis the second day when the wind didn't blow and the stock were short of water. Aunt Effie was not one to take excuses from a windmill. She was warned not to pump by hand but she said nonsense.

Aunt Effie Never Learned

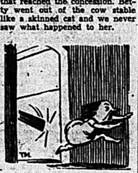
So she unhooked the pump rod and attached the handle and in fifteen minutes of brisk pumping with long strokes she stirred up the sand at the bottom of the drill hole so that it cost father ten dollars and a morning's work to pull the pipes and clean out the sand.

Frightfully inefficient, thought Aunt Effie. Anyone with any sense wouldn't have sand at the bottom of his well, particularly when it was 120 feet down.

In the meantime darling Betty had stuck her hand into the root pulper and shredded a finger. Father was blamed. "Only a grossly careless person would have a dangerous machine like that around." Father was overheard telling the horses he would show her, he would sharpen the knives on the cutting box.

The sweet child had also thrown stones at the calves in the orchard: "Just healthy animal spirits," and on the evening of the fourth day she got the shock of her life. No one knew exactly what happened and no one except Aunt Effie, tried to find out.

Darling Betty, at evening milking, gaily saw possibilities in jabbing a sharp pointed stick into the flanks of the cows. It was such jolly fun, particularly for mother when she was kicked off her stool. But the game ended with the smack of a slat against a firm small rump and a bellow that reached the concession. Betty went out of the cow stable like a skinned cat and we never saw what happened to her.



Aunt Effie fairly frothed. Someone had assaulted her child. But it was the truth that not one of the family had seen anything, and no one saw fit to mention that Walter, the hired man, had been milking down at the back end of the stable. No one questioned Walter, but father, on Saturday night, slipped an extra dollar into his hand, and said he thought he might want some cigars.

Aunt Effie Meant Well

While as far as the work was concerned Aunt Effie meant well she had everybody worn out without much more done. Walter, who usually left at the drop of a hat, stayed on for some reason. Maybe he felt Aunt Effie was a challenge. He had never thought highly of women and now he said he knew he was right, but he said it with more emphasis than that.

He became so violent about women that mother, outraged, rebuked him one day, saying firmly, "Walter, remember your mother was a woman; or if she wasn't she ought to have been."

Things like that made it easier to put up with Aunt Effie, when she would stalk up with her firm tread, find fault with the way things were being done, and say, "Remember, if a thing is worth doing at all, it is worth doing well."

Some thought! Goodness knows father didn't need any encouraging because he was such a careful man he overdid it and had a tendency to waste time. For instance he was always hopping off the binder to pick up straws that had fallen off the table.

Aunt Effie fixed that. She kept father on the binder, but sent a boy chasing after it like a gleaner of Biblical times.

The potatoes were planted in the wrong field and the garden was laid out stupidly. But the bugs were never given a chance to start colonies. Aunt Effie was a terror on bugs. No one could say she failed in energy.

Mr. Williams went to the other extreme. Mr. Williams, a short frail little man with a pathetic sort of pot belly, came up from Toronto to help out, to do the odd jobs, a bit of hoeing or keeping the stable clean.

Mr. Williams had learned his trade as a bookbinder in England but unfortunately had no other noticeable skill. He couldn't hoe. He was not adept at piling manure in a wheelbarrow, a form of endeavor not ordinarily regarded highly in the country, and he was deathly afraid of cows. He was so afraid of them he would neither put their chains on or take them off. Mr. Williams, before his first week was out, discovered the return of an old pain in one of his kidneys, and took it back to the city.

Cousin Amy used to come to the farm every summer for a couple of weeks. Amy went to college and father could never understand why she came to our place. A person could lie around and read silly love stories just as well at home. He recalled that when she was much younger, she was a very mischievous child (not as bad as that young she-devil Betty, of course) who liked to climb on the horses' backs or slide off the straw stack into the manure pile. Father had liked her then, but since Amy had been to school she had changed. She didn't even like father to remind her of the time she ate the dew worms.

Amy wasn't much help, she was delicate. Mother had tried to find jobs for her that didn't involve much effort, like shelling peas in the shade on the back porch, but Amy's back gave out.

Amy came by it honestly. Her mother in her day, had a reputation for retiring in lady-like dignity at the first clatter of dirty dishes, to mull over the pages of last season's mail order catalogue until the washing and drying were finished.

Amy Found Things Difficult

Each day after Amy left, father and mother would have a little talk about how they could write to her and gently hint that maybe she found the farm life boring, but they never did. However, the hand of Providence intervened one year, for the day after Amy's arrival mother took to her bed. Father took it for granted that Amy would look after things for a few days.

That next week must have been a nightmare for Amy. She would wash dishes, at a pinch, without instruction, but when it came to making butter, cleaning the separator, feeding the hens, scrubbing the floor and all the other things that mother took in her stride, she was lost. Father, of course, couldn't understand why one woman couldn't do what another woman did, and his attitude nearly drove poor Amy mad.

Mother did her part by supposing that everything was going to wrack and ruin while she lay on her death bed. She was up and around in a few days, however, and Amy went home. We didn't see her for years.

Aunt Effie stayed until early harvest and then left, herself injured and her child misunderstood. "Misunderstood!" Father was seldom so grim, "she should be put in an institution. Effie, you may be thankful you haven't a murder on your conscience."

Aunt Effie, from force of habit, said, nonsense, if he'd kept his horses under control. But she'd been shaken.

The final events were thrust without warning into as peaceful a rural scene as ever unfolded within the arch of an open barn door. One sling load of grain had been lifted into the mow from the wagon and Walter had just fastened the ends of the second sling to the hoisting toggle and hadn't had time to step clear when sweet Betty pegged the near Maude of the draw rope team with a stone behind the ear.

The horses leaped and the sling shot up and was ten feet in the air before Walter's body rolled and landed face down in the sheaves of barley on the wagon. The horses ran until the car hit the stop block at the end of the mow with a terrific crack, and age took its toll. They fell to their knees and got up wondering what had happened to them.

"Woman," he told Aunt Effie in a frank and manly way, "either you and your whelp go or I go."

Give Aunt Effie credit; she recognized who was indispensable. Walter stayed.

TABERNACLE W.M.S. MEETING

The September meeting of the W.M.S. of Tabernacle United Church was held in the church parlors Tuesday afternoon, Mrs. A. D. Archibald presiding and conducting the devotional period based on Psalm selection 732.

The president introduced the new study book on "The Bible," giving a brief outline of its value and translation into 1070 tongues. Mrs. J. A. Charlton gave a short life history of Wycliffe, and pointed out how the Bible had been valued in those days. Concluding this period Mrs. Archibald said, "We should think of our study book as a challenge, and ask ourselves what we are doing with our Bibles." Prayer was offered by Mrs. A. H. Fisher.

During the business period the treasurer reported that half of the society's allocation had been reached during the first half of this year. Mrs. Nelson reported on Christian Stewardship, making an appeal for the support of a special object by the auxiliary. Reports from the Community Friendship and Supply secretaries were received, and the meeting closed with the Mizpah benediction.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

BY WINIFRED E. WILSON

SEEING GREEN

"What a lot of green birds there are," Vera exclaimed. "That seems to be the favorite color after brown, particularly among the small birds that come to Canada east of the Rockies. Suppose we make a list of them; it would be quite impressive".

"Begin with the smallest", said Edith, "the Ruby-Tthroated Humming-bird in his metallic green armour. Next would come the two species of Kinglets with olive coats".

"A great many of the Warblers are either almost entirely green or have a green sheen to their backs and wings. That is especially true of the Pine, Nashville, Black-throated Green, Palm, Prairie, Connecticut, Mourning and Wilson," Vera ticked off on her fingers.

"Don't you think all the Vireos appear more or less green in certain lights?" Edith asked. "The Yellow-throated, Blue-headed and White-eyed can definitely be described as green".

"Even one of the Flycatchers, the Acadian, is greenish, and of course the Tree Swallow is a shining, steely green".

The girls were thinking of song birds; but this color is not restricted to them: there are water birds too, the Green Heron being a good example. And only the males had been counted; but the females of several species are green even though their mates are not. This is the case with the Scarlet Tanager, both the Black-throated Blue and the Black-poll Warblers, the American Crossbill and the Goldfinch.

If instead of confining our list to birds with green predominating we add those having a few very bright green feathers, the Ducks must be considered. The green heads of the Mallard and Merganser, the head and speculum of the Shoveller, the Green-winged Teal are certainly very noticeable. The American Coot has no green feathers, but its feet and legs are markedly green.

More confusion is caused in the autumn when some males of other colors take on this hue, like the Scarlet Tanager, and even some juveniles with non-green parents are themselves decidedly green, as the young Chestnut-sided Warblers.

But the joke is on us. In spite of all the birds we say are green, science tells us we are wrong; as a general sule the so-called olive colouring of a bird is the result of a mixture of black and yellow — there is actually no true green in the plumage. We only imagine we are seeing green!

Third Divorce For Heiress

Reno, Nev., Sept. 19. (AP)— The divorce courts for the third time have terminated marriage for Ann Cooper Hewitt, 32, central figure in a sensational sterilization case in 1936.

Yesterday her third husband, John Whitaker, won a decree. He charged that she subjected him to treatment which impaired his health and tended "to defeat and frustrate the object of marriage."

In 1936, two physicians were tried in San Francisco of mayhem conspiracy charges growing out of a damage suit filed by Miss Hewitt. She accused the physicians and her mother of conspiring to have her sterilized in order that she might not have any heirs to the fortune of her multi-millionaire father, Peter George Hewitt, the inventor. The trial was stopped and the charges dismissed because of insufficient evidence.

Battle of Britain Anniversary

On Sunday, September 21st., the Battle of Britain, fought in 1940, will be celebrated in Britain and by all the units of the R.C.A.F. in Canada. At Westminster Abbey prayers of thanksgiving will be offered for the triumph of British courage and effort over the tyranny of the aggressor. It was at this time seven years ago that the enemy saw his plans of aggression foiled by the fortitude and effort of the R.A.F. and the other services. Canadians had a part in that heroic defence of the air of Britain as the records show.

Many persons recall the days of early September, 1940, when it was realized that the enemy was about to make a supreme effort. Fortunately for the world of men everywhere there stood that defender of liberty, Britain, unflinching and ready for the supreme trial. The highest tribute was paid to the valiant airmen of the R.A.F. in those days by Prime Minister Churchill who coined words which will ever preserve the record of British and Canadian airmen and of stout British hearts in the other services and Britons at large who stood ready for the ordeal came through victoriously. Those words of Churchill will live as long as British freedom and human language last:

"Never in the field of human conflict was so much owed by so many to so few."

Armies of freedom in Europe had been defeated as the forces of Germany overran Eastern Europe in Poland and Northern and Western Europe. But there was the bastion of Britain and on that fortress in the silver sea the world's faith rested. Britain was standing alone and the nations which had been overrun and those not yet in the conflict saw the magnitude of the danger.

Hitler trusted in the might of his Luftwaffe which had blasted Poland and had struck at the Netherlands and France, but nature had drawn the line of battle at the English Channel, the last barrier that freemen had against the boasting tyrant, who was flushed with crime and his swift success. But air control was requisite to the foe for any success.

The Royal Air Force and particularly the Fighter Command felt the responsibility of the freedom of the world dependent upon them, Britain's first line of defence against invasion. Were the fifty squadrons of Hurricanes and Spitfighters equal to the task? There was one hopeful indication, although its full significance was not felt at that time. Over Dunkerque the fighters of the R.A.F. had come to grips with the Luftwaffe and had taken a heavy toll. Without that fighter cover the story of Dunkerque Beaches would have been much more tragic. The fall of France had come and Mr. Churchill had announced that the Battle of Britain was about to begin. The accepted dates of the Battle are July 10 and October 31st as the opening and close of the struggle. Goering first sought to overwhelm Britain's fighter defences by attacks on shipping, harbors, airfields and aircraft factories. Goering failed to achieve air supremacy over the Channel and Strait. The second assault came on August 23 with London the chief objective of the Luftwaffe. For five weeks the ordeal of London continued, rising to the peak on September 15th when the enemy suffered a major defeat. German bomber losses were so great they could not continue this phase of the struggle. It was the beginning of the end of the Battle of Britain. The battle of attrition followed with fighter sweeps by high-flying fighters and fighter-bombers. But the Battle had been won by Britain. It was the triumph of the R.A.F. and Fighter Command and the ground crews and all who kept units operating efficiently for these latter had their share in the great victory.

Canada was represented in this historic battle by several hundred officers and airmen who served as aircrew and ground crew in Fighter, Bomber and Coastal Commands. The names of forty-five of these are on the roll of honor in Westminster Abbey. Most of the Canadians fighting in this battle were young men who had gone to Britain in pre-war days to enrol in the R.A.F. There were however two fighter units which bore the name Canadian, No. 242 (Canadian) Squadron of the R.A.F., composed of Canadian fighter pilots in the R.A.F. and the other No. 1 (Fighter) Squadron of the R.C.A.F. (later designated No. 401) which arrived in Britain on the eve of the battle.

The Battle of Britain was the R.C.A.F.'s baptism of fire. In August, 1940, a squadron of the R.C.A.F. flew into battle for the first time, won its first victories and suffered its first casualties. Here the R.C.A.F. "proved its spurs" and this battle can thereby be remembered with pride and the people of Canada and the R.C.A.F. join in tribute to all her sons in the R.A.F. and the R.C.A.F. who over Britain fought the battle that was to decide not only the fate of the island but the destiny of all free men.

A Note of Hope

Recent reports from Normandy, France, that there has been a "casastrophic" decline in the starling population there, commencing with a winter of exceptional severity in 1939-40, have created interest — and perhaps hope — among ornithologists in Canada.

European starlings were introduced to North America as recently as 1890-01. On March 6, 1890, 80 starlings were liberated in Central Park, New York City, and on April 25, 1891, 40 more. From these 120 birds originated all the millions of starlings which have spread rapidly throughout eastern North America and are constantly invading new territory.

In Ontario they have been observed as far north as James and Hudson Bays, and there are records of their appearance in Manitoba and Alberta. In view of these reports from Normandy, ornithologists on this side of the Atlantic will be on the alert for possible changes in the population of the European starling here, radical enough to be observed.—Royal Ontario Museum News.

Explain Atomic Energy

The basic facts about atomic energy are to be brought home to the people of Britain by means of an ingenious travelling exhibition. It is being organized by the Atomic Scientists Association in co-operation with the Ministry of Supply and takes a form specially fitted to a train of two coaches. At the beginning of November it will begin an extensive tour covering 26 main towns in England, Scotland and Wales. The aim of the exhibition is to explain all the various implications of nuclear fission and to illustrate both its destructive and constructive properties. Charts, working models and photographs are being used to demonstrate the fundamental principles underlying this newly discovered nature's force.

Houseworkers' First College

A new organization to train women for domestic workers — the National Institute of Houseworkers — opens its first residential training centre this month. In a beautiful old country house in Devonshire the first batch of students will begin their free six-months course which ends with an examination for a diploma. The house takes 38 residential students at a time, besides day students. The training is extremely thorough, for not only are all sides of domestic work taught, but the students learn to work in every type of home and kitchen.

Television in London Cinemas

Cinema (large-screen) television will begin in London this autumn, according to the statement of J. Arthur Rank, who is the head of the largest film group in the United Kingdom. The start will be made with five or six West End movie houses.

Swimming the English Channel has ceased to be a novelty; nowadays that famous strip of water brings its conquerors little glory and less cash. But Hitler could not cross it, even with all the might of his army, navy and air force to back him up!—Ottawa Journal.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

How did "trivial" originate?

"Trivial" is from "trivialis," the Latin adjective formed from "trivium," which in turn is derived from "tres," three, and "via," road or street, and which literally signifies "three roads." Originally "trivial" meant "belonging to the crossroads" or "the place where the roads meet" and was applied to things regarded as common, ordinary, familiar or trite.

Crossroads and street-corner gossip and talk are proverbially commonplace and trivial. From this application the word naturally acquired the secondary meaning of slight, trifling, inconsiderable or unimportant.

During the Middle Ages the part of a university curriculum embracing grammar, logic and rhetoric was called "trivium," while that part embracing music, arithmetic, geometry and astronomy was called "quadrivium." In other words, the three-road way led to the lower division of the seven arts, while the four-road way led to the higher division.

What is a surrogate?

Although "surrogate," pronounced "SUR-o-gate," survives to a lesser extent in other States, the term is seldom heard except in connection with New York, where the surrogate has one of the most lucrative and sought-for positions in the State administration. In New York a surrogate is a judge who probates wills, settles estates and appoints guardians for minors and other incompetents.

The use of the term is a survival of the days in England when the bishops turned the actual work over to their surrogates. "Surrogate" is derived from Latin "subrogare," to substitute, deputize or delegate. An ecclesiastical official that grants licenses to marry without bans is still called a surrogate. In Georgia the probate court is called the "court of the ordinary," which is a similar survival of English church law in which an "ordinary" is the deputy of a bishop or archbishop.

What does "halitosis" mean?

"Halitosis," pronounced "hal-i-TOE-sis," is a medical term signifying the condition of having a maloderous or foul breath. It was formed from Latin "halitus," breath, and Greek and Latin "osis," a suffix used generally to mean condition, state or process and in pathology specifically to mean abnormal, morbid, diseased condition.

Originally a medical term, "halitosis" has been popularized in recent times by the advertisers of mouth washes and other patent medicines. Halitosis may be due to many different causes, such as decayed or unclean teeth, pyorrhoea, diseased tonsils, infected adenoids, dyspepsia and various diseases of the mouth, nose and gums. Odors arising from eating onions and garlic and drinking whisky are believed to come from the lungs after assimulation by the digestive system rather than directly from the stomach.

Belief Held Russia Will Never Leave U.N.

By CLYDE BLACKBURN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Sept. 20. (CP)—Canadian delegation members discussed the fiery utterances made by Russia's Andrei Vishinsky and, while there was no formal statement, it was learned they had agreed on the conclusions:

1. That Russia never will voluntarily leave the U.N. organization because it provides for them such a perfect medium for propaganda.

2. That the speech was an all-time record for the Russian determination to use every artifice and exhaust every possibility of dominating the organization—a determination evident since the Dumbarton Oaks Conference laid the foundation for the U. N.

3. That the speech was an offensive defence against what the Russians realized could be the most compelling condemnation of their own activities in Eastern Europe.

4. That the speech was an eloquent example of the "big lie" technique used so effectively by Hitler on the eve of his desperate thrust for world domination.

5. That the proper treatment of the speech would be to completely ignore it and certainly not to be depressed by it—nor to be too elated if and when the Soviet delegation changes tactics to more friendly utterances.

Featured in Russia

Moscow, (AP)—Andrei Vishinsky's speech to the United Nations Assembly—probably the strongest words ever used by a Russian diplomat against the present policy of the United States—was presented to the Russian public today in full-page spreads in all the principal newspapers.

The press made no immediate editorial comment.

The full pages were insufficient to carry the Deputy Foreign Minister's speech in its entirety, and editors' notes said it would be concluded in the next editions. The full text went out to all provincial newspapers, and was broadcast in many languages.

The press, which yesterday gave a summary of State Secretary Marshall's Wednesday address to the Assembly, carried excerpts from the American's speech at greater length today, and added some comment.

Only Three Tax Concessions Given By Aussie Budget

Canberra, Sept. 19 — (CP) — In gloomy tones, Prime Minister Chifley today introduced his budget to the House of Representatives with only three tax concessions granted.

The budget showed Australia's government was sticking to current financial plans and not making any long-range ones.

No income tax reductions were granted and the budget contained no surprises of any kind.

The wartime company tax was abolished, the sales tax reduced and the gold tax suspended. The total budget was for $1,366,400,000, $7,360,000 less than last year. It showed an increase of $131,200,000 for civil expenditures but a reduction of $204,800,000 on post-war commitments and defence.

Chifley told parliament current high prices are likely to produce a big export income this year but he couldn't expect the situation to last indefinitely.

"If our export prospects deteriorate it may be necessary to impose over-all import cuts to carry out undertakings to Britain to do our utmost to avoid drawing on accumulated dollar balances," he said. It was too early yet to predict when and how the dollar position would be improved.

A recent gift of $80,000,000 to Britain had reduced Australia's sterling balance and Australia had agreed unofficially to freeze its London funds, amounting to more than $576,000,000 to help Britain.

He had personally assured Prime Minister Attlee that Australia would do her utmost to help Britain in her economic crisis. Australia and the sterling area were not able to earn sufficient dollars to cover imports from Canada and the United States.

Officials said would-be purchasers will be asked to drop their bids written on paper slips into a box. Bids will later be sorted and the highest will get the gun.

Majority of the weapons are of .22 calibre but the seizures offered will include 90 shotguns and 65 high-powered rifles.

LEAST DANGEROUS PAIN-KILLER

I have taken aspirin two or three times in my life. I suffered no untoward effect— but then, I was careful to remain lying or sitting completely at rest for at least an hour after the dose.

Aspirin is the least dangerous pain-killer I know, a good deal less dangerous than the coaltar derivatives so many laymen take with as much concern as I'd feel about taking a second cup of coffee for breakfast— acetanilide phenacetin, aminopyrine etc., But aspirin has its own death rate, even if it does not kill so many people as acetanilide, the active ingredient in numerous nostrums, does. For instance Bastedo's Materia Medica, Pharmacology and Therapeutics states:

From aspirin, death has resulted from 0.3 and 0.7 Gm. (5 and 10 grains) and 30 Gm. (1 oz.) have been recovered from. There may be petechicl hemorrhages in stomach or serious mebranes, glomerrulonephritis (inflamation of kidneys), and hepatic (liver) and cardiac (heart) damage.

Aspirin has the disadvantage that, even in small doses, it produces nausea and heartburn in certain people, particularly in those with highly acid gastric (acid stomach). From idiosyncrasy, there are many reports of feeling of weakness, collapse, angioneurotic swellings of face and throat (giant hives), skin rashes, major urticaria (big hives again) and rarely death.

So there you are, free to choose your own pain-killer and take it or feed it to your children with as much caution as a baby feels when taking a drink of lye or a bite of ant paste.

I am not at all fond of ache, pain or distress of any kind and I don't particularly enjoy any kind of minor illness. But my idea of the complete fool is the person who takes aspirin for any other purpose than relief of unendurable ache or pain and my idea of the reprehensible parent or guardian is the person who gives aspirin to a young child under the pretense that it is a remedy for anything.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Please Pass the Soft Soap

I never paid much attention to your references to The 7 Keys to Vite—or rather I thought it might be just facetiousness —until I finally sent for the booklet and found it eminently scientific and practical. I have been following the suggestions now for nearly a year, and I'd be grateful now if you had charged me a thousand dollars for the advice. (Miss B. E.)

Answer — Copy of the book is available to anybody who asks for it in writing (no clipping, please) and incloses stamped self addressed envelope and a clean quarter — one not messed up with stickum.

Chew Wheat

Following the suggestion in your column I adopted the practice of carrying a small package of wheat in pocket and taking a good chew of it two or three times a day. It is not only better chewing than gum but it has seemed to bring about a marked gain in general health—of course I have been eating it instead of refined cereals for breakfast every day too. (J.W.)

Answer — Any reader who asks for it in writing and provides stamped self addressed envelope may have a copy of the pamphlet Wheat to Eat, which tells how plain wheat should be used as a staple in every family dietary.

Blackheads

My husband prepared the lotion you suggest in our pamphlet and in only a few weeks I have noticed a decided improvement in my skin. (M.G.S.)

Answer — On written request any person who provides stamped self addressed envelope may have the pamphlet Blackheads and pimples.

Foreign-Owned Assets in U.S. Reach New High

Washington, Sept. 20 (AP) — Despite the world shortage of dollars to pay for American exports, foreign-owned assets in the United States are greater than before her entry into the war. A new government estimate yesterday put them at $149,900,000,000 as of the end of June.

Even allowing for shrinkage since then, officials said, the total still is greater than the $12,738,700,000 figure shown by a treasury survey as of June, 1941.

Government analysists explain that the stock and bond assets are mostly owned by private citizens and not available to help meet government debts.

Canada's Deputy Finance Minister Clifford Clark conferred here with treasury officials Thursday while Ottawa buzzed again with talk of possible devaluation of Canadian currency, bonuses to gold producers, import restrictions and a request for a loan from the United States.

United States officials said Clark made no request for a loan and there was "no discussion" about one, just "an exchange of views on the financial and economic situation."

Gardiner Says New Wheat Price 'Very Satisfacory'

Ottawa, Sept. 20 (CP) —Agriculture minister Gardiner said yesterday discussions he and Finance Minister Abbott held in Britain on the 1948-49 price to be paid for Canadian wheat were "very satisfactory to us" but he declined to comment on London reports that the rate would top $2 a bushel.

He said at a press conference he and Mr. Abbott "simply opened" th ngotiations for the new price, which must be determined before Dec. 31 this year under terms of the four-year Anglo-Canadian agreement. The price currently is $1.55 a bushel, with a floor of $1.25 a bushel provided for the 1948-49 contract year.

"I would say that the British government and ourselves are agreed on the interpretation of the phase in the contract clause relating to price," he said. "We might settle on the discussions we've had already or we might require further discussions."

Indicating that the new price would be an increase, Mr. Gardiner said the price could only go down to the floor price of $1.25 a bushel if world prices dropped and as world prices were holding up it appeared that there would be no decline.

"We feel indeed fortunate in being able to bring such a great artist to Belleville", the president said today in making the announcement, "and we are all aggressively determined to make this one of the outstanding events of the season."

Pointing out that special committees and ticket selling locations would be announced soon, the local chairman urged all organization members "and others interested in civic betterment" to join in making the concert a huge financial success for the benefit of Civic improvement.

Rubinoff and his Violin, long a favorite American combination, is well known to millions both from his current concert appearances, nationwide radio broadcasts with Eddie Cantor, and his motion picture engagements. School Children Parade at Fair, Many Exhibits

Picton, Sept. 20—With a record number of exhibits filling buildings to capacity, Picton Fair opened here Friday with a large attendance. The annual event continues today with horse races in the afternoon and rodeo at night, as the main attractions.

Opening the fair was a two-mile long parade in which many hundreds of school children from all parts of the county took part. They made a colorful showing as most of them wore bright caps and capes and large banners were carried. Trenton cadet band provided music and during the afternoon, presented a much-appreciated program. Decorated bicycles and ponies added interest to the parade.

During the opening ceremonies, Hon. James deC. Hepburn M.P.P., Speaker of the Ontario Legislature, stressed the important link existing between urban and rural residents, and spoke in praise of the accomplishments of the farmers. Fair President S. Lockyer extended a welcome, and the children poined in singing patriotic numbers.

Every Space Filled

Centre of the grounds is the huge crystal palace and every inch of space was filled with exhibits the busy tomato picking season not interfering with either quality or quantity. Flowers made a particularly colorful array. Outstanding among women's work were the large entries of quilts and lace tablecloths. In the home cooking section, there were 52 pies and 44 cakes besides other home baking. There were 21 loaves of bread.

A feature of the roots and vegetables and fruits were several special displays competing for prizes given by Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce with top awards going to Mrs. Harold Foster and Fred Jay. The entry of tomatoes was typical for this county.

More than a thousand articles are entered in the school's section with woodwork being especially fine. Craft work is also a feature here.

Two large sections of wall are covered with photographs of fine quality. The woodworking section, contains many fine pieces. In the oddity corner is a four-legged chicken, an egg with the letter E raised in shell, tall corn and sunflowers, odd-shaped fruits and vegetables and other freaks of nature.

Prince Edward County Women's Institutes have a display which featured the 50th anniversary of their organization. There are a number of commercial exhibits while the grounds outside near the palace are filled with new machinery, new cars and farm equipment.

Holsteins Predominate

Though Holsteins predominate in the cattle barn, Warden Donald Thompson has an entry of Guernseys. There was a good entry of horses with saddle horses and ponies especially well represented.

A quilt made more than a century ago, bearing the names of pupils at a Quaker boarding school here at that time, is attracting much interest.

Prince Edward County cheesemakers have arranged a display of cheese and many types of milk products.

Tonight, a rodeo from Texas will present a program.

STUFFED WHITE OWL DOES IT

Woodstock, Sept. 20 — (CP) — This city appears to have solved its starling problem. A stuffed white owl was mounted on a 10-foot pole and placed at the top of a tree. A flock of starlings swooped down on the tree at nightfall, rose again in great excitement on catching sight of the owl, and flew in all directions. They did not return all night.

Speaker Stresses Home Visitation Evangelism

Belleville Presbytery, through its Committee on Evangelism and Social Service, called together the ministers of the United Church of this city and nearby towns and rural areas. The meeting was held on Friday afternoon in the Bridge Street United Church.

Rev. George R. Service of Zion United Church, Hamilton, who has been recently called to Augustine United Church, Winnipeg, was the guest speaker.

Mr. Service said, "To reach the unreached is one of the primary tasks of the Church today. The Gospel of Jesus Christ is timeless. It is our duty to keep it timely."

The importance of Home Visitation Evangelism was stressed by the speaker to be one of the most effective methods of reaching the unreached and winning them for Christ and His Church. Across Canada to-day between 60 per cent and 80 per cent of our people have no Church connection. They are becoming spiritually blacked-out. We either use or lose our religious impulses. Christian Education, while doing an effective piece of work is only contacting about one-half of our boys and girls. "The Church, therefore, must carry the gospel from the Church into the homes where the people are," he said.

Home Visitation Approved.

Home visitation is already proving itself as an outstanding method, both in Canada and the United States. Many centres such as Hamilton where this movement was pioneered under Mr. Service's leadership some four years ago; Toronto, which has had two successful programs; as well as Peterborough, Brantford, Woodstock and Windsor are now very enthusiastic about the accomplishments of Home Visitation Evangelism.

It is simply employing New Testament methods, following the example of Jesus when he sent them out two by two to win them one by one. This method calls for new interest and activity on the part of laymen and women, the speaker stated. To be effective workers, they must be trained in the art of talking to others about spiritual things. "Experience has shown," he said, "that lay folk can be highly successful. They enter into it with fear and trembling but find to their great joy, that they can be used of God to lead others into the Christian way of life."

Belleville Presbytery is planning two Home Visitation Evangelism campaigns in the course of the next six months, one centred in Belleville and one in Napanee. The Belleville district campaign has been proposed for February, 1948, and will be convened by the Rev. J. D. Martin of King Street United Church, Trenton. Another meeting of the ministers will be held in the first week of November. It is hoped to make plans at the meeting for special preaching and a Home Visitors' School.

Members Of Baptist Sunday School Prepare for Rally

A very successful rally supper was held in Victoria Avenue Baptist Church parlors on Thursday evening when members and friends of the church and Sunday School gathered for a time of fellowship as a prelude to the Rally Day services to be held on Sunday.

Later two educational films provided by the film library, were exhibited. The pastor, Rev. H. O. Eastman, who was in charge of the program, read the Scripture and led in prayer. Master Russell Soule, a promising young cornetist, played "Stand Up For Jesus," accompanied by Mrs. B. Doolittle at the piano. The Primary Department sang "Jesus Loves Me" as their contribution to the evening's period of inspiration. A hearty vote of thanks was extended to the ladies, under the convenership of Mrs. C. Campbell, who prepared such a bounteous supper. Rev. H. O. Eastman, dismissed the gathering.

Ann Street School Basement Considered as Permanent Office For Education Board

Only routine business was conducted by members of the local board of education at their first meeting of the Fall season held at the King George School, Friday evening. Only six member of the board were in attendance, these being Chairman Wishart, Miss Tickell, Nathan, Seldon, Dr. Tennent, David and Creeggan.

Reports of the standing committees were adopted without exception, it being decided to determine if the Department of Education approves of the use of private or industrial equipment in the vocational day or evening classes for the purpose of instruction of employees or prospective employees of local industrial firms.

Night school registrations will be started next week and will be received Wednesday and Thursday evening with evening classes to commence on Thursday evening October 2.

Seek Office Space

The Board of Education will consider the fitting of a basement room at Ann Street school for the use of the Board of Education administrative offices. During the summer recess the offices were moved to King George School but as the space is that formerly used as a class room which may be needed in the near future, it has been suggested that permanent office space be secured if at all possible.

No Action Taken

Members took no action on a request from a local service club member that the rate of $25 per night rental for the collegiate auditorium be reduced if at all possible. Previously the auditorium had been rented to such organizations at $5 per night, but board members felt money was being lost at this figure and before the summer recess voted for the higher figure.

"The Board of Education is losing money at $5 or even $10 per night for the auditorium," stated Chairman Wishart. "This board discussed this matter very thoroughly and I recommend that we stand by our previous decision."

Salary Raised

The salary of Alf Cooper, band leader, was raised from $800 to $1,000 per annum, this after a request from Mr. Cooper that he be given a 50 per cent increase. School Administrator L. A. Kells stated that Mr. Cooper was giving about 60 per cent full time to instruction of band members at the collegiate and at the various public schools.

Two additional teachers for the collegiate staff, Mrs. W. J. Doyle and Mr. George Anderson were approved, while approval was also given to the appointment of Mrs. G. T. Bristol as an additional temporary staff member for public schools.

In the report of the school nurse it was stated that children of eight classes had been inspected in the classrooms, while cards had been started for all new pupils, including kindergarten pupils. Vaccinations had been checked on all new pupils and notices sent home to parents of children who had not been done.

In general children have come to school cleaner and showing signs of better care than in previous years, it was stated.

Toronto to Give Canned Goods As a Present

Toronto, Sept. 20 (CP)—A huge shipment of canned goods and non-perishable foodstuffs will be sent to the people of Great Britain in about three weeks as a wedding gift from the people of Toronto to Princess Elizabeth and Lieut. Philip Mountbatten.

In announcing the plan last night, Mayor Robert Saunders said it was quite clear from statements made earlier by the Princess, "she would prefer us to send food to her people rather than an expensive but comparatively useless gift."

The civic administration, which abandoned the idea of sending an expensive trinket to the couple, will finance the campaign to collect food for Britain, the Mayor said. "Every Torontonian will be asked to give canned goods or non-perishable food which we will send to the old country."

The period for the campaign has not yet been set, Mayor Saunders said, but it would likely occur in the middle of October. The Royal wedding will take place in November and the food will be sent in one mass shipment.

"We will ask British officials to assist in deciding where the food will be distributed," the Mayor added. "I am sure both the Princess and Lieut. Mountbatten will be happy at the decision of the city. Through the gift we want to show our appreciation to the British people who are facing such severe handicaps with such courage.

Women's Activities

CHATTERTON W.I.

The September meeting of the Chatterton W.I., was held at the home of Mrs. Leonard Prest with twelve members and six visitors present. The President opened the meeting with the Institute Ode.

Mrs. G. Irvine, convener for this meeting "Citizenship and Canadianization" was in charge of the following program. A reading, "Do You Just Belong" by Mrs. Bleecker read "Who Is My Neighbor" followed by the singing of "O Canada".

The guest speaker, Rev. Lloyd Shorten of Foxboro, gave a very interesting and helpful talk on "The Canadian Citizenship Act as it Affects our Country". He said "rural women find their places in a satisfying rural life".

A reading was given by Lugo Prest, "It is Good to be Remembered".

During the business it was decided to send a donation to the Coe Hill Tornado Fund and plans were discussed for having a booth at Belleville Fair.

The meeting closed with the National Anthem and the hostess served delicious refreshments.

FOXBORO W.A.

Foxboro — The regular meeting of the W.A. was held on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. George Priest with a large attendance. Mrs. George Hicks presided and after the singing of the theme song and a hymn, Mrs. J. G. Sills read the Scripture lesson and a poem entitled "In Which Pew Are You?" Mrs. Priest took charge of the business period which consisted mainly of items pertaining to the bazaar to be held in the near future and committees were appointed. The meeting was closed with the Mizpah Benediction and a social time was enjoyed while refreshments were being served.

4TH SIDNEY W.M.S.

4th Sidney.—The September meeting of the W.M.S. was held on Wednesday 17, at the home of Mrs. Hugh Gray. Mrs. Walt, the president, presiding "The Bible for all the World" is the theme of the lessons for 1947-48.

Scripture lesson read by Mrs. G. Tucker:

"Today we think of the pioneers of the great company of men and women who preserved and translated the Bible from its first appearance to the present, Jerome, Wycliffe and Tyndale."

Mrs. Evans gave the story of Jerome where we learn that in 382 in the imperial City of Rome he became a Christian. Later he and a few other Christians went to Jerusalem and translated some of the Bible into Latin.

Mrs. A. Seeley gave a short history of Wycliffe, who began teaching in 1379. He translated more of the Bible and caused hundreds of copies to be made by hand and passed them around for many to read. They were seized and burned in 1410. Yet a few were hidden and studied by the English. As is always the way when anything is banned, more were anxious to read to know what the Bible was like.

Mrs. G. Tucker then gave the work of Tyndale, who worked with Martin Luther. They went to Germany in 1526 and 6,000 copies of the Bible were smuggled into England. Tyndale was a martyr there and his last words were "Lord open the eyes of the King of England to these words".

Mrs. Neelands conducted a "Do You Know" questionnaire of eight prominent facts of the Bible. She pointed out the difference in the reading of the "Beatitudes" of the St. James' version and the Moffatt translation.

The ladies were then given the opportunity to view a number of Bibles, such as German, Norwegian, French, Latin, Hebrew and Japanese, also a Cree Indian Hymn Book.

The business period closed the meeting with a decision to hold the Thankoffering meeting in October at the parsonage. Mrs. Gray and Mrs. Lloyd served dainty refreshments.

MT. PLEASANT W.M.S.

Rawdon—The September meeting of Mount Pleasant (Rawdon) Woman's Missionary Society was held in the church with an attendance of seven members and two visitors.

Mrs. Bert Jeffs opened the meeting with a poem "If I Had Just One Day". Mrs. John Holmes played quiet music, and Mrs. Will Potts conducted the devotional based on "Prayer and Thankfulness". She pointed out the need of asking God for daily guidance.

It was decided to forward $5 to the Coe Hill Tornado Fund. The money will be taken from the proceeds of the dinner which was held at the Dunkley sale.

All the ladies were asked to piece quilt blocks, crazy pattern, and of the same size as formerly and give them to Mrs. Frank Jeffs, Supply Secretary.

Plans were made for a special thankoffering for Auxiliary Mission Band and Baby Band on Thanksgiving Sunday.

Mrs. Cyrus Summers dedicated the offering.

The Temperance Secretary read a poem "Alcohol is a Burglar", and the secretary for Christian Stewardship said, "We cannot give too much or too often. Have we each given our full share to help spread the Gospel of Christ?"

Mrs. Burton Sharp sang "Does Jesus Care" very acceptably. Mrs. Percy MacMullen read a poem based on the theme "Let's Serve mankind, for all mankind are brothers."

Mrs. Roy Thrasher synopsized the first chapter of the new Study Book on the theme "The World's Imperishable Treasure, the Bible". She said "the Bible is the guide for our lives and it is up to each one to seek its wisdom". In closing she conducted a "Do You Know?" with all members assisting. Truly we have much for which to be thankful and this book "Great Is the Company", is a challenge to all to read and study the Bible more this coming year. The Worship centre was a large open Bible with lighted tapers. Rev. N. Cole dismissed the meeting.

The Movie Column

By ARMAND ARCHERD

Hollywood, Sept. 20. (AP)—Everyone working in the motion picture industry has a title. Some are accurate, others are — just titles. After you've patrolled the sets for a couple of weeks, these titles take on new meanings. I assure you the following impressions do not originate in Webster's:

Leading man: Usually a nice guy who will be the first to admit, "Heck, I can't act," yet he always gripes about the script.

Leading lady: Very important person, discovered only by first finding the largest dressing room on the set.

Director: Ex-leading man, now getting revenge.

Assistant Director: Very noisy person, whose main duty seems to be shouting, "Quiet!"

Second Assistant Director: Noisier.

Camerman: He tells the director when to shoot.

Makeup Man: Always rushes about, wiping beads of perspiration from the brow of the leading man, leading lady or anyone else who gets in the way.

Production: Has routine job of announcing that the picture is costing too much money.

Chief Electrician: Also has dull dialogue. Before each shot be yells, "Light 'em." When the shot is made he orders, "Save 'em."

Property Man: Is jovially called "prop man". He has interesting jobs, such as oiling noisy armor in period pictures.

Writer: Rarely seen, yet he is blamed for everything.

Character Actor: Most experienced person on the set, but no one listens to him because he doesn't have "a name".

Extras: The only ones on the set who are completely bored by the proceedings.

When this happy group gets together they make pictures. Some are good, others are—just titles.

By JOHN LeBLANC
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Sept. 20 — (CP)—Canada's laws are formulated in an ancient, cramped and dingy little room that would cause any self-respecting group of business directors to turn up their noses at the idea of holding a board meeting in it.

Around a circular table — too small to accommodate the full cabinet and with its aged red baize fraying badly — the cabinet sits in this chamber in Parliament Hill's hoary East Block and directs the destinies of the Dominion.

An atmosphere of old-fashioned quaintness pervades the council chamber, from the elaborate Rococo chandelier that was fashioned originally for gaslight to the carved throne-like chair with its sagging cushion from which Prime Minister Mackenzie King presides at cabinet sessions.

Some of the furnishnigs have done yeoman service since Confederation times. All of them, generally speaking, would provide an interior decorator with a field day.

Dominating the room is the round table, which leaves just about enough room between it and the walls for the ministers to move around. At that, it has only 16 chairs as against a cabinet of 20. A setee at one end of the room can accommodate any overflow.

Seating Just Happens

Officials say there is no particular significance in this grouping, that it just happened. Mr. St. Laurent took over the justice portfolio on the death of Hon. Ernest Lapointe, long Mr. King's right-hand man, while Mr. Ilsley—then Finance Minister — moved into Col. J. L. Ralston's seat when that wartime defence minister left the cabinet.

A tradition about the big chair is that the Prime Minister of the day has exclusive rights to it. Occasionally, another minister presides at cabinet council in Mr. King's absence. But he never sits in the prime ministerial chair.

The table is uncluttered, almost barren. Before each chair is a well-worn leather portfolio and a holder for pens and pencils. Mr. King has, in addition, a couple of baskets for papers, a copy of Whittaker's Almanac and a pair of scissors.

Purpose is Vague

The purpose of the scissors is vague, as Mr. King doesn't use them. But someone started placing them there years ago, and now they've developed into another tradition.

Still another custom is that there's no smoking during formal sessions. Consequently, ministers feeling the urge for a quick drag must slip out into an ante-chamber. However, this rule is waived at cabinet committee meetings.

The ante-chamber serves as a consulting room for ministers and their top officials when cabinet is in session, for these don't enter the inner room. The two non-cabinet members who do get in are A. D. P. Heeney, clerk of the Privy Council and secretary to the cabinet, and John Baldwin, his assistant.

Mr. Heeney occupies a chair just to the rear of the Prime Minister and within convenient distance of his left ear. Mr. Baldwin records the proceedings at an old-fashioned desk.

These two officials probably tote around more top-drawer secrets than anyone in Canada aside from the prime minister. A good deal of their energies, in fact, are directed at trying to forget them.

PROPERTY

hundreds were reported homeless. These homeless found what shelter they could in schoolhouses and public buildings during the pitch darkness of the night which saw wind-driven rains beating through the skeletons of windows and pounding the roofs with steady, maddening monotony.

New Orleans itself was groggy from the hurricane's all-enveloping punches.

Streets were piled with debris —wrecked automobiles, torn signs, uprooted trees and fallen power lines. Communications were out all over town and telephone linemen and public utility crews labored mightily to restore

At Biloxi, Mayor G. B. Cousins called on the army to patrol the beaches and shoot, if necessary, to halt any looting. Like neighboring Pascagoula, Biloxi was something of a shambles.

Gulfport with its hundreds of injured also surveyed, before the sun went down, crushed buildings, a highway under three feet of water and the waterfront littered with small craft.

Even worse than the property damage thought, was the sight of a body washing ashore in the 12-foot tide, arms and legs akimbo and agitating in the combers.

The heavily running seas and high winds wiped tiny fishing villages up and down the coast fro mthe face on the map. There was no word yet fro mthe Bayou country where some lost their lives without setting foot on dry land more than once a month.

F.H. LA GUARDIA,

Known as Little Man

Soon he became known as "The little man who is everywhere," and more than once proudly told friends that he was mayor of New York for 24 hours every day. He attended fires wearing a fireman's hat declared war on rackets, banned burlesques and the sale of salacious magazines.

On Jan. 1, 1946, "The Little Flower" turned over the administration of the city to William O'Dwyer. La Guardia had declined to run for re-election in 1945 but had said the campaign that fall that he could win the election if he ran on a "laundry ticket."

An indefatigable worker, he never spared himself. He ate sparingly, bemoaning the fact that "the doctor won't let me eat what I want to" and he limited himself in the use of his cigars and his pipe.

Awarded Decoration

La Guardia became director-general of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration toward the end of his mayoral tenure. For his work with U.N.R.R.A. he was awarded the United States' highest civil decoration, the Medal of Merit, and President Truman said then that he had earned the "gratitude of millions in the world who were threatened with starvation."

La Guardia was a product of Manhattan's Lower East Side. His colorful career included experiences as a frontier boy in Arizona, a consular attache, flier in the First World War, lawyer, president of the New York Board of Aldermen and Congressman.

As a member of Congress, La Guardia brewed "Beer" in his office as a protest against prohibition. And to emphasize soaring food prices that followed the First World War he took a 25-cent lamb chop and a $3 roast to the floor of the House and waved them before fellow Congressmen.

Friendly to labor, La Guardia's tenure in Congress was highlighted by his co-authorship with the late Senator George Norris of the Norris-La Guardia Act prohibiting the indiscriminate use of court injunctions in labor disputes.

Toronto, Sept. 20 — (CP) — Truckers handling commercial freight in Ontario have agreed to raise their charges at least 20 per cent effective Sept. 22, J.O. Goodman, general manager of the Automotive Transport Association of Ontario, announced last night.

The amount of the increase is in the hands of the individual truckers, he added.

"There's no combine in the trucking industry and conditions may vary in different parts of the province. The 20-per-cent increase is regarded as the minimum required to meet increased costs of labor, gasoline, equipment and insurance that have developed during the last three months."

Almost simultaneously H. A. Mann, general secretary of the Canadian Industrial Traffic League, warned in a statement issued here that last week-end's decontrol of rates for highway transportation services "may very well have opened the door for the return of the discriminatory horse-trading which has plagued both motor transport operators and shippers for so long."

Mr. Mann, whose league is the nation-wide organization of industrial shippers and traffic managers, said the provincial government had been asked repeatedly to establish a regulatory board for the trucking industry but that so far no action had been taken. He added:

"It is our hope that the Ontario government will seize the opportunity afforded by the recent decontrol of highway transportation to give earnest consideration to the initiation of a regulatory code administered by a competent body to end the highway rates chaos in this province."

BUT NOT NOW

When the Second World War began in 1939 Britain was the world's leading exporter of livestock.

Fine Industrial Prospects Before The Commission

An important meeting of the industrial commission was held on Friday evening at the Queen's Hotel due to the Chamber of Commerce being used for another gathering. Chairman of the commission, Robert A. Pringle, gave a number of reports on firms that had been contacted during the summer recess and prospects are excellent that more industries would be coming this way in the near future. Many English firms have written the commission respecting sites and some firms have sent their personal representatives to this city during their tour of Canada and went home favorably impressed.

The Bakelite Corporation, who are locating in Thurlow Township will soon be in the production stage of constructing their new home but the sod-turning will not be undertaken for a short time. A committee was appointed to meet Mr. Arthur Young, manager of the Stewart - Warner - Alemite Company and high officials of the Parent Company in the United States respecting the railway siding that is to be placed through the industrial site to the east of the city. This conference will take place in the city over the weekend.

Mr. Pringle reported that more than $6,000,000 worth of construction has been achieved since the last meeting of the Commission and this represents the Northern Electric Company, The American Optical and the Bakelite Corporation. "In October of 1945, the invested capital in Belleville was $15,851,650 and at the end of September this year the amount will be $23,854,982 not including the Bakelite plant," said Mr. Pringle. "The factory output this year will be approximately $18,000,000 which will be an increase of $5,000,000 over 1944. The wages and salaries have nearly doubled and now stand at $4,181,311."

It was reported that representatives of the Sharp and Dohme of Philadelphia have been in the city and were favorably impressed with the situation and would be back early in the spring as construction in Canada was not contemplated this year. It was agreed that the Commission would meet the Junior Chamber of Commerce and will also direct a letter be sent to the senior body respecting certain matters. A letter was read from the Manufacturers' section of the Chamber of Commerce criticizing the Commission for bringing industry to the city without having the proper housing facilities and the members were agreed that the Commission would continue to secure industries despite the fact that housing is critical but not any more so than in many other municipalities in this country.

It was also stated that the Commission in 1942 interviewed Wartime Housing with respect to establishing in this city and it was also pointed out that at no time was the Commission entrusted with the task of providing housing in the city. Members present at the meeting were R. A. Pringle, W. L. McDougalss, Mayor Follwell, Harry Rollins and Claude Tice.

Motor Vehicle Stolen From Parking Space

George Robson, 318 Bleecker Avenue, reported his auto stolen some time between 9.30 and midnight, Friday. Robson told police he had the vehicle parked near Docter's Hotel on Station Street, when he came to get his car it had disappeared. Police in the neighborhood district were immediately notified by the local police department.

Young boys in the neighborhood of Grier Street are practising their stone throwing abilities on the windows of a vacant house in that vicinity, police are informed. Thirty-two windows in the house were broken according to police who investigated. The names of several young boys in the area were obtained, the lads being asked to report to the police station.

Three minor motor accidents were reported on Friday, none of them amounting to more than scraped or bumped fenders. Damages were either settled amicably between the parties concerned, or the matter turned over to insurance adjusters.

Court Hears Tale Of 'Cold Blooded Murder' by Japs

Hong Kong, Sept. 20 (Reuters) —The "cold blooded murder" of 65 or 70 men — survivors of the British motorship Behar — said to have been bludgeoned unconscious and stabbed to death aboard the Japanese heavy cruiser Tone in March 1944, was alleged today at a war crimes court when two senior Japanese naval officers were charged with responsibility for the massacre."

Accused were Rear Admiral Naomasa Sakonju, commander of the 16th squadron of the Japanese southwest area fleet, and Captain Haruo Mayazumi, commander of the Tone.

The prosecution alleged that the Behar was intercepted by the Tone March 9, 1944, and sunk by gunfire, 111 passengers and crew being picked up.

On March 16, 1944, it was said Sakonju ordered the Tones Captain to "dispose of all except 15 of these survivors."

Mayazumi defied the order however, the prosecutor said, and took the survivors to Batavia, Java, where he was allowed to land the crew, 11 passengers and 20 Indians.

Sakonju again ordered Mayazumi to dispose of the remainder and the Tone put out to sea where allegedly the other survivors were killed.

AID MANKIND

There are approximately 2,000 kinds of plants which yield fibres useful to man.

On many of the farms where Japanese - Canadians are now employed, they are treated almost as members of the family and they respond by giving quiet and efficient service. Since their arrival from the west coast, the Japanese have settled readily into the rural life of Ontario and now many would not go back to British Columbia if they had every opportunity. At left, perched on top of tractor, little Nasaru Murai, 5, accepts the offer of Linda Fletcher, 5, to take a bite of her pear, while sister Mary Murai, 4, looks on. The Murai family works on the Fletcher farm. At right, Ami Nabeta is seen with a basket of tomatoes she helped gather.

After school hours the whole Nabeta family often pitches in to help with the work on the Oughtred farm. Seen here, grinning and happy, are Barney Nabeta, Mrs. Nabeta, Saeko, Jose, Ami, Jimmy and Elzi.

Miss Elsie Gibson, who lives with her sister, Mrs. Chappel, demonstrates old boot-jacks. At right is lamp made of an old wool winder.

ATTACKS SOVIET

Addressing the delegates to the U.N. General Assembly at Flushing Meadows, N.Y., Secretary of State George C. Marshall is shown as he sharply attacks Soviet Russia and calls for a permanent 55-nation committee to assure the peace.

POPE BLESSES CROWD IN ST. PETER'S SQUARE

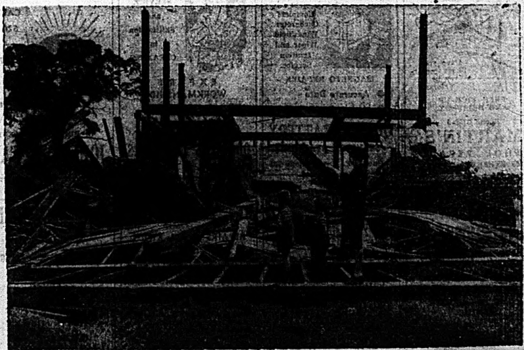
FAMILY RE-UNITED

Toronto, Sept, 20 —(CP)— The home of Mrs. John Bray, who came here from Liverpool, England, 29 years ago, was the scene of a real family re-union recently. Guests of Mrs. Bray were her brother, who went to California from Liverpool 38 years ago and her sister from England.

TO RAISE SILK WORMS AT WINONA

Hamilton, Sept. 20 —(CP)— Silkworms soon may be raised at nearby Winona. Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Sparling have imported 1,000 hybrid mulberry trees from Texas as feed for silkworms and plan to put them to use as soon as sufficient foliage shows.



—Lloyd Bloom

The 125-year-old Rock Chapel Church, oldest in the Hamilton district, is being demolished. Mrs. J. G. Chappel, whose grandfather was active in the original congregation, points out altar to two newcomers to the district, Tommy Novak (right) and his young brother, Jackie. Lumber from church is being used by Jared Taylor to build a chicken house.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

My partner hands me a laugh when counting tricks and a half. As if when making a jump, the tricks come out of a jump.

Many players base their needs for a jump on high card strength. Their combinations of big cards are called honor tricks. Their jumps tell how many honor tricks their hand contains.

High card strength is desirable, of course. And in some cases it is essential. But strength in honor cards alone is not enough. What players need to make a game are tricks enough.

What is the basic meaning of a jump? It is that the jumper has discovered enough tricks in their pair to make a game. So, it is not merely to show a certain amount of high card strength.

There are several kinds of jumps; one jumps, double jumps, and higher jumps. Each has its own special meaning. And the purpose or aim of each is decided by the size of the jump.

An usually high jump cuts out several rounds of bidding. So, it advises that some kind of information from partner is not needed. Actually it says the trump suit needs little or no help.

A one-jump leaves room for other rounds of bidding. So, it is asking for more information. It admits having tricks and strength enough. So, it says trump information may be needed.

A double jump is midway between the two. It is in fact a one-jump and unusually high jump combination. Besides showing enough tricks for game it admits strength and length in suit.

South opens with a club when north has this hand:

♠ A J 10 8 6 4 3
♥ None
♦ 9 6 4 2
♣ 8 6

The response by north is four spades; an unusually high jump. It says: "Partner, we have tricks enough for a game if this suit is trump. And my suit is long enough to answer our combined needs."

Some players almost jump out of their skins.

In Manhattan

By PAT USSHER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Sept. 20 (CP) — The trend towards the musical play as distinct from the musical comedy, a notable development of the last few years on Broadway, should receive new impetus with the arrival next month of "Allegro."

This new, much heralded Richard Rodgers-Oscar Hammerstein production which is due at the Majestic theatre Oct. 10 belongs in that category. It has been well-received on its out-town tour although Hammerstein is reported to be trying to whittle down the long libretto.

The obvious example of the successful musical play is "Oklahoma!" of more recent vintage, are "Carousel," "Brigadoon" and last season's musical version of Elmer Rices "Street Scene." A notable latecomer is the Gian-Carlo Menotti twin bill, "The Medium," and "The Telephone."

Musical Miscellany

Kurt Weill, who provided the score for "Street Scene," and Alan Jay Lerner, who wrote the book and lyrics for "Brigadoon," are making good headway in their collaboration on a new musical slated for January production on Broadway. Gertrude Lawrence is expected to star in the still-unnamed work and Robert Lewis, director of the popular "Brigadoon," is ready to direct it.

For the Record

"Burlesque," the Bert Lahr vehicle, has obtained a reprieve and now won't have to leave the Belasco theatre Sept. 27. The revival sponsored by Jean Dalrymple can remain there at least until Oct. 18 under a new agreement with the owners of the theatre ..... "State the Union," the Howard Lindsay-Russel Crouse Pulitzer prize comedy, ran 765 performances on Broadway before closing a week ago ..."The Magic Touch," the seasonal eye-opener which proved more of an eye-closer, was withdrawn last Sunday ... arrival date of the English musical, "Under the Counter," with Cicely Courtneidge, has been set back one night, to Oct. 3.

Sabinson Plans

Lee Sabinson, co-sponsor with William R. Katzell of the successful "Finian's Rainbow," announces he will produce "To Thine Own Self," a drama by a radio producer turned playwright Lloyd K. Rosamond. Earlier Katzell announced formation of Theatre Associates a producing company with resources of $300,000.

AT THE BELLE — Gregory Peck and Claude Jarman, Jr., as father and son in "The Yearling," M.G.M.'s stirring Technicolor filmization of Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings' prize-winning novel at the Belle Theatre. Also featured in the production is Jane Wyman in the role of Ma Baxter.

Solunar Tables

Fall Fishing for Black Bass

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT
(Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Solunar Tables)

There are two times of the year when bass fishing reaches its peak — at least it seems so to me. Of course, I like bass fishing any time, regardless of the stage of the season. But the week or so that follows "opening day," and the crisp days of early fall are the peak times on my list.

When the bass season opens, the adult fish are just off the spawning beds. They spend a great deal of their time in shallow water and the shoreline fishing during the first few weeks is generally the best of the season.

Then the hot weather sets in and, if we don't have an ample supply of rain to keep the water temperatures and levels where they belong, the shoreline fish are apt to find it necessary to seek more comfortable quarters in the deeper water. In addition, the water weeds select this time to reseed themselves and the lakes go in for a week or so of "working" or "purging."

* * *

This excess of drifting vegetable matter sets up the carbonic acid content in the water from a normal of two or three parts to the million to seventeen or eighteen parts to the million. Naturally, the quality of the fishing suffers.

When the cools days and chilly nights of early fall arrive, all of these hot-weather by-products are gone and once more the rivers and lakes are clear and cool. This is the time that the bass begin to feed in real earnest. Shoreline fishing once again steps up almost to its early-season excellence, and the bass strike actively and hard.

In the smallmouth rivers there is always a daily hatch of late-season Mayflies. This brings the big fish out of the deep water and into the shallows and the fishing at the heads of the pools, just below the riffles, and at the tails of the long flats, across the fan "fans," is something you won't forget in a hurry.

For the fall fishing, the Solunar Tables are tremendously helpful. You must remember that comparatively few of the bass maintain permanent residence in shallow water during the weeks of early fall. As soon as the nights grow chilly, the bass move into deeper water and about the only times that they are in the shallows in any quantity is during the active feeding periods.

When the Solunar Periods "come in," the fish move out of the deep water in search of food. The very fact that they are there, cruising about, means that they are hungry and they will take almost anything that moves and looks remotely edible. Thus, if you know when your Solunar periods are in progress, you know where to find the bass. At these times surface lures seem to bring the best results.

Between Solunar Periods you will probably find better fishing in the deep water offshore. Then the deep-running lures are the best. For some reason, most folks don't fish underwater lures to the best advantage. A sinking lure should be fished right on the bottom — down where the fish are. Don't have it move along a foot or so under the surface. Let it sink right down until it bumps along on the bottom. You are apt to lose some lures fishing in this way but you will catch a lot more bass.

Some twenty years ago, I used to live in central Florida. When the duck season came in, there was one trip that used to be a set event on my outdoor program. On the Kissimmee-Melbourne road was, and I suppose still is, a little settlement called Deer Park. I used to drive over there, hire a boat and a paddler, and then we would work our way slowly through the channels and ponds of the headwaters of the St. John's River.

My equipment consisted of a plug-casting outfit and a shotgun. We would fish out one pond and then quietly, make our way through the channel to the next patch of open water. Rarely did we fail to jump bunch after bunch of feeding ducks, and we would return that evening with a mixed bag of ducks and bass. Always did I schedule these trips so that we would be in good territory when the major Solunar Period for that day arrived. I knew that then both the ducks and the bass would be feeding.

As I say, fall bass fishing is one of the high spots of the year. Chilly nights, cool, crisp days bright sunshine, and hungry bass —I tell you it's a combination that is hard to beat. By planning your fall fishing trips with the aid of your Solunar Tables, you are bound to find the maximum in sport that each day has to offer.

Solunar Tables

The schedule of Solunar Periods, as printed below, has been taken from John Alden Knight's Solunar Tables. Plan your days so that you will be fishing in good territory or hunting in good cover during these times, if you wish to find the best sport that each day has to offer.

The Major Periods are shown in boldface type. These begin at the times shown and last for an hour and a half or two hours thereafter. The Minor Periods, shown in regular type, are of somewhat shorter duration. Following table takes September 21 to September 28. All times Daylight Saving Time.

Letter to The Sports Editor

Belleville, Sept. 19, 47.

Dear Sir,

Don Boyle youthful hurler of the Point Anne Leafs accomplished a feat in the season just closed which I believe is some kind of a record for Softball in these parts. The 19-year-old hurler pitched and won 17 straight games in City League competition, City League playoffs and O.A.S.A. playdowns in Intermediate A competition.

On his 18th try Point Anne were beaten by the Oshawa Legion for his first loss in 18 games. The loss eliminated Point Anne from further competition and was Boyle's first loss of the season and then Point Anne were only beaten 4-3. Truly quite a record for a pitcher still eligible for Junior Ball. —Softball Fan.

TORONTO TEAMS BECOME TALK OF TOURNAMENT

Ruth Elson Pitched Perfect Game and Russ Johnston Followed Suit

Cleveland, Sept. 20. (CP). — Toronto teams became the talk of the world's softball championship tournament last night when clubs from the Ontario City won their games against American rivals—both by no-hit pitching efforts.

In the women's division, Ruth Elson, of Toronto Peoples, faced only 27 batters—a perfect game—as Peoples defeated Fort Worth, Texas, 1-0.

The fans were still getting over that shock when the Toronto Peoples Men's team, with Russ Johnston twirling a second no-hitter, set back Washington, D.C., 2-1.

Toronto's Victory, fourth in five starts, was obtained in the first inning when singles by Doug Gilbert and Doug Adams, coupled with two Washington errors, produced two runs.

WINS SENIOR CROWN

Toronto, Sept. 20 (CP) —Jim Paterson of Toronto's Humber Valley Club posted a four-over-par 76 to win the Ontario Senior Golf championship at the Mississauga Golf and Country Club here yesterday.

Of 106 competitors who teed off in the Ontario Golf Association tourney, only 62 finished the 18 holes of competition as rain and cold autumn winds swept the course.

Gross honors in all age classifications went to members of the host club. J.J. Lewis with 79 was best in the B group between the ages of 60 and 69; A. Vigneau with 77 led the group, 50-59 years of age, and J. P. Cowles paced the field of five golfers over 70 years old with an 89.

TONY JANIRO THUMPS PELLONE IN TEN ROUNDS

Young Star Does Not Want Crack at Title Against Robinson

By SID FEDER

New York, Sept. 20 (AP) — It is unusual for a fighter to say no, thanks, to a chance at a world championship, even if his chance of winning it is puny, but that is exactly what baby-faced Tony Janiero is doing today, even though he has qualified for a shot at Ray Robinson's welterweight crown.

The youngster from Youngstown, Ohio, got through the qualifying round last night by thumping tough Tony Pellone from New York's east side for 15 rounds in Madison Square Garden. It was a merry ear-scrambling all the way, even though they should have made Pellone wear a glove on top of his head as well as the two on his hands. He was using his skull as a "third fist" right handily.

Robinson had agreed earlier that he'd put his 147-pound crown on the line this winter against last night's winner, but after it was over Tony declined with pleasure. Now, on the face of it this is a wise decision. Against a class clouter like the Sugar Man, he'd be in danger of bodily harm, at least.

But that wasn't the reason he declined. He said he just couldn't make the welterweight limit any more. He scaled 150 last night—Pellone was 146 1-4 — and explained that he's closer to a normal 155 pounder now. So from here on in he's ordering nothing but he describes as "light middleweights."

Last night's festivities serve the dual purpose of (1) getting major league bouts back in to the Garden after the summer sessions — a crowd of 13,094 paid $55,389 to welcome the return— and (2) ending, at least temporarily, the necessity of watching the style-less, awkward, antics that Pellone employs in place of boxing skill.

Referee George Walsh warned Pellone seven times altogether about butting with his head. At long last, he penalized him by giving Janiero the seventh round because of it.

Cardinals Postpone Brooklyn's Pennant-Clinching Celebration By Staying in Race for Time

Already the Oddsmakers Have Labelled the Yanks 17-10 Favorites in Series

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Brooklyn still awaits, with poised cowbells and ready sirens, the signal to celebrate the mathematical pennant clinching, now two days overdue.

While the Dodgers lingered in the vicinity of Hugh Casey's restaurant, with an ear cocked toward radio reports of the Cardinal game, the St. Louis gang fanned their flickering hopes with a 5-2 win over Chicago.

There was nothing the Brooks could do about it yesterday for the schedule makers had given them an off day after an impromptu "welcome home" celebration at Penn Station on their arrival from the west.

They had blown a chance to nail down the National League flag at Pittsburgh Thursday, but they were sure they would wrap it up at Ebbets Field where Boston Braves will be their guests both today and tomorrow.

Need One Victory

One more Brooklyn win or one more St. Louis loss would be the clincher, sending the Dodgers into the World Series with New York Yankees a week from Tuesday. Already the oddsmakers have labelled the Yanks a 17-10 favorite.

Stout pitching by Al Brazle, untoll he faltered in the ninth, and solid slugging by Terry Moore, Enos Slaughter, Red Schoendienst and Marty Marion highlighted the Cards' victorious 13-hit attack on Johnny Schmitz and Emil Kush.

Fans who had turned out for Terry Moore night and honored the veteran outfielder with a new car and other gifts before the game saw him single home the first two Cardinal runs in the first inning. They never surrendered the lead. Enos Slaughter's 10th homer in the seventh inning and doubles by Marion and Schoendienst helped St. Louis pile up its safe margin.

All other National League teams were idle and the only American League game was washed out in the third inning with Boston holding a 3-0 edge over Washington at that stage.

BALMY BEACHERS DEFEAT INDIANS BY 11-4 COUNT

Win Lifts Toronto East-End Club Into First Place of O.R.F.U.

(By The Canadian Press)

With Toronto Indians fallen from the unbeaten path, three of Eastern Canada's four remaining undefeated teams put their records on the line today in senior football's third all-out weekend of the 1947 season.

The Indians fell by the wayside last night when Balmy Beach, their inter-city rivals, upset the Tribe 11-4 at Toronto's Maple Leaf Stadium. Besides running the Beach victory streak to three, the win lifted them over the Indians into first place.

With these two leaders enjoying a well-earned rest today, the Ontario Rugby Football Union's other unbeaten team, Hamilton Wildcats, gets a golden opportunity to better its third place position in the standings.

The Wildcats, winners of their first two starts, meets Ottawa Trojans, who hold fourth place with a win and a tie, at Hamilton. The other O.R.F.U. game matches the two pointless teams, Sarnia Imperials and Windsor Rockets, at Windsor.

The Big Four's two undefeated teams — Ottawa Rough Riders and Montreal Alouettes — stage the season's first "iron-man" doubleheader with the league leadership at stake.

Play Saturday, Sunday

The Rough Riders, winners over both Toronto Argonauts and Hamilton Wildcats in two starts, play a home stand against Alouettes Saturday and both teams travel to Montreal for a return engagement Sunday. The Alouettes, who toppled Argos in their only start, could take over first place by two victories.

The Filchock-vs-Krol forward-passing duel will be renewed at Toronto Saturday in the other Interprovincial Rugby Union game. Joe bested Frankie as Agos won, 35-24, at Hamilton Wednesday for their fist victory of the season but it may be a different story this time.

Krol's ace receiver, Royal Copeland, injured his leg in that game and may not start.

The Beach roared from behind with two touchdowns and a convert in the last half to upset the Indians last night.

A field goal by Bill Douglas gave the Tribe a 3-0 lead in the first quarter but spunky Billy Myers raced over for a Beach major after Gary Smith's fumble set them up on the 20. Big Johnny Lake converted and Bruce Coulter added another major in the last quarter. The only other Indian point came on a single kicked by Bill Douglas.

New Hockey Setup Will be Presented In Near Future

(By The Canadian Press)

Belief that a new hockey setup will be presented in the not too distant future was expressed by Norbert Stein, general manager of Cleveland Barons of the American League in Winnipeg last night. The genial executive believes that leagues will be formed, not according to their locality, but according to the seating capacity of their rinks.

Predicting that "air travel will eliminate the distance problem and thereby making possible the new setup," Stein explained the set-up where "cities having a seating capacity of 15,000 should be grouped into one league, while those seating between 8,000 and 10,000 fans should be grouped into another league, and so on."

Nipawin's second annual "automobile bonspiel"—the first last year was held amid moaning by some Manitoba curlers that the game was becoming professionalized—will be staged Jan. 7-17 and offer prizes valued at $15,000.

South African golf ace, Bobby Locke opened his exhibition matches at Edmonton's Mayfair course yesterday with a neat 66, four-under-par in an 18-hole match.

Capping one of the greatest comebacks in the history of British boxing, Peter Kane, former flyweight champion of the world, won the European bantamweight championship from Theo Medina of France last night. Kane piled up a clear margin on points to take the decision over 15 rounds.

Participation of Toronto St. Michael's or Toronto Marlboros in a pre-season Junior Hockey series sponsored by the Montreal Sportsmen's Association was still a question mark today following announcement of the series from Montreal last night. "We've been invited and we may accept, but we don't know yet," said Father Mallon, Athletic director at St. Michael's College, adding that a decision will be made this weekend.

The United States College Football season, the first real post-war season, gets under way today with a marked absence of the "pushovers" traditionally associated with September football. Coaches agree that, for the first time since the war shattered their 1942 squads, there is no complaint about the quality of material available at most colleges.

Young Tony Janiro, who has the baby-face of a choir boy and the fighting instinct of a killer, punched out a smashing victory over tough Tony Pellone at Madison Square Gardens last night. He qualifies for a shot at welterweight champion Ray Robinson.

World's record for trotting mares on a half-mile track toppled yesterday at the Delaware Grand Circuit Harness racing meet when Onole Hanover won the second heat of the Dr. Spencer free-for-all trot in 2:01 3-5.

THIEVES STEAL AND ABANDON BUS

Huntsville, Sept. 20 —(CP)— Wayward bus stories were given a new slant here Wednesday night when thieves took a bus off a garage parking lot and drove 40 miles before abandoning it in a ditch in Algonquin Park. The bus was undamaged, except that the fare register had been broken open.

OTTAWA WINST FIRST ONE

Ottawa, Sept. 20 (CP) —Ottawa Nationals, league-leaders in the Border Baseball League regular season, whipped Ogdensburg Maples 5-0 last night in the the first game of a best-of-seven series at Lansdowne Park.

Charlie Schupp starred the show with a one-hitter, while Ottawa made five runs in the first three innings to cinch the series opener. The Nationals capitalized on four visitors' errors.

N.Y. RANGERS OPEN TRAINING AT LAKE PLACID

Nearly 70 Players Will be Divided in Two Squads and Two Workouts a Day

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Sept. 20 — (CP) — Manager Frank Boucher of New York Rangers, who remembers when there were only about 70 professional hockey players in the world, will be in charge of almost that many Monday at the formal opening of the National League's newest venture in training camps.

Sixty-seven candidates for the 1947-48 Rangers, split into two divisions for morning and afternoon workouts, take to the ice for the first time at the new training base in Lake Placid, Adirondack Mountain resort and winter sport centre about 250 miles from New York.

In contrast to Boucher's early hockey days around Ottawa's Creighton high school, "when we had to sweep the ice clean ourselves after practically every play," the modern Rangers will break new ground in training-camp luxury. Instead of living at a hotel; they'll have private quarters in a lodge staffed by their own cooks, housekeepers and dietitians.

The players will travel by bus from their lodge headquarters, called "The Eagle's Nest," to Lake Placid's Olympia arena where daily practices will be held. A series of exhibition games is being arranged for early in October and the Rangers, who trained last year in Winnipeg, will break camp at Lake Placid Oct. 8.

Boucher, who broke into professional hockey in 1921 as Frank Nighbor's understudy with Ottawa and finally ended his playing career in 1942, will be assisted in supervising the workouts of Lynn Patrick, former Ranger star. Patrick coaches New Haven Ramblers, Ranger farm team which also will train at Lake Placid.

The New York club hasn't made the playoffs since enlistments broke up the team early in the war years, but supporters claim the acquisition of Buddy O'Connor and Frankie Eddolls from Montreal Canadiens will help build Rangers into a playoff contender.

AMERICAN MAY WIN TOURNEY

Toronto, Sept. 20 — (CP)—Will the Canadian Ladies' Open golf championship go to an American this year for the first time since 1931?

That question will be answered today in a tough 36-hole battle at the Toronto Club between Petite, 20-year-old Grace Lenczyk of Newington, Conn., and defending champion Mrs. F. J. Mulqueen of the host club.

Penetrating cold and a heavy rain hadn't the slightest effect on Miss Lenczyk's game yesterday as the brilliant young shotmaker vanquished Ada Mackenzie, five-time titleholder, 5 and 4. The grey-haired veteran, now in her fifties, couldn't keep pace with the American Miss who outdrove her by at least 30 yards off every tee.

In the other semi-final matronly Mrs. Mulqueen eliminated Mrs. M. H. Currer of Toronto Summit, 2 and 1, in one of the most closely contested matches of the tourney.

Of Miss Lenczyk, who only a few weeks ago won the all-American tournament at Chicago's Tam O' Shanter, Miss Mackenzie said after the match: "Her drives were terrific and her putting superb."

The Connecticut kid will leave right after today's match for the United States amateur championship which starts at Detroit Monday, and no less a personage than Babe Zaharias has gone out on a limb to predict Miss Lenczyk will win that. As for the Canadian Open, dopesters are recalling that Maureen Orcutt took the magnificent Duchess of Connaught gold cup south of the border in 1930 and '31.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, Sept. 20 (AP) — While football coaches are stifling their sobs in the traditional crying towels, their college baseball-teaching colleagues are moaning in high C as they discover how many of their stars signed pro contracts during the summer... For instance, Frank Prentup was counting on Don Swartz to pitch Colorado U. to a conference championship next spring. But Don pitched some brilliant nonprofessional tournament ball during the summer and was signed by the Cubs for a reported $8,000 bonus. . . . Texas U., whose southwest conference championship team was expected to return intact, hears that the entire infield has been signed up.

Other Fish to Fry

For his last weekend of relaxation before the start of football battling, Coach Bob Higgins of Penn State hid out in New York State and went fishing...Bob's prize catch was a 22-inch bass, said to be one of the largest ever landed in that section.

Bob Kiphuth, Yale athletic director and swimming coach, had a $700 toothache recently. Bob went to Europe to inspect the Olympic swimming site and the day he landed he suffered an ulcerated tooth. Rather than try hit-and-run treatments, he caught the first plane back to New Haven without even one look at a swimming pool.

Relatively Speaking

Report from Los Angeles says that Spec Sanders, football Yankee quarterback, made a notable contribution to that crowd of 82,675 which saw the Yankees beat the Los Angeles Dons when no fewer than 91 of his relatives turned up for the game... The gang all came from Texas and Oklahoma and stayed over for this week's tussle with the 49'ers.

Stanley Mathews Biggest Puzzle In British Soccer

By MICHAEL O'MARA
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Blackpool, Lancashire, England, Sept. 20 — (CP) — Lanky fair-haired Stanley Matthews is the biggest puzzle in British soccer today — and his presence in the Blackpool first-division squad this year is credited when the club counts its unprecedented advance sale of season tickets.

Fans in their millions throughout England idolize Matthews, "wizard of the touchline," who came here at the end of last season from Stoke City with an £11,000 ($44,000) price-tag — but they don't pretend to understand him.

One idea seems to impel all his actions in and out of the spotlight — he's determined to make football pay.

An ordinary footballer draws £12 ($48) a game with an extra £2 if his team wins. Matthews, eyeing the 60,000 crowds that come to see him perform, supplements that income with constant "personal appearances" at local movie houses, newspaper articles, autograph-signing sprees at local stores and with managing a sporting goods store and a Blackpool hotel where "all the fans stay."

Matthews is the subject of a good many illegal tactics from angered opponents but his worst enemies agree there's no more restrained or gentlemanly player on the field no matter how often he's charged from behind.

At 33, with 17 hard seasons with Stoke behind him, Matthews figures on at least three more years of first-class football. After that the hotel business and a quiet family life with his Scottish wife, his daughter, now eight, and his son two, beckons.

CHAPTER 18.

Four frightened eyes almost prepared him for what was coming, but not quite. "I don't know about Miss Brady," Moke said, "but that box was stolen from Blackman's."

He wanted to shout. What he said was, "Glory be! . . . Moke, are you absolutely certain?"

They were both certain, but only after they had turned the box upside down and satisfied themselves about the marking.

According to Poke, Blackman's had imported twenty-four musical powder boxes for Valentine gifts the year before. Different designs, different tunes, eighteen - fifty each. They went like hot cakes until there was only one left. The one Mr. East was holding. And a very good customer put her name down for it. The very same box, you couldn't make a mistake about it, because there was only one with forget-me-nots and pink bows. And "Believe me if all those endearing." But it disappeared off the counter.

The customer that wanted it was a relation of the Blackman family. So everybody got talked to. That was how they remembered it. "But where would Miss Brady get it?" Poke wanted to know.

"That would be a dumb thing to do."

"Dumb?" Moke repeated. "You mean insane. To give away stolen goods is the act of an insane person. I think Miss Brady found it in a pawnshop."

"You both have something there," Mark agreed. "Now run through that suitcase for me and see if everything looks all right."

Moke and Poke dropped to their knees, and he watched their careful hands as they smoothed and folded and brought order to chaos.

"The one she wore to tea?"

"Yes, sir. And she didn't have it on that day—you know, that day. Somebody swiped it . . . This place is getting me! I'm gonna move!"

Dr. Kloppel said, "It's blood all right. Deep in that bronze carving. Want me to soak it out and type it?"

"No use," Mark answered. "We can't do anything with it. We can't get a sample for comparison, if you know what I mean. It's better where it is. Even if it belongs to Harris instead of Miller, it's better. It says more."

"Fingerprints?"

"None."

Dr. Kloppel wrapped the box in a clean handkerchief and placed it in the centre of his table. The old-fashioned chandelier shed a cold white light. The box looked like a little coffin, shrouded and lonely.

"Miss Brady's box, stolen from Blackman's. Miss Brady's box." Dr. Kloppel hated his own words. "You can't accuse that lady of theft. You can't even accuse her of murder. It isn't fitting."

"But her box did murder once, and tried it a second time. Unless Lillian Harris knocked herself out for a red herring."

"No," Dr. Kloppel said. "You didn't see those heads and I did." He reached out and touched the box gingerly. "It hurt, Mr. East. It was cruel and painful and slow, blow after blow." He withdrew his hand and rubbed it. "What do we do now?"

"We act like honest taxpayers and yell help, murder, police. Who was on the case before?"

"Foy, for about five minutes. He's a very busy man. He looked up at the window, shook his head and said, 'Pity'."

"I know Foy. Call him up tonight, after I leave. Tell him you're dissatisfied, the Harris development will cover that. Say you've talked to me. Then he'll call me, and I'll tell him how I got on to it and what I've done. I'll still work from my end, Foy will understand that. Give him the box and the suitcase."

Dr. Kloppel said, "I like Foy as a poker player, but you've got more than he has."

"Dr. K., I'm touched. But Foy has the pretty badge. He can put a dozen men in Hope House and nobody can stop him. He can pat his holster while he asks questions and blow his whistle and get an army." He stood up then. "I've got a couple of stops to make on my way home, so I'll be going."

His first stop was at Mrs. Marshall-Gill's. She was delighted to talk to him.

Yes, indeed, she said, she had gone upstairs quite early in the evening. So warm, so crowded, and a little cold water on the back of the neck was always refreshing. So she had asked Miss Brady if she might use Miss Small's room, Miss Small being engaged elsewhere, and Miss Brady had given grudging consent.

"Now, Mrs. Marshall-Gill," he said, "I think you returned to the party at about 1 o'clock, or very near to it. Did you walk down, or ride?"

Mrs. Marshall-Gill said, "Walk? Really, Mr. East!" She added, "That Jewel!"

"Yes?"

"Insurbordination. I'm tempted to report the girl at the next Board meeting. I rang and rang. I could have walked down in half the time I waited but the girl is paid to operate the elevator and I was determined that she should. And when she finally condescended—" Mrs. Marshall-Gill faltered.

"Then she did—condescend?"

"Finally. Finally. It was a very odd thing, very odd. I can't truthfully say she was impertinent, simply because she refused to speak to me, but she was positively venomous in manner. I was really disturbed, after all I've done for the House, deficits and so on. And Jewel—" Mrs. Marshall-Gill drew closer to the fire. "Mr. East, I feel uncomfortable even now when I think of it. Venomous, hateful, I can't descrige it except to say that she wasn't at all nice. . . . I think she was thinking things about me."

He drew closer to the fire himeslf. "Go on, Mrs. Marshall-Gill."

"A naughty girl," she said firmly. "I suspect she'd been drinking or smoking in her room, which is forbidden to employes. She went right up again, put me off at the first floor, and went right up again. No apology for keeping me waiting. That's what happens when you coddle these people. Dressed up like one of the boarders, lolling and slouching and probably making faces at me behind that mask. And a beauty spot, too. Impertnence."

He picked his words carefully after that. He didn't want her around his neck, screaming.

"Do you know anything about that beauty spot, Mrs. Marshall-Gill?"

Then, "You got in the car at the fifth floor. Do you remember where it went when she took it up again?"

"I remember very well. I watched the little wretch. She lives on second, but she went up to the eighth. That's under the roof. She was going to walk up to the roof and smoke and drink."

He gloated silently. "I suppose you talked to Jewel when she took you up to Miss Small's?"

"Why, yes. Why, how strange! She did talk that time, surly, of course, but she did talk. I daresay she'd quarreled with someone in the meantime. They always quarrel, people like that."

"Was she wearing the beauty spot then?"

"Was she—oh, no. I'd have noticed and commented. No, not then. That's probably one of the things she was doing when I was in Miss Small's. Sewing it on, making herself conspicuous. Upstart."

He reached for his hat.

Mark stood with his back to the fire and looked at the four faces turned to his. He had talked steadily for an hour.

"That's all for now," he said. "You'll have to wait until tomorrow for the rest."

"Are you waiting for tomorrow yourself?" Roberta asked pointedly.

He said there was nothing else he could do. With Foy in Hope House and Foy's boys patrolling the Hope House halls, nothing could happen.

Nick shuffled his feet. "I've been thinking," he said. "What happened to the costumes, Mark?"

"That's in my little book. That's one of the things for tomorrow. That, Plummer, Harris, and the girl named April." His voice was strained. "Tomorrow. I'm counting on tomorrow...There's that blue suit, too. I don't know why it should vanish. She wasn't wearing it when she died. I can't see another girl stealing it, but it's gone."

"The one she spilled tea on?" Beulah asked.

"Yes."

"The answer to that is positively childish. It's at the cleaner's. Don't worry about it. Bessy and I will get it for you tomorrow."

He gave her a look full of pity. "May I remind you once more that this is New York?" he said. "There are about a couple of thousand cleaners—"

"There is exactly one cleaner," she answered, "and he is somewhere between Blackman's and Hope House."

The Case Against Oleomargarine

By BRYAN L. WHITE
In The Ottawa Farm Journal

There is no simple explanation of the reasons why a section of the people of Canada do not want to see the ban against the manufacture and sale of oleomargarine lifted. Their reasons are complex, rooted deep in the internal economy of this country. It is a situation peculiar to Canada, has no counterpart in other lands and is of importance to every Canadian—to farmers and workmen, for the latter must be interested in the welfare of the people who buy the goods they manufacture.

Briefly the arguments against allowing oleomargarine in Canada can be stated as:

1. It would hold a constant threat of cheap competition over the major branch of the Canadian Dairy Industry, have a constant depressing effect on the whole industry. Some 500,000 farmers, who depend on it to some degree would never know what financial prospects the future held for them.

2. It would place virtual control of the dairy industry in the hands of a very few companies, controlled outside Canada, who in the final analysis control the world's edible oil supply.

3. It would not benefit, to any extent or for any length of time, any other large group of Canadians.

4. It would interject into Canadian politics a troublesome and ever-recurring problem, possibly, cause a definite urban vs. rural lineup. There would be no foreseeable end to this controversy.

5. It might well permanently endanger a huge market for Canadian manufactured goods. The Dairy Indhstry of Canada has a net turnover of $400,000,000 annually at present, is the market for a vast amount of manufactured goods used on the farm and in factories.

At the outset it should be pointed out there is no question involved of the suitability, or otherwise, of oleomargarine as a food. It is wholly a matter of internal economics, of protecting the means of livelihood of several hundred thousand dairy farmers, of tens of thousands of other workmen who depend on the dairy industry to use the products they manufacture, or the services they perform.

The whole situation is peculiar to Canada, mainly because in few other countries does so high a proportion of all milk produced go into butter on the domestic market. In Canada almost half of all milk does. Butter is a dominant factor in our dairy industry. Despite the huge consumption here the industry has consistently over the years satisfied domestic demand, infrequent shortages in any particular year being due to unusual circumstances.

Long-Range View

This whole matter should be considered from the long-range viewpoint, not in the light of any immediate or temporary shortage due to peculiar conditions and the dislocation of the industry as a result of wartime controls. Consumers should remember the days when they purchased butter dirt cheap, when milk for butter returned practically nothing to the farmer.

Oleomargarine being a cheaper product would be in direct competition with butter. Cheap competition is a threat to any product, a threat to the income of those who produce the natural products, who are in any way connected with its manufacture or distribution. Should oleomargarine be allowed in Canada, and should its use become as extensive as in the United States. Some two to three billion pounds of milk now used in butter would be thrown on the market. This excess milk would be a constant threat to other branches of the industry not directly concerned with butter, would make any stability almost impossible to achieve.

That threat, a constant pressure would come from outside Canada.

Why Involve More?

It is being argued that much of the oils which would be used in oleomargarine sold in Canada could be produced here. That is not a fact and it would be highly dangerous to encourage such production as a whole new group of farmers would be involved in the same threat as would hang over the dairy farmer—the threat of cheaper competition from outside Canada. It is true that soybean oil and some animal fats, can be used in oleomargarine, and we could encourage their production in Canada. But soybean oil is neither the best, nor the cheapest for making margarine. And our hogs, best source of animal fats, are no longer of the lard type. Relatively few Canadian hogs today produce any quantity of lard.

In the United States today the best sources of oils for oleomargarine are the cottonseed and peanut neither of which are produced in Canada. Growers of these crops there fear outside competition such as palm, coconuts and other oils from the Pacific. There lies the kernel of this whole argument. It is likely that these cheap oils will be available in quantity soon, and with huge modern tankers available, they can be imported very cheaply into the United States and Canada.

This overseas oil trade is controlled by a very few huge companies, vast organizations with ramifications all over the world. In times of distress cheap oils could be dumped in this country and in the United States, at anytime they could undersell domestic oils.

On Expert Basis

It is being said that dairying countries such as Denmark and New Zealand permit the use of oleomargarine by their people. So why not Canada? The situations in those countries are in no way comparable to that here for the simple reason that the domestic use of oleomargarine in those countries is a part of government policy to allow more of the higher priced butter to be exported. They are butter exporting countries, Canada is not. In the United States butter consumption never reached the high level it has in Canada, there was never the same high percentage of total milk used in butter manufacture, the dairy industry does not depend to the same extent on butter for price stability, and oleomargarine there served a group of people who had never used butter in quantity in any event.

Is Easiest Way

The total ban on use of oleomargarine by Canadians is by far the easiest and least troublesome way of handling a very difficult problem. To simply allow it would settle nothing, on the other hand would interject a political football into Canadian politics which might well be disrupting infuence for years. In the United States oleomargarine has been allowed for 75 years, is still a highly controversial question, the cause of yearly battles in every legislature in the land. The end there is not in sight.

Should oleomargarine be allowed a whole series of other legislative battles would start. There would, naturally, be the very troublesome one of whether the new product should be sold colored yellow, as is butter, or white or some other color. This is a point on which the whole dairy industry feels strongly, would naturally fight bitterly as they feel that the golden-yellow coloring of butter is somewhat of a trade mark. If the experience of the United States is any example of what would happen here legislative fights on such co-related subjects as excise taxes, coloring laws, import duties, dumping clauses, and a host of others would follow. There would be legislation of varied kinds in every provincial legislature as well and this might be expected to go on for years.

A Nice Balance

The Dairy Industry of Canada is, in itself, a very complex organization depending on very nice, and often very fine, balances to keep a proper distribution and price relationship between the various branches of the industry. To interject a major disturbance, such as oleomargarine into the butter branch would throw all other branches into confusion. If this was to affect only a few people it would not be a cause for any grave concern but there are some 500,000 dairy farmers in Canada, some 5,000 factories in which milk is processed for the making of dairy products. This all adds up to a major factor in Canada's internal economy.

If there was any possibility of controlling oleomargarine within Canada it might be handled, but that possibility is very slim. The real and actual control, the source of most of the raw product would be outside Canada.

In the long run it is a highly debatable point if oleomargarine would benefit anybody in Canada. True a cheaper spread would be provided for those who wanted it but those people would be largely workmen who depend on the industries of Canada for their livelihood. Those industries depend to a large extent on Canada's farm population for the sale of their products for each farmer is a buyer of capital good as well as the ordinary needs of every household. Should the income of any large section of our farm population be adversely affected industry and those who work for industry are bound to feel the effect. After all the price of anything is only relative, depending wholly on the ability to purchase.

No Need

There is actually no need for oleomargarine in Canada. Except in very rare instances the butter industry has been able to supply the needs of this country for a spread. In the few instances where butter has become scarce the reasons were to be found in circumstances completely outside the farmers' control, drought, too wet weather, crop failures. And over the years Canadians have had little to complain about as regards the price of butter. It has never returned high profits either to farmers or manufacturers, has often been sold at great loss.

It must always be remembered there is no ban on either the sale, use or importation of the oils from which oleomargarine can be made. As a matter of fact millions of pounds of such oils, almost as much as the total make of butter, are used in Canada each year in the form of shortening.

The only ban is against the use and sale of these oils in direct competition with butter.

Is Protection

In the long run this amounts to a form of protection for the dairy industry, equivalent to that received by almost every other industry in Canada in the form of tariff protection. If it were not for such tariff protection there would be very few industries in Canada, very few workmen would be receiving high industrial wages. Employment in Canada would largely be in the hard tasks of getting out natural products to be sent to other countries for processing. The farmer has the same right as any Canadian workman to demand protection against cheaper competition. If he has not that protection he should have the right to demand that the manufactured products which he requires to operate his fam, and for his home should come to him as cheaply as possible, without having tariffs and import duties piled on the import price. This business of protection works both ways.

Abuses and Fraud

There is another important factor in this whole controversy which is often lost sight of. That is the protection of that section of the public who, should oleomargarine be allowed, would still want to use butter and be sure they were getting butter. Butter cannot be produced at prices to compete with oleomargarine Therefore there would always be the temptation for dishonest traders to pan off oleomargarine as butter and reap the higher price. Not a week passes but that dozens of court prosecutions for this take place in the United States. It would mean a whole new lot of inspectors here, necessitate a great amount of additional protective legislation and policing both by the Dominion and provinces.

Skeleton Found At Summertown, Speculation Rife

Summertown, Ont., Sept. 19—(CP)—Speculation speeded up here when police said the ancient, crumbling bones found near the former home of "Caribou" Cameron, legendary Klondyke goldminer, were human but that they would probably never be definitely identified.

Cpl. L. C. Carr, head of Ontario Provincial Police detachment here said he was convinced the 40-year-old bones were those of Patrick Purcell, who owned the house after Cameron's death and who disappeared mysteriously one night in 1891. A body was afterwards found, identified as Purcell's and buried in a local cemetery.

Shortly after this body disappeared from its grave and was never found again.

Ghostly goings-on at the Cameron House, now used as a Catholic boys' school, started some time before the case of the disappearing body.

There was much gossip over Cameron's wife, who disappeared in British Columbia during one of her husband's prospecting expeditions. Cameron later brought back her body, preserved in alcohol in a sealed casket, had the casket opened and the body identified by the dead woman's relatives.

Holding to the theory that it was Purcell's, Cpl. Carr said either the body buried as his was not Purcell's and his murderer had stolen it after burial to prevent further investigation, or the body was actually Purcell's and had been removed from the cemetery plot and reburied on his own property for some unknown reason.

The skeleton was discovered by workmen making a septic tank on the property, about 160 feet from the house.

CONCENTRATE ON DRIVE 235

Windsor, Sept. 20—(CP)— A concentrated drive for meat direct from Essex County farmers during the last few days has brought the prediction from Windsor butchers that there would be no immediate shortage of fresh meat in the district despite the Dominion - wide packinghouse workers strike.

In fact, dealers said they would have plenty of beef, veal, pork and some lamb to satisfy meat-hungry Detroit shoppers as well as hometown housewives.

HOMES OF NICOTIANA

Australia and America are the only continents which have any wild species of Nicotiana, or native tobacco plant.

20 Jewish War Orphans Arrive In Dominion

Montreal, Sept. 19—(CP)—Twenty Jewish war orphans ranging in age from 10 to 18 arrived at Montreal airport last night on two T.C.A. flights from Halifax to start their badly disrupted lives anew in this their "land of promise."

Eager and full of pep despite their long trip from Paris, the youngsters representing a cross-section of Europe said they were glad they had finally arrived and looked forward happily to the chance of becoming Canadian citizens.

They are the vanguard of 1,000 which the Canadian Jewish Congress and other Hebrew organizations hope to bring to Canada under a special order-in-council.

Although arrivals last night were slated for homes in the Montreal area, future groups will be dispersed throughout the Dominion.

Most of the children spoke fluent French, a bit of English, some Jewish and Hebrew and their native tongues which included Hungarian, Rumanian, Swiss, Flemish, Polish, Bulgarian and German.

Prior to leaving for Canada the youngsters were at Paris for two years where they studied and received vocational training at a Jewish centre there.

Several of the arrivals survived the horrors of Buchenwald, while others were hidden in monasteries, colleges and other institutions throughout the whole occupation of the Germans. Most told newspapermen that they never knew what happened to their parents. They were just taken away and never seen alive again.

Ottawa, Sept. 22 (CP) —L. H. Millard, Deputy Warden, has been placed on leave pending retirement and three other officers have been discharged as a result of the three-man escape from Kingston penitentiary Aug. 18, it was announced officially today.

Maj.-Gen. R. B. Gibson, Federal Penitentiaries Commissioner announced also that disciplinary action has been taken against five other prison officers "as a result of slackness disclosed in the performance of their duties."

The three officers dismissed and J. F. Walsh, P. V. Bedore and R. A. Roch.

In releasing their names subsequent to the official statement, Gen. Gibson said it had not been intended to make the names public because it was felt the men already had been punished sufficiently by being discharged. However, it now was felt the names would become known later at any event.

At the same time, he declined to disclose the names of the officers being disciplined on the ground the discipline of the penitentiary itself might be affected if these men became known to the prison inmates.

It was not established during the inquiry that there was "any collusion" between any of the officers and the escaped convicts —Mickey McDonald of Toronto, Ulysse Lauzon of Windsor, Ont., and Nick Minille of Ottawa.

Nor was there any evidence of "active outside help" to facilitate the success of the prison break apart from a hacksaw blade found in one of the cells after the men escaped. The source of the blade has not been determined.

In a statement on the inquiry, Gen. Gibson said:—

"As a result of the investigation certain changes in the staff of that institution have been found necessary to promote the efficiency of its administration. The Deputy Warden has proceeded on leave pending retirement, and 3 other officers have been released from further duty.

"In the case of five others, disciplinary action has been taken as a result of slackness disclosed in the performance of their duties.

"Steps have already been taken to correct the weaknesses disclosed in the administration which contributed to the success of the escape, and to carry out the physical changes necessary to prevent any recurrence."

Warden on Sick Leave

Warden R. M. Allan of the penitentiary had been away on sick leave from May 28 to the morning of Aug. 18, after the escape had taken place, and Deputy Warden Millard had been in charge of the prison and responsible for its administration during the 2 1-2 months prior to the break.

Gen. Gibson said the circumstances of the escape and evidence taken during the inquiry disclosed "that laxity had developed in the manner in which the duties were being carried out, and particularly in the methods of searching for contraband materials."

"The possession by the convicts of the articles which assisted them in their escape—the hacksaw blades, iron bar and ropes—clearly indicated that the searches carried out in the period prior to the escape had not been executed and supervised in an adequate manner, and that there was a lack of alertness on the part of some members of the staff.

"There was also evidence that recently-appointed officers had not been fully instructed in the proper methods of carrying out their duties.

"The success of this escape must be attributed to failure to maintain the high standard of vigilance and alertness on the part of some custodial officers that is

Wolves Kill 700-Pound Steer

Renfrew, Sept. 22 — (CP) — District residents were still talking today about the wolf killing of a year-and-a-half old steer weighing 700 pounds on Big Black Donald Creek, 18 miles west of Calabogie, which was witnessed by Mayor J. R. Barry and William P. Allum, of Renfrew.

Long-time residents of the district and local game wardens have known wolves to attack sheep and lambs when deer are scarce but can recall no previous occasion when the animals have tackled anything the size of the 700-pound steer.

Mayor Barry and Mr. Allum had driven to the John Wilson hunt camp on the creek to inspect the camp's equipment. While walking along an old bush road Saturday, they heard an animal's cry coming from Iron Mine gully. This was followed by a chorus of roars. They reached the spot in time to see several wolves disappearing in the bush.

Many Thousands Mourn La Guardia

New York, Sept. 22 —(AP)— An estimated 45,000 New Yorkers filed through the Cathedral of St. John the Divine yesterday to pay their respects at the bier of their former mayor, Fiorello H. La Guardia, who died Saturday morning at the age of 64.

La Guardia, mayor for 12 years, will be buried late today in Woodlawn Cemetery after Bishop Charles K. Gilbert of the New York Diocese conducts the Episcopal service for the dead.

Although no eulogy was included in the funeral plan, tribute was paid to the colorful little public figure in radio programs and in the more than 1,000 messages of condolence received by his family. Many were from statesmen overseas, from countries which La Guardia had aided while director general of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration.

La Guardia took the U.N.R.R.A. post shortly before leaving the mayor's office at the end of 1945. He was also a member of the Canadian-United States joint defence board.

Friends of La Guardia eulogized him yesterday on a (WJZ) radio program at the hour when he had presented his Sunday "Talk to the People" until he was stricken by cancer of the pancreas last June.

SECOND TROPICAL STORM ARISING IN CARIBBEAN

38 Known Dead In Hurricane-Torn Gulf Coast and Southern Florida

New Orleans, Sept. 22. (AP)—The hurricane-ravaged gulf of Mexico Coast and battered Southern Florida counted 38 known dead today, anxiously watched rising flood waters and kept a wary weather eye on a second tropical disturbance presently poking around the Caribbean.

Late reports said the second storm, attended by winds of 40 to 50 miles an hour and not yet classed as a full-blown hurricane, was south of Cuba on a northward course at 12 to 14 miles an hour.

Meantime, New Orleans and Southern Florida were plagued by the after effects of the hurricane which beat a path across the Southern part of the Peninsula Wednesday, spun out into the Gulf of Mexico, Thursday and then headed north to pound the Gulf Coast, Friday.

The biggest menace in both cases was floods. Some 40 square miles around New Orleans was under water from Lake Pontchartrain and small boats maintained a steady shuttle service in the inundated areas carrying marooned families to safety. These same flood waters also carried the bodies of at least six persons.

Sewerage contamination also was adding to the miseries of those in the flooded area. Some 300 persons had to be evacuated from the Metairie High School as the building became "unfit for human habitation" because of breaks in sewer pipes.

On the outskirts of the Everglades in Southern Florida, troubles were being heaped on troubles for weary residents. At canal point men worked to bolster dikes around Lake Okeechobee.

All Waters Rising

The lake, already full from abnormal summer rains, was rising on the strength of the torrential rains which hurtled down with stinging force from the hurricane. The highway patrol reported from the area that if the dike broke, nearby towns would be under four to five feet of water.

As the waters rose, the Florida East Railway prepared to rush an evacuation train in from Fort Pierce. Ordinarily about 30,000 people live in the area which might be covered with some water in event of a break in the dike.

Florida already has counted its storm damage at $30,000,000 — so far. No comparable estimate has yet been made for the Gulf coast area.

In New Orleans alone, Mayor E. Lesseps Morrison has counted the loss at $7,000,000 and with the floods in some sections of this city the over-all estimate undoubtedly will climb.

Rehabilitation of Democracies Most Effective Barrier to Red Tide

By DeWITT MacKENZIE
(Associated Press Foreign Affairs Analyst)

We shall be wise not to overlook French Foreign Minister Bidault's declaration before the United Nations Assembly that his delegation "deems it futile and dangerous to conceal the magnitude and seriousness of the crisis" growing out of the Russo-America clash, which is threatening the "very life" of the peace organization, and that it's only honest to say one doesn't see how the opposing views can be reconciled.

And why can't they be reconciled? Having given us something to ponder, M. Bidault side-stepped that issue — a delicate matter for discussion by the foreign minister of a country which is precariously situated in the no-man's land between the two dominant powers. However, we can fill in the gaps which he skipped. The real key to the situation is a fact upon which this columnist has been insisting because of its supreme importance, and it is this:

Russia's generation-old program of world revolution for the establishment of totalitarian communism finally is in full swing. Not for one moment should we forget that, for the insidious ramifications of the great offensive have penetrated every country on the globe. Its greatest success has been in Eastern Europe where a big new Red empire has been built out of weak countries by strong arm methods in a short time, but already it has a grip on other war-torn nations like Italy?

This world revolution can't be reconciled with any other views. It can be stopped only if and when it comes up against an immovable barrier. Sweet words of wisdom won't turn the trick. Neither will hard language.

If Russia Insists on Enforcing Her Will Upon Majority It Will Destroy U.N. and Peace

—McNEIL

By CLYDE BLACKBURN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Sept. 22 — (CP) — Britain today warned the United Nations General Assembly that if Russia insists on forcing it will upon the majority it would destroy the organization and peace would "crumble and crash" with "hideous consequences."

Hector McNeil, British Minister of State, supported a full examination of the United States proposals for strengthening the organization and described as "a comedy piece" Russian delegate Andrei Vishinsky's speech accusing Americans of "war mongering."

He declared that if the United Nations is to succeed its members must accept certain facts:

1. No nation has a monopoly of truth.
2. No nation is omniscient.
3. No nation is omnipotent.
4. No reasonable nation can expect at all times to have its view accepted by all other nations.

Then he delivered his solemn "crumble and crash" warning:

"If the Soviet government considers that in all areas its power must be extended; if it thinks that in describing any international situation its description must be accepted, then I say without qualification, that not only will the United Nations be destroyed but the unstable peace of the world will crumble and crash, bringing to us all the ranging hideous consequences to which Mr. Vishinsky drew our attention."

Churchill Praised

McNeil was particularly bitter when he referred to Vishinsky's attack upon Winston Churchill whom the Russian deputy foreign minister put in a comparable bracket with Hitler.

He said Churchill's struggle against Nazism "will compare with that of any member of any Communist party in the world," and added:

"Churchill walked about London streets, as an example to the population and to the world, unperturbed by bombs hurled down by German planes which, for all we knew were serviced at that time by Russian oil."

Referring to Vishinsky's attack on the United States, McNeil said:

"When Mr. Vishinsky argued on Thursday ... that his government were distressed and angered at the statements of individual Americans that Russia was preparing for war and was a war-

16 European Countries Require $16 Billions In Help in Next 4 Years

Paris, Sept. 22 (AP)—Sixteen European countries were ready today to sign, seal and deliver a report to set forth their need for $16,295,000,000 in help from the United States in the next four years.

Diplomats were to put their signatures on a 20,000-word document listing western and southern Europe's resources, self-help schemes and requirements under the Marshall plan for economic reconstruction.

The scheduled afternoon ceremony marked the end of a 10-week conference, boycotted by Russia and eight other eastern European countries. Foreign Secretary Bevin of Britain was the presiding officer. Foreign Minister Carlo Sforza of Italy and Prime Minister Eamon De Valera of Eire also were expected to sign today.

An R.A.F. plane waited to take the report to Washington to be put before State Secretary Marshall, who last June 5 invited Europe to draw up a blueprint for his own recovery plan.

An official summary of the report was expected to be made public today. Conference sources have said it contains this balance sheets for 1948 through 1951:

The 16 countries will need to import food, raw materials and productive equipment and supplies worth close to $35,000,000,000.

They will be able to pay, with exports or otherwise, for about $15,000,000,000 worth.

They hope to get the deficit, roughly $19,689,000,000 from these sources: $3,394,000,000 (for machinery) from the International Bank for reconstruction and development; $16,295,000,000 (for the rest) from the United States.

Countries that helped draw up the report were Britain, France, Austria, Belgium, The Netherlands, Luxembourg, Eire, Iceland, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Switzerland, Italy, Portugal, Greece and Turkey. Spain was not invited.

By HAROLD KING
(Reuters Correspondent)

Paris, Sept. 22 (Reuters)—The 16 western European powers in their Marshall plan reply to be signed this afternoon, base their claim to United States aid on firm pledges to boost home production by 1951 to levels in many cases far higher than pre-war output.

Calling for an "unprecedented peacetime effort of work" by their entire populations, the report states, "production effort of the participating countries and western Germany will be concentrated on the key industries of food and agriculture, fuel and power, timber and transport."

Main targets in the National programs are:

Grain and milk: Restoration of pre-war production.

Oils and fats: Some increases.

Livestock: As fast an expansion as supplies of feeding stuffs will allow.

Coal: Increase of one - third above 1947 and 30,000,000 tons above 1938.

Oil refining: To be developed to 2 1-2 times pre-war level.

Merchant shipping: National fleets to be restored to pre-war level.

Though the report says most of the capital equipment needed for these expansions will be supplied from European production, it warns that Europe's own efforts must be "sustained by a flow of goods and services from the rest of the world."

The countries pledge themselves to take all necessary steps to maintain their internal finance stability, but the report emphasizes that the "commitments undertaken cannot be fully met nor can European recovery be finally and permanently effected without additional external aid."

The participating countries "neither ask nor expect special aid from the United States to the full amount of the deficit between western Europe and the American continent."

Some of the deficit can be filled through private financing and investment and some through the International Bank for reconstruction and development, it is stated.

The report does not specify the amount of aid which each country needs to make its full contribution to the European recovery program.

ARABS THREATEN CULTURAL BREAK OVER PALESTINE

Partitioning of Country As Proposed Will Not Be Tolerated By Arab World

London, Sept. 22 (AP) — An Arab office spokesman said today the Arab world had agreed to make "a complete economic and cultural break" with Europe and the United States if the United Nations should attempt to partition Palestine.

The spokesman, self-styled London propagandist for the Arab League, made his statement after an authoritative foreign office source Britain would accept such partition if other U.N. members would help carry out the project.

Colonial Secretary Creech Jones leaves for New York tonight to present Britain's views to the U.N. assembly, soon to consider a majority report of its special committee on Palestine recommending division of the Holy Land into Arab and Jewish states.

The Arab spokesman said the league — comprising Iraq, Egypt Saudi Arabia, Trans-Jordan, Syria, Lebanon and Yemen — had agreed in a secret resolution on the "break" with the west, should Palestine be divided. The resolution was adopted at a meeting of Bludan, Syria, in 1946.

Asked why he was now disclosing the gist of the resolution, the spokesman said "The main reason is to counter rumors" that the Arab States have disagreed on the policy to be adopted if the U.N. disregards their arguments against partition.

Replying to a question, he said a "complete" economic break "might" mean that the Arab states would withdraw American and British oil concessions. "Something might also be done about landing rights granted to western airline companies."

Echoing previous Arab reports he said the Bludan Conference also decided that Arab States would supply men, money and arms to the Palestine Arabs to resist any attempt at partition.

A "cultural break" would not necessarily imply asking western missionaries or other westerners to quit the Arab world.

The foreign office source said last night cabinet ministers agreed in a meeting Saturday that Britain no longer could bear the burden of keeping almost 100,000 troops in the Holy Land, which she administers by mandate.

London Bus Conductor Takes Title Of 'Perfect Husband' in a Walk

By JACK SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Yriter)

London, Sept. 22 (CP) — It didn't take the judges long Sunday to pin the title "London's Perfect Husband" on bus conductor Eustace Crick after he told them his story while his wife Eleanor murmured "my husband is wonderful."

A shoo-in all the way, Eustace literally took home the bacon. First prize in the "Perfect Husband" contest held here was a liberal portion of precious bacon.

The 34-year-old conductor, married 10 years, has a recipe for the benefit of "not-so-perfect" husbands. It is:

"I buy my wife a bunch of flowers once a week.

"I never go out at night without my wife and as she cannot get to a show on account of the kiddies (Brian, 9 and Angela, 3) we never go anywhere. We're so happy we never miss it.

"I'm on a five-day week and so is my wife. Saturdays I do the family's wash and on Sunday the cooking.

"I'm a non-smoker and except for an occasional beer at home when we have friends I'm a non-drinker.

"I'm an expert handyman able to do all odd jobs about the house.

"I'm really good making pastry."

"I've never bought a tie, shirt, pair of socks or suit myself. My wife knows my taste perfectly."

"My wife suffers severely in the winter from cold feet. A lot of husbands can't stand that but I massage hers until they're warm as pie."

Tomorrow night he'll take time off to write a love letter to Eleanor — their wedding anniversary — a practice he's kept up since they were married.

Oh yes, his wife gets his pay envelop intact — Eustace gets no pocket money.

Betty Playford Had Visited House Block From Home

Owen Sound, Sept. 22 —(CP)— Indications that 11-year-old Betty Playford was criminally attacked before she was battered to death in a ditch just outside the city limits were being investigated by police today. The girl's body was found this morning after being missing since she left the home of a neighbor Sunday night.

Indications were that the girl's bruised and bloody head had been battered with a blunt instrument but police were without definite clues. Her clothes were disarranged and there were signs of blood on other parts of her body.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Playford, Betty visited the house of Gordon McLay, one block from her home, but she did not return after leaving the McLay residence. The ditch in which her body was found is four blocks from Betty's home.

Mrs. Thomas McMann told police today that about the time that Betty left the McLay residence, she heard a little voice talking "fast and loud" and then a scream. As children often play in the vicinity she thought nothing of the incident at the time.

Betty was one of a family of nine children and last night her father and brothers searched for hours before going to bed. When Ernest and William Playford went to the home of Mrs. McMann this morning, she told police the story of the child's scream.

No footprints could be noticed in the sandy-bottomed eight-foot ditch, soggy due to rain, where Mr. McLay and Constable J. G. Murray found the body. A post-mortem has been conducted and an inquest will likely be held under Dr. Charles Gaviller, coroner.

Husband and Wife Die After Crash

Guelph, Sept. 20 — (CP)—Walter W. Buchanan, of Guelph, died in hospital last night, bringing the death toll to two in a two-automobile collision, in which four others were injured. Mr. Buchanan's wife died in hospital a few hours after the crash. The accident occurred on a Paisley road intersection, four miles from here, Thursday night.

Mr. Buchanan, chairman of the Guelph Cemetery Commission and a former Reeve of Guelph township, died of a fractured skull and other injuries.

The injured: Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Buchanan, of Toronto; and Nyle and Rob Weber, both of Breslau, Ont.

Coldwell Says No One Advanced Reasonable Cause

Timmins, Sept. 22 (CP)—M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, answering questions at a Porcupine area meeting Sunday night said that no one has advanced reasonable cause for a devalued dollar.

He was asked whether the present position of the Canadian dollar at par with the United States dollar since July last year, is a benefit or otherwise to Canada and also whether "government neglect" of the gold mining industry could be surmounted. Mr. Coldwell replied that monetary manipulation is not a sound policy and added:

"Maybe a production bonus (on gold) is a sound policy. No one has advanced reasonable cause for a devalued dollar. If a production bonus is warranted, it should be for new mines producing gold so that the benefits of this new production would be passed on to labor."

It has been argued in gold mining circles that the industry should be helped either by devaluation of the Canadian dollar or a bonus on production. Devaluation would mean that the $35 an ounce paid by the United States would be worth that much more to Canadian Gold producers in Canadian dollars.

Asked what C.C.F. policy was in regard to "redistribution" of mining taxation revenues, Mr. Coldwell said: Should be a charge of the industries in the community.

"These municipal services would also be chargeable to their costs of production and their profits reduced to take care of them."

Woman Struck With Hammer, Grabbed by Throat

Chatham, Sept. 22 —(CP)— Mrs. Anna Hurst, 45, was struck on the head with a hammer wielded by a man who crawled through a window of her bedroom early today, grabbed her by the throat and attempted to strangle her.

Police said a warrant was issued for the arrest of her estranged husband, Allan.

Mrs. Hurst's exact injuries were not immediately known but hospital attendants said her condition is "fairly good."

Police found the woman in a hysterical condition, with bruises on her forehead and red marks about her throat. Mrs. Hurst said she was asleep when the man entered her room. He had ripped off a screen and lifted the window without awakening her. Her first knowledge of his presence in the bedroom was when she felt his hands about her throat, she said.

CHILD SUFFERS BROKEN ANKLE

Ten-year-old Barbara Ireland, Chatham Street, suffered a broken ankle and a cut in her upper leg Saturday afternoon when she was struck by a motorcycle as she was attempting to cross Front Street.

The Ireland girl with a companion had started out from the West curb to cross the street near the Campbell Street intersection when about twelve feet from the curb she saw a car approaching and started back, stepping directly into the path of a southbound motorcycle ridden by James Cleary, Strachan Street.

"There is no lovelier way to thank God for your sight than by giving a helping hand to someone in the dark", (quotation from Helen Keller.) Now is the time to give to The Canadian National Institute for the Blind. Send donations to the Manager of The Canadian Bank of Commerce, Mr. C. L. Jewell, Belleville, Ont.

MAN FALLS DOWNSTAIRS, SUSTAINS LACERATIONS

Sergue Lucas, employee of Queen City Shows, Toronto, suffered lacerations to his scalp on Sunday when he fell downstairs at the Crystal Hotel striking the back of his head on one of the steps. The injured man was rushed to hospital by ambulance where several stitches were found necessary to close the lacerations in his head. No bones were broken, it was reported and the injured man is expected to make a rapid recovery.

LICENCES RE-INSTATED FOR TWO RESTAURANTS

Licences of the two local restaurants, the London Lunch and the Snack Bar, which were closed by city council last week because of insanitary conditions, have now been re-instated and the restaurants are again open, it was announced this morning by Sanitary Inspector, G. A. Whitman.

The two restaurants were closed by city council following report of the sanitary inspector that he had found conditions insanitary.

Plans Completed For Rubinoff Concert in Oct.

Tickets for the Rubinoff Concert to be held in the Collegiate auditorium on October 8th were distributed to members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce who attended a business meeting on Saturday. A small but enthusiastic group of members heard concert chairman Paul Mercier outline final plans for the concert which will feature one of the great concert artists of this era.

The following chairmen will assist Chairman Mercier: Russell Hachburn, welcome and reception; Thomas Wilkinson, publicity and advertising; Borden Gill, tickets; John Kelleher, finance; Frank Cormier, auditorium; Edward Burns, matinee.

It was suggested that the collegiate students council be approached with the view to have them sponsor the matinee concert.

Policy of Co-operation

The meeting was held in the Chamber of Commerce office, the members hearing President Chas. Lundy outline a policy of co-operation with the senior Chamber and other organizations now engaged in making Belleville a better place in which to live.

The Chamber of Commerce will be asked to name two of their members to attend Jay Cee meetings. This is in accordance with the practice in other cities and makes for a closer tie between the two bodies.

It was reported that the Junior Chamber movement in Canada received a grant of $40,000 in 1946 from the Chamber of Commerce to assist them in their work.

John Godwin volunteered to act as chairman of dinner meetings and will endeavor to line up some outstanding speakers for the season.

Don Woods will edit the Action bulletin which will be utilized to keep in touch with all members.

Sunday Windstorm Disrupts Power, Phone Service in City

In the Belleville district the gale made itself manifest by ripping off innumerable branches of trees and dropping them onto hydro and telephone wires to generally disrupt services throughout the area. In one or two sections in the city, complete trees were reported to have been down blocking traffic on the street.

One entire tree was stated to have fallen in the Grove Street area and another in the Charles Street district, in both cases disrupting power service.

Manager of the Belleville Public Utilities, Mr. O. H. Scott reported that, despite the number of calls, emergency crews had most of the interruptions repaired by Sunday midnight. All interruptions were as result of trees or branches falling across wires.

In a few instances fallen branches interrupted service in the rural areas as well, it was reported.

Otherwise in the city no especial damage was reported, although the wind which at Toronto reached a 55 mile per hour gale, picked up loose articles in backyards and on the streets and sent them flying across vacant lots and around street corners. Pedestrians were forced to hang onto their hats and as the sudden gusts of wind strove to part them from their headgear.

During the height of the storm members of the local fire department were called out on two occasions to extinguish chimney fires.

(By The Canadian Press)

One of the "most turbulent" windstorms of the season followed by driving rain roared across Southern and Eastern Ontario late Sunday leaving in its wake damages estimated at thousands of dollars.

The 55-mile-an-hour gale which came up unexpectedly played havoc with telephone and hydro services, battered small lake boats, damaged fruit trees, corn crops and reduced visibility on highways.

Hydro repair crews worked all night replacing poles, wires and transformers damaged in the storm which forecasters said marked the advance edge of a cold air mass. Weather over the region affected, from Windsor to Ottawa, probably would be cloudy and cool most of today, they said.

Trees were toppled in the Windsor area where streets were flooded and the temperatures dropped 20 degrees in 15 minutes.

In Toronto the storm wrecked a $3,000 field altar used at a Roman Catholic Holy Name rally and toppled three canopied thrones on which British Empire cardinals had sat a few minutes earlier. A Toronto-Hamilton bus struck a bridge near Oakville at the height of the storm.

In the Ottawa suburban area of Eastview and Rockcliffe, two main power lines were ripped out and for a time left those sections without electric power.

The first taste of winter hit Northern Ontario today with Sault Ste. Marie reporting freezing temperatures and the first light snowfall. Vegetables were nipped overnight by frost.

In Peterborough district yesterday's blow reached cyclonic proportions, uprooting trees, disrupting telephone and hydro service, blowing down chimneys and flattening corn crops. At least 12 fallen trees blocked highway number 7 for a time.

At Chemong Lake near Peterborough it was feared a floating bridge would break up but it rode out the storm successfully. However a new building there was levelled by the wind.

The strong winds Sunday prevented completion of the Kingsmen Kloudsters first annual model aircraft contest at Brantford airport which will be run off next Sunday. Gasoline-powered planes were on hand with owners from London, Kitchener, Windsor, Galt, Toronto, Hamilton and Guelph. A plane owned by A. MacTavish, London, reached a clocked speed of 87½ miles an hour because of the gale.

Red Star Accuses "Anglo-Saxon Bloc"

Moscow, Sept. 22 — (Reuters)—The army newspaper Red Star accused "agents of the Anglo-Saxon bloc in the Near East" of trying to create an "eastern bloc" by an association of Turkey with the "greater Syria" countries, (Transjordan, Iraq, Syria and part of Palestine), whose federation is advocated by the Emir Abdullah of Transjordan.

The recent renewed advocacy of the great Syria plan by the Emir was attributed by the paper to the influence of British agents.

They were alleged to have done this to divert attention from the difficulties Britain was encountering in Egypt and Palestine.

DEPUTY WARDEN

Detailing the method of the three convicts—still at large—used in their break, Gen. Gibson said they had been housed in cells on the fourth (top) range of the north wing of the main cell black and had successfully cut the bars sufficiently to permit them access to the passage in front of the cells.

The cutting of the bars appeared to have been accomplished during the two-hour evening radio period when the noise from loud speakers would help to deaden the sound of their work.

The bars were cut with hacksaw blades which had been smuggled into the prison and into their possession without detection. The one blade found after the escape was of a make not used in the penitentiary.

After cutting out of their cells, the convicts replaced the cut bars in position to minimize the risk of detection.

Having gained access to the passage in front of their cells, it was only a short distance to the end of the cell block and into a passageway connecting with the adjoining cell block, which was out of observation of the prison dome.

Using a short bar which had been smuggled from the shop in which they worked, the men were able to force the lock on a trap door in the roof of this passage leading to the air space under the roof of the cell block and thence to the roof itself, where they were able to observe the movement of the prison yard officers on their rounds.

Hopemade Rope

They then were able, without detection, to reach the ground with a rope fastened together from cores used in the manufacture of mail bags in the penitentiary.

Taking advantage of the shadow of the cell block walls and of a tomato patch in the northeast area of the prison grounds through which they crawled, they succeeded in reaching and scaling the east wall of the penitentiary by means of a similar rope and escaping to the outside.

The point at which the wall was scaled is close to the northeast tower of the institution, which has not been manned at night for some years.

While the east wall is floodlighted throughout its length, there was a shadow at the spot selected for the escape which gave some protection from observation by the officer posted in the southeast tower whose duty it was to keep the 1,100 feet of wall under constant view.

"It is apparent," said Gen. Gibson, "that the convicts had studied very carefully the ground over which their escape was planned to take place, and the section of wall in question, from their cells which faced out upon the areas over which they proceeded.

"The escape was very cleverly planned and careful precautions taken to avoid leaving evidence which might result in its early detection, with the result that it was not discovered until after the opening of the prison on the morning of Aug. 18."

It had not been possible to determine definitely the exact time of escape. The most probable explanation was that the movement from the cells to the roof of the cell block took place while the guards were being changed at midnight and that at some period thereafter, timing their movement to avoid observation of officers patrolling the prison area, the convicts made their escape over the wall.

"The delay in the discovery of the escape was due to the failure of the guards responsible for accounting for the convicts concerned to observe and report their absence promptly," said Gen. Gibson.

"This failure was attributable in part to the fact that the convicts had arranged their blankets and other contents of their cells to simulate in the semi-darkness that their beds were still occupied."

Plowing Match Exhibits Expected To Set Record

Kingston, Ont., Sept. 22. (CP)—Visitors to the 1947 international plowing match at nearby Hemlock Park Farms, Oct. 14-17, will see the largest number of exhibits and displays of farm machinery in the history of the agricultural event, match officials said today.

Clark Young, treasurer of the Ontario Plowmen's Association, said on return from the site of the match, six miles from here, that the location for the exhibits has to be enlarged, due to the large entry list.

The tractor plowing competition has drawn the heaviest entry list, with the horse plowing division a close second. No difficulty has been encountered in obtaining tractors and teams of horses.

The field selected for the event is ideal, the Ontario Agriculture Department reported, with ample parking space and electricity for the tent exhibits.

The city of Kingston will provide a banquet on the last day of the match for 1,000 guests.

Wealthy Girl Involved in Murder

Paul Pine ran a one-man private detective agency in Chicago. He had learned the game in the State Attorney's office in that city, and was an experienced investigator. But no amount of experience could prepare him for the aftermath of the bizarre situation with which he found himself confronted one morning. When the wealthy John Sandmark engaged him to break up an affair, in which his beautiful stepdaughter, Leona, had involved herself, it seemed safe enough. But it wasn't. Pine soon found himself in a maze of love, greed, hatred and sudden death. This is the plot of "Halo in Blood"—the Standard's book of the week. The author, John Evans, gives it distinction with a relentless pace, and a strong literary quality. You can get The Standard for 10 cents—on sale now at all newsdealers.

Canadian Legion Voice of Veteran And His Family

By MEL SUFRIN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Windsor, Ont., Sept. 22 (CP)—Due to an increase of 157 per cent in membership during the last two years, the Canadian Legion in Ontario now, more than ever before, is recognized as the voice of the veteran and his family, Secretary W. T. Burke of Toronto told delegates to the Legion's 15th biennial convention here today.

'At Sault Ste. Marie was reported a total membership of 39,276. Our total membership on Aug. 15 of this year was 101,099," said Mr. Burke.

This represented an average monthly increase of 1,100 members. At the same time the number of branches increased from 274 in June 1945 to 412 now.

In the secretary's report, Mr. Burke disclosed that competition is again in progress for the three membership award shields. The awards now are in possession of Kitchener-Waterloo Branch No. 50 for obtaining the most new members in 1946; Newmarket Branch, No 426 for showing the largest increase during its initial year, 270 members, and Pembroke Branch No. 72, awarded the Tom Magladery shield for the greatest proportionate increase, a gain of 925 per cent in 1946.

The problem of housing was scheduled for a thorough discussion at the three days of sessions by delegates representing branches in every Ontario community.

Andy Clarke, 'Mayor of Little Places', Gives 'Neighborly News' Broadcast in City

The familiar voice of Andy Clarke, "The Mayor of the little Places" who authors the broadcast "Neighborly News" over an Ontario and Quebec network of the CBC, was heard from the McCarthy Theatre on Sunday morning before a large crowd of interested spectators.

Present on the flower-bedecked stage were Mr. Clarke, his announcer Reid Forsee, and Rolly Anderson of the CBC. Mrs. Clarke; President Elmer Sandercock of the Belleville Fair Board and Mrs. Sandercock. Secretary Erle Denyes and Mrs. Denyes; 1st. Vice-President Harry Rollins and Mrs. Rollins; 2nd. Vice-President Tom Walker and Mrs. Walker; Mayor Frank Follwell, and Miss Lillian Courneyea and Manager W. Fawcett of the McCarthy Theatre.

Prior to the broadcast which went on the air shortly after ten o'clock and was heard locally over CJBQ, Mr. Forsee entertained the audience with a discourse of various subjects. He outlined the history of Mr. Clarke, interjecting many humorous anecdotes and ending with a brief description of the behind the scenes of radio.

Introduced by Mayor

Clarke was formally introduced over the air by Mayor Follwell who incidentally got in a "few plugs" for the city whose destiny he guides. He welcomed the radio visitors to the "friendliest City" in Canada.

"Andy" in the first half of his broadcast dwelt exclusively on Belleville and the Belleville Exhibition which he formally opens in Exhibition Park at 8 o'clock tonight. He mentioned fine fishing advantages of the Bay of Quinte

He related the story of the Belleville Fair from "away back" to nearly one hundred years, quoting excerpts from files of the old Victoria Chronicle, which drew attention to the fine exhibits of those days as told by a reporter of that era.

The final part of the broadcast was devoted to "Neighborly News" of Ontario and Quebec in inimitable Clarke style. He told of big fish, skunks, and all the homey news that makes the Sunday airing so popular with rural and urban people alike.

Following the broadcast Mayor Follwell officially expressed his appreciation of the function. Andy spoke briefly to his audience "off the air" and President Sandercock also addressed the audience with regard to the Belleville Exhibition. The function concluded with a brief "goodbye" from Mrs. Clarke.

Tonight, as was mentioned before the Belleville Exhibition will be officially opened by Mr. Clarke. At noon today he was a guest of the Rotary Club where he was chief speaker.

IF RUSSIA INSISTS

monger, I want to say this: The reply is not to imprison any individual or to suppress American or British newspapers.

Open Doors of Russia

"The reply is to open the doors of Russia so that the nations, the people of those nations, who have great underlying sympathy with this new emerging power, can see what is going on."

McNeil declared that Vishinsky had accused Britain of "seeking to divide Europe" because of her efforts to implement the Marshall plan.

This is a monstrous accusation" McNeil declared. He added that Britain had devoted her complete strength toward world co-operation, but had been blocked by Russia at turn.

McNeil blamed the present critical world situation largely on what he called Russia's unwillingness to co-operate. As far as Russia was concerned, he said, "every situation is pictured in black and white; perhaps, more correctly, in terms of black and red."

He then denied Vishinsky's charges that the Marshall plan for economic aid to Europe threatened the sovereignty of any country, and accused Russia of obstructing atomic control and paralyzing the Security Council by her 20 vetoes.

MEAT STRIKE DEADLOCKED

(By The Canadian Press)

Still without immediate prospect of settlement, the strike for higher wages by upwards of 12,000 Canadian Packinghouse workers today enters its second week on nation-wide scale.

The strikers, members of the United Packinghouse Workers of America (C.I.O.), have before them a statement made by Union organizer Jacques Casgrain in Montreal last night that "we (Unionists) are prepared to hold out a long time."

'Mystery Woman' Is Identified By Mother

Benton Harbor, Mich., Sept. 22.—(AP)—Sheriff Erwin [illegible] Kubath said today that the "mystery woman" whose body was found here last week, has been identified as Mrs. Catherine Tina Jacobs of Chicago, 19-year-old bride of two weeks.

The identification, made by the girl's mother came after the sheriff accused a Chicago newspaper, of hiding Mrs. Jacobs' husband in order to keep an exclusive story.

The Chicago Herald-American in its late edition last night said that Marshall P. Jacobs, 21-year-old bartender, had identified the woman as his wife.

The newspaper quoted Jacobs as saying he and Catherine were married Sept. 6 but quarrelled the same day while on their honeymoon in Michigan. According to the story the young couple separated after Jacobs refused his bride's request that he take her to New York.

An autopsy has failed to disclose cause of the girl's death, but county authorities believe she was slain.

TRUSTY STILL AT LARGE

Guelph, Sept. 22—(CP)—Jacques Gougeon, 20, a "trusty" who escaped Saturday night from the Ontario Reformatory, is still at large, prison officials said today. Gougeon disappeared from the reformatory laundry. He was serving an eight-month sentence for shopbreaking at Ottawa.

Urge Partition of Palestine

World interest centres at this time on the majority report of the U.N. Committee on Palestine, which recognizes the necessity for large scale Jewish immigration and the importance of allowing Jews to acquire land for settlement, says the United Zionist Council of Canada, which calls the document "a historic triumph for Zionism" and notes that "now after two thousand years the principle of a Jewish state is affirmed by a committee of the nations of the world."

Under the proposed plan Jerusalem will be internationalized as an autonomous unit and the economic relations of the two states of Jews and Arabs would be bound in a customs union, a common currency and control of public utilities. It is proposed that for the two years of transition 150,000 Jewish immigrants will be allowed to enter Palestine while Britain will administer the country under the new conditions and be responsible to the United Nations.

Under a minority report, on the other hand, a federal state is suggested with joint control by Arabs and Jews and with limited immigration of Jews.

The importance of the question is shown by the fact that a full meeting of the British Cabinet was held on Saturday to make final decisions on the policy of the United Kingdom in regard to the United Nations Palestine Commission's partition recommendations. The British decision will not be disclosed until Creech Jones addresses the United Nations Assembly this week.

The Zionist Council backs the majority report and says that "the spirit of millions of Jews, who have been almost destitute of hope, has now been revived."

The majority report favoring the two states of Jew and Arab, has special importance for Canada for general reasons and also for the fact that Mr. Justice Rand of the Supreme Court of Canada and his alternate, Mr. Mayrand of the Department of External Affairs, made notable contributions to this "historic document." The United Zionist Council says that "Justice Rand has gained eminence internationally, which is in keeping with the new importance of Canada among the nations of the world. This is a source of gratification to all Canadians and the Prime Minister who personally gave careful attention to the selection of Canadian members must also feel a special sense of pride. The Council adds that "because of the distinguished role of a Canadian in framing the recommendations to the committee, an added importance is given to the part that the Government of Canada will play in the coming deliberations of the Assembly of the United Nations. "The Council is asking the Government in general to support the majority report.

However United Zionist Council believes there could be improvement in the detailed solutions "by consolidating the areas of the Jewish State. 'It sees a possibility" in awarding the western portion of the Galilee to the Arabs difficulties of development, of the maintenance of order and of consolidating friendly frontiers will be increased." It suggests that in order to gain this area for the Jewish State concessions might be made to the Arabs.

The Zionist Council says that "the proposed economic union would encourage cooperation of Jew and Arab. The Jordan Valley authority could be developed within the framework of a proposed scheme and large possibilities opened up to both communities. The Council, however, considers that "an equal division of net customs duties means a perpetual subsidy of the Arab State by the Jews for whom it will work a hardship."

The United Zionist Council is asking the Canadian Government to support an early termination of the dependent status of Palestine "so as to ease at once the urgency of the Jewish problem and to lighten the burden of the British people." It refers to the drain on British resources by the maintenance of a large garrison and says this should be quickly brought to a termination. The Council sees in this solution of the problem by partition an early resumption of the alliance of Britain and the proposed Jewish State.

The majority report favoring partition seems to be the reasonable and logical solution of a pressing and baffling problem which has added greatly to the difficulties of the nations at this time. Canada's Government can well use its position in the United Nations Assembly to favor this majority report, offering a partition into the two states, Jewish and Arab. That the Canadian people will support the Government in this step seems likely for many must feel it is the wisest course yet proposed to bring about termination of historic difficulties in the Holy Land and bring in its place peace and harmony. The attitude of the Zionist Council of Canada in asking for official approval by the Canadian Government of this majority or partition plan to solve this age-old problem will undoubtedly receive the endorsation of a great number of Canadians.

Science and Hurricanes

One wonders how soon science will devise a means of breaking up these destructive storms before they reach inhabited areas, remarks the Cleveland Plain Dealer, referring to the devastating hurricane which has been in the news for almost the past week. The Plain Dealer says when "the atomic bomb had been devised its use in this respect was suggested. While the belief is widely held that the bomb would do the trick, the tests at Bikini set forth the dangers and difficulties. It would be necessary to explode the bomb perhaps 1,000 miles from land, and to explode it in the air in order to escape the effects of radioactive water.

"When the formation of this hurricane in the Caribbean was discovered early last week the navy disclosed that it was working on plans for using rain-making chemicals. Last Friday a navy hurricane hunter, a big four-motored plane with a crew of 10, flew into the centre of the storm.

"This was done by entering the quadrant of least violence and following a circular course to the centre, or "eye," where the air is calm. Measurements of velocity and temperatures were taken, but apparently navy plans for dissipating the storm had not been completed.

"As early as the middle of the 17th century the rotating nature of the hurricane was set forth, but in some quarters science discredited the idea almost up to this century. In the meantime investigators in several countries made extensive studies of the logs of ships which had passed through them and established definitely their character.

"However, it was still not determined why hurricanes always form in a few definite regions of the tropics, but present studies by the navy may throw new light on the conditions which build the storms and set them in motion across the seas."

On a Golf Course

We have always suspected that no good would come of all these scientific attempts to improve on nature—atomic bombs and artificial rain and what not. An incident in the United States recently provides an awful warning for those who seek to upset the natural order of the universe.

Northern Iowa has been suffering from a drought for some time and a group of local farmers decided to try the new method for producing man-made rain by dropping dry-ice crystals—solidified carbon dioxide—into clouds. They consulted a local rain-making service and secured a plane, a pilot and a quantity of dry-ice. On the appointed day the pilot flew into a likely-looking cloud over his clients' farms, and let go the crystals.

The experiment failed to precipitate a drop of moisture on the farmers' lands. But it did produce a cloudburst on a neighboring golf course—in the middle of a tournament.—Edmonton Journal.

Voices in the Wilderness

It is good to see church steeples on a city skyline. They break the heavy lines of factory and tenement.

Artistically they are satisfying. Few things are lovelier than black spires at twilight or shadowy domes at midnight. And even in broad noonday, with the sky behind them and pigeons fluttering about them, steeples are good to look upon.

Rich in beauty and tradition, they lend a city peculiar distinction. They symbolize the dignity of a more gracious age, the faith of a simpler people or, perhaps, the strength of a more rugged way of life.

They are as it were, voices crying in the wilderness; spiritual thoughts in an earth-bound age; prayers that seek out God above the mirth and moaning of the world.—Montreal Gazette.

BIRTHDAY MEANING

A birthday brings our friends about.
The absent come by post and wire.
The near ones sing their greeting out,
Of all I know, the happiest choir.

Some carry gifts their love to show.
For health and joy the wish they make.
At last to set the room aglow
There comes the candle-lighted cake.

Oh, what is there from life to fear?
Why dread the temples turning gray?
Should God allow another year,
We've friends to share it, come what may.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

How can a person blow both hot and cold?

A person who shifts from one side of a subject to another, or who is deliberately inconsistent with a view of receiving is said to blow both hot and cold.

The figure of speech has a basis in both fact and fancy. If a person blows forcefully upon his hand with lips nearly closed the effect is decidedly cooling; but if he blows gently with the mouth open the effect is decidedly warming. Moisture in the skin is responsible for this difference in effect.

Heat, like time, is measured by its loss. In the first case, the breath is expelled so rapidly that it cools the skin by evaporating the moisture, while in the second case, the skin comes in contact with the warm air without losing much of its moisture.

If a person blows upon a thermometer instead of the skin the effect in both cases is the same, or rather reversed, because the instrument registers only the actual temperature. The cooling effect of an electric fan is owing to the fact that each puff of air absorbs heat and moisture as it passes over the skin. In reality the fan raises the temperature of a room by setting the air in rapid motion.

The collection of fables attributed to Aesop contains one on the subject of blowing hot and cold.

A man who lost his way in the woods on a winter night was invited to take shelter and food in the cell of a satyr. The stranger, as he entered the cell, held his hands near his mouth and blew on them. Upon being asked by the satyr why he did this, he replied: "My hands are cold and my breath warms them." Later when a dish of hot porridge was placed before him the man raised a spoonful of it to his mouth and blew upon it. Again the satyr demanded an explanation. "The porridge is hot," replied the guest, "and my breath cools it." This was too much for the host. "Get out," exclaimed the satyr, "I will have nothing to do with a man who blows hot and cold with the same breath."

This fable is the source of our common saying about blowing hot and cold.

Battle of Britain Recalled in Many Parts of Canada

(By The Canadian Press)

Battle of Britain Sunday recalled to Canadians the conflict seven years ago in English skies which turned the tide of German air attacks at a crucial point of the war.

"Never was so much owed by so many to so few," was the way Winston Churchill put it in those days when he was war leader of the British Empire and his words were in the minds of thousands of Canadians who observed the anniversary yesterday at special church services.

Air force veterans, some of whom took part in the Battle of Britain itself, marched in church parades. Royal Canadian Air Cadets paraded in some cities with airmen who saw service in the First and Second World Wars.

Toronto Air Force units paraded to St. Paul's Anglican Church for special services.

Vancouver saw 150 airmen swing through downtown streets on their way to church services. Afterwards they placed a wreath on the Victory Square Cenotaph.

More than 500 officers and airmen from the air force headquarters, maintenance command headquarters and Rockliffe air station held special church parades through downtown Ottawa.

Upwards of 300 R.C.A.F. members and Royal Canadian Air Cadets marched in Halifax. A similar number observed the anniversary in Montreal and placed wreaths on the Dominion Square Cenotaph as aircraft flew overhead in formation.

At Calgary some 200 men and officers attended services and placed a wreath on a Cenotaph. About 1,500 marked the anniversary at London, Ont.

MOST EFFECTIVE

What sort of barrier is needed? Does it mean war? Well, it could mean that, but it strikes me there are other possible ways of halting the Red tide. One encouraging point is that Russia doesn't want war — isn't prepared for war and can't be for many years to come. Naturally she could fight a strong defensive war, but not one of major aggression.

That being the case, the most effective barrier would be rehabilitation of European democracies so that they could defend themselves against Communist aggression, instead of being shot like sitting birds. And that, of course, is the significance of the Marshall plan, although Moscow charges that the program is Imperialistic and calculated to give America control of Europe.

The big question is whether the rehabilitation plan can work fast enough to save an all-but-desperate situation. Most of Europe is struggling in the economic morass. Key countries like Britain and France are so hard hit that they are unable to bolster their smaller neighbors. That's why so much dependence is being placed on America.

Such a condition of weakness provides the best possible field for the operations of communism. A prime example is Italy which is so hard hit that she is fighting for her life. Into that situation Communism is throwing every ounce of strength in the way of fomenting strikes and disorders to make the position of the right-of-centre government untenable. The Reds, led by Russian trained Italian communist Palmiro Togliatti, are even talking revolution openly.

If rehabilitation can't be achieved in time to form an effective barrier against aggressive communism, then the Red ism will overrun the rest of Europe. That would create a new and terrible menace to the Orient and the Western Hemisphere.

The position is critical but not hopeless and I believe we are entitled to expect that the economic crisis can be overcome.

DIETS THAT KEEP NEAR-INVALIDS NEAR-INVALIDS

In his Studies in Deficiency Disease, now reproduced by Lee Foundation for Nutritional Research, Milwaukee, Wis., Robert McCarrison, M.D., D. Sc., Hon. LL. D. (Belf.), now Major-General Sir Robert, made some wholesale observations on food and chronic disorders of stomach and bowel which should interest at least those non-medical readers who are not utterly finagled by trick doctor bait or those not too steeped in freak dietic lore.

As an officer of the Indian Medical Service, McCarrison lived for years among the Hunza a tribe famous for their freedom from disease, their fine physique their agility and endurance. These people lived in their isolated valley (8,000 feet above sea level) surrounded by high peaks of the Himalayas in the Kashmir district in the northernmost part of India. The young medical officer was much impressed by the extraordinary fine health of the people and could not help comparing their freedom from such common ailments as stomach ulcer, appendicitis and colon derangement (colitis to you, stupid) with the predisposition to these diseases in England.

Quoting this distinguished authority:

"One of the earliest pathological evidences of deficient and ill-balanced foods, as observed in animals, is congestion of the gastrointestinal mucosa" (lining of stomach and bowel). "Such a state of congestion may well give rise in children to the gastro-intestinal catarrh which characterizes 'mucous disease.' This disorder is very common among children who are fed on sterilized milk, artificial foods, white bread, polished rice, poor butter, overcooked vegetables, and excessive quantities of sugar."

McCarrison next comments on the great frequency in England of colitis of ill-defined origin, enumerating certain symptoms, which I considerately omit here, declares that "one of the most constant results of food deficient in vitamins is colitis. It is so frequent that it may rank as a cardinal sign of vitaminic deficiency. It may arise as the result of the absence of vitamin B alone..."

Then this famous authority gets right down to cases — the cases of millions of you near-invalids, so, if you are still capable of it do pay attention to Doctor McCarrison now, for it may save the health of lives of your children even if you are too far gone.

"Unfortunately, most cases of this character in the human subject are of very long standing. I have myself no doubt that a portion of them have resulted from the long continued use of deficient foods from childhood onwards."

There you are, Mr., Mrs., and Miss Wiseacre.

The history if your complaint might be recorded in three words viz., pap, pop, and as Thackery would say pip.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Keep Your Head Out of the Sand

May I say incidentally, that you are to be commended for sparing your readers those dreadful facts about cancer which are being dragged into so much prominence. (H.R.A.)

Answer — I'm not proud of it. On the contrary, I'm ashamed of my record. Some things everybody should know about cancer are well told in a pamphlet issued by the U.S. Public Health Service, Treasury Department, Washington, D.C. entitled Cancer Facts Which Every Adult Should Know. Nothing dreadful about such facts, at least for people of intelligence.

Acid Stomach

Two doctors have told me I have stomach ulcer, but except for a good deal of trouble on and of from acid stomach and gas I seem to get no worse symptoms. (E.K.)

Answer — Ulcer or no ulcer, you will find helpful suggestions for acidity and gas in the pamphlet Yankee Stomach, mailed on written request (no clipping) if you provide stamped envelope bearing your address.

Troops Transport Meat to Prevent Spoilage

London, Sept. 22 — (AP)—The government called out troops again today to transport meat from Smithfield market, London's largest meat distribution centre, crippled by a spreading wildcat strike of truck drivers.

Two hundred and fifty drivers joined 40 others who struck Saturday in sympathy with four fellow workers, who quit in protest after being assigned to another depot.

A spokesman for the meat transport organization, agents for the food ministry, said 70 army trucks and 200 soldiers were being called out — "not to break the strike" but to move meat in order to prevent spoilage.

A smaller contingent of soldiers replaced strikers Saturday, recalling the labor regime's decision last winter to use troops in a strike of 15,000 transport workers.

Is Education The Curse of Mankind?

When one of Canada's ace cartoonists suggests to one of Canada's ace newspaper writers that a university extension course might sharpen his mind, it speaks well of Canadian thirst for knowledge. However, when Jim Frise broached the subject to his friend, Greg Clark, recently, he wasn't quite prepared for Greg's violent reaction. At first, it was Greg's opinion that universities and their professors were at the root of all the world's troubles. Read this hilarious Greg-Jim episode in The Standard this week. Truman Not Sure Special Session Congress Needed

Washington, Sept. 22 — (AP)— President Truman today carried a "show me" attitude toward a special session of the United States Congress into a critical conference with State Secretary Marshall on the world's political and economic troubles.

Whichever way they go, the policy decisions to be reached now or after additional study will affect the American pocketbook and the stomachs of hungry Europeans.

Linked tightly to the issue of high prices at home, these are the biggest questions at the moment:

How soon and how much will the United States have to help Europe?

Will Congress have to be summoned to a hurry-up session to approve additional aid?

But as the president and secretary of state searched for the right answer, these other international problems competed for a share of their attention:

The United Nations' General Assembly in New York and the spectacular airing there of Russian-American differences; conditions in China, Korea, Italy, France, Britain, Trieste, Greece and elsewhere. Some of these have changed materially since Truman and Marshall last saw one another last month before the president left for the Inter-American defence conference at Rio de Janeiro.

Marshall wants more food for Europe fast, and more coal. Agriculture Secretary Anderson favors trimming down American food exports. He says a reduction would help combat high domestic prices by easing the demand on the food supply.

Anderson and many others inside and outside the government have called for voluntary campaigns to eat less at home, both to counter high prices and to make more food available for shipment overseas.

The latest plea came from former president Herbert Hoover who told a Madison Square Garden meeting in New York last night that Americans should adopt some form of voluntary rationing to help tide the world over a "grim food year."

Temper of Hungry Flood Victims Rises in Tokyo

Tokyo, Sept 22 (AP)—Floodwaters subsided slightly in Tokyo today, but the Japanese press reported the tempers of hungry flood victims were rising.

Complaints against delay in distribution of official rations were climaxed when some 200 Japanese paddled to the Katsushika ward office demanding bread. The complaints were dispersed after a lengthy argument and 12 police were assigned to guard the office.

Governor Seichiro Yasui of Tokyo prefecture appealed to refugees for patience and said municipal authorities were doing their utmost to insure maximum distribution of food.

Flood waters covering much of three northeastern wards of Tokyo had dropped somewhat. Farther north, repair work began on broken river levees while a vast lake covered much of Kanto plain.

American reports placed the number of dead on the plain at 2,000. The Home Ministry, whose reports have consistently lagged behind, raised its casualty figures today to 839 dead, 1,556 injured and 11,196 missing.

Canadian Trade Minister Visits South Africa

Pretoria, South Africa, Sept. 22 —(CP)—Canadian Trade Minister MacKinnon said today that Canada and South Africa could progress together through a strengthening of the bonds of mutual interest and co-operation.

In an address prepared for delivery to Pretoria civic officials, the minister, who is touring South Africa with a Canadian trade mission, said that if the industrial progress of the two nations was to be maintained and increased he would urge "the more we can exchange in the way of information, exhibits and products, the better it will be for us both."

He invited South African exhibitors to the first International Trade Fair ever to be held in North America, which opens in Toronto, May 31, 1948.

The Canadian minister said that Canada was facing a peculiar trading position in that she has been selling the majority of her products for sterling or on credit but had to purchase most of her imports for cash in United States dollars.

"This, obviously, presents us with a very real dollar problem of our own, and is the practical basis for our concern with the necessity of buying more from the countries to which we sell. Although your tremendous gold production forms an invisible export which permits balancing our accounts, Canada welcomes the opportunity to buy more South African goods than we do at present." Earlier the minister made addresses at Brazzaville in equatorial Africa and at Leopoldville in the Belgian Congo. To both audiences he expressed the hope for greater Canadian-South African two-way trading and other relations.

25,000 Italian Farm Workers Out on Strike

Rome, Sept. 22 (AP)—Giuseppe Di Vittorio, Communist General Secretary of the Italian Confederation of Labor, announced that approximately 25,000 farm workers in the Rome area had struck today for higher wages.

Di Vittorio said the strike, which followed "symbolic" occupation of uncultivated land in the Rome vicinity yesterday, was for the same pay increases and improvements in working conditions granted some 1,000,000 farm hands in northern Italy Friday after a 12-day work stoppage.

Estimates of the number of peasants involved ranged from 200, reported by the Italian News Agency Ansa, to more than 3,000 reported by the Conservative newspaper Il Tempo.

The reports said the action was ordered by the Farmhands Union of the Communist - dominated General Confederation of Labor, which has been negotiating with the landlords for higher pay.

NEED FOR WORKERS

London, Sept. 22 — (CP)—Need for workers is felt in all industries here, with 1,202 positions open for men and 913 for women, J. P. Ryan, local manager of the National Employment Service said recently. More than 600 men are needed in construction, industry and as general laborers.

Central Air Command, took the salute. At right, station Sgt.-Maj. John A. Silver recites memorial poem. During the drumhead service, Flt. Lt. William Rodger, Station Chaplain, said the defenders "should have been beaten, so great were the odds against them." Canadians, both with the R.A.F. and in Canada's Number One Squadron, "wrote a glorious page in the skies over Britain."

Harry Carey, Hero Of Many Western Thrillers, Dies

The veteran of more than 300 film roles since 1908 died of coronary thrombosis. For a year he had been ill with heart and lung ailments and members of the family said a black widow spider bite, which he suffered a month ago, was believed to have aggravated his condition.

His widow, Olive Golden Carey, former actress whom he wed in 1912 and his two children, Harry Carey, Jr., and Mrs. Ella Carey Taylor, were at the bedside when he died.

Carey started his shootin' and ridin' career before the cameras during the era which saw Lionel Barrymore, Toronto-born Mary Pickford and Dorotty and Lillian Gish rise to stardom.

Son of a New York judge, he headed west after studying law at New York University. He was diverted from a law career when he wrote a vaudeville skit, "Montana", and his friends considered it so good that he produced and acted in it.

Carey's popularity diminished when sound films came in and he returned to the stage. But later he made a movie comeback and films in which he appeared in recent years included "Trader Horn", "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington", "The Shepherd of the Hills", and "Duel in the Sun".

The cowboy star once owned a 1,500-acre California ranch.

INDIGESTION comes at the most awkward times—on the train for instance, and miles from home or a Drug Store. But you can have quick relief at once if you carry a few Rennies in your vest-pocket. You take Rennies right on the spot (no need to wait for a glass of water).

Digestif RENNIES are pleasant-tasting tablets. You dissolve them on your tongue like candies. Their soothing antacid ingredients mingle with the saliva of your mouth, and drip gently into your stomach, thus quickly helping to neutralise excess acid and also helping to relieve the distressing gnawing sensations of indigestion ... upset stomach and heartburn.

Each Rennies tablet is individually wrapped in hygienic waxed paper, so you can always carry a few in your pocket or handbag. Easy to take—anytime, anywhere. At all Drug Stores 25c. and 75c.

If RENNIES don't relieve your indigestion, it's high time you saw your doctor.

Cartoonist Knows His Rural Canada

Jim Frise, Canada's top cartoonist, who draws the famous comic "Juniper Junction", started life on a farm near Port Perry, Ontario. It was here that he obtained a deep and abiding understanding of farmers and farm life. Only a man who had lived the life could get the authentic quality of humour into a comic like "Juniper Junction". This is perfectly illustrated in the "Juniper Junction" episode in The Standard this week. When Archie and The Missus bring the granddaddy of all pumpkins to show at the Turtletown Fall Fair, and Pigskin Peters catches wind of it, anything is liable to happen—and does. SCOTT'S W.M.S.-W.A.

The ladies of Scott's W.M.S.-W.A., held their Sept. meeting at the home of the W.M.S. President, Mrs. Croft, on Wednesday evening, Sept. 17th, with the president in charge.

Psalm 119 was read responsively led by Mrs. J. A. Lott.

Mrs. Croft introduced the New Study Book showing why we should study the Bible.

Mrs. J. A. Lott and Mrs. E. Chapman led in prayers of Thanksgiving for the Bible.

Mrs. Croft read part of first Chapter of the Study book telling of Cornelis, the magician, who bought a Bible to help him in his black magic. He became interested and after further study was converted. He gave different advice than before, cancelled his show, returned to the missionary and confessed he had found his Saviour. He went about giving the Bible to his old time listeners.

Now thirty millions copies of the Bible are printed every year. To all the Bible is the Word of God. The writing of the Old Testament took over 1,000 years; the New Testament about 100 years.

Mrs. Farmer gave a reading "Living Epistles".

Mrs. Vera Sine read a paper on "Why We Study the Bible", (1) Our souls need nourishment, the Bible is the best food; (2) To give us high and noble thoughts; (3) Restrains wrong impulses, keeps conscience alive and makes strong wills; (4) moulds character by the example of Christ; (5) Makes us better citizens; (6) It tells us all about God; (7) A very interesting book; (8) Helps us to help others; (9) It teaches us to pray.

Mrs. Copeland gave a reading about a smile, showing how it can influence a great many people.

The offering amounted to $2.59.

The W.A. will resume their monthly dinners in October the hostess being the President, Mrs. C. Copeland.

PHILLIPSTON-ZION W.I.

The September meeting of Phillipston-Zion Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Clarence Ketcheson with a good attendance. After the opening exercises business was conducted. It was decided to send a second parcel of food to a sister institute in England. It was reported that many bales of clothing and $52 had been colllected from the community for the Tornado Fund at Coe Hill.

The Sept. project was discussed in which each member is to check her home for fire prevention week.

Mrs. Rowe read the "Ten Commandments of the Institute"; and Mrs. Lee Ketcheson dealt with the subject "In a land that free men till, a man may speak the thing he will".

Mrs. R. Robson spoke on "Soil Conservation" in which she said only 16 per cent of our land is under cultivation. Is this land being used rightly? We can keep it fertile by 1. Good farming; 2. Use less land and produce more food; 3. Teach our young people to conserve and use the waste lands for reforestation.

Two contests were conducted and an interesting meeting brought to a close.

IVANHOE W.M.S.

The September meeting of the Ivanhoe W.M.S. was held, Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Charlie and Mrs. Clifford Mitz. Thirteen members were present and answered the Roll with a verse of Scripture. Plans were made to hold a pot-luck dinner and quilting in the near future the proceeds to go to the Coe Hill Tornado Fund. The Worship Service was conducted by the president, Mrs. George Wood, with the Scripture lesson read by Mrs. Clifford Mitz. Three members led in prayer, i.e. Mrs. Charlie Mitz, Mrs. McMillan and Mrs. Joseph Rollins. Leader of Group No. 1, Miss Cora Prest, led in the program from the Missionary Monthly. Inspiring readings on the lives of three great men St. Jerome, Wycliffe and Tyndale, (men of the 14th and 16th centuries, who through their labors, the Bible was given to England and the English-speaking world), were read by Mrs. J. F. Everson, Mrs. Jack Wickens and Mrs. H. McMillan. An interesting discussion followed and dainty refreshments were served.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

When playing bridge, a game he loves, with certain types of pards, he dishes out the boxing gloves before he deals the cards.

For some stubborn reason, several experts advise that a jump rebid in the same suit is not always forcing to game. As a result, some partners almost come to blows when such a bid is used.

A battle started in this pair:

SOUTH
♠ 7
♥ A Q 9
♦ A K J 10 9 5 2
♣ K 6
NORTH
♠ Q 8 4
♥ K 5 3 2
♦ 8 6
♣ Q 8 4 2

South opened with a diamond and north responded with a no-trump. So far so good. But when south then said three diamonds, partner in north passed. And the fight was on.

Almost every good bridge player admits that a jump bid signals partner not to stop short of game. No possible excuse can be offered for ignoring this rule and policy.

This meaning for a jump applies in a bid showing a new suit. Or in a bid that assists a suit bid by partner. I can discover no sound reason why it should fail to apply in a previously bid suit.

When is a player eligible for a one-jump bid? When he sees the total number of tricks needed for a game in his pair. To find out if he has them, he adds his own tricks to those partner has announced.

The north response promised three tricks. South has eight; five high cards, two short in spades, a short in clubs. Eight and three are 11; enough for a game in something.

The decision to jump was made by south after learning how many tricks north announced. This is known to north. So, how dare he quit short of game? How dare he?

By passing the south jump, do you see what north implies? He as much as shouts from the housetops that he has no confidence in what his partner says. He calls his partner a prevaricator.

If the jumper bids a suit only once, partner will not pass. He admits that. Should he pass only because the jumper shows a suit that is much stronger? Does that sound reasonable to you?

Sounds silly to me, too.

The Movie Column

By ARMOND ARCHERD

Hollywood, Sept. 22 (AP) — Rita Hayworth and Orson Welles will not be a life team much longer, but she assures me they will be a screen twosome for a long time to come. Rita, however, will be the boss.

All future Hayworth films will be made by her own outfit, Beckworth Productions, and she says, "I hope Orson will be in many of them — soon. Our personal differences have nothing to do with making pictures."

Tough Times

Agents are scurrying about town, for the first time, in an effort to place their clients in the few films being made. One $75,000-a-picture actress is being offered at $2,000 a week. Things are really tough.

Studio publicity departments have been pared to the bone. These are the guys who herald the stupendous feats of the industy.

Sick List

Esther Williams has an infected ear as a result of not following doctor's orders. She punctured an ear drum during a swimming sequence. Although she was ordered to keep out of the water, the screen mermaid had to get her fins wet. Now she's a sick girl... Additional medical note: Ellen Drew is home from the hospital where she received 13 blood transfusions which saved her expected child.

Off The Lots

Ted Donaldson, playing baseball in his pajamas, between takes of "Christopher Blake." ... Lana Turner is celebrating her 10th anniversary in films. Her first role was in "They Don't Forget." And we didn't ... Artie Wayne's of "That's What Your Heart is For" features a background furnished by the heartbeat of one of Hollywood's top actresses. We watched her record the beat but are sworn to secrecy ... Melvyn Douglas' first production for his own company will be "You Were Away," a post-war melodrama with a French background ... Dennis Morgan is back from locations in France. His company worked on Omaha and Utah beaches in Normandie, sites of the first American landings on French soil in 1944.

20,000 WITNESS MATCHED RACE AT MONTREAL

Saratoga Defeats Adage in Two Straight One-Mile Heats

Montreal, Sept. 22 — (CP)—A crowd of more than 20,000 witnessed the climax of a bitter sulky controversy at Richelieu Park yesterday when Saratoga defeated Adage in two straight one-mile heats to capture $12,000 of which $10,000 represented a wager between the owners of the two horses.

Owned by J. J. Beaudoin and L. Bourdon of Sorel, Que., the nine-year-old Saratoga captured the first heat by a half length and went on to win the best-of-three special event by a head in the second run. The crowd, which swarmed over the small track, was the largest ever to witness a harness race event in Canada and the purse was reputed to be the largest ever offered harness racers in the Dominion.

Saratoga was trained and driven by H. Lachapelle while Adage, a seven-year-old, was trained and driven by Philippe Dussault. Adage's owner is J. R. Rivard.

Saratoga went into an early lead from the first closing of the automatic starting gate and was never headed in either heat. Running close to the rail, Saratoga made the two turns of the half mile track in the good time of 2.06 in the first heat.

In the second heat, Saratoga set a slow pace and Adage followed a few yards behind until the three-quarter mark when driver Dussault made his bid; but the drive fell short and Saratoga won by a head in the slow time of 2.16 4/5.

SYRACUSE CHIEFS ONE GAME UP OVER THE BISONS

Buffalo Roars Back Into Contention With 9-5 Win on Sunday

(By The Associated Press)

Buffalo Bisons, who came from behind yesterday to save themselves another chance at the International League playoff title, move back to Syracuse today bent on tying up the best-of-seven series which now stands 3-2 in the Chiefs' favor.

The Bisons, now 5-0 at the end of four innings Sunday, roared back for a 9-5 decision. The Chiefs romped to a 13-8 victory Saturday.

Jim Prendergast, who stifled the Bisons earlier in the series, probably will start for the Chiefs tonight, while rookies southpaw Billy Pierce is expected to be manager Paul Richards' choice for Buffalo.

Coarker Triplett's two-run homer in the sixth and Neil Berry's in the eighth sewed up Sunday's game for the Bisons. Clem Hausmann gained credit for the victory, his second of the series, and Mike Schultz was the loser.

Syracuse stowed away Saturday's game with a six-run uprising in the sixth after two were down. Five of the markers were unearned.

Stratford Kroehlers Win in Two Straight

Port Colborne, Sept. 22 (CP)—Stratford Kroehlers defeated Port Colborne Canadian Furnace by 6 to 4 here Saturday night to take the fifth round of the O.A.S.A. Intermediate "A" play-offs in two straight games. Port Colborne played the game under protest after Herbert Dench went to the Stratford mound in the seventh, Port Colborne claiming that his pitching was illegal. Dench went into the game with the score tied four all, Stratford scoring the two winning runs in the eighth. Umpires Svole, St. Catharines and Gardener of Stratford ruled that Dench's pitching was legal.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, Sept. 22 (AP)—The rassling folks are steaming up a series of three "matches" between Primo Carnera and Tony Galento. St. Louis and Boston are the likely spots for two—and the third in the Chamber of Horrors, we assume..Domino, one of Assault's ancestors, ran in two match races—against dobbins as a two-year-old and against Henry of Navarre at three. Both ended in dead heats...Tom Galla, Georgetown's 200-pound fullback, is an accomplished violinist. But he doesn't fiddle around...California golfers are looking for big things from Ron Livingston, 16-year-old San Gabriel high school star who can shoot in the low 70s...When fullback Ted Fritsch reported at the professional Green Bay Packers' grid training camp he entered the luxurious lodge lugging a bootblack stand and shouted: "Come and get it, boys. Five cents a shine—and don't forget, I got a concession."....A couple of fumbles and he'll need it.

Names Are News

Abe Lincoln is a centre on the Texas Christian University football squad...George Boston, who used to play for Harvard, now is at Boston University..And Loran Day plays halfback for Northwestern...Naturally his teammates call him "Mrs. Lippy."

Kentucky's Adolph Rupp maintains that television will be a big help to basketball scouts because the camera closeups reveal playing flaws that can't be noticed ordinarily...and certainly the seats at home are softer...Jim Tatum has had a nine-foot fence built around Maryland's "secret" football field. Suppose they'll call the place the Tatum patch?

Drawled the lanky Stewart:

"They say for Heaven's sake, don't have your hat on the back of your head.

"And don't pick up the telephone and make the receiver do a somersault in the air.

"And don't wear a trench coat."

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE R. CARVER, Sports Editor.

A sparsely-thatched pate topping a face wearing an infectious smile slowly lifted itself from a heterogeneous collection of hockey gear in the main dressing room at Memorial Arena the other day. Finally it emerged from a shower of shinpads, shoulder pads, elbow pads, and an array of sweaters and pants the colors of which would make Joseph's coat look like soiled dungarees.

* * *

The smiling gentleman, built like a Notre Dame backfielder, was Ed. "Lefty" Jordan, popular trainer of the Philadelphia Rockets, who with his "boys" have been champing at the hockey bit since last Monday. About all that "Lefty" has had to do is to get his beloved gear into some semblance of order. There are at least three complete uniforms for each member of the team, besides extras. Skates had to be sharpened. Each pair tagged with the name of the owner. Hockey sticks, some of them $3.50 each, were sorted and arranged in order. But still the big fella chafed at the inactivity. He'll get his full share in from now on as the team went through its initial skating workout at the Arena last night.

* * *

He's a likeable cuss this "Lefty." True, there might be slight evidence of equatorial expansion, but on the whole he's built like an athlete and well he should, for he has a sports record that reads like an athletic encyclopedia. He's quiet, soft-spoken "off the ice." When he goes into action, he's a "Lefty" of another hue. Its the job that counts and "the boys" must be in the pink of condition, or else. He has modern equipment, even to mechanical air-baths for prevention of athlete's foot.

* * *

And among his many other accomplishments "Lefty" is a registered chiropractor. His proud boast, and he's a modest guy, is that he does eighteen holes in 140; can polish off a couple of rare steaks in three minutes flat; can do the hundred in something like 20, unless chased by a gendarme when he lowers that mark to 19.; would rather smoke one good cigar than three dozen of the Shah of Persia's cigarettes; and girls, he has yet to pop the question.

* * *

"Lefty" first saw the light of day in Hamilton. He teethed on aa football; went to his crib each night with a pair of boxing gloves; exchanged his feeding bottle for a lacrosse stick, heaved his first softball through a window at a tender age, and shortly after mastered the intricacies of cribbage.

* * *

He starred on a Hamilton high school football team for five years and later played in the backfield for the Toronto Argonauts, the Hamilton Tigers, and was a member of the Ambitious City's Wildcats when they won the Dominion title in 1942.

* * *

He studied the manly art during his offseason on the lacrosse field and the gridiron and at one time held the welterweight and middleweight amateur championships of Canada. His lacrosse days saw him play with the Hamilton Tigers and the Burlington Combines. He was a member of the Proctor-Gamble softball squad from Hamilton, another championship organization.

* * *

"Lefty" turned to the Royal Canadian Navy during the World War II and between sea patrols got in a lot of football. He was the playing coach of a Navy football squad for one year, and trained other teams during his naval career. He saw three years with the Senior Service. He has also played baseball with Toronto and Hamilton senior clubs.

* * *

He took up training seriously after leaving the service and he has been associated in this respect with football squads, the Hamilton Lacrosse Club, the Hamilton Leander Rowing Club and others. Last year he was the trainer for the Fort Worth, Texas, Rangers of the American Hockey League, and his work was of such high calibre that Coach Wally Kilrea prevailed upon "Lefty" to join the Rockets with him.

* * *

The Rockets went through a light skating drill at the Arena last night, and today they will settle down to the heavy training grind. The first "shift" made up of rookies and a few pros took to the ice at 9.20 this morning followed by others at intermittent periods. They went through drills this afternoon and tonight they will get a stiffer workout.

* * *

* * *

With the pro players are defencemen Eddie Bush; Jack Portland; Billy Walsh; Jim Drummond, and Alex Motter; centres Walter Stefaniw; Johnny Mahaffey, and Kenny Kilrea; and wingers Bob Walton; Wendell Jamieson; Steve Wochy; Ralph Duncan; Mike Naeduzzi; Chuck Craiger; Lou Trudel, former N.H.L. star acquired by the Rockets may not report due to business reasons. Nick Damore, regular goalie, had not reported last night, but Phil Hergesheimer, star winger and American League leading scorer last year, will arrive here on Wednesday.

* * *

Albert College gridders are beginning to shape up physically under the expert eye of Coach Don Huycke, former Western U. star backfielder. Huycke is putting the boys through their P. T. grind and expects to have them in ti-top shape for the opening game. On Saturday, Sept. 28 the Collegians meet Regiopolis College in an exhibition tilt in Kingston. It will be the first test of the year and much hinges on their performance. Newcomers to the squad number 12 and include John Dewar, Windsor; Ralph Martin, Galt; and Grant Shwoers of Leamington.

* * *

Incidentally Don Huycke has joined the Galloping Ghosts of Cobourg and will be seen in action with them against Queen's Seconds in Kingston September 28, with his Albert College squad watching from the sidelines. A decided innovation in football training is noted in the fact that due to his school activities Huycke could not find time to trek to Cobourg to practice with the Ghost backfield. The Ghost management apparently weren't "fazed" a bit by that situation. The remedy was simple. They sent the Cobourg backfield to Albert College to work out with the fleet-footed Huycke.

City Assured of Professional Baseball Next Year as Joint Stock Company is Formed

With the successful organization of a group of prominent Belleville business men on Saturday, professional baseball next Summer is practically assured for this city.

The new organization will be known temporarily as the Belleville Athletic Club, and will immediately function for the securing and exercising of a franchise in the Border Class 'C" Professional League.

Heading the new organization is Mr. Jack Yanover, proprietor of the New Queen's Hotel and well-known sportsman. Other officials include, Vice President, Bill Cook; Secretary Treasurer, Lorne McDougall; and Directors, Don Thomas and Fred Rawson. Other members of the club are Messrs. Bob Pringle, A. McLean Haig; "Toots" Holway and Frank Follwell. Two others will be added to this roster in the immediate future.

The above will form a stock company and will be responsible for the financing of the project. Plenty of enthusiasm marked the meeting which was held on Saturday afternoon, and plans are already under way for the furtherance of the proposition.

Efforts will be made immediately to contact a Triple "A" baseball squad with a view to a tie-up with the proposed Belleville team. This would mean a steady influx of players, as well as the appointment of an experienced professional coach. If these plans fall through, contacts will be established with a major league team.

Contacts made on Saturday with a Triple "A" squad made a favorable impression, and it was felt by the Belleville Athletic Club that very few barriers will be placed in the way of a tie-up with an upper brackets club.

Other tentative plans call for considerable improvements on the baseball field at the Exhibition Grounds. Suggestions that special bleachers be erected near the first and third baselines were favorably received, and will probably be acted on before the official season starts next Spring.

The entry of the Belleville team in the Border League will be received with enthusiasm with the new Peterborough entry, and that of the veteran Kingston Ponies. With Ottawa already in, the prospects for a Canadian section of the loop look exceedingly bright.

Proposal Studies

The proposal to exercise a franchise in the Border League was studied carefully from all angles by the members of the new Athletic Club. Finance, of course, was the main subject, but after lengthy discussion, and consideration of all phases of the proposition, it was felt that the venture would be a success.

Another meeting will be held this week at which President Jack Ward, Ogdensburg, N.Y., head of the Border League will be present.

In the meantime, the directors of the club are losing no time in getting the groundwork laid for the operation next year of Belleville's first professional baseball team in nearly six decades.

CANADIAN SPORT SNAPSHOTS

By ROBERT CLARKE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, Sept. 22 — (CP) — Like the old gray mare, hockey ain't what it used to be. That, at least, is the opinion of Dunc (Montreal Gazette) MacDonald, who sheds printed tears over what he terms the passing of all the fun out of the game.

Dunc mentions the names of Jimmy Strachan, Maj. Frederick McLaughlin, Tommy Gorman, Art Ross, Lester Patrick, Conny Smythe and Leo Dandurand. And then he adds, "Only two of those we have named are dead, Strachan and McLaughlin, but the others have mellowed and they do not have the fire they used to have."

Dunc goes on:

"We think Maroons were the greatest competitive club we ever saw. The chips were always down. They were the kind of guys that hated to lose; particularly to Canadiens. Fellows like Hooley Smith, never a really great hockey player, but he made you think he was one when you watched him play, and Dunc Munro was never a great defenceman either, no Gerard or Eddie Shore or Sprague Cleghorn, but when he got that puck and barged up the ice he meant business."

Dunc says he will always remember when Art Ross had the "bitterest tongue in the league and could coin a phrase with the best of them." He tells of the time, in a game between Boston and Toronto, when Ross was berating the referees. King Clancy, then captain of the Toronto club, intruded in the argument.

Says Dunc:

"Ross is telling the referees what he thinks about the situation and all the time Clancy is trying to get a word in. Jumping up and down on his skates and yelling in that high-pitched voice he has when he gets excited. Ross pays no attention to him but tells off the referee and then finally turns to Clancy and says, "Get back up your tree.""

Jimmy Strachan, the leader of Maroons, was of the same timbre, says Dunc. Win, lose or draw the other guy was always your enemy was Strachan's motto, Dunc adds. He tells of the time when Canadiens and Maroons, arch foes for many seasons, played to a scoreless draw. The game ended with a centre ice slugfest between Hooley Smith and Albert (Battleship) Leduc.

Says Dunc:

"We tried to write it that way and to say that the result was a true reflection of the play. Jimmy Strachan called us up the next day and he was furious. "You're just a gol'dang Canadiens supporter," he stormed.

Dr. George A. Faulkner and Myles Morton, took the major honors in the final round of the Tip Top Trophy Tournament for the men's championship of the Bay of Quinte Country Club on Sunday.

Dr. Faulkner won the title with a low net score of 134, while young Mr. Morton chased him to the wire with a neat 137. Faulkner also won first prize for the sweepstakes with a score of 74 low gross with Morton again taking second place with a low net of 70. The sweepstakes prizes were golf balls.

The tournament attracted a large field of club players and many topflight golfers finished in the ruck. Play was consistent and the course was in excellent condition for this time of the year.

What MAKES a good citizen?

A good citizen respects himself... and respects the rights of others.

He avoids bigotry and intolerance.

He is moderate in his thinking and moderate in his actions.

He is moderate in his use of luxuries.

When an occasion calls for the enjoyment of whisky, the good citizen knows, as The House of Seagram has so frequently pointed out, that he has a personal responsibility to himself, to his family and to his country.

It is to "drink moderately"... or not at all!

CHAPTER 19.

He began a weary diatribe on their prospects and was about to cap it with an axiom when he stopped himself in time. Where Bessy and Beulah were concerned, an axiom was an old saw that didn't cut. With his own eyes he had seen them find needles in haystacks and thread them with camels. So he told them to go ahead.

"We may have a little trouble," Beulah admitted. "No claim ticket Where'll we bring it?"

"Call me at Kloppel's . . ." he said.

Miss Plummer looked from Miss Brady to the doctor, and then, fearfully, to the detective.

He was smiling down at her, in a nice way, as if he understood how she felt.

"You want to tell me something, don't you?" he asked gravely.

"Yes, sir." She turned heavily in the bed and faced the door. "I have it on my mind that Ruth Miller was murdered."

No one spoke until he said, "Why, Miss Plummer?"

"I have it on my mind, that's all I can say. And I think the one that did it knows how I feel."

"Do you know who did it, Miss Plummer?"

"No." They had left the door open, and the hall was quiet. She could hear the elevator in the distance. If it stopped at her floor, she'd know. "But I am responsible in a way. I sent her to her death."

He sat beside her on the bed. "Tell me what you mean when you say you sent Ruth to her death."

"It was the night of the party. I sent Ruth upstairs to get the bandages when the chef was hurt."

Miss Brady said, "Ruth? You sent Ruth?"

She answered painfully. "Yes, Miss Brady. I know it was Ruth. She spoke to me, I knew her voice, and she said she didn't know where Miss Brady's room—" She stopped and wet her lips.

"Go on, Ethel," Miss Brady said sharply. "What are you stopping for? You sent her to my room. So what? I wasn't there."

"I know," she said humbly. "You were down in the kitchen with Miss Small. I didn't mean anything, Miss Brady, I'm only trying to straighten myself out." She turned to Mark. "I know it was her. And even if I hadn't known for certain, I'd have guessed. Because she walked up. She was the only one who did that. She was afraid of the automatic elevator."

The elevator. She could hear it running now. It had been quiet for perhaps a minute, but now it was running again.

"What time was that Miss Plummer? Between 8 and 8:30, wasn't it?"

"Nearer 8:30."

"She didn't come back?"

The elevator was stopping. She heard the big metal door slide back with a muffled clang. She had less than a minute. "I never saw her again, never, never. Somebody brought me the iodine and bandages, but I don't know who, I don't. I don't. I found them on the desk a long time later but I didn't see who put them there. She didn't, I know that, she didn't. I never saw her again. She was dead. Murdered."

Footsteps, coming down the hall, coming to the door. She closed her eyes and waited.

Dr. Kloppel was the first to speak, and his voice was mild and natural. "Good morning," he said. "It looks like a white Christmas, doesn't it? You know Mr. East? Mr. East, Mrs. Fister."

Ella didn't answer. Miss Plummer heard Mr. East say, "How do you do, Mrs. Fister. I wonder if you'll get me a glass of water?" She heard the rattle of the glass in the coaster as he took it from the bed table, heard Ella's heavy tread crossing the room, going back to the door, going down the hall without a word. Heard Miss Brady say, "I'm leaving, you don't need me now."

When she was sure they were alone, she put out her hand, blindly. "Agnes," she whispered. "Agnes. Room 206. Talk to Agnes, she knows."

Agnes was expecting them. Mark knew that before they reached her door. He had stopped at the hall telephone to call Foy's man on the seventh floor. He told him that no one was to enter Miss Harris's room and added that "no one" meant anything in human form regardless of how it dressed and talked. When he turned from the phone he saw the door of 206 standing open. Agnes was waiting.

"Well, Agnes?" he said.

"Come in, sir. You too, doctor. . . . So she lost her nerve."

"Was that it?" Mark asked.

"Yes, sir. It's no good in me trying to explain, it has to do with too many things. And aside from that, nobody likes to be the one to point the finger. But I've always been a bold piece. I want to talk. And since you were the one to bring this thing to light, I want to talk to you. Foy had his chance, and what did he do? . . Are you in as big a hurry as I am?"

"Yes. I want to see Lillian Harris as soon as possible.

Something like affection showed in her eyes. "You're a cute one. Now you come over here, both of you." She led them to her bureau. "This is what Miss Plummer wanted to tell you. One of the things." She gave him the costume, neatly folded. "Shake it out, show it to the doctor. He knows what it is, he's seen one like it before."

He felt as if he had seen one, too, even seen the one he held in his hand. He knew the fringed lashes, the yellow curls, the twisted, pouting lips; the long, full sleeves, the clumsy skirt that would almost touch the floor. He folded the mask and put it in his pocket with a casual air, because he also knew the small, brown mole.

"I've been wondering what happened to the costumes," he said.

"Locked up in the linen closet. The very next day. Every girl who wore one turned it in and was checked off. All except the one that was burned. You know which one....I'd like to call your attention to that hem."

"You don't have to. I saw it."

She sat down abruptly. "I'm so relieved I could scream," she said. She was almost crying. "Mr. East, we've had a terrible time here and a terrible night that's just passed. We can't have another. If we do, I don't know what may happen to—to one of us."

"To any one of you in particular, Agnes?"

"Maybe Miss Harris, I don't know. Maybe—that's what's killing us by inches! We don't know, we can't be sure. There isn't a single one I'd trust, not one."

He gave the costume to Dr. Kloppel. "Can you get this out of the house for me?"

Dr. Koppel hesitated. "Foy?"

"Foy had his chance," Agnes said.

St. Clair River Scene of Three Drownings

(By The Canadian Press)

Three women were drowned in Western Ontario's St. Clair river, a house fire in St. John, N. B., took the lives of two men and other accidents accounted for 10 more deaths in Eastern Canada during the weekend, a Canadian Press survey showed today.

In addition, Mr. and Mrs. George Pitt of Toronto were reported missing on a motorboat trip across Lake Simcoe in Ontario's Muskoka District and were feared drowned.

In the multiple drowning, three Wallaceburg Ont., residents —Mrs. Ernest Benoit, 35; Mrs. Palmyra Jansens, 28, and Mrs. Verna Schram, 30 — were carried into the water when an automobile being cranked by Ernest Benoit, husband of one of the victims, plunged off a ferry at Port Lambton, Ont.

Police said they were detaining Benoit on a "holding charge" of drunkenness.

Another Ontario drowning involved an automobile. Police said Charles Ireland, 82, of Caledonia, Ont., lost his life when he backed his car out of a driveway and into the Grand River at Caledonia.

Victims of the fire which swept a dwelling 15 miles from Saint John were tentatively identified as Harry St. Clair Andrews 38, and William A. Moore.

The body of 37-year-old Elvey Martin was found shot through the chest on Lundy's Lane near Niagara Falls. Police Chief Melvin Tisdale of Niagara Falls said a bullet fired by Constable W. H. Kinghorn as he pursued a fleeing car may have struck Martin. Kinghorn has been suspended pending investigation.

Jacqueline Fontaine, 21, of Montreal, was accidentally shot to death when a friend's revolver discharged.

Victims of traffic mishaps were: John McDonald and Leslie Kidd, both about 10, Caledon, Ont., Mrs. Wesley Seabrook, Fraserville, Ont.,; William J. Marks Minete's Point, Ont.; James R. Rogers, Stratford, Ont.; and Mrs. Mary Vickers, 66, of Brighton Ont.

Greek Govt. Maps Plans for Drive Against Guerrillas

Athens, Sept. 22 (AP) — Greece's army, navy and air force chiefs of staff were summoned to meet today with the ministers of war, air, marine and public order to map plans for a new drive against guerrillas who do not surrender under a 30-day amnesty offer recently extended by the government.

Preparations for the drive were keyed to a program to increase the 130,000 - man Greek army by 70,000 regulars and 70,000 militia, a program which has been approved by the United States Aid Mission. Funds for the increase in the military establishment will come from the $300,000,000 in aid allotted to Greece by the United States Congress.

Dispatches from Northern Greece, meanwhile, indicated that the guerillas for the most part were ignoring the amnesty offer. Weekend advices told of a series of engagements in which approximately 320 guerrillas were killed or captured.

JUVENILE GAMBLING HAUNT DISCOVERED IN WOODS

Probation officer Richard W. Wickes said complaints of the gambling had been coming into his office for three years. It wasn't until police raided a secluded spot in a woods that police found about a dozen youths playing cards and dice.

The games were held at night light coming from torches made of rags stuffed in kerosene jars.

ROB OIL MAN AND GUESTS

Ballinger, Tex., Sept. 22—(AP) — Three masked men armed with sub-machine-guns Saturday night robbed a wealthy oil man and his guests of $17,000 in cash and jewelry. The men escaped after firing 10 to 15 rounds to damage automobiles at the scene.

Trail of Heavy Damage Left In Wake of Storm

Albany, N.Y., Sept. 22 (CP)— Gales which swept Southern Ontario and parts of New York State, Pennsylvania and Michigan left a trail of heavy damage in their wake and a small boat was feared lost on Lake Michigan.

It was not known whether the boat was definitely lost or how many were aboard as only indication of distress were flares seen from shore. Two Buffalo fishermen were drowned Sunday when their boat capsized in rough waters on the Niagara River near the Peace Bridge.

Communications were disrupted, power lines were down and a large number of buildings damaged by the winds, which were expected to continue today in the United States areas.

Winds up to 50-55 miles an hour were recorded with several districts left without power or telephone facilities. A tool shed on a Buffalo construction project collapsed. In the Erie, Pa., area, heavy overnight rainstorms were expected to add to the wind damage.

In Benton Harbor, Mich., the blow sent up the price of peaches. Hundreds, perhaps thousands, of bushels of peaches were blown off trees and damaged. The price of No. 1 Albertas jumped from $1.65 to $2 a bushel.

'Brother Twelve' fools Police

For a man who had started life as a simple clerk in Victoria, B.C., Edward Arthur Wilson, alias Brother Twelve, had done all right for himself. Early in 1929, there were several score of lucky people in his colony, the great Aquarian Foundation, situated on Vancouver Island's east coast. Because he had told them he was the one link between the human and the spirit world, they had entrusted him with all their worldly goods — hundreds of thousands of dollars worth — and didn't mind doing hard manual labour 20 hours a day. The Standard this week tells what happened when the police finally caught up with Brother Twelve and Madame Zee — his partner in crime. Get The Standard today — on sale at all newsdealers. Parley of Labor Ministers May Be Called on Strike

Drew Wires Suggestion To Provincial Premiers

(By The Canadian Press)

A conference at Toronto Sept. 26 of eight provincial Ministers of Labor was suggested by Premier George Drew today as the Ontario Government renewed its efforts to settle a strike of 12,000 packing house workers which has crippled meat production in Canada.

"The Premier said he had wired the suggestion to premiers of seven provinces so that the ministers could explore every possibility of reaching some agreement by which work can be resumed immediately in the packing plants across Canada."

The conference could by-pass a difficulty brought about by the Dominion government transferring its jurisdiction in labor disputes back to the provinces, although the Dominion could intervene if asked. The United Packinghouse Workers of America (C.I.O.) has refused to bargain for its wage demands except on a Dominion-wide basis.

It was reported officially that the U.P.W.A. refused to send its more than 12,000 members back to work until settlement of its demand for a 17-cents-an-hour increase to bring the average minimum wage to 92 cents was reached.

The strike closed plants of Swift Canadian, Burns and Company, and Canada Packers.

John Lenglet, U.P.W.A. Research Director, said last night in an address over a Toronto radio station that conciliation on a provincial basis would delay settlement for many months." There appeared to be no sign of an early end to the tie-up, he added.

Meanwhile there were indications that from the standpoint of the consumer and the livestock raiser the strike was not proving the hardship originally predicted.

A Canadian Press survey showed that most retailers expected to be able to meet consumer demands until the weekend although the threat remained that a prolonged strike might cause a severe shortage.

Choice of meat was restricted and some small retailers reported stocks dwindling. But it appeared for the moment that the expected meat famine had been averted by independent packers not affected by the strike and by farmers slaughtering their own animals to meet local requirements.

A Canada Packers spokesman said 35 government-inspected packing plants and about 100 uninspected plants were operating, in addition to many hundreds of butchers and local slaughterhouses operating at full capacity in every province.

Special Licence For Royal Wedding Has Been Issued

London, Sept. 23 — (CP) — A Royal special licence for the Nov. 20 wedding of Princess Elizabeth and Lieut. Philip Mountbatten has been issued from the Faculty Office of the Archbishop of Canterbury and is en route to the King, together with a document giving His Majesty's Royal assent, without which the licence could not have been issued.

The licence is a piece of vellum 25½ inches by 22 with lettering in old engrossing by hand — a style used for legal documents as far back as 1600 but which went out of use at the end of the 19th Century.

The licence, to which is attached a £5 ($20) stamp, reads:

"Dated 22nd day of September, 1947.

PETKOV EXECUTED DESPITE PROTEST OF U.S., BRITAIN

Conviction Miscarriage of Justice in View of Both Powers

Sofia, Sept. 23 — (AP)—Nikola Petkov, leader of the opposition Agrarian Union, was executed at midnight last night, it was announced today, for alleged plotting against Bulgaria's Communist-controlled government. Reuters news agency says Petkov was hanged.

The execution was carried out despite protests from both the United States and Britain, which had termed Petkov's conviction a miscarriage of justice.

His last chance of escaping the death penalty, which was imposed Aug. 16, vanished last Thursday when the Bulgarian Supreme Court rejected his appeal.

Previously, the United States had sought a review of the Petkov case by the Allied Control Commission in Bulgaria, composed of representatives of the United States, Russia and Britain. Russia contended such action would constitute intervention in Bulgaria's internal affairs.

The United States subsequently — with British backing — appealed directly to Moscow to take a hand in reviewing the case, but without results.

Petkov had been under arrest since June 6, when he was formally charged with plotting to overthrow the government and establish a new regime with himself at its head. He firmly denied the charges at his trial.

Deep in Political Turmoil

Nikola Dimitrov Petkov, 54, was deep in the political turmoil of Bulgaria long before the Second World War. As leader of the Agrarian party he was involved in 1938 in what the government called a campaign against King Boris III, and in November of that year he and six of his Agrarian members were expelled from parliament.

ONLY LABEL IS CHANGED

Baltimore, Sept. 23 —(AP)— Dr. Isaiah Bowman, president of Johns Hopkins University and No. 1 geographical adviser to the late President Roosevelt during the Second World War, said today that "Communism is absolutism designed to be more ruthless and complete than Czarism."

"Only the label is changed," he said in an address to incoming students at the university.

LUXURY, INCOME TAX REDUCTIONS ARE PREDICTED

See Possible Surplus In March as Great As Or Greater Than That Of Past Year

Toronto, Sept. 23 —(CP)— Reduction of luxury and income taxes in the next federal budget was predicted today in an Ottawa datelined story carried by the Toronto Star.

The Star said reduced income taxes would account "for about half the reduction in taxes that is coming."

"The remainder will come from the taxes on jewelry, tobacco products, soft drinks and the like, often referred to as nuisance taxes," the story added.

Ottawa—(CP)—Federal treasury figures for the first five months of the current fiscal year indicate that Finance Minister Abbott may complete the year with a surplus as great, if not greater, than the $352,000,000 surplus for 1946-47. The fiscal year ends March 31, 1948.

While Finance Department officials are cautious about predicting the year's final outcome, one of their number said today he believed the surplus would be greater than the surplus of $190,000,000 forecast by Mr. Abbott in his budget speech last April 29. He felt it would be less than $500,000,000, although the surplus for the first five months amounted to $443,699,258.

In the first five months of the 1946-47 fiscal year the surplus was only $151,600,393. That figure grew to $352,000,000, largely as a result of $372,000,000 received from sales of surplus war materials by War Assets Corporation. These sales are now dropping off to a mere trickle.

For instance, from April 1 to Aug. 31, 1947, receipts from war assets amounted to $19,790,908, compared with $91,865,127 in the corresponding period of 1946.

Revenues in the five-month period amounted to $1,170,816,298, against $1,147,712,752, and expenditures to $727,117,040, against $996,112,361.

The Finance Department official said he expected that in coming months revenues would drop off and expenditures increase. This was usually the case in the past. This year the income tax reductions announced in the budget became effective only on July 1 and their effect will be felt in coming months. These and other tax cuts were expected to reduce the year's revenue by $160,000,000.

The official said it was impossible to foresee until near the end of the fiscal year the amount of revenues from special receipts. This made it difficult to forecast the possible size of the surplus.

Should another $350,000,000 surplus be realized, it is believed that fairly heavy income tax cuts may be expected in the 1948-49 budget. The cuts likely would not be such, however, as to eliminate the possibility of another surplus next year.

The government's announced policy is to whittle away at the public debt while revenues and employment are high. This can only be done by keeping revenues ahead of expenditures.

Plane Flown Across Atlantic Ocean Without Pilot at the Controls

By JAMES J. STREBIG

Washington, Sept. 23 (AP) — The pushbutton flight of a United States Air Force C54 across the North Atlantic may point the way to railroad regularity for airlines and the elimination of human error in the cockpit.

The four-engined skymaster, known as "The Big Push," flew 2,400 miles from Stephenville, Nfld., to Brize Norton airport in England yesterday without a hand on the controls after the starting button was touched.

A crew of nine rode along "just in case," and there were five passengers, including some British observers.

While the venture brought immediate speculation of pushbutton atomic warfare, the United States Air Force regards it only as part of an extensive study in the problems of all-weather flying.

An air force officer said the flight of "The Big Push" proceeded in this manner.

The control mechanism, which operates 20 different items in the airplane, was fully adjusted, the plane was taxied to the end of the runway and headed for takeoff. Then the master switch was thrown. Automatically, the throttles were pushed to take off position, and after eight seconds the brakes were released. The plane started down the runaway, lifted into the air, and when it reached 800 feet altitude the throttles were automatically retarded to climb position.

The plane then climbed to 9,000 feet, and the throttles were pulled back to cruise position. At that time also the plane's radio picked up a directional beam from a picket or guide ship about a third of the way across the ocean.

An automatic direction finder (known as "Adf") thereupon actuated the controls to keep the plane headed directly toward the ship along the radio beam. When the plane reached the "cone of silence" or dead spot immediately above the ship the receiver automatically turned in another frequence and the "adf" then homed on a second ship farther along the course.

When that was reached the radio turned to a third frequency, originating at the British airfield.

Then the plane homed on the glide path, a sloping beam which is part of the equipment at 100 or more airports in the United States, and flew down to the runway. After allowing a certain time for roll following the touchdown on the wheels, the brakes were automatically applied.

The crew, which had done nothing for 10 hours, taxied the plane off the runway.

Board Eligible for Grant of $1,000 to Erect Pylon, Flagpole or Plaque

Provincial archives at Queens Park, Toronto, reveal that the Belleville Exhibition is 105 years of age this year, and as such is eligible for the government grant of $1,000, given to provincial fairs exceeding the century mark, Andy Clarke, well-known CBC broadcaster of "Neighborly News" announced last night prior to declaring the Belleville Fair officially open.

The familiar voice of "Neighborly News" rang out over the microphones through near-frosty air to an overflowing grandstand, bleachers and other available space that ushered in the first night of the three-day show of the Exhibition.

Nearly three thousand people crowded the grandstand for the opening ceremonies and Lucky Lott's Hell Drivers. The Garden Shows grandstand performance was not offered last night but opened with a matinee this afternoon. It was estimated that nearly 7,000 people attended the opening day and night of the Fair.

"I'd like to tell you", Mr. Clarke said, in his opening remarks "that you have good grounds for securing the grant of $1,000 for a pylon or cairn, or flagpole and plaque."

Organized in 1842

"The first Hastings County Agricultural Society was organized about the year 1842, according to word I received from Queen's Park" he went on. "This was one of the earliest societies of the province and in the next three or four years branch societies were organized in several townships of the county. A report published by William Hutton of Belleville in 1852 included the following:

"The good which these societies have done in this county is now apparent and truly gratifying to those who have been connected with them since their formation. They have enabled the farmer to procure seeds of various kinds from a distance, giving him the benefit of a change which his private unaided means could not accomplish."

Fairs Create Rivalry

"By the association of members together, they have been the means of creating a rivalry and competition and honorable emulation in the management of farms, far more than the mere desire of obtaining money premiums creates.

"They have enabled the farmer to improve the breed of horses and also to cultivate finer fruits and vegetables, and they can and will be made the means of enabling him to diverge into the growth and cultivation of new varieties of crops. Combination of associations of men can always effect much more good than individuals separately."

Mr. Clarke pointed out the fact that the Belleville Fair is recognized as one of the outstanding Class "B" fairs in Ontario, and has been progressive in all its activities.

Early Frost Causes Heavy Loss, Vast Vegetable Areas Ruined

(By The Canadian Press)

Ontario's crops suffered damage unofficially estimated at hundreds of thousands of dollars as one of the earliest fall frosts in history hit many districts, early today, ruining vast areas of vegetables.

In the Niagara district practically the whole crop of cucumbers, melons, peppers and beans was destroyed and tomatoe plants were damaged. Similar reports of heavy damage came from Eastern and Northern Ontario, where the temperature plummeted to as much as eight degrees below freezing.

From Toronto, where the temperature dropped to 37 and ground frosts were reported in the suburbs, the frost area generally extended east and north. Western Ontario mostly escaped except for reports of light frosts in some districts.

Oddly enough, the St. Catharines district escaped as growers from Vineland to Queenston reported no frost damage. But at Niagara Falls growers surveyed their ruined fields after a heavy wind storm at the weekend played havoc with the late peach and apple crops.

Farther west at St. Thomas tobacco plants were black with frost and root crops suffered in West Elgin. But Galt and other cities were above freezing.

In Eastern Ontario Peterborough reported that from four to six degrees of frost practically killed everything in the vegetable line. Canneries had hoped for another week before cold set in. Similar reports came from Kingston and Belleville.

In Northern Ontario, where at least eight degrees of frost were recorded, farmers saw their gardens killed. An optimistic report came from North Bay where F. O. McCrae, agriculture representative, said it was unlikely there would be any damage to potatoes or other root crops.

An estimated 60 per cent of the tomato crop was ruined in Hastings and Prince Edward Edward counties where growers found tomatoes frozen solid. The counties are the second largest tomato-producing district in the province. The other big tomato section, Essex County, mainly escaped damage.

Some tomatoes may be salvaged for juice, growers said, but the loss is disastrous as the canning season is at its height now and only a relatively small percentage of the tomato crop has been processed.

Sugar Rationing In Canada May End in Month

Ottawa, Sept. 23 — (CP)—Possibilities of an early removal of sugar rationing — perhaps within the next month—were strengthened today by a Washington announcement of the lifting of all international controls on the white sweetening.

While there was no official comment here, it was conceded that the removal of the international allocation, prompted by improved world supplies, had virtually swept away any necessity for retention of the Canadian ration, which works out to 44 pounds annually for each consumer.

At its present rate, the ration is sufficiently close to pre-war domestic consumption to make abolition feasible.

While the ration is expected to go, there is no likelihood of the removal of the price ceiling on sugar as the purchase of this commodity is in the hands of a government agency — Canadian Sugar Stabilization Corp., Ltd. The policy has been to retain ceilings where the purchase of imports are handled by the government.

The Washington announcement said the International Emergency Food Council had lifted its controls because of the record Cuban crop this year and good prospects for 1948 output.

Further Attacks On Refugees Are Reported

Amritsar, India, Sept. 23. — (Reuters)— Amritsar, Holy City of the Sikhs and vital link on the Moslem refugee train from India into Pakistan, was tense today as further attacks on refugees were reported and a train carrying 100 cholera victims was halted outside the city.

Amritsar's death roll from cholera has reached 70 during the last few days and the disease has been reported from several refugee camps.

One train carrying over 2,000 refugees was attacked three times by Moslems, non-Moslem refugees told military evacuation headquarters.

Casualties on the train were variously estimated between 300 and 1,000, although Pakiston military authorities declared they did not exceed 80.

Later a convoy of Moslem refugees passing through Amritsar was attacked in spite of its military escort. About 70 casualties on both sides were reported, plus a further 200 to 300 when a Moslem refugee train was attacked in Amritsar Station.

Ghaznafar [illegible], Pakistan Minister for Food and Health, has appealed to the British and American Red Cross Societies for "all possible assistance in men and material" to cope with the refugee problem, a dispatch from Karachi said.

LABOR SHORTAGE MOST EXTENSIVE SINCE WAR'S END

Canada's Unfilled Jobs Exceed Applicants For Work by No Less Than 33,000

Ottawa, Sept. 23 (CP) — The Labor Department reported today that Canada now is experiencing her most extensive labor shortage since the end of the war, with unemployment down to less than two per cent of the civilian labor force and unfilled jobs outnumbering applicants for work by 33,000.

And, the department said in its monthly report on the manpower picture, "by the beginning of October the general scarcity of labor will likely be even more acute."

With seasonal expansion of Canadian industry cutting into the labor supply, there were 84,000 unplaced applicants registered with National Employment Service across Canada at Sept. 11, a decline of 9,000 in the last month and 60,000 less than the total of a year ago.

At the same date unfilled vacancies totalled 117,000, an upswing of 22,000 since Aug. 14. The department said students returning to school and university after temporary summer employment had "left quite a gap, especially in the ranks of unskilled workers."

Of the unplaced applicants 58,000 were male and 26,000 female, compared with 65,000 and 28,000 respectively at Aug. 14. Of the total unfilled vacancies, 75,000 were for men and 42,000 for women.

The department noted that the current dispute in the meat-packing industry was the first major strike this year with Dominion wide repercussions —in contrast with the stormy situation of 1946 — and said an uninterrupted production of goods during the last few months, due to smoother flow of material and lack of strikes, had led to steady growth in the need for workers. The farm situation is well in hand.

Situation in Ontario

In the Ontario region there were 22,000 unplaced applicants and 55,000 unfilled jobs with seasonal activity, food processing and construction in full swing. The department said indications were for a high level of employment during the winter. Iron and steel firms, with a heavy backlog of orders, register steady demand and labor turnover is a problem along with material bottlenecks in some cases. Farm labor is not plentiful in Ontario.

Unplaced applicants and unfilled vacancies (in brackets) in National Employment Service offices in Ontario at Sept. 11, were: Hamilton, 1,718, (4,745); London, Ont., 559, (2,060); Oshawa 1,310 (665); Ottawa, 3,307, (1,575); St. Catharines, 682, (841); Toronto, 4,411, (22,613); Windsor 2,659, (589).

6,000 SCOTCH MINERS OUT

Lanark, Scotland, Sept. 23 — (Reuters) — A new threat to British coal production developed in Scotland today when 6,000 miners employed at nine collieries in the Lanarkshire area came out on strike.

It was feared that other mines in this area might soon be involved.

Police Intensify Search For 'Fiend' Who Murdered Girl

Friend of Victim Tells Of Assault in Same Area

Owen Sound, Sept. 23 (CP) — Search for the "fiend" who raped and bludgeoned to death 11-year old Betty Playford during a rainstorm Sunday night speeded up today as Rev. C. F. Johnson of St. George's Anglican Church promised the child's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Playford, he would do all in his power to track down the killer and other angry residents of the city joined the police hunt.

Meanwhile a 13 - year - old friend of the murdered child revealed she was accosted, about two months ago, by a man in an old car at the same corner in the northeastern outskirts of the city where the Playford child was murdered.

Slapped Face

The man, she said, asked if she had any money. When she replied she had "enough money" the man slapped her face. She said she was forced to the running board of the car and sat down as ordered.

When the man reached into the car for what appeared to be a beer bottle, she said she feared he was reaching for a weapon and managed to break away.

Mothers of other children in the area, sometimes described as "bootleggers' row" because bootleggers are alleged to be operating nearby have reported their children have been molested on various occasion.

Investigation of the crime is under the direction of police chief Thomas Carson, assisted by Crown Attorney C. C. Middlebro Provincial Constable Edwin Corcoran of Meaford and Cpl. J. Robinson of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. An Ontario Provincial Police inspector joined the hunt today.

Appeal For Information

Police have appealed to any persons in the area Sunday night to give any information they may have of the movements of the little girl and her attacker. Names of such persons will be kept secret, police promised.

Tragically, Betty's mother is a semi-invalid and the youngster was the joy of the household.

So widespread is the interest in rounding up the killer that even officials of the Owen Sound jail are out helping the search. Constable J. G. Murray of the city police, who found the girl Monday morning said "the hunt is going on steadily and we won't rest in the case."

"I think the police have been making good headway," said William Playford. "From their attitude they have found something to really work on and I wouldn't be surprised to hear something worth while fairly soon.

The bloodsmeared body of the little girl, her skull bashed in, was found yesterday in a ditch half a mile from her home on the northeastern outskirts of the city.

The bright-eyed youngster who wore her brown hair in long braids tied with ribbon bows was last seen alive about 8.30 p.m. Sunday when she set out homeward after visiting a playmate, Joyce McLay, with whom she spent the early evening picking wild apples.

Betty's older brother, William, said last night he believed the killer waited at the corner near the playmate's house for a girl or woman to attack.

"My little sister was the first one to come along and she was the victim," he said. "I don't think she got 50 feet away from the McLay house before she was picked up."

Police said they believed that as the girl hurried along the dimly lit street she was grabbed and hustled down the road to a point about half a mile away where she was slain.

Coroner Charles Garviller said a preliminary postmortem examination indicated "without a doubt" that the girl was raped.

He added that a provincial pathologist from London, Ont., would examine the body in an effort to determine the time of death.

Mrs. Thomas McCann, a neighbor of the McLay family, told police she heard what sounded like a child's voice "talking fast and loud" on the street near her home about 8.45 p.m. Sunday. Later she heard hurrying feet and then a shrill scream.

James Playford, the girl's father with two of his four sons began a search for the girl about 9.30 p.m. Sunday. Through the night the hunt broadened to include neighbors and then police. Mr. Playford's fellow workers from the Empire Stove and Furnace Co., Ltd., joined the search at daybreak.

Gordon McLay, father of Joyce, found the body in a patch of dried blood in the roadside ditch at 9.30 a.m. Monday while he and Constable J. G. Murray, of the city police, pressed the search along a road notorious for illegal drinking parties.

Searchers picked up empty beer bottles in the long grass which almost hid the ditch but Police Chief Chief T. H. Carson said the bottles apparently had been there for some time.

Son, 86, Wears Woman's Clothes Because His Mother Wanted Daughter

Charlton, Ont., Sept. 23—(CP)— Nelee Jessee Reid, 85-year-old bachelor, has worn ankle-length skirts, bustles and bonnets all his life — because his mother decided to raise her sixth son as a daughter.

Reid has worked as a lumberman, farmer, construction hand and railroad fireman, but he has always refused to doff his long skirts, frilled sleeves and crocheted lace cuffs.

Now a district pensioner, he bicycles once a month the four miles from his lonely, tarpaper shack to the post office in this Northern Ontario village near Engleha[illegible]. On a recent trip he wore a woman's cream-colored gabardine suit — ankle length, of course — with bustle and pleats. The jacket was lavishly trimmed with pearl buttons, white lace medallions and purple bows, and the skirt protected by a red-checked apron. A red bonnet topped with a band, bow and tails, and high, laced- black-rubber boots completed an ensemble that would have taken the feminine world by storm in the 1890s.

No faddist, Reid does not change his style at the whim of every Paris designer. His hobby is fashioning his own clothing from illustrations in a huge collection of old department store catalogues.

Next to his ever-increasing wardrobe, his chief pride and joy is a menagerie of 20 cats, all trained to fend for themselves and bring back food for their master. Reid never refers to his cats as male or female; they are "man" cats or "girl" cats.

He is especially proud of a 14-year-old "man" named Velva which has provided him with many a choice rabbit stew. Last winter Velva's needle-sharp fangs and claws killed 185 rabbits.

HORSE BLANKETS REPORTED STOLEN

With temperatures down below the freezing point, horse blankets were in demand Monday night, especially so apparently at the fair grounds where a race horse owner reported that five horse blankets had been stolen from the stables in which his horses were being kept. The blankets disappeared early in the evening with the owner, Oswald Ring, reporting the matter to police.

CAR STOLEN

Theft of another automobile, a 1928 Chrysler sedan, was reported to police over the night by Walter Wessels, R. R. 5, Belleville. Wessels apparently had attended the Belleville Fair, leaving his car parked near the exhibition park at the extreme end of Catharine Street, outside the city limits. The matter was turned over to Provincial Police who notified police in district centres.

PEDESTRIAN KNOCKED TO PAVEMENT BY CAR

Mrs. Helen Corlies, 88 Station Street, suffered bruises and was shaken up Monday when as she was crossing the street at the intersection of Bridge and Front streets she was knocked to the pavement by a car, the driver of which did not leave his name.

Mrs. Corlies was walking south across the intersection when she was struck by a northbound car as it turned left onto Bridge Street. Mrs. Corlies was crossing the intersection with the green light, it was stated. The driver of the car stopped his vehicle but drove on when Mrs. Corlies got to her feet and walked to the curb.

ANNEXATION APPLICATION APPROVED BY BOARD

An application for annexation for an area west of the city and north of the Marshall Road, which includes part of the Exhibition grounds, the Northern Electric plant under course of construction, part of the Ponton property and the Roman Catholic picnic grounds in all comprising approximately 125 acres was made on Monday, by A. B. Collins, K.C., city solicitor to the Municipal Board. The Board heard arguments in favor of the annexation and favorably approved the application with a few minor adjustments. The agreements will now be consummated between Township of Sidney and the Corporation of the City of Belleville and the land will soon be available to the municipality.

Mrs. J.G. Sparling Addresses W.C.T.U. On Social Service

The W. C. T. U. of Belleville met for the opening meeting of the Autumn in the board room of the Y.M.C.A. at three o'clock on the afternoon of Friday, Sept. 19, with the president, Mrs. Ida Denton, in charge of the devotional period and of the business meeting, when secretarial and treasurer's reports were received and adopted.

Mrs. Doolittle introduced the speaker for the afternoon, Mrs. J. G. Sparling, who chose Social Service Work as the subject of her very interesting and instructive address. Mrs. Sparling told of a few cases under her personal observation and care, which aroused considerable interest. She said in part, — "Life is like a great orchestra under the baton of a finely trained leader, each piece doing its best to make the whole symphony perfect. So people in homes throughout the world must do their part, under the guidance of God, to make life a beautiful symphony for all mankind.

"It is not the poor only who are helped by the trained social worker, but any person or family having a problem to solve, such as bad housing, lack of training for marriage or parenthood, poor house-keeping and homemaking, intemperance, uncontrolled temper or lack of spiritual training."

Those who were absent from this meeting missed a very enlightening address. Appreciation was expressed to Mrs. Sparling by Mrs. Fred Cooke.

A project has been started to secure trained social service workers for Belleville and a district reaching beyond Bancroft.

The meeting closed with the Mizpah Benediction.

Henry Topping Injured as Truck Crashes Tractor

Henry Topping, Tyendinaga township farmer, is in Belleville hospital with severe head lacerations and concussion as result of a truck crashing into the rear of the farm tractor which he was driving on No. 2 highway, three miles east of Milltown. The accident occurred shortly after noon on Monday.

Topping is stated to have moved his tractor from a field on his farm onto the highway when a Standard Paving truck, operated by Dan Gallagher of Powassan, struck the rear of the machine. The tractor went into the ditch on the south side of the highway, while the eastbound truck went out of control and overturned in the north ditch. Driver of the truck escaped uninjured.

Merchants, Manufacturers Combine With Products Of Farm to Make Fine Exhibit

All Buildings on Ground Filled to Overflowing and Visited by Many Patrons

Like a cornucopia of plenty spilling its wealth of produce from field and orchard was the colorful display of fruits, flowers and vegetables in the Horticultural building at the Exhibition grounds on opening day. Late blooms of pastel-tinted gladioli and huge feathery dahlias brightened the showing of handicraft work that ranged from penmanship of school children to delicate hand-painted china, and included needlework of all kinds, knitted and crocheted articles, dressed dolls and home-baking. The richly colored apples, squashes, carrots, egg plants, and other fruits and vegetables were arranged in polished and gleaming groups to show the abundant quality of Hastings County's fertile soil.

Better, Greater Quality

According to the judges of the home-cooking, the exhibits this year were , better and in much greater quantity than in the past few years; due, they thought, to increased sugar and shortening supplies, and certainly the mouth-watering display of pies, cakes, biscuits, and muffins made a tempting and lavish picture. Ranged with this were the jars of preserves of ruby-colored plums, and amber peaches and pears; pickles, and canned vegetables. An arrangement of sandwiches with the purpose of saving butter by using colored cheese, relishes, and chopped olives provided useful hints to the thrift-minded observers.

Mural Attracts Attention

A mural which won a prize at the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto depicted the making of Maple Syrup in Hastings County. This wasthe work of County. This was the work of dinaga, and drew much favorable comment. In this collection also was an autumn scene with highly-colored maple trees and squirrels gathering nuts forming a three-dimensional effect, complete with clouds of absorbent cotton in the background. Colored maps, bird houses, paintings and writing samples were all offered by the younger generation.

Souvenirs for the tourist trade were made of local wood, with hand-painted scenes of Moira River, Oak Lake, and the Bay of Quinte.

Wearing apparel of all kinds from hand knit socks to dresses were designed to please the feminine eye, and the lace tablecloths afghans, and bedspreads had an appeal for the rural and urban visitors alike.

All Space Taken

In the Merchants' Building where all the space was taken, radio CJBQ kept up a lively running commentary on the events at the Fair. In the booth beside them, the Canadian Department store featured radios, washers and vacuum cleaners, which they stated were in better supply than last year, although still short of the demand for them.

Attracting a large crowd was the exhibition of RCA Victor, who were demonstrating their new 16mm projector. They featured named bands with a magnetic loud speaker built especially for this type of sound reproduction, which they expect will be used in schools, churches industry, and community centres.

Insurance information was offered by Lorne McDougall Agencies; and C. W. Burr, the latter showing a farm scene which was used at the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto.

A Complete Home

Farrar's exhibit, which occupied one wall of the building, showed a complete furnishing for the home, living room, dining or dinette suites, kitchen and bedroom, and cribs and perambulators for the youngest arrivals.

The Martin-Senour Company featured new and striking designs in wall paper. Here, too were Lionel electric trains which have been missing in the displays of the past few years.

Feature Kenwood Garments.

Near the entrance the Georgia Salon featured the Kenwood garments, against a background of draped, colorful woollen fabric which is used to manufacture the swish clothing on display. Coats and leggings for little tots, and smart sportswear for teen-agers were shown, as well as dressy coats for ladies' wear.

At the opposite side, the St. John's Ambulance with attendants in uniform stand ready to offer first-aid for minor injuries. The equipment used is the property of the Martin ambulance service. Many lost children find their way there, and youngsters with cuts, bruises, or sick stomachs from over-indulgence in hot-dogs, are cared for.

The Singer Sewing machine are showing samples of work done on their electric machines. Slip covers, dresses, skirts for dressing tables, and a miniature bridal outfit all attracted attention from the crowd.

The cold weather of opening day made a timely entrance for the Quinte Insulation Co. which featured the blower process; and the Gilpin Insulation Co. which demonstrated with miniature houses.

Baby Chairs Shown.

The Babee-Tenda Company showed the low tables which the modern baby uses instead of the old-fashioned high chair. These have a low seat for mother to use while she gives Junior his cereal.

Although children's day is not until Wednesday, the ubiquitous small boy was very much in evidence in the Manufacturers' Building, making his collection of blotters and information folders.

Roofing and construction materials were featured by Arthur Sills, and Fred Elgie, the latter specializing in insul-mastic, the material which is being used in new buildings.

Coleman heating units were a feature of the David Electric booth, which also showed the newest in washers and ironers.

Heating units were also shown by Dobbs Plumbing and Moira Fuels with many innovations to make the heating of a home or building, easier, cleaner, and more economical.

The focus of all the children's eyes in this building was black Topsy, shown by Whalen's Dairy. Topsy rolls her head, balancing a bottle of chocolate milk on her head, while here eyes light up electrically. Her woolly hair is dressed up with calico ribbons of every color.

In keeping with the 50th Anniversary of the Women's Institute the Hastings West Branch are showing antiques which were used in rural districts in pioneer days.

Outboard Motors

The Big A have outboard motors on display, while the Stewart-Warner are showing the most modern in television sets. Although these are not in production in Canada yet, it is interesting to see the construction of future sets. Matched sets of Hepplewaite tables feature a radio in one table and drawers in the other. A record player made by Stewart-Warner has a fool-proof arm which cannot come out of adjustment, eliminating the most common trouble of this type of record player.

The indoor display of new cars was shown by C. R. Clapp and Son local distributor of the Nash "600" and the "Ambassador". The Ambassador is designed to open up into a bed which will sleep two persons, and makes a sleeping unit complete with screened windows. Mr. Clapp also was showing the Fleet cabin car, which is furnished with a chesterfield bed, cupboards, table and clothes compartment to facilitate travel in trailer-style.

Crushed rock which was quarried at Belleville was displayed in glass jars by the Diamond Construction Company. The stones were shown in the various stages of process.

Altogether the Manufacturers have combined to make living more comfortable and more enjoyable with newer methods and inventions for heating, insulation, and domestic work.

Home Plowing Match Sponsored By Junior Farmers

A home plowing competition for junior farmer members under 30 will again this year be sponsored by the Hastings County Junior Farmers, it has been announced by A. O. Dalrymple, agricultural representative.

This competition, which is open to girls and young men in the county is carried on by the contestants on their own farms. It is felt by those in charge that having the contestant plow on his or her own farm that they are not only learning the rules of good plowing but also completing their farm work at the same time.

Arrangements have been made to hold a demonstration at the farm of Ray Hall, R. R. 5, Trenton, on Friday, Sept. 26. All interested in plowing are welcome. Winfred Timbers, past champion at the provincial plowing match, will be on hand to take charge of the demonstration work.

Point Traverse Cruiser Strikes Submerged Buoy

Point Traverse, Sept. 23 — Speeding at a 30-mile-per-hour clip between Cape Vincent, N.Y., and Point Traverse, a 25 foot Lyman cruiser struck a submerged spar buoy six miles east of here, smashing two large holes into the port side, putting the engine out of commission and damaging the propeller.

The damaged craft was taken in tow by a guide boat in the same vicinity of the lake at the time. At Timber Island the boat was leaking so badly that temporary repairs were made by cutting a life preserver in half and placing it into the holes. With much difficulty it was brought to this harbor where it was immediately taken from the water and the necessary repairs were made.

The spar buoy is one of the many that were used by the air force during practice bombing off here during the war.

High Wind.

A southerly wind, that at times attained gale proportions, lashed the waters of Lake Ontario into great seas on Sunday, sending all small craft into shelter and retarding lake traffic.

The cruiser Slew of Rochester, fishing off here with four men aboard, on returning to Waupoos, were forced to put in at Black Creek out of the gale.

Great seas pounding the Cressy shore line inundated much of the road, washing out portions of it to such an extent that traffic was unable to get through to the end of the point.

Retail Prices Of Lumber Will Stay Unchanged

Retail prices of lumber will remain unchanged in Ontario, according to a resolution passed at a recent meeting of the directors of the Ontario Retail Lumber Dealers Association, Toronto, E. D. Mott of the E. D. Mott Lumber Company here said today. The effect of recent lifting of controls on lumber was thoroughly discussed at the meeting, and regret was expressed that a wrong impression had been created through the press and radio that lumber prices in general were about to be advanced considerably.

This erroneous impression was caused, it was pointed out, by announcement that a recent increase had been imposed on certain items in British Columbia. The retail interests feel a responsibility to the public to maintain as far as possible the present price structure, and will use their best endeavor to impress upon the producers of lumber that this thinking is most necessary at this time.

The retailers also feel, the meeting decided, that the housing situation in Canada is still far from solved and intend to co-operate so that the building of small homes may be continued until the demands are satisfied.

The Houston Lumber Co., Ltd., the E. D. Mott Co., Ltd., and the White Lumber Company are members of the Ontario Retail Lumber Dealers Association.

Lucky Lott's Hell Drivers Entertain Three Thousand As Belleville Fair Opens

Despite Cold and Threatening Weather This Year's Edition of Fair One of the Best

Equinoctial weather, apparently punctual this year, sent temperatures plummeting downward to near frosty weather last evening, but this did not deter some six or seven thousand people from attending the opening of the 1947 three-day exhibition of the Belleville Fair.

Long before the scheduled time of the opening ceremonies, the grandstand was filled to overflowing. The bleachers were filled to capacity and an overflow crowd found standing room behind the grandstand and along the track fences.

The weather man was in a fickle mood yesterday. He ushered in the day with sullen threatening skies which later in the morning developed into a steady rainfall. The skies cleared in the afternoon and a warm sunshine tempered with cool breezes augured well for the "first-nighters." But thermometers shot downward at an alarming rate towards evening and by nightfall there was a decided frosty tang in the air.

Weather Not Deterrent

But as was mentioned before the weather did not deter the large crowd from attending the inaugural ceremonies and attractions. Shortly after 8.30 President Elmer Sandercock of the Board of directors and members of his executive escorted the guest of honor Mr. Andy Clarke of CBC Toronto, who formally opened the Exhibition to the stage in front of the grandstand. A full account of the ceremonies appears in other columns of this edition.

The main attraction in front of the grandstand was "Lucky Lott" and his Hell Drivers. The Garden Shows were not presented and they opened this afternoon with a matinee with other shows tonight tomorrow afternoon and evening.

The thrills, chills and spills that always accompany shows of the "Lucky" Lott type were not missing last night although the speed of the various vehicles was held down due to the muddy condition of the track. Previous rain had turned parts of the track into quagmires, and despite desperate efforts to reduce the piled tiers of mud during the afternoon, the track was very heavy for the night performance. However the show went on, and the large crowd thrilled to the dare-devil drivers as they presented their hair-raising death-defying stunts.

Owner Starts Show

Starting the Lucky Lott show is the owner of the attraction himself and another Hell Driver Louie Battercrooks, the pair drive snorting cars one wheel on a steep ramp, nearly turning over and roar around the track to repeat the performance. Their climax to this is racing neck and neck to mount the same ramps wheel to wheel.

Another thrill-creeper is Bob Beal, the "Human Jack" who calmly lies on his back on the ground, allows a ramp to be placed on his chest, and a roaring car to ride over the ramp. Of course he is uninjured.

Another hair raising stunt is a coupe racing through a wall of living flame. The wooden wall is saturated with gasoline, set afire and the car rips through its centre, scattering blazing timber all over the adjacent landscape.

Failed to Respond

A decrepit wreck of a car, which had to be coaxed to operate, and which failed to respond last night gave the audience a thrill when it was towed over a four-foot ramp to turn sidewise and endwise, with "Lucky" Lott emerging smiling and unscathed from the wreckage.

A cement wall of loose block four feet high was a target for another ancient motivated model driven by one of the drivers. The car plows into the wall scattering blocks over the terrain, as well as a number of its parts.

Two-car Crash

A two-car crash climaxed the show last night, but as the announcer stated, a number of the real thriller-dillers were eliminated because of the condition of the track. These will be performed during the remainder of the troupe's stay here.

Comedy is supplied by a clown "Jack of New Yawk," whose antics add a lot of merriment to the daring of the various stunts performed by the drivers. A rapid-fire announcer despite the fact that he near shivered himself out of a Palm Beach suit last night, added a lot of vocal color to the show.

The Conklin Midway apparently hasn't suffered with the years. It is the same glamorous, colorful, brilliantly illuminated corridor of attractions that have characterized it in previous years. It has all the embellishments of the big time midway with its raucous barkers, the majority of them doing their stuff via was records or over public address systems.

Many New Rides

There are new rides and new tented shows; new mysteries and new monsters. Side-splitting recorded laughter emanates from a large tent upon which is suitably inscribed the "Booby Hatch", the "Coo-Coo Hotel" and other nomenclatures. A new attraction this year is the "Congress of Daring Devil Riders", a perpendicular track upon which motorcyclists, both women and men perform hair-raising stunts. There is the "World of Girls", Nuff Sed. Merely a bevy of beauties whose stage performance is feminine pulchritude at its best.

Then there is "Monkey Land", a show of jungle animals, the Amusement Arcade, a penny affair where almost everything can be seen. For chills there is the Human Octopus, a piscatorial gent which is said to be able to devour a full-grown man and then ask for lunch.

Rides For Everybody

There are rides for everybody. A new novelty is miniature passenger train operating on a small gauge track complete with snorting engine and passenger coaches for the kiddies. Yet another is the Sailboat ride. Tiny yachts with white sails aflutter whirl hard a-starboard, bending to the breeze. This proved popular with the youngsters too. And there are plenty of aerial thrills for the oldsters. The familiar airplane rides are back, in many varieties, whirligigs, rockets, the "Octopus" and all the ride thrillers that have been here before, not to mention the ubiquitous merry-go-rounds.

And if you want to win teddy bears, boxes of cigar, candy, dolls or other prizes, there are plenty of games in which you can test your skill. There is a shooting gallery, a gentleman will guess your age within two years, or forfeit a box of cigars or chocolates. If you're sceptical about your weight, a condescending gent will take care of your problem. Dark-skinned gypsies will tell you how much money will be in that letter or whether that guy or gal you will meet next will be blonde or brunette.

And if you get hungry, don't worry. There are plenty of hot dogs, hamburgers, potato chips, or if you're too warm lots of ice cream, candy floss, cold drinks, etc.

Conklin's Midway has once more lived up to its reputation of being one of the best on the continent. It's worth while seeing, and enjoying.

Manager, Coach, Philadelphia Rockets Address Kinsmen Club

Business manager Max Kaminsky and Coach Wally Kilrea of the Philadelphia Rockets hockey club now training in the city, were guests of the Kinsmen Club of Belleville at their regular dinner meeting held Monday evening, the latter giving a few of his experiences during his playing career.

Former player with the old Ottawa Senators, the Montreal Maroons, the New York Rangers and Detroit Red Wings, Wally also played for seven years with the Hershey Bears, before being named coach of the Rockets. Wally told how four shifts of players were being trained at the local arena, it being the intention of the club to leave three good juniors in Belleville for the winter.

Training camps for hockey players are a comparatively recent innovation, according to the Rocket coach. When he first joined the Ottawa Senators, players did not get any fall training and went right into league play. His first training camp was when he played with the Detroit Red Wings.

Shifts Position

"Previous to that time I had always played right wing," recounted Wally. "Then at training camp Manager John Adams began asking all his rookies which position they played and about 8 ahead of me answered right wing. Realizing that there would not be a place on the team for so many right wingers, when my turn came I told the manager I played centre."

"Since then I have been a centre player," the coach laughed.

His biggest thrill while playing with major league teams was when a member of the Detroit team he was awarded the most valuable player award. He considered Frank Nighbor, formerly with the Ottawa Senators, as the most outstanding player of that time.

Played Against Holway

He remembers quite well playing against "Toots" Holway when the local player was with the Maroons. "That poke check of "Toots" used to sweep half way across the rink," stated Wally in tribute to the playing ability of the Belleville man.

To a question by one of the club members Wally reported that at the present time there were about 60 players, including pros and amateurs training at Belleville. Local talent would be given their opportunity of trying out for the team, but first some of the amateurs would be weeded out to permit them to get back to school or to their jobs.

With Belleville playing Junior "B" hockey it would be possible for the club to leave only two juniors in the city, but it was suggested that it may pay the local sponsors of intermediate hockey to look over some of their senior players. All practicising periods would be open to the public, it was stated. At least three exhibition games would be played at the local arena before the club left.

Introduced by Manager

Wally was introduced by Manager Max Kaminsky who promised the club's every assistance to get Junior "A" hockey established in Belleville. Thanks of the club to the two guests was expressed by Kinsmen Don Barrett.

President Art Cruiji informed the club that arrangements have been completed for the Mulligan Iron lung display van to visit the city from October 4-11, when donations would be accepted by the club for the purchase of such a lung for use in this city.

Tickets for the forthcoming Rod Roddick magician show to be staged at the Collegiate Auditorium October 2nd., were distributed to club members, while it was announced that the club is considering the staging of a motor show in the Armouries some time in the spring. Prior to the war such motor shows were staged by the club as a financial venture, but had been discontinued during the war.

Missing Couple Found Alive On Strawberry Is.

Orillia, Sept. 23. (CP)—Mr. and Mrs. George Pitts of Toronto, missing since late Saturday afternoon on a trip across Lake Simcoe, were found yesterday alive and well—but hungry—on tiny, lonely Strawberry Island, five miles southeast of here.

Munching hungrily on cookies and crackers their first food in two days, they told how drive-shaft trouble forced them to head for the island shortly after leaving Orillia in a 19-foot motor launch. Their destination had been Keswick, 32 miles south.

They were spotted on Strawberry Island by the occupants of an airplane chartered by the Toronto Daily Star and were rescued a short time later by a launch.

Hope had almost been abandoned that Mr. and Mrs. Pitts would be found alive. For two days, the lake was swept by a storm and searchers feared the couple had drowned in the wind-lashed water.

"I am glad to see you," said Pitts, 35-year-old aircraft mechanic, as he greeted the rescuers. He said he and his wife had been stranded since 9 a.m., Saturday.

"My wife was driving about 4 p.m., in the middle of the storm when the drive-shaft seized. We were about three miles beyond Strawberry Island and decided to make for it. It took us five hours to go those three miles. We used the engine to keep headed in the general direction of the island while I paddled with the oars."

"There was nothing in the building at all except some beds and springs with no mattresses," said Pitts. "Three was not a spot of food. We kept a fire going in the building all last night (Sunday night) to keep warm and we tended the three watch fires, constantly throwing on old rubber tires and asphalt roofing to make lots of smoke."

Creamery Butter Production Higher

Ottawa (CP) —Canadian production of creamery butter during August totalled 36,527,000 pounds against 34,268,000 pounds in the corresponding month last year, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported.

Production during the first 8 months of this year totalled 204,458,000 pounds, compared with 199,344,000 in the corresponding period of 1946.

Cheddar cheese production continued to decline totalling 18,627,000 pounds, compared with 21,399,000 pounds in August last year. In the eight-month period 86,185,000 pounds were produced compared with 104,789,000 pounds in the similar period of 1946. Decreases were shown in all provinces.

Killing Frost Causes Extensive Damage to Tomato Crops in District

According to reports from various farming areas of the district and a survey of farmers and gardeners selling produce on the city market this morning, the heavy frost last night caused heavy damage to tomato and cucumber crops.

A consensus of farmers from Shannonville to Foxboro to Brighton revealed that ice a quarter inch in thickness was apparent early this morning.

A Picton report stated that the tomato crop has been struck a crippling blow with damage from total loss to fifty per cent in widespread areas in that district.

Northern Prince Edward reports stated heavy damage while Foxboro residents also stated heavy damage to vines and lesser to the fruit.

Farms south of the Rossmore district to a depth of three or four farms were more fortunate. According to a resident the geographical position of these farms and proximity to the water averts heavy damage when the frost first comes.

In the city a white hoar frost mantled lawns and roofs, at an early hour this morning. City workers shivered in light clothing as they hurried to work as the temperature hovered around freezing.

The lowest temperature in the city during the night was 29 degrees according to the official thermometer at the Belleville Purification Plant. At midnight it was 32.5 degrees, then it dropped suddenly to below freezing and rose slightly. At eight o'clock the temperature was registered at 35.8.

The Canada Packers plant here stated that their field men were all out to appraise the damage done to crops but they would have no definite idea of the situation until late this afternoon.

Local Fairs in History

What the people of Belleville and this district are witnessing this week at the Belleville Agricultural Society fair is an institution which is rooted deep in time. For a century and more fairs and shows have been held here and in the neighborhood, all rooted primarily in agriculture. Today much the same scenes are taking place at the fair grounds. Styles of course, are different, types of buildings differ, but there are those lasting evidences of the perpetual appeal of the exhibition in horses, cattle, sheep and swine, the products of the soil, the grains and seeds, and the cheese and butter and work of woman's deft hand. They were here a century ago, they are here today.

In a real sense history repeats itself at fairs but the scene is still as vital and inspiring year after year as is every new morning that brightens the earth. These attractions which year after year for ten decades and more have drawn the people together into the great early autumn rural festival are perpetually new. It is like the principles which govern life, they do not really change. Neither does the appeal of the annual agricultural fair or the livestock show.

Of course the grounds are different, the roads are better, conveyances have changed to motorcars and livestock rides in state in gigantic trucks to the annual show. But exhibitions of agriculture have a lasting attraction to generation after generation.

These fundamental pursuits of agriculture do not change. They are so essential to the human race. Many of the people are engaged in the calling of furnishing food. It is true that today the market is or would be a world market as against a narrower market of the old days when transportation was rather primitive and did not allow of such developments as have been marked in this modern age for the distribution of food to every part of the world.

On the grounds and in the modern buildings is found a thriving organization which has lived through generations and grown more and more with the growth of the district and country. In the years fairs have shown and exhibitors won their awards here a century ago and stock paraded proudly before the stand.

It is basically a great rural exhibition with lasting appeal in livestock, horses, cattle, sheep, swine, poultry, the cheese and butter products. Such exhibits were here one hundred years ago. They are here today. 1947 fair is a natural heir of the 1847 exhibition.

In a sense history repeats itself at fairs but the scene is always intriguing. At this very time of the year, perhaps on this very day, crowds gathered in Belleville for the annual show, dating back to nobody knows when. Every fair is by very principle, a living institution, most closely associated with man's pursuits through generation after generation.

Here is the local record. Victoria Chronicle and Advertiser, a weekly newspaper in Belleville in 1849, records on October 4th the success of the Victoria District Fair and Cattle Show here. Incidentally the news account of the 1849 exhibition throws light on exhibitions held before that time for the reporter of 1849 wrote of the Victoria District Fair and Show: "The number of articles and quantity of stock exhibited, we are told, exceeded those of previous years and the farmers of this district are to be congratulated at the evident improvement which is taking place."

There was mention of the classes, cattle, horses, sheep, swine, seeds, farming implements, domestic manufacturers, leather, cheese and butter. This helps to form a picture of ten decades ago in Belleville on a late September day.

Directors and officials of the fair societies have the fine co-operation of the Departments of Agriculture today to carry on and improve exhibitions so that they may more and more serve the community. That they serve well today is proven by the attention they attract and by the production of agricultural products of Canada and of the Bay of Quinte which have found their way over the oceans to feed peoples abroad.

Long may the fairs reign, these great gatherings of farmers and city-dwellers, to pay their tribute to the men and women who have built up the agricultural industry! The future of the fair was never more secure.

The 1947 edition of the Belleville fair and show will doubtless set a proud record for the quality of the products and livestock exhibited, the exhibition of modern machinery, especially for the work on the farm, and for the crowds and the entertainment. It has a very fine set of officers and officials who are tireless in trying to make the Belleville annual fair one of the very best district fairs.

Off the west coast of Africa near the equator is a region called the doldrums, a region where there may be a dead calm for days. Warm air rises from the water, and cold air rushes in to take its place. The rotation of the earth gives the updraft of moist, warm air a spin, and so a hurricane is born. Enormous amounts of water are drawn up into the spinning air. When the temperature falls that water is squeezed out in the form of rain, with the release of an enormous amount of energy, which manifests itself as motion. In fact, the energy expended by a tropical hurricane in a single day is enough to drive all the machinery in the world for three or four years. It is this energy that has ripped roofs off the houses in Florida and southern Louisiana, torn ships from their moorings, uprooted trees and done untold damage.

Florida knew days in advance that it would be struck, from which it might be inferred that meteorologically nothing is easier than to predict the course of a hurricane. But hurricanes often fail to follow the established pattern. Prevailing westerly winds, for example, usually push a hurricane out into the Atlantic and spread it over thousands of square miles, until it ends as a depression over Iceland, graveyard of such storms. Will this hurricane repeat history? Apparently not. At this writing there is no sign of any diversion to the Atlantic. The New England hurricane of 1938 failed to confirm the predictions of the weather man. The hurricane of 1910 described a circle and so struck Key West and Havana twice. The hurricanes of 1934 and 1935 doubled on themselves.—New York Times.

Army is Different Now

Life in the Army — and the Navy and the Air Force — is very different today from what it was when taking "the Queen's shilling."

Life in the Canadian Army, for example, means educational opportunities beyond those available to many youths in civilian life; wages considerably higher than the daily shilling; sheets and pillows to sleep on. We hear they are even talking of shooting the bugler and eliminating reveille.

The Services, in fact, are competing with industries and professions for the best and so ably that we believe they should succeed without too much difficulty in securing the 6,000 recruits to be sought in their pending drive.—Montreal Herald.

Still a Lot of Wheat

It is now certain that the prairies will harvest a crop substantially lower than last year. The first estimate of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics suggests an out turn for wheat of some 336,000,000 bushels, or about 62,000,000 less than in 1946. However, it should be borne in mind that a smaller acreage was planted to wheat than a year ago, so that the comparison with 1946 is not quite so unfavorable when placed on a yield per acre basis. It appears that the probable yield per acre for wheat will still fall far short of the long-term average for the prairies.—Winnipeg Free Press.

A Montreal doctor of 80 says the way to stay young is to keep at work. There is much truth in his remark, and that is why those who come under an automatic and compulsory retirement plan need to provide for their leisure with secondary and absorbing interests of some kind, Ottawa Journal says.

Planes must fly higher over populated areas under new Civil Aeronautics Administration rules to take effect Oct. 8. The new altitude limit will be 1,000 feet above the highest obstacle rather than the present 1,000 feet above ground level.—Newsweek Magazine.

LINES TO A FRIEND

Now you will wonder, as do I,
Why fled the years so swiftly by
And all the joys that used to be Translated into memory.

And you will learn, as I have learned;
That happy memories must be earned;
That every recollection glad
Reflects a precious blessing had.

And you will find as time goes by
That every ache and every sigh
Comes from the happy long ago,
When joy and peace were yours to know.

She would not have you grieve; and yet,
Those moments when your eyes are wet,
You'll see, as often I have seen,
How richly blest your life has been.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Why were fugitive slaves called contraband?

As applied to fugitive slaves, "contraband" was short for "contraband of war."

"Contraband" comes ultimately from Latin "contra," against, and Late Latin "bandum," edict or proclamation. Spanish "contrabando" signifies smuggling.

In International law, "contraband" is applied to anything that neutrals are forbidden to supply to belligerents and that is accordingly subject to lawful seizure. Originally the term embraced only arms, ammunition and actual military supplies, but it was broadened as the methods of warfare changed.

In May, 1861, thousands of Negro slaves escaped from their Confederate masters and took refuge within the Federal lines at Fort Monroe in Virginia. Some of the owners pursued their slaves to the Federal lines under flags of truce and demanded the return of their property under the Constitution and Fugitive Slave Law.

General Benjamin F. Butler, Federal commander of the District of Eastern Virginia, refused to return the Negroes on the ground they were useful to the enemy in their military operations. He issued an order in which he said: "The Negro must now be regarded as contraband, since every able-bodied hand, not absolutely required on the plantation, is impressed by the military into the military service as a laborer on the fortifications."

General Butler's definition of the status of the slaves of Confederates was not confirmed by the Federal Government, because the Lincoln administration was unwilling to risk alienating the loyal Border States where slavery still existed, but the order was popular in the North and "contraband" was picked up and applied to fugitive slaves in general. Even the Negroes themselves often jubilantly proclaimed themselves "contraband" when they entered the Federal lines. At one time "contraband" was virtually synonymous with "Negro."

For the most part, the Negroes in the Confederate States continued in their slave status until they were freed at the close of the war. There is no evidence that the Federal Government officially or systematically attempted to induce the slaves to escape from, or to rebel against, their masters. Not a single slave insurrection took place in the South during the entire Civil War.

PETKOV EXECUTED

Petkov, as the leader of this group, was accused of directing the distribution of pamphlets attacking the King. Petkov vainly contended that his group supported the monarch but simply demanded that the King limit his powers, as specified by the constitution.

During the war he was back in the government, however, as a minister without portfolio, and he was one of the ministers who signed Bulgaria's armistice with the Allies late in 1944.

Trouble with Reds

His troubles with the Communist party began in earnest in September 1945 when he withdrew from the Fatherland front coalition government because of its domination by the Communists.

In the parliamentary election in October, 1946, Petkov was among the oppositionists chosen an Agrarian deputy. In that election the Fatherland front seated 366 deputies, the United Opposition, 99. Communist Georgi Dimitrov became premier.

An incident shortly after the election foreshadowed events to come. Petkov attacked government policies in a speech and was expelled from the Chamber by the Speaker. All the opposition deputies walked out with him.

The public prosecutor, in a letter to the Assembly dated the day before Petkov's arrest, charged that Petkov and collaborators were "preparing to make a coup d'etat against the people's power by means of armed force."

Police Sergeant at Guelph Reduced in Rank

Guelph, Sept. 23 — (CP)—Convicted by a court of police commissioners on charges of using undue force in executing an arrest and making a misleading, inaccurate statement in the course of duty, Sgt. Fred Minshall of the city force has been reduced to the rank of a first class constable.

At a meeting yesterday the officer was also stripped of his five-year good service stripe for a six-months period. Charges arose from the arrest of Gordon Jamieson on a theft count and Jamieson told commissioners that Minshall slapped him across the face with open hands and also struck him in the ribs with his fist.

SUGAR IS SUGAR IN ANY LANGUAGE EXCEPT PEDIATRICIANESE

Fifteen years ago, statistics of the Federal Office of Education office showed, one in every four physicians in the United States was a "specialist"—that is, limited his practice to a special field or at least "specialized" more or less in a particular line of work although carrying on such general practice as seemed easy or profitable.

Today, according to estimates of various experts, not just one out of every four physicians, but from one out of every three to two out of every five physicians in practice are or purport to be "specialists."

Of course we need specialists today as much as ever—real specialists, physicians who have had not only special post-graduate training in their chosen field but a reasonable amount of experience in general practice as a foundation for the recognition by the medical profession of their special status.

The brass pediatricians, not quite so numerous as the brass internists who profess to limit their practice to internal medicine (that is, the diagnosis and treatment of the interior of the body!), are more numerous than ten kinds of brass specialists for an obvious reason — even here where the birth rate is low and getting dangerously lower year by year, everybody is an infant, so far as the pediatricians are concerned, up to voting age at least, and many a brass pediatrician hangs onto some good customers just as long as he can keep them mesmerized, regardless of their age.

So far as physiology goes, sugar is sugar, in the diet of an infant, invalid or adult, no matter whether it is cane sugar, beet sugar, corn sugar or syrup (glucose), grape sugar (dextrose), fruit sugar (levulose), or maltose (malt sugar, produced by fermentation of starch in grain by the enzyme diastase). One sugar is as digestible, as good a source of quick difference there are between these sugars are difference in sweeting effect and differences in price.

The corn syrup, cane sugar and beet sugar people probably do not make profit on their product to have pretty pictures printed in the so-called medical journal or to entertain pediatricians who are on the make, at hunting lodge or fishing club. But you simple folk who pay the fancy price for the trick sugar would not wish to deprive your pet pediatrician of these little pleasures, would you?

There is one clear difference between the real specialist and the brass specialist.

The real specialist co-operates with the patient's physician. The brass specialists compete with the family physician for the patient's patronage. The real specialist reports to the patient's physician—who called him into consultation or referred the patient to him in the first place. The brass specialist endeavors to hang onto the patient as long as he can and has no communication with the family physician if he can avoid it.

If the specialist undertakes examination or treatment without first asking who your physician is, the chances are he is not a real specialist but one of the brass category.

FOX ADOPTS MAN

Bella Coola, B. C. — (CP) — Bert Robson, amateur conservationist of the Pacific Coast range, counts a silver fox among his latest pets. Robson, who has had 55 deer and seven moose on his cabin clearing at one time, says the fox adopted him, appearing every day for food set out on the back porch.

Cartoonist Knows His Rural Canada

Jim Frise, Canada's top cartoonist, who draws the famous comic "Juniper Junction", started life on a farm near Port Perry, Ontario. It was here that he obtained a deep and abiding understanding of farmers and farm life. Only a man who had lived the life could get the authentic quality of humour into a comic like "Juniper Junction". This is perfectly illustrated in the "Juniper Junction" episode in The Standard this week. When Archie and The Missus bring the granddaddy of all pumpkins to show at the Turtletown Fall Fair, and Pigskin Peters catches wind of it, anything is liable to happen — and does. There are professional standards in LIFE INSURANCE SELLING

Like a doctor or lawyer, the modern Life Insurance salesman ascertains the necessary facts before he gives advice. Having before him the picture of an individual's present and future responsibilities, he then recommends the insurance plans best adapted to meet those requirements.

Life insurance companies give their salesmen a thorough grounding in the principles and functions of Life Insurance. In addition, the Life Underwriters Association of Canada, with a membership of over 5,000 Life Insurance salesmen, has instituted a three year course of study for its members, which is establishing professional standards in life insurance selling. These studies lead to the designation "Chartered Life Underwriter" (C.L.U.).

As you can see from the text books illustrated, those who are qualified Life Insurance salesmen study a variety of subjects which enable them to assume the role of Life Insurance counsellor with a truly professional background.

WEDDINGS

NOBLE—WHYTOCK

With dahlias and gladioli used in decoration, St. Peter's Presbyterian Church, Madoc, was the setting for an attractive Autumn wedding, at two o'clock on the afternoon of Sept. 20th., when Helen Louise Whytock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Whytock, of Madoc, became the bride of William Charles Noble, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Noble of Toronto, with Rev. W. H. V. Walker, of Stirling, as the officiating clergyman. Church organist, Mr. Stanley Hawthorne played the wedding music and Miss Eileen Tanner was the soloist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a becoming gown of white satin with a lace bertha, and a veil of Chantilly lace falling from a headdress of orange blossoms. Her flowers were white gladioli and heather from Scotland, centred with an orchid.

There were three attendants, Mrs. Alfred Goodman, as matron of honor; Mrs. Cecil Taylor and Miss Nean Crawford, as bridesmaids, all wearing identical floor length gowns of blue eyelet organza with matching floral headdresses and carrying nosegays of blue and yellow 'mums.

Mr. John H. Noble, of Toronto, was groomsman, and the ushers were Mr. William Garner, of Peterborough, and Mr. Harry Funston, of Toronto.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, Mrs. Whytock receiving with the bridal party in a gown of royal purple, with black accessories and a corsage of yellow roses. She was assisted by Mrs. George Noble, wearing a gown of Bovay blue with matching accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

For a wedding trip to the Laurentian Mountains and to New York City, the bride chose a suit of black and white check, with wine accessories and a Russian squirrel neckpiece. Her corsage was of orchids.

Mr. and Mrs. Noble will take up residence in Toronto.

Women's Activities

C.W.L. MEETING

Marmora — The September meeting of the Catholic Women's League was held in Sacred Heart School on Thursday evening with a good attendance. The President, Mrs. J. Black occupied the chair. The meeting opened in the usual manner with prayer led by Rev. H. J. Farrell and the singing of the League Hymn. The president mentioned the donation of prizes by the League for the school picnic, and also the stork shower held for the Auger twins, in July. The correspondence was then dealt with and many thank-you notes were read from the sick and shut-in, who had received gifts of fruit, etc., and also for mass offerings for deceased members of the parish. Also a letter was read from St. Patrick's orphanage in Saskatoon, to which a donation had been sent. In the absence of the treasurer, the treasurer's report was read by the secretary, Mrs. H. Brady.

The president then gave a report on the activities of the different groups during the summer months, in which a substantial amount had been realized.

The visiting committee, Mrs. Jos. O'Neill and Mrs. Carl Heath reported that thirty visits had been made to the sick and shut-ins during the summer, and Mrs. J. Clairmont and Mrs. F. Johnston volunteered to take over this duty for the coming month. The president reported on the success of the play, held in July, and it was decided to take the play out of town at a later date this fall.

The president also reported the donation of the prizes to the winners in the catechetical examinations.

It was decided that the league would donate the flowers for the decoration of the altar for the Forty Hours Devotions, which begin on next Sunday.

Miss Mary Hughes, convener of the Red Cross gave out material for aprons and other articles to be sewn at home by the members of the fancy goods table at the forthcoming bazaar.

Mrs. T. J. Reid consented to collect the subscriptions to the League Magazine.

It was decided to hold the October meeting in the Deloro Hall and the ladies of group 2 would provide the lunch.

Rev. H. J. Farrell then addressed the members. He spoke on the Forty Hours Devotions, and asked the members to be present for their hours of adoration. He related some interesting episodes on his holiday trip this summer, and wished the League success in their fall term of activities.

The presentation of the League scholarship was made by Rev. H. J. Farrell to Charles Clairmont, who received the highest marks in the Entrance examinations. Charles thanked the members, and expressed his happiness in receiving it.

Miss Florence Auger gave a very interesting and descriptive talk on the Marian Congress, which was much enjoyed and appreciated by her listeners.

Mrs. Charles Brady gave a short address on the Home and School Association, describing the aims and purposes of the association.

Delicious refreshments were served by Group 3, and the meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

Elizabeth and Mountbatten May Have to be Content With a Quiet Honeymoon

London, Sept. 23 (AP) —The world's most famous romantic couple, Princess Elizabeth and Lieut. Philip Mountbatten, may have to be content with a quiet honeymoon in this land of scarcity.

Behind such an enforced expedient, if widespread opinion in well-posted circles proves correct, lies a royal resolution to abide by Britain's revised code of austerity, more severe in some respects than wartime constrictions.

It is known that the King has insisted upon fullest economy in the spending of money, the use of materials and facilities, and the employment of labor.

Prior to the recent imposition of a ban on all foreign pleasure travel, Elizabeth and her fiance considered spending at least part of their wedding holiday abroad, possibly in Norway, with Princess Elizabeth's great-uncle, King Haakon.

Trip to sterling-area Dominions would fall outside these restrictions, but it would be expensive. What is more, although thrift is the prime consideration, another factor would be a desire scrupulously to avoid any suggestion, however dim, that one part of the Commonwealth and Empire was being favoured over another.

May Visit Next Year

Generally it is assumed that the couple will visit a distant part of commonwealth next year, following custom established generations ago by royal newlyweds. The royal couple alternatively could avail itself of the repeatedly expressed hospitality of Canada, or of one of several American invitations.

In the end, the choice probably will be a country house, in the usually more clement south of England, which would be offered by friends off the Royal Family for as long as the couple wished to remain in it.

Official comment has been limited to the absolute disclaimer, "we haven't a clue where they will spend their honeymoon."

The public may not know where Princess Elizabeth and Lieut. Mountbatten are going until they actually have arrived at their destination.

Deserve Royal Wedding

That would be all right with those who favour an uncompromising austerity, opposing undue fuss. Opposed to this conviction, though, is no small weight of opinion which argues that another heiress to the throne will not be getting married for a long time, and that the public as well as Princess Elizabeth deserves an unqualifiedly royal wedding.

The reasoning is like this: "our lives are drab enough, and there's not much hope of improvement soon, so let's make a splash and try to fog our troubles."

To which is added by large numbers wanting plenty of pomp and ceremony:

"Whether the wedding is lavish or austere, whether the Princess and Philip honeymoon at home or overseas, the people will get no more clothes or food or fuel or anything else. So let's do it in style."

Archery Club Being Organized

Marmora — A well attended meeting for the purpose of organizing an Archery Club was held in the Town Hall on Friday evening. Wallace Fleet of Belleville representing Hunting and Field Archers of Ontario presided and in preliminary remarks outlined the aims and objects of this association, mentioning that it stood for the creation of better sportsmanship among young and old and the furnishing of sport which keeps the youth away from the streets. A demonstration of archery followed in which Mr. Fleet was assisted by Glen Wellman of Marmora. The cost of maintaining an Archery Club and other interesting matters were advanced in a general discussion period which followed.

The formation of a local club was deferred until September 26 when a further meeting will be held in the town hall to which ladies as well as gentlemen are invited. In course of the meeting Mr. Fleet mentioned that it was not his desire to introduce field archery into this particular district at present but that he would confine activity to the introduction of the use of the bow.

ANNUAL THANKSGIVING SERVICE

Marmora—The annual harvest thanksgiving service was held at St. Paul's on Sunday morning with Rural Dean W. J. Robinson, of Tweed, officiating. The church was tastefully decorated throughout with a profusion of autumn flowers and foliage besides fruits and vegetables. A good congregation joined with the choir in the singing of familiar time-honored harvest hymns. A Dutch thanksgiving hymn was rendered by the choir as an anthem. An impressive sermon was delivered by the Rural Dean on the opening words of the 92nd Psalm. "It is a good thing to give thanks unto the Lord." The preacher pointed out that commentators upon the subject had mentioned in common two great facts. There is a scarcity of thanksgiving and thanksgiving is one of the great duties of life. The whole of life should be lived in the spirit of thanksgiving to the God who gives us richly those good things whereby we live. Before giving out the notices for the coming week, the Rural Dean congratulated the rector and congregation on the beautiful appearance of the interior of St. Paul's since its redecoration. Rev. J. M. Brownlie rector, officiated at a celebration of Holy Communion at 8 a.m. while at 10 a.m. a short children's service was conducted by the lay reader of the parish W. J. Cottrell whose message to the scholars of the Sunday School centred on the words of Jesus "The field is the world."

Miss H. McGeary, VON, Welcomed by Pres. Of Organization

The first fall meeting of the executive of the Belleville Branch of the Victorian Order of Nurses for Canada was held on the evening of Monday, Sept. 15th., with Mr. C. B. Morgan, president, in charge.

Mr. Morgan welcomed Miss Harriet McGeary, who succeeds Miss Vivian Adair as nurse-in-charge, and referred to the loss of Mrs. Colling, a valued member of the board, who is leaving the city to reside in Kingston.

A report of the nursing activities of the Victorian Order during the summer month was presented by Miss Dorothy Connor, who thanked the Board members for the new car delivered in June. The entire summer program has been a very busy one. Of the 31 Belleville resident births in July, V.O.N. nurses gave care to 19, and three others attended the well baby conference.

Before the closing of schools in June, a pre-school round-up was held, and 55 mothers were interviewed, stress on the importance of a medical check-up for pre-school children before entering upon school life being made.

In the interest of the school child 49 home-school visits were made, and 204 children were examined for evidence of pediculosis before entry to the Kiwanis Camp.

During the summer months a total of 1,275 visits were made to patients, exclusive of school visits; 326 of these visits were to babies, 144 to mothers, 69 to prenatals, 226 to medical and surgical, 146 to chronic types, 85 to cancer, and 255 were instructive.

In July Miss Adair addressed the Women's Institute of East Tyendinaga. Miss Adair has left the city to enter McGill University, in Montreal, for post graduate work. Before leaving the city she was guest of honor at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Morgan, who entertained the members of the Board, when Mr. Morgan expressed regret for the loss of Miss Adair and wished her every success in her new undertaking. On this occasion Miss Adair was presented with a travelling bag.

Advice to the Lovelorn

On Building Air Castles

It is only human to have daydreams and build castles in the air, and then try to turn them into realities at the first opportunity. But before making any such attempt, it is only common sense to be very sure of what you're doing first.

Even under the best of circumstances, nobody, of course, can predict that any enterprise will be 100 per cent successful. Most projects in life have something of the gambling touch in them, and if no one were ever to take a chance, nobody would get anywhere. The decision to take the chance and gamble on an outcome should be dependent upon the amount of chance and the possible proportion of the gambling loss.

A girl of 20, who is engaged to a boy of the same age, writes me about one of the riskiest pieces of air-castle construction I have heard of to date. She says that she and her fiance want to go into business for themselves, because they think it is a good way to "make a penny or two for our coming marriage and for the future." And here is how she describes her situation:

"We haven't one penny invested anywhere. He has been out of work seven months, ever since he's been out of the army. We do not know what to look for. We both like the restaurant business—just a hamburger place is what we want. My dad owns a restaurant and I work in it, but I don't make enough to pay my bills or even to save a little. We are wondering if the D.V.A. is the best way to get money, or where could we go? Many of our young friends have developed businesses in this way and are doing wonderfully. But we don't know if we would make out wonderfully, too. Do you think it would be right if I should leave my dad and go into business for myself? I have worked for him for two years and think it is about time I made some money. Do you think we are too young to be considering something like this?"

Now, while undoubtedly these young people have seen friends of their go into business for themselves and make a success of it, I very much doubt if the type of business these friends chose was something of which they were completely ignorant. While this girl has worked for her father in the restaurant business, I imagine she has had nothing to do with the business end of it, which is a pretty important factor in conducting any business successfully. And since she does not say that her boy friend has had any restaurant experience, I take it that he knows nothing whatever about this sort of thing.

Again, the fact that neither of these two young people has apparently ever saved a cent makes them look like rather poor bets as adventurers in business. Even if only one of them had been thrifty enough to lay by a small amount of money, it would give the idea a more hopeful outlook. When two without money sense get together, the prospect doesn't look good. Moreover, the fact that this boy has been out of work ever since he left the army shows that he either lacks initiative or is completely untrained for anything.

The thing for this couple to do, if they wish ultimately to run an independent business, is to make up their minds what type of venture would be most practical for them and would interest them most. The next thing would be to make a point of learning something about it before undertaking it. Unless they do this, they are almost certainly going to find themselves in financial difficulties before they have gone very far.

Since this girl is already working in a restaurant, it would seem that their idea of starting a food business some time, somewhere might be a good one. And, in the meantime, she can make a serious study of how such a business should be run. Also, since her boy friend is not working anyway, why doesn't he join her in working in the restaurant and let them learn together? Even though he had to do this as a volunteer, without pay, he could not be any worse off financially than just hanging around doing nothing. If he doesn't want to do this, perhaps he could go to school somewhere, under the D.V.A. and learn something about the restaurant business that way.

It would certainly be a sound and sensible idea for these two to talk their vocational problem over with someone experienced in the kind of business they decide they want to start, and then be wise enough to follow the advice they get.

BASHFUL BEHEMOTH

Penticton, B. C. — (CP)—Ogopogo, the bashful behemoth of the Okanagan Lake, took citizens' eyes off flying saucers recently by swimming slowly on top of the water in his most daring exhibition yet. Sqdn.-Ldr. Bruce Millar and his wife, the latest witnesses to the appearance of the reluctant reptile, estimated Ogopogo's length at 75 feet, with seven coils in its back.

NOTE FOR PHILATELISTS

Breton, Alta. — (CP) — While checking a supply of stamps recently, Postmaster F. R. Reid, found an error in the perforations of a sheet of the four-cent issue. Instead of the perforations coming between the stamps, it started at an angle from the left hand corner, cut off the bottom of the figure four and then continued into the right hand corner of the sheet.

As much an heirloom as wedding lace or a diamond bracelet, this evening bag of adequate size and real beauty. It is white, completely embroidered with tiny pearl beads, and delicately adorned with floral Beauvais garlands. All the embroidery is hand done, in France, and the elaborate frame is French gilt, set with a floral wreath which copies Beauvais in beads.

This is no trifle to seize up for the casual after-dark doings, but an accessory for ermine and the grande toilette.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Perhaps Not Necessary . . . But It's Courteous

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I were married last year, and because his position means that we have to live here and we couldn't find an available apartment or house, his aunt and uncle took pity on us and are permitting us to board with them. Although we are "boarders", they include us in many of their social activities, and his aunt invites me always to come down to meet her friends who call or come to tea in the afternoon. Her manners are so delightful that I am having a liberal education just watching her with her family and friends. But one question particularly bothers me. I was brought up to think it is not necessary to rise when saying good-by to a lady who has risen to leave a group. But here in this circumstance I have noticed that my husband's aunt and her friends do rise. Is this necessary?

D.

Apparently the reason, or at least one of the reasons, why you find the manners of your husband's aunt so delightful and inspiring is that she regards manners and courtesies and amenities not in the light of whether they are "necessary" but whether they are more courteous and considerate of the other person. So also in this case, although it may not be necessary for a woman to rise when another women rises to leave the group, certainly this is a courteous gesture, both to the departing guest and also to the hostess who has risen to shake hands as she says good-by to her guest.

Correct for Widow to Wear Engagement and Wedding Rings

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am 28 years old. Two years ago my husband died, and I have continued to wear my engagement and wedding rings as I wore them before he died. Several of my friends have suggested that it is not correct for me to do this, that I should either stop wearing them altogether, or wear them, or just my engagement ring, on the third finger of my right hand. Although these friends have not directly said so, I suspect that they think I should be looking around for a second husband and that for this "pursuit" wearing my engagement and wedding rings is an obstacle. What do you advise my doing?

C.D.

I advise that you look into your heart and honestly follow its dictates. That is, if you loved your husband and still love and revere his memory, naturally you will want to continue to wear the sacred rings he gave you as long as you continue to bear his name.

Lemon-Procedure

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please tell me how to put a slice of lemon into my tea, and how to remove it? And when a segment of lemon is served, instead of a slice, should this be squeezed with the fingers or put into the teacup and the spoon used to get the juice out?

D. B.

If there is a lemon fork on the dish with the slices of lemon, use the fork to convey a lemon slice to your teacup, putting the slice in gently so it won't splash. If no fork, use either your teaspoon or your fingers to take the lemon slice. To remove the juice, press the slice of lemon with your teaspoon, and when finished use the teaspoon to remove the lemon slice to the side of your saucer. When a segment of lemon is served, this is squeezed with the fingers and then removed to the side of the saucer.

Refreshments at Home After Wedding Reception

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

After my daughter's 7 p.m. wedding, we are to have a reception in a hall, and refreshments are to be served. If after the reception some of the guests wish to come back to our house to see the wedding gifts (which I think they will, for the hall is not far away from our house), should I plan to serve refreshments then also?

A. M.

Not necessarily; although, if you wish, you might serve a cold drink of some kind, perhaps fruit punch.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Relax, for Beauty's Sake

Lucky is the woman who can snatch thirty minutes during the day for a grand, restful nap. The afternoon nap seems to have no place in the daily schedule. It is a luxury that went out with hoop skirts, phaetons, silk mitts and pantalets. Too bad the custom cannot be revived. Forty winks doesn't seem like such a terrible indulgence, yet the majority of women can't manage to grab them. And how some of those tired wives and mothers need them!

Baby starts chirping with the birds at dawn. Mama crawls out of bed with staggering steps—due to lack of sleep—and with only one eye open. Baby gets his bottle and soon the others are hopping and leaping around, have to be hustled off to school. Pop can't find his brief case and there's a button off the shirt he wants to wear. Whew! Breakfast dishes have to be washed, the house tidied up; then there's the pilgrimage to market, and the kids are home for luncheon. They're so full of vitamins and ginger that it is almost impossible to live with them.

In contrast to these busy mothers, there are thousands of women who have nothing to do and are half killing themselves doing it—entertaining, playing bridge, going on shopping sprees, indulging in endless confabs over the telephone. They, too, need relaxation, but they haven't time for it.

Somewomen are so nerve-tired ..oschool. aoe..gdonaeetxe that they can't relax or rest. That's bad. The condition is a sign-post that reads "This way to nervous exhaustion," and don't think that that state of affairs is any fun. You don't get over it in a hurry. You are not an enlivening or pleasant companion when you have it. You are downright sick, physically, mentally and emotionally. It is a common trouble, these days, after the hard work, the anxiety and the strain of war years. Don't let it catch you. When you're tired, pile into bed, go to sleep and do not worry if there is a sinkful of dirty dishes; eventually they will be washed. They always are. If somebody else washes them, so much the better.

Fatigue causes chemical changes to take place within the body. It slows up circulation. The motors of digestion go on strike. What it does to the feminine countenance is nothing to cause rejoicing. If you get really tired out, fagged to the limit, the face you see in the mirror will nearly scare you to death, even though it was a satisfactory image only the day before.

Organize your life so as to conserve your strength, your health, your hopes and aspirations. Take it easy, or as easy as you can.

Thousands of women who have nothing to do, are half killing themselves doing it.

Fashion Flashes

Novelties of great beauty and interest abound in many fur collections. For evenings, one designer shows a fitted, 39-inch coat of white Chinese moire caracul made with small, rounded collar. Black fox cuffs the sleeves and borders the flaring skirt to give a new look.

Always beautiful, the tricorne assumes a younger, prettier look, we think, when worn posed back, instead of the usual forward line. Black velvet is used for a big, handsome tricorne, with tabs of orange moire at one side, caught with an impressive paste ornament.

Hip interest becomes easy to take, when the skirt is long. And so, there is padding, drapery, swags and other devices to focus interest on the hipline for the new afternoon dresses. Tissue-thin black woolen makes a pretty dress on soft shirtwaist lines, the skirt set off by a deep, front-pointed softly worked handkerchief drape of black satin, which starts at the waist with a narrow, bow-tied satin sash.

Detail lends interest to new fur coats. Black Persian lamb in a 39-inch length is used for a coat made with a generous four-flare back, a high rounded, built-up front collar, and, for novelty, elbow-length cartridge-pleated cuffs.

A favorite with store buyers all over the country is the afternoon dress with its own fur-trimmed jacket, adding up to a very elegant outfit. Black wool crepe is used for a smart costume. The fitted jacket is trimmed with collar, cuffs, and pocket tabs of snowy ermine. The dress bodice is of net with tiny beading.

Can you ever locate a carpenter or a plumber when you want him? Competent help for repair work is getting scarcer and scarcer. Seems as if the ordinary housewife, of necessity, should learn to handle a hammer and saw; should know how to tighten and turn a wrench. Did you know, for instance, that iodine will make a temporary job of covering up scratches on furniture? Or that adhesive tape on the bottom of ornaments will save wear and tear on polished surfaces? Kate Aitken's column in The Standard this week tells the busy housewife how to make many minor emergency repairs. Get The Standard—on sale now at all newsdealers for 10 cents.

Weekend Holiday-Maker Disappears as Britain Tries to Save Dollars

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Sept. 24 (CP) —That famous institution "The British Weekend" seems likely to become a "lost weekend" for Londoners as the country returns to wartime condition in the campaign to save dollars.

It's going to be so uncomfortable getting out of town that only the more hardy will think the game worth the candle.

Before the war the institution known as the weekend was a source of amazement to foreigners, the "long" weekend from Friday afternoon to Monday or the "short" one from Saturday afternoon. As The Evening News tidily put it, 'some have found in it the hidden source of our strength; others have seen it as sign of our frivolity and decadence."

But the war changed the situation. Servicemen and many thousands of civilians were on a seven-day week and the weekend largely disappeared.

"What affected the traditional weekend then (and will again affect it now,)" said the Evening News, "was, more than anything else, that nobody could move about except in considerable discomfort.

"Trains were appallingly crowded. Cars were forbidden, so that a whole range of weekend activtities, from trips to the seaside to visits to the golf club, became either at worst, impossible or, at best, intolerable.

"So we return to wartime ... the weekend holiday-maker will find it scarcely worth the discomfort involved.

"We shall go back to our homes at lunchtime on Saturdays ... to exist until Monday morning."

It will come as something of a shock to Londoners. This summer, for the first time since 1939, the weekend has meant something. It's been like old times for newspaper men to report three-hour weekend traffic tie-ups on the Brighton Road and motorists to boast (almost) that there was so much traffic it took them an hour to go five miles.

But just because the out-of-town weekend is in suspense won't mean the Englishman saves money. There's no indication he won't continue to spend a quarter of his money on so-called "optional expenditures" — reading matter, entertainments, beer, wines and spirits, cigarets, snuff, pipe tobacco and cigars. During the war expenditure on non-essentials increased at a time when all other personal expenditure was being reduced to help pay for war. Many everyday commodities disappeared from the stores and even food costs dropped with strict rationing.

Now the government is taking the country back to wartime "austerity" or perhaps a little worse. The proportion of the national income spent on non-essentials may increase still further as other spending is curtailed to pay for the peace.

What's Become of Our Paralyzed Veterans?

Some 200 Canadian veterans of World War II are paraplegics. The lower part of their body is completely or partially paralyzed. After World War I, paraplegics were regarded as hopeless bed patients, and few lived more than six years. Today, new surgical, medical and neuro-surgical techniques have been developed which enable paraplegics to live useful, independent lives. There are four military hospitals in Canada which treat paraplegics, dozens of whom have been discharged and are holding down good jobs. Day of Atonement Most Sacred In Jewish Calendar

Commencing Tuesday at sunset with the special Kol Nidrei Service, Jewish people of Belleville as well as of all parts of the world will begin the observance of the Day of Atonement. This day the Day of Atonement is the most sacred day on the Jewish calendar. It will end at sundown on Wednesday Sept. 24th., and culminating the ten day penitential period which began with the Jewish New Year.

The Day of Atonement Yom Kippur is a day of fasting, prayer and meditation. Repentance and forgiveness are emphasized and from Biblical times up to the present Yom Kippur as it is known in the Hebrew vernacular, has carried on irresistible appeal to the Jew. The entire purpose of the day is to develop the character of man to a higher and nobler life. On this day the Jews gather together to restate their devotion to a common religious heritage; to renew the old pledges and to take the old vows that their fathers took. The day is a kind of a demonstration of the Jewish loyalty to every high and holy ideal that the Bible teaches. The Atonement takes the form of a re-assertion of the fundamental attachment that the Jew has to his religion. According to the Jewish precept it is held that man has the God-given power of repentance and that fate plays no part in man's life, hence the great solemnity of the day.

This fact is emphasized through the reading of the Book of Jonah during the afternoon service. And the Jew learns then that he cannot successfully flee from God, for God remains ever with him. He may flee like Jonah, but God pursues him and possesses him. The belief in the presence of God in his life brings more comfort and satisfaction to the pious Jew than to all the successes and wealth that might possibly come to him.

On this day the Jew also thinks of his co-religionist throughout the world. If there are communities of his co-religionists who are in need of food and shelter the Jew on this day offers unhesitatingly his aid. The Jew also thinks of his co-religionists who are being denied human rights, and prays for their deliverance from human bondage.

The year 1947-5708 dawns with new hopes and bright prospects for world Jewry, and together with the rest of mankind he believes that justice will ultimately prevail and the Jew who has been the greatest victim of the ghastly war years will get a new lease of life. He is confident that at the United Nations Conference Table the conscience of the world will not be at ease until justice has been done the maltreated Jews of Europe and an "International Bill of Rights" becomes a reality.

The Day of Atonement concluded by a very solemn service known in the Hebrew as "N'eelah" which means "sealing" for according to Jewish tradition at the conclusion of the day the fate of every individual for the coming year is rendered by the Supreme Being.

The services in the Sons of Jacob Synagogue will be conducted by Rabbi A. M. Babb. On Tuesday night he will preach on "The Significance of the Kol Nidrei Service".

On Wednesday morning the Rabbi will take as his subject "On The Threshold of the Holy of Holies" and in the afternoon "A Living Death or a Deathless Life."

If Britain Goes Deeper Into Austerity, Eire Must Go Part of the Way

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Dublin, Sept. 23 — (CP)—The picture isn't clear yet but most Irishmen expect that Britain's dollar crisis is going to bring some new unpleasantness. If Britain goes deeper into austerity, Eire must go part of the way.

Until 1939, Eire could buy with sterling in the free exchange market in London all the dollars it needed to import grain, gasoline, tobacco, automobiles, machinery and other things.

With the war, exchange control was started. A dollar pool was set up for the whole sterling area. All the dollars Eire earned had to be put into the pool. And out of the pool Britain doled out money as it was needed, maintaining overall control of dollar expenditures.

Eire, as a big supplier of food, did well. The figures have never been published but the understanding is that Eire got back six times as many dollars as she put in.

Now, after a brief period of free convertibility after July 15, the dollar pool is re-established and Eire again is dependent on Britain for most of her dollars. Two things are expected to happen:—

The demand for Irish foodstuffs will go up, with Britain trying to buy as much as possible within the sterling area; and more British tourists will be a further drain on supplies of food and manufactured goods in Eire.

Britain probably will ask Eire to cut down dollar requirements for wheat, tobacco and other things imported from the United States.

Trade statistics for the first quarter of this year show that American imports were more than £5,000,000 and exports to the United States were less than £100,000. There are some other sources of United States dollars: emigrant remittances bringing in £2,500,000 a year; some dollar earnings at Shannon airport which is used by all the big American airlines; and sales in the United States of Irish Sweepstakes tickets.

But total dollar earnings are far below requirements. If Britain reduces Eire's allocation of dollars from the sterling are pool, the De Valera government will have no choice but to make sharp cuts in imports.

If new-found supplies of American coal were to be cut off and gasoline imports reduced, the effect on transportation systems and industry would be severe. Merchants who have been selling more and more United States goods are worried that this source will be wiped out. The limited buying concession granted to tourists this summer may have to be discontinued; and Britain, having cut off her own importation of American movies, may hesitate to provide pool dollars for Eire to continue bringing them in.

Oakyille, Ont., Sept. 22—(CP)—A large Gray Coach Lines bus loaded with passengers went out of control near here last night after striking an unlighted excavation job and smashed into a piller of the sixteen-mile Creek bridge on the Queen Elizabeth Way. Several persons were injured, none severely.

By striking the pillar the bus escaped a 90-foot plunge into a ravine, police said. It was bound

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop came down to breakfist with a new necktie on, and ma said, Well, I'm glad to see you surely needed it.

Glad you like it, my dear, pop said. I got it at Berd and Linnets, it was only 3 fifty, he said, and ma said, Three 50, now really, William, I mean really that tie isn't werth a cent more than 2 dollers. In fact I saw a whole rack of them at Hookbinders, exactly the same pattern and the same material, for a doller 90 eight. You must of realized 3 fifty was out of the question for that tie when you bawt it, she said.

Well, I knew it was rather steep but I needed it, you just said so yourself, pop said, and ma said, Now William, needing a thing and paying twice what it's werth are 2 different stories. Anyway, speeking of buying things, I picked up the loveliest hankerchiff case for myself yesterday, she said.

Oh, that's the thing I noticed on the living room table, pop said. I was afraid you'd brawt me home some kind of an impractical tobacco pouch, he said, and ma said, It only cost 2 thirty and it's werth every bit of 5 dollers, it's actually real silk, with hand imbroidery.

I should think you'd find it easier to keep your handkerchiffs in a draw, pop said, and ma said, Oh, it's not suppose to be used except for travelling, though goodness knows when I'm going to do any travelling.

For Peet sake do you meen you dont even need it? pop said, and ma said, You seem to forget it's real silk and I got it for half it's original value.

Yee gods it's still a woman's werld, but as long as there are 2 sexes in it there wont be any lack of variety; pop said.

Being the end of the subject.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE R. CARVER, Sports Editor.

The Philadelphia Rockets, after a week of impatient inactivity, finally went into training action at the Memorial Arena yesterday after a light skating workout Sunday evening. Approximately sixty players, pros and rookies, which included some thirty-four junior players from all parts of the province were tossed over the boards by Coach Wally Kilrea as the initial sessions got under way.

* * *

The ice was in good condition, and the coach sent his pros into action the first thing Monday morning. They were followed by the junior crew and later by the seniors, or players over the junior age. All squads went through a stiff workout in the afternoon and again last night. Kilrea pointed out that all the training sessions are open to the public. The morning jaunt starts at nine, the afternoon session at 1.30 and usually the squads get under way at night by seven o'clock or in that neighborhood.

* * *

Kilrea sent out Freddie Sparks, youthful Stratford senior, with the pros yesterday while at the other end he had Maurice Courteau, Montreal custodian. Bruce Philbey, also of Stratford, and Ivan Walmsley who played with the Scottish Ice Hockey Association last year, also saw action between the pipes.

* * *

* * *

From this point on the squads will undergo intensive training. They are divided into three groups, the regulars, or pros, the amateur seniors and a promising crop of juniors. The latter lads caught the eyes of the railbirds yesterday with their speed and size as they whirled over the ice in their preliminary workouts. The only Belleville juniors to turn out with the squad thus far are Hurst and Taylor.

* * *

Belleville players have been asked to join the squad on Thursday of this week when equipment will be available. Those desirous of doing so should report to Coach Kilrea around seven o'clock. A number of the amateurs now here will be weeded out durink the next couple of days and sent to their respective homes.

* * *

The first exhibition game of the season has been called for Friday night of this week when the Rocket Regulars will stack up against the Yannigans or Rocket Rookies. Coach Kilrea announced today that the game will get under way about 8.15 or 8.30 and he'll send his full squad of pros into action against the simon pures. There will be an important announcement later regarding two more exhibition games with outstanding squads of the American League.

* * *

The Rockets are plentifully sprinkled with veterans of the National and American Hockey Leagues. Eddie Bush, powerful 195-pound defenceman is a native of Collingwood and prior to turning pro with the Pittsburgh squad in 1938-39 played with the Guelph Juniors. He has since played with Kansas City, Indianapolis and Providence of the A.H.L. and in 1941-42 was with Detroit of the National Hockey League. He served in the armed forces from that time until 1946 when he joined the Rockets.

* * *

Jimmy Drummond, another defenceman, is a former Toronto Marlborough player who turned pro in 1944-45 with the New York Rangers. He joined the Hershey club in the same year and remained with that team until 1945-46. The next year he joined the Rockets. Jimmy also served in the Canadian Army, where he made a hockey name for himself playing with service squads.

* * *

Phil Hergesheimer, 175-pound rightwinger who lead the American League in scoring last year, was born in Collingwood and his last amateur hockey before turning pro with the Boston Cubs of the C.A.H.L. in 1934-35 was the Winnipeg Falcons. He has seen plenty of professional service, playing with Minneapolis one year, Cleveland four years, Hershey one year and Chicago three years. He joined the Rockets last year and will report to the squad here tomorrow.

* * *

Kenny Kilrea, member of the famous Ottawa hockey family, and playing brother of Coach Wally Kilrea, has also seen plenty of hockey service. A former amateur with the Detroit Pontiac Chiefs, Kenny joined the Pittsburgh club as a pro in 1938-39. He commuted between the Detroit Red Wings and the Indianapolis team alternately until 1944-45 when he joined the Buffalo team of the A.H.L. The next season he was sent to New Haven and the last two years played with the Fort Worth Rangers. This is his first year as a Rocket, and he should fit into the picture quite comfortably.

* * *

Johnny Mahaffey, former centre star with the Montreal Royals, was acquired this year from the Pittsburgh squad. He turned professional with the New York Rangers in 1943-44 and the next year joined the Smokey City team. From there he joined the Montreal Canadiens and in 1945-46 played with the Pittsburgh team.

* * *

Leo Richard, 185-pound rightwinger, started his pro career in 1942-43 with the Indianapolis squad going to Pittsburgh the following season. The next two years were spent with the Cleveland and Minneapolis teams and in 1945-46 he was a member of the Oakland, California squad.

* * *

A Polish lad, Walter Stefaniew, had but one season with the Cleveland Barons before joining the Canadian Navy where he spent two years. Returning to civil life in 1943 he joined the Minneapolis team. Wally is a centre player and tilts the beam at 175.

* * *

Bob Walton, who first saw the light of day in Ottawa, is a leftwinger of the Sidney, N.S., Millionaires. He got his first taste of pro hockey in 1943-44 with the Montreal Canadiens and in the same year was sent to Buffalo. He played with Pittsburgh for the next three seasons, and is now a member of the Rockets.

* * *

It was announced yesterday that exhibition games have been arranged between the Rockets and the Providence Reds and Washington Lions of the American Hockey League, the dates to be made known later.

TORONTO LEAFS START TRAINING AT ST. CATHARINES

Stanowski and Ezinicki Get Ribbing From Rest of the Squad

St. Catharines, Sept. 23 (CP)—Two of Toronto Maple Leafs veterans still drew carefully exaggerated "double-takes" from their team-mates today as the Stanley Cup champions settled down to the training schedule leading to their National Hockey League opener Oct. 18.

Wally Stanowski, the Leafs swooping defenceman, and Bill Ezinicki, stocky right winger, were "the little men who weren't there" so far as their mates were concerned, and neither was allowed to forget it without a little ribbing.

Stanowski, falsely reported traded to Chicago Black Hawks during the off-season, grew accustomed to players bumping into him saying: "Pardon, me, Mr. Stanowski. Thought you were in Chicago."

It was the same with Ezinicki, who denied a report that had him giving up hockey for pro golf.

Defenceman Gus Mortson, one of last season's six rookies who turned a fifth-place team into champions was the only regular missing from yesterday's opening work-outs. He was under treatment in Toronto for what doctors called a "muscular spasm."

Last season's first and second lines were intact with Syl Apps centering Harry Watson and Ezinicki and Ted Kennedy between Howie Meeker and Vic Lynn. A third line had Nick Metz centering his brother Don and Joe Klukay.

The regulars were augmented by three rookies kept over from the Leafs tryout school last week. They were defenceman Phil Samis of Oshawa Juniors, Goalie Howie Harvey and forward Andy Barbe of Coniston, Ont., who worked well between Gaye Stewart and Gus Bodnar.

Halifax, Sept. 23 (CP) —Back in the early thirties an injury-ridden band of Truro hockey players — dubbed the seven survivors — scored one of the greatest upsets in Allan Cup playdowns history by defeating a full strength McGill Redmen squad.

This week, shades of the now-fabled seven crept over the Truro Bearcats baseball team, defending their 1946 senior baseball crown.

Starting out on a final series with Halifax Arrows, Truro just couldn't seem to stroke Lady Luck's fickle hand in a pleasing manner. The lady held the score card:

1. Truro lost the first game 2-1 with Arrows winning run being scored on the game's only passed ball.
2. On the way home from the Halifax game a car load of Bearcats was involved in a car accident. Three players were sent to hospital.
3. In a wild and woolly second game last week the weakened Truro nine lost 15-5; pitcher suffered a broken arm and a fight ensued which prompted the Nova Scotia Amateur Baseball Association to order Truro playing coach Sonny MacDonald to do no more coaching — but he could still play.

"Specifically, MacDonald is forbidden to direct the team or take any part in any arguments with players or umpires . . . but he will be allowed to continue as a player. Just how this will work out is not clear.

"Will Sonny be asked to explain any suspicious signals he makes with hands or glove? Will an umpire be stationed in the Truro dugout to see that Coach MacDonald does not tell his batters what to do? If Conny Mack could direct a game from the dugout by waving a score card is there any reason why MacDonald cannot do likewise?"

It's That Man Again

Guess who's back in the pigskin game in Sydney, N.S., is another question asked by the ever-asking Herald scribes.

"Why it's Charlie McVicar of course. If it's a social error to mention a woman's age after she had voted 10 years or more, then it's a breach of rugby etiquette to report the number of times McVicar has 'retired' from the order of the boot, scrum and scramble."

Manager of the famed McTier-Cup winning Caledonia Rugby squad for years, McVicar has been "in" the game for more than 35 years.

TORONTO TEAMS ARE ELIMINATED

Cleveland, Sept. 23 —(CP) — Even the speed and control of Toronto's Russ Johnston, one of the features of the World Amateur Softball championships here failed last night to give Toronto People's Men's team a victory over the powerful Fort Wayne (Ind.) Zollners, who won the men's crown with a 4-0 victory over Toronto.

The Zollners touched Johnston for 11 hits and their pitcher Bill West dealt out a no-hit, no-run game to preserve Fort Wayne's unbeaten record for the tournament. Toronto had taken six of seven starts before meeting the Zollners.

In the women's championships, New Orleans Jax girls took the title with a 6-4 victory over Phoenix (Ariz.) Ramblers. The Toronto People's girls team was eliminated earlier from the women's playoffs.

MATCHED RACE BETWEEN ARMED, ASSAULT NOT SURE

Trainer Max Hirsch Not Sure Clubfoot Comet Will be Ready

By SID FEDER

New York, Sept. 23 (AP) — The off-again, on-again $100,000 match race between Armed and Assault, billed as "the race of the year," is on the doubtful list once more today, and probably will be called off officially today.

Late yesterday after Assault worked a mile and an eighth in a creditable, if not sparkling, 1:52 1-2, trainer Max Hirsch decided the colt couldn't possibly be at his peak for Saturday's scramble at Belmont, so he suggested that owner Robert J. Kleberg, Jr., withdraw the clubfoot Comet.

Final decision will be made at a huddle after lunch today at which the Assault "Family" will sit in with owner Warren Wright and the training Jones boys, Ben and Jimmy, for Armed, and George E. Widner, Belmont Park boss.

The Jones boys proposed an alternate suggestion, why not have Stymie, the world's leading money-winning horse, pinch-hit for Assault on Saturday?

It would mark the second time that Assault backed away, as the boys on the backstretch put it, from meeting the golden gelding who is second only to Stymie among racing's all-time money winners. The first time came a week before they were originally scheduled to meet at Washington Park in Chicago Aug. 30. On that occasion it was because Assault popped up with an ailing foot.

What is Your Housing Problem?

BY R. A. HUMPHRYS, B. Arch., M.R.A.I.C.

There are three main types of houses—bungalow, 2-storey and 1½ storey. Many people believe that a bungalow is the least expensive type of construction, but it's not. The cost of building and maintaining a bungalow is greater than either of the other types. There are several reasons. In the first place, a larger excavation is required, unless the owner decides to only partially excavate. More foundation and roof areas are needed, and a bungalow is more difficult to heat, resulting in higher fuel bills. One big advantage, however, is the lack of stairs. See The Standard this week for more details on things to be considered when building a home. The Standard is on sale now for 10 cents at all newsdealers.

Brooklyn Dodgers Champions Of National League When Cards Lose Second Game of Twin Bill

Detroit in Second - Place Tie With Boston Red Sox When They Split

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Brooklyn Dodgers, only baseball team ever to win a pennant at midnight without playing, awoke today as official National League champions of 1947.

Not many of the Brooks were aware of the good news until today. Only those few who had stayed over at pitcher Hugh Casey's restaurant learned last night that the Dodgers had backed into the pennant.

It came about when Chicago Cubs, who had dropped the opener of a day-night doubleheader 4-2 defeated the Redbirds 6-3 in the second game thus eliminating them from the race.

Instead of the usual tumult and shouting that usually accompanies the winning of a flag, the players as well as the Flatbush faithful took the triumph in stride.

"After all," one Brooklyn player declared, "it was 'in the bag' the minute we grabbed the rubber game in St. Louis last week." Last night's mathematical elimination of the Cards was strictly anticlimax.

Oddly enough, it was Johnny Schmitz the southpaw pitcher who had turned back the Cards in the last game of the 1946 season necessitating an unprecedented playoff with Brooklyn, snuffed out St. Louis' final hopes. Schmitz relieved starter Paul Erickson in the third inning after the Cards had scored two runs to move within one run of the Cubs, and stopped the Redbirds with six-hit ball in the next 6½ innings.

Detroit fell into a second-place tie with the Boston Red Sox in the American League when they were held to a split in their doubleheader with Cleveland. Young Art Houtteman pitched the Tigers to a 6-4 victory in the opener. The Indians won the second game 7-6 on Hank Edwards' three-run homer in the ninth inning off Virgil Trucks.

Chicago White Sox and St. Louis Browns divided a doubleheader in Chicago, the Sox winning the second game 4-0 after Sam Zoldak pitched the Browns to a 4-2 win in the opener. Joe Haynes hurled the shutout for the White Sox.

All other teams, except the Yankees and Washington Senators who were rained out, were not scheduled.

Ogdensburg Evens Series With Ottawa

Ottawa, Sept. 23 (CP)—Ogdensburg Maples squared up the Border Baseball League's championship playoff at two games apiece with Ottawa Nationals last night, by scoring the winning run in the ninth for 5-4 victory over the Nats before a poor crowd.

Fifth game of the best-of-seven playoff is scheduled for Ogdensburg tonight.

Maples were leading 4-0 up to Ottawa's eighth inning when the Nats tied it up with four runs on two bases on balls, doubles by Bill Metzig and Al Grefe and a single by Bob Sanborn.

Million-to-One Chance Husband Shot Says Wife

Niagara Falls, Ont., Sept. 23 (CP)—Mrs. Alice Martin, widowed only two months after her marriage, said today a "million-to-one chance" led to her husband being fatally shot on historic Lundy's Lane early Saturday.

Chief Constable Melvin D. Tisdale said in a statement that a bullet which killed Elvey Martin, 37, as he walked home from work may be one of five fired by Constable W. R. Kinghorn during an automobile chase. The constable has been suspended pending further investigation of Martin's death.

Mrs. Martin said her husband usually drove home from work with a fellow employee. On the night of his death, the man was not at work and Martin intended to drive with another worker. But the second man was late leaving the factory and Martin decided at the last minute to walk.

A few minutes later, two passers-by found Martin's body, a bullet embedded in his chest.

No charge has been laid against Constable Kinghorn.

Crown Attorney T. F. Forestell said in Fort Erie, Ont., that "there is no charge against Kinghorn." An inquest likely would be ordered after a report was received from R.C.M.P. in Ottawa on the calibre of the bullet removed from Martin's body.

Mr. Forestell said all evidence "seems to point to the fact that Martin's death was just an unfortunate accident."

"From the shape of the bullet, it appears the slug ricocheted off something hard and then struck Martin. . . Constable Kinghorn was acting carefully and was justifiably firing off his gun into the air."

Chief Constable R. W. Worm of Stamford Township, where the shooting took place, said he had "no comment whatsoever". but, asked if he believed the bullet which killed Martin had ricocheted, he said: "It's possible. I've nothing further to say."

Petes Win, 4 to 3, And Square Series

Peterborough, Ont., Sept. 23 — (CP) — The Intermediate Petes evened up their Ontario Baseball Association "A" series here yesterday when they edged out a 4-3 win over Batawa before a slim crowd in Riverside Park. They had lost the first fray of the best-in-three series in Belleville and the third game will be there Friday.

It was a low-hit game with some costly bobbles, only two of the runs being earned. Doug Loucks, pitching for Petes, hurled a six-hitter, fanned seven and walked but one. Peacock started for Batawa but was wild and gave way in the second stanza to Muffitt.

The latter limited the locals to four hits the rest of the route and whiffed eight, but the Petes bunched two hits with a walk for the tying and winning runs in the eighth inning.

An error, an out and hits by Cook and Solmes scored two Batawa runs in the first, their other coming in the third on a two-base error on Cook's roller, another miscue and a hit by Pukamcik. The Petes got one back in the first on a pitching error, a walk and a hit by Murphy.

In the eighth, Crowe singled, stole second, went to third on an out and home on Girard's double, which also scored Fitzgerald, who was safe on a fielder's choice following a walk to Garvey.

Rankin topped Batawa hitters with two in four times up. Catches by Rankin and Pryde were defensive standouts.

The teams:

PROVINCIAL

"Situated in one of the finest dairying districts in the Province he said, it is giving encouragement to the breeding of better cattle by the large proportion of its prize money allotted to the cattle classes. About thirty per cent of entire prize money for the Fair is given for cattle, and in all and about 75 per cent for all classes of livestock. Live stock is the foundation of agriculture in Hastings County, as it is, in the whole of Ontario, and the Belleville Fair is rendering a great service to the farmers of its community by its stress on the breeding of better and more productive types of live stock."

Interested in Boys, Girls

"Belleville Fair is also noted for the interest it is taking in Junior Farmer development, and the training of young people in the principles of good farming. It has sponsored a boys' grain club, a boys' calf club, girls' clubs in home making and nutrition and a girls' garden brigade, and the junior section of the Fair is one of the best to be found anywhere in the province, bringing as it does boys and girls from several of the surrounding counties into friendly competition with each other in their club work."

Mr. Clarke also read a personal message from the Hon. Thomas K. Kennedy, Ontario Minister of Agriculture in which the minister stated that the people of Britain and the starving countries of Europe are looking to the farmers of Ontario for greater quantities of food than they have ever produced before. This applies, the minister said, to livestock products, and to the bacon, pork, beef, cheese, processed milk, poultry and eggs in which Ontario leads the Dominion in production for export markets. Ontario's cheese, the best of which comes from Hastings County, is urgently needed by the British people and it is unfortunate that circumstances have caused a reduction in our cheese production in the last two years.

Seen Dire Straits

The Minister had seen the dire straits to which the British people had been reduced, and he came home from a recent visit to them determined that Ontario would do everything possible to produce more of the food they required. "They want all of our production, and the maximum amount we can produce would still be too little."

He pointed out in his message that livestock production would not be easy because of a shortage of feed grain. He urged the production of more of this vital commodity and issued a challenge to the farmers of Ontario to increase their grain acreage in 1948 by one million acres over that of 1946.

"This means a great deal of effort," the Minister said, "but we can do it. The Department of Agriculture is prepared to help in every way it can to reach this goal. This is vitally important to the farmers of this section of Ontario, and I hope you will take part in this drive for increased grain acreage in order to meet our obligations to Britain and to safeguard your own future in agriculture."

"And now," concluded Mr. Clarke, "you good people have heard enough of me, so I officially declare this Belleville Fair open."

Introduced by Mayor

The guest of honor was formally introduced by Mayor Frank Follwell. Present on the stage in front of the grandstand where the opening ceremonies took place were President Elmer Sandercock of the Board of Directors who, prior to the opening outlined the Exhibition activities for the current show, and expressed the appreciation of his board to the City Parks Board and others for their co-operation in modernizing the grounds; 1st vice president Harry Rollins, 2nd vice president Thomas Walker and Secretary Erle Denyes.

The Death of a Doll

By Hilda Lawrence

CHAPTER 29.

Dr. Koppel opened his large, old-fashioned bag and turned his back. Then, "Nobody saw me do that," he said. "Where did you find it in the first place, Agnes?"

She told them, with curiously few digressions and none of the odd hazards that usually beset her class. Her heart kept out of her throat, her hair stayed flat on her head, and she was not laid low by a feather. "And what's more, I know who it belonged to, I figured it out. I know why it wasn't missed."

It had been handed out to Miss Edith Campbell, she said, a third-floor single. Put on her bed the same as the rest, the morning of the party. But Miss Campbell's father had been taken sick and she'd been sent for, so she'd gone across the river to Bogota that afternoon. Not many knew she'd gone, she was a quiet girl that kept to herself. But somebody knew, and knew she wouldn't be back until the next day, if then. And her room was unlocked. Easy enough to steal Miss Campbell's costume, easy enough to change from one to another in case of blood. Easy enough to lock yourself in a bathroom. "Maybe the second-floor bathroom," Agnes elaborated, "then hide the extra one in the backroom, where it wouldn't be found till spring, and walk down one flight as calm as you please."

She paused, but it was clearly for breath, not other people's conversation. "And there's something else, too. I talked it over with Miss Plummer last night, and we fixed the time. The time is right. It fits."

She had been watching the rag dollies having their fun, she said, over by the desk, and she'd laughed to see them. That is, she'd laughed until she saw how mean they acted when Miss Plummer begged for someone to run her errand. Nasty girls, every one, ungrateful as they come, shaking their heads and cackling like geese. She'd tried to guess which ones they were, because she meant to give them what-for in the morning. And that was when she'd seen the peculiar one.

"Peculiar?" Mark repeated.

"Not in looks," Agnes said, "unless you count bunchiness. Peculiar in actions. She was kind of following one rag dolly around, I saw her. She was like somebody rounding up a stray sheep—herding, like. I couldn't take my eyes of her. She got the other dolly up to the desk, right under Miss Plummer's nose, as slick as you please. Almost threw her, she did. Just like she'd been planning all along. Then she went away herself, mingled, and there was no telling her from the others. A little while later I noticed a dolly on the stair landing, going up. It looked like her, the bunchy one."

He kept the excitement out of his voice. "The other doll, the one she pushed, that one was Ruth Miller, wasn't it?"

"I said you were a cue one," Agnes agreed soberly.

"Scare the doctor, Lillian scare him like you did me last night," April said.

Lillian opened her eyes and gave a fugitive smile. Dr. Koppel's quick intake of breath made April laugh.

The doctor's capable old hands moved at once to the girl's temples and wrist as if he trusted only what he could touch and count. Mark watched. There was a bruise under the bandage, ugly, swelling.

"If you can talk," he said softly, "I'd like to hear what you have to say...How long have you been conscious?"

"Since last night. Late last night."

"Anybody know?"

Her smile was wry and painful. "Am I crazy? No. Not even Fister. ... I've been wondering when you'd get around to me. I wanted to talk to you." Her eyes clouded. "I thought I heard music last night. I was still groggy but I thought I heard a music box. And if I did—"

"You heard it. I was out in the hall, outside this door. I found the box, and I know what it was used for. Does that fit in with what you know?"

"It fits something," she said. "You know she was murdered, don't you?"

"Do you know?"

"Maybe we'd better get together. Blow by blow description ...I was working on a night job when they had the party and I took time off. But the party was too young for me, so I went up to my room for a cigaret. You can check with Jewel, she took me up, and I think she knew who I was. I lived on sixth then, in the room under this one. When I got there I wrote some letters and had a smoke. But I turned out my light for that and sat on the window ledge with the window open. That was when I heard the music the first time. I knew it was a box of some kind, but I didn't know whose. And everybody was supposed to be having fun downstairs. It didn't make sense. I got curious. So I leaned out and looked up and down, trying to place it. I placed it right off. There was an open window above mine, on the eighth floor. Miss Brady's bedroom. There was a light on, too—dim, but on. That was one for the book. Light, music, open window, and Miss Brady was supposed to be—"

"Wait. Where are the medical supplies kept? First aid and all that?"

"Two places. Fister's on second and Brady's."

"Good. Did you see Miss Plummer send a girl up for supplies?"

"I didn't see it happen, but she was trying to rope one in when I left." Her eyes narrowed. "Say, is that how?"

"Yes," Mark said. "Go on."

"Where was I? Brady's room. Music."

"Brady's room," he repeated.

"And Brady at the party — or else .... I decided to have a look, so I went out to the stairs and walked up. The fire door on the eighth was propped open, and I could see to the end of the hall. A girl was backing out of Brady's room and locking it. There was an open door right beside me, so I ducked in and closed it part way.

"It was dark in there, I could watch her without being seen. She came up the hall, walking fast and not making a sound. She was wearing sneakers." She waited for his reaction.

"Anything familiar about her? Posture, anything?"

"No. Except that she didn't look—right. She was the same as all of us, same dress, same mask, but there was something else. She didn't look—right. Then I heard the elevator ringing and remembered that I'd heard it before, when I was walking up.

"The girl was hearing it, too, and she muttered something and moved faster, almost ran. I thought she was a thief and I was afraid she'd get away. She'd passed the room where I was so I stepped out and started after her. But the minute I did that, I knew it was a boner.

"She heard me and turned her head. She stopped where she was, turned her head and looked straight through me, straight through the costume, down to me, inside. She didn't say a word, she held her head on one side as if she were taking me apart, memorizing me, making sure she'd know me again.

"I ducked back and closed the door and waited to die. There was something terrible about that look, it came through her mask and mine, and I knew her eyes were telling me she'd kill me then and there if she only dared. So I stayed where I was, with the door locked, until she had time to get away. Then I went down to my own room and locked myself in there, too."

"Did you go back to the party?"

"Not for a long time. I was afraid. I was afraid to show up in that costume. So I stayed in my room until I knew they'd unmasked and then I went down wearing my regular clothes. No sneakers on anybody, of course. I looked. Everybody happy and having fun. No cracks about the way I was dressed. Not a single person asked me where I'd been or gave me a funny look. Nobody tried to keep out of my way. That's all . . . Except that she touched her head with cautious fingers and winced. She waited a long time, but she finally landed."

"Are you to tired to tell me about that?"

"There's nothing to tell. I don't know what happened. I was having a shower late, and somebody turned the light off. I thought it was April, acting up, so I said, 'Cut it out, kid.' .... I didn't hear her that time either, I guess she wore the sneakers again, but I know that's who it was. Something hit me on the side of the head and the next thing I knew I was in this bed."

10,000 Pass Through Gates Despite Rain, Cold Weather

Picton, Sept. 23—Favored by good weather on Saturday, nearly ten thousand paid admission to Picton Fair. The previous day saw rain for an hour ar chilling winds, and attendance was down by 1,000 compared to the previous year, though it reached 4,000 including children admitted free. The night attraction, a rodeo from Texas drew big crowds both nights and the thousand seats in the grandstand were sold out long before show time. These shows were of very high order, including fancy riding, bull-dogging and roping, a square dance on horse back, bucking horses, amusing mules, hurdle jumping, a bucking car, and other features found only in a rodeo.

Between races, horses were judged on the track. Belleville High School Band gave much appreciated numbers. A running race by horses from the rodeo gave added thrills. Saturday saw the Black and White day, calf judging competition and other events.

Financially, the Fair receipts will be nearly $2,000 over last year when the first day was fine and the second rainy.

Visitors at fairs throughout the area, state that no where do they see more or finer general exhibits than at Picton and it was truly a magnificent display of the products of farm, garden and orchard.

Factories closed down Saturday afternoon so that help could attend the fair.

Buildings were charged with pressing crowds to see the thousands of exhibits. The big display of home cooking was of special interest, seldom being equalled at any district fair.

Some of the prize winners were:

How to Improve Your Legs

BY ANNE KENNEDY

This fall, the legs that step so gaily up and down the streets are lovelier than they have ever been. Perhaps it's the new stocking shades, darker, more definite, and obviously as sheer as fragile cobwebs. Perhaps it's the new shoes. They are adorable with their thin, delicate soles, lovely leathers, and well-built cuban heels. It may be the keen crisp air of autumn, as intoxicating as wine. But, whatever it is, legs are lovely and important. In her "Good Grooming" column in The Standard this week, Anne Kennedy passes along hints on how to make the most of legs, how to keep them trim and slender. The Standard is on sale now — 10 cents at all newsdealers.

...so Mary will take up nursing after all

IT LOOKED for a while as if a temporary financial problem in the family might keep Mary from finishing "High". If she had to quit school to help the family income that would have meant good-bye to her hopes of becoming a nurse.

No... and yes. He consulted his bank manager, who told him how the bank, through personal loans, often helped people to meet just such situations. Arrangements were made, and now Mary will take up nursing after all.

In 1946 Canada's banks made half a million personal loans to Canadian men and women.

SHIP EXPLODES AFTER COLLISION, TWO DEAD

Transient Arrested For Questioning In Rape-Slaying

Established Man Was In Owen Sound Over Weekend

Owen Sound, Ont., Sept. 24 — (CP)—This Georgian Bay city of 14,000 awaited developments today in the questioning of a 52-year-old transient in connection with the sex slaying of 11-year-old Betty Playford.

The man was arrested in Montreal yesterday and police there said they had established "definitely" that he had been in Owen Sound during the weekend.

Police said the child was raped and then bludgeoned to death Sunday night. Searchers found her body bloodsmeared and with the skull battered Monday morning in a roadside ditch on the city's northeastern outskirts.

Ontario provincial police were scheduled to start investigation in Montreal today into the activities of the transient: He was arrested early yesterday and turned over to the homicide squad because of superficial wounds and scratches on his face. He claimed he hitch-hiked from Toronto Monday.

Meantime, spurred by posting of a $1,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the slayer, police and citizens scoured the "long lane" section—said to be the scene of illegal drinking parties and bootlegging operations—for clues pointing to the girl's killer.

Still missing are the brown tam the child wore when last seen alive Sunday night and the weapon used to shatter her skull.

Authorities awaited the report of pathologist S. J. C. Miller of Stratford Ont., expected to establish the exact time of death.

An aftermath of the slaying is an agitation for a cleanup of establishments reported to sell liquor illegally in outlying sections of the city. Owen Sound has been "dry" for nearly 50 years but residents say several establishments sell liquor outside the law and surreptitious drinking parties are frequent.

Montreal, Sept. 24 — (CP)—A 52-year-old vagrant described by police as a religious crank with Communist tendencies and a criminal record — under official suspicion because he lied about the date he came to Montreal from Toronto — entered his second day here today as a suspect in the Owen Sound, Ont., slaying of 11-year-old Betty Playford last Sunday.

Through hours of questioning last night the man denied any knowledge of the Owen Sound murder in which the Playford girl was criminally assaulted, her head crushed and her body thrown into a ditch.

Police said they were disinclined to believe the man had anything to do with the sex slaying of the child.

But, they said, the vague story given by the man, would have to be carefully checked.

Provincial Constable Barker Wannell of Perth, Ont., went into immediate conference with Montreal police when he arrived here last night.

Montreal police said the vagrant was being kept in the cells this morning while authorities checked on his alibi as to his whereabouts at the time of the slaying.

The suspect entered the Montford Street police station yesterday and asked for a bed, saying he had just arrived from Toronto. His shirtsleeves were torn and he had scratches on both arms, said police.

Later he told police he had been in Montreal several days.

A detective source said questioning today failed to bring out "any proof" that the vagrant was in Owen Sound during the weekend.

LEGION DIVIDED IN TWO GROUPS ON HOUSING PROBLEM

One Division Advocates Cut-and-Dried Plan be Formulated

Windsor, Ont., Sept. 24—(CP)—Veterans' housing and the Ontario Legion policy regarding means of solving the serious problem were under discussion today by 1,000 delegates to the Provincial Legion Command's 15th Biennial Convention.

Sitting in its last day, the convention appeared to be divided into two groups of thought on the subject.

There was unanimous agreement on the gravity of the situation and the dire need for a solution, but one division held the belief that a cut-and-dried Legion plan should be formulated by the present convention.

Among others was the feeling that the Legion's housing committee, headed by veteran builder Harold Tabbiner of Toronto, should be given "direction" and allowed to formulate what its members think is the best plan.

Discussion on the housing problem was held up last night when the convention decided to have representatives of the various suggestions meet with the committee chairman. The idea was to have the suggestions incorporated into a resolution which could be placed before the delegates in the form of a concrete proposal.

Motorist in Trouble Was Far too Trusting

Kitchener, Sept. 24 — (CP) — Harvey Vrooman of Kitchener is a sadder but wiser man today and if he ever recovers his automobile which he put up as security on $1.50 debt it will only be through the good graces of a taxi driver.

Vrooman reported to police that on Sept. 14 his 1929 model car stalled some blocks from his home. He sought the assistance of a taxi driver who managed to get the car going and then drove Mr. Vrooman home. He asked $1.50 for his services. Vrooman nor his wife had the money and the cabby took the car for security.

Vrooman told police he did not get the taxi driver's name or address and he does not know the licence number of his own car. His driver's licence and ownership card also went with the car.

Canadians' Foster-Mother in Surrey Now in Canada to Visit Her 'Boys'

By WILLIAM STEWART
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Quebec, Sept. 24 (CP)—Mrs. Enid Wall, around whose quiet home in a Surrey Lane 1st Canadian army headquarters sprang up during the war, reached Quebec late last night for a visit to Canada that once was a favorite topic of fireside conversation with Canadian officers who were her billeted guests.

The jolly wartime foster-mother to a score of Canadian officers with army headquarters at Leatherhead, Surrey, travelled to Canada aboard the Empress of Canada. The ship docked here just before midnight after a crossing rough enough that Mrs. Walls safe-arrival cable to her family in England said

"Undefeated by the elements."

Mrs. Wall will spend two months renewing friendships that grew out of her hospitality to Canadians with 1st corps headquarters and then with 1st army headquarters which succeeded it in the preparation for operations on the continent.

She was greeted at the dockside by Neil Baird of Galt, Ont., one of her Leatherhead guests when he wore the uniform of the Highland Light Infantry.

The former officer set out from Galt Saturday by automobile, met Mrs. Wall and set out to drive her to Montreal, where there would be a reunion with Russell Gough, another of Mrs. Wall's "boys." From then on an attempt was to be made in a number of Canadian cities to repay Mrs. Wall for unstinted wartime kindness.

As she stepped down the gangplank into big Wolfe's cove sheds piled with bags of cocoa beans, Mrs. Wall explained she had left Leatherhead Sept. 17—"the same day Michael went off to school."

She said she had to get back to England at the end of November before 16-year-old son Michael returned to Leatherhead for his Christmas holidays.

To the customs official who made a quick examination of her two suitcases, Mrs. Wall declared: "no firearms."

She told of the difficulty of conditions in present-day England and the difficulty of believing her trip to Canada had finally materialized.

"You're on the wrong side of the road," she exclaimed to Baird as they started out from Quebec with the car well over to the right.

TOBACCO CROP LOSS BY FROST IS $3,500,000

Cold Snap Comes After 90 Per Cent of Crop Harvested But Catches Big Crop in Fields

Delhi, Ont, Sept. 24—(CP)—A killing frost which crept out of the hollows in the rich tobacco-growing sections of Southwestern Ontario's Norfolk and Elgin counties on the northern rim of Lake Erie blackened crops of flue-cured tobacco still in the fields and growers fear their loss may reach $3,500,000.

At first they congratulated themselves on missing the effects of the sudden cold wave which damaged fruit and vegetable crops in many low-lying areas of Southern Ontario, but a check late yesterday revealed that the flue-cured tobacco fields, too, had been hit.

The cold snap came after harvesting of 90 per cent of the tobacco in this district but it caught 10,000,000 pounds still in the fields and brought this year's over-all production well below the 1946 output.

Unfavorable growing conditions in the early spring, combined with the long dry spell in July and early August, contributed to a late harvest, and it is estimated between 3,000,000 and 4,000,000 pounds are wiped out in this district alone. Aylmer district counted its loss at close to 7,000,000 pounds.

A lesser acreage was devoted to the crop this year than in 1946 and previous years and the yield fell below the average. Considering the frost damage, the whole crop may not yield more than 80,-000,000 pounds.

With the exception of a few growers, the majority of those who suffered loss had only a few kilns wiped out, but all these added up to a far greater toll than had been experienced for several years.

West Elgin flue-cured tobacco growers also report considerable damage to their crops from frost. Incomplete estimates place their loss at about $200,000.

GIVES EXPLANATION

Kingston, Sept. 24 — (CP)—J. F. Walsh, one of three discharged from the staff of Portsmouth penitentiary after a three-man escape Aug. 18, said yesterday in an interview that "it looks as if I am being punished because I was the first to make the discovery."

Walsh said he reported to work around 8:15 a.m. and about 9 a.m. found the rope Donald (Mickey) McDonald, Ulysses Lauzon and Nick Minille used in their break. He immediately reported his find. "I was told that I should have reported it sooner," Walsh said that "as far as I know nobody on the night shift was fired."

Greater Output of Goods Needed to Reduce High Cost-of-Living--Mitchell

Hamilton, Sept. 24 (CP)—Higher production objectives by management and higher unit production by workers are necessary preliminaries to reduction in the cost-of-living, Labor Minister Mitchell said today.

In a speech prepared for delivery at the 63nd annual convention of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, Mr. Mitchell said he knew the increased cost of goods was a cause of concern these days.

"The remedy is in our hands—not by way of subsidies which we all pay anyway—but by the greater output of goods,' he said. "It means there must be higher production objectives by management and unit production by workers. With more of the goods we need available, prices will find their proper level.

"It is important, too, that the highest level of wages be paid not only because this means a fair return to the workers but because it also means the maintenance of high purchasing power through which the greater production of goods will be absorbed.

"It is a simple fact that no wage scale can be too high if it is matched by production. Shorter hours, holidays with pay and other concessions are of little avail in raising the real standard of living unless the volume of goods and services remain constant or increase under the new conditions."

Refers to Unions

Mr. Mitchell referred to the increased responsibility of labor unions, listed employment statistics and touched on the government's immigration policy.

"It is elementary that labor organizations have for their basis the promotion of the welfare of their membership and that is commendable," he said. "But organized labor has become so large numerically that the decisions, actions, and influence of local unions, district councils, provincial federations and national bodies have a great effect on the life of cities and towns, provinces and the country as a whole. It is something for your sober thought. . .

"Governments are helpless if the people will not co-operate and this means any government no matter of what political complexion.

"Fortunately, we have had stable government in Canada, because we are by nature a law-abiding people. There have been disturbing signs, however, of a tendency to dispute the law when it affects a certain section of our people. There is a threat to democracy in this for when the laws of the land no longer have the respect and support of the people, we are headed for another form

One Way to Appeal.

"There has been severe criticism against a law passed in another country — even against a law which has been put on the statute books of one of our provinces. If these laws are not in accordance with the wishes of the people, there is only one way to have them repealed — the democratic way which has been followed in the past . . . "the majority vote."

Mr. Mitchell said employment now was higher in Canada than ever, with close to 5,000,000 of the country's population of 12,000,000 being gainfully employed. Out of a net national income of $9,212,-000,000 in 1946, $5,112,000,000 was in the form of wages, salaries and supplementary labor income.

In all industrialized nations of the world there was a shortage of manpower and steps were being taken to meet the problem by immigration.

Canada was following a policy of "controlled" immigration, bringing in "those people we know can be absorbed into the economy of the country without dislocating existing conditions and adversely affecting the general welfare of our citizens," said Mr. Mitchell.

Must Accept Immigration.

Canada and other rich but sparsely - populated countries could not, in a world hungry for living space, always expect to control millions of acres of land rich in agricultural and material resources.

"It follows, therefore, in my opinion that we must be prepared as a nation to accept our fair share of immigration in our own self-interest," he said. "We have, of course, obligations with respect to the displaced persons and other unfortunate human beings caught up in the maelstrom of the post-war period. . .

"Let me say very clearly that it is not, and never has been, the intention of the government to use immigration to undermine the fair wage statutes of the various provinces or conditions of employment built up during the years through trade union organizations."

Allied Big 3 to Distribute Part Gold Seized in Germany To Nations Nazis Looted

Washington, Sept. 24 (AP) — An Allied Big Three Commission has agreed to make a prompt distribution of part of a $330,000,000 gold store seized during the war from the Germans as a means of helping meet critical financial needs of European countries.

Robert Lovett, Undersecretary of State, said today that representatives of the United States, Britain and France, forming a "gold pot" commission, agreed to restore the gold to those countries from which it was looted by the Nazis.

Lovett told a press conference that only about half of the gold pot can be distributed immediately. In answer to a question, Lovett said he believes use of the gold will not eliminate the need for stop-gap emergency aid for western Europe from the United States.

But, he added, it will be a substantial help and might help to ease France over her present financial difficulties.

In Paris, French leaders were reported to have told Treasury Secretary Snyder that France will face a financial crisis within a few weeks unless help is forthcoming and that any aid under the Marshall plan would be too late.

Lovett said the United States urged a preliminary distribution of the gold not later than Oct. 15 and the commission has agreed to try to meet this deadline.

Eleven countries have filed claims to the money totalling nearly $800,000,000, and Lovett explained about half the amount now in hand will have to be withheld to meet claims.

New Primate Feted at Prescott, His Birthplace

Prescott, Ont., Sept. 24 (CP)—Most Rev. George F. Kingston, Archbishop of Nova Scotia and primate of the Church of England in Canada, will leave for Nova Scotia today after a visit to his birthplace of 58 years ago.

The Archbishop was given a civic reception and the whole town turned out when he arrived yesterday for a parade in which students from primary schools escorted him from the station. In a broadcast address the Archbishop paid tribute to his home town, which "although small has high ideals."

He recalled the games he played here as a child and urged Canadian children to "play the game, play it hard and play it according to the rules and will help you to play the game of life as good sports and effective team workers."

It was Archbishop Kingston's first visit to the town since his election to the highest office in the Anglican Church. Bands of children from both the public and separate schools cheered his arrival at the station. Later he was guest of honor at a civic banquet and again at a reception in the town hall.

In a brief address at the reception Archbishop Kingston said he was impressed by the way Prescott citizens of all denominations had taken part in his welcome.

10 Said Missing From Blazing Coal Carrier

Eyewitnesses Tell of Inferno Which Follows Blast on Boat

Iroquois, Ont., Sept. 23 (CP)—Residents of the farming and tourist district bordering the St. Lawrence River near this Eastern Ontario town were startled from their beds shortly after 7 a.m. EDT today by a lake-boat blast which shook houses on both sides of the river.

They rushed out to see the coal carrier Milverton and oil tanker Translake locked together and a huge cloud of dense black smoke, red-tinged by a tower of flame in the centre, spreading over the stream. Many took part in the rescue work.

By noon today, a number of crew members of the two vessels still were missing, while others were in Brockville, Ont., or Ogdensburg, N.Y., hospitals, with no accurate reports of the total casualty list.

At the time of the crash the Milverton, a 2,600-ton vessel heavily laden with coal, was bound from Oswego, N.Y., to Port Alfred Que. She was cutting downstream when the tanker, up-bound with a cargo of gasoline, cut suddenly across her bow.

"The tanker must have jammed her steering gear. She cut directly across my bow. There were no possibilities of stopping my ship and we struck her amidships.

"Heavily laden as we were, we cut a great gash into her side and the oil spurted out over her bows. Almost at once it caught fire. There was an inferno forward and it became a hell when our spare fuel oil tanks in the bow suddenly blew up and showered everything with blazing oil.

"Several of the crew leaped into the river. There was no chance of controlling the flames. We got our engines going as soon as possible and beached the ship. But we got off barely in time. Crew members caught forward in the blast must certainly have been killed instantly."

The Translake meanwhile was docked on the United States side of the St. Lawrence and all crew members of this craft were reported safe.

Edward Casentree, proprietor of a tourist camp on the Canadian side described the crash, which occurred within 200 yards of his front door, as one of the most sensational in the history of the river.

"I was just getting up when I heard the sharp whistle of a steamship blow six times. That is the usual alarm signal familiar to all who live by the river or the sea. I rushed to complete dressing but within two or three minutes, even before I could get outside I heard a terrific explosion.

"I rushed out and saw two ships locked together. Oil was pouring out of the tanker all over the river and the bow of the freighter was a mass of flames. There was another blast as her fuel oil tanks in the bow let go.

"John Van Allen, a neighbor, joined me and we rushed down to the shore to launch my motor boat and see if we could do anything. By the time we got to the scene two other boats manned by Gerald and Ronald Cornell and their father, Arthur Cornell had also arrived.

"The Cornells were pulling two badly-burned men out of the river where they had leaped to escape the flames. The entire bows of the Milverton were blazing.

"About the time I arrived the engineer succeeded in getting his engines started again and ran the Milverton across toward the United States side where the river is shallow. We followed in my boat and as she grounded we took off the Captain and eight members of the crew. A few minutes later the freighter broke free from the shoal and still blazing, drifted down the river where she grounded three miles lower down."

Witnesses credited Mr. Casentree with saving the nine from certain death since the ship was a blazing inferno at the time of the rescue. Still ablaze from bow to stern, the freighter now is gutted to the waterline and with her full cargo of coal is expected to burn for days.

Braving the 15-mile-an-hour current one of the members of the Milverton swam more than 200 yards to the Canadian shore to escape the blazing heat of the oil-flooded river.

Heard Men Screaming.

Gerald Cornell, who brought four men from the ship, said the heat made it impossible to go closer than 150 feet.

"I could hear them screaming on the decks," he said. "And it was about all I could stand. There was nothing I could do. I had to be content to pick up the men as they jumped into the flaming river. I saw three men leap from the blazing ship into the river, but I could not locate them and don't know whether or not they were picked up."

Another observer said the Milverton missed the slip by inches, and then drifted half a mile down below the locks.

"Then it grounded," he added. "It was only by the grace of God she drifted clear of the deep channel. Had she foundered in the channel, it would have blocked off shipping for the rest of the year."

He said the river there was the narrowest point in the St. Lawrance between the lake and the sea and if the channel had been blocked, it would be at the worst possible place.

Another eye witness, said the whole forecastle of the Milverton was smashed backwards by the force of the explosion. A gaping hole was seen in the bow, and plates on the sides were buckled.

The Milverton by noon today was nothing but a smoking shell. Smoke-blackened, twisted, and with fires still burning in her holds.

On the stern two lifeboats swung at the davits and life preserver lockers were still closed. Evidently the heat of the flames had prevented the crew from using either.

Dr. A. T. Shannette and Dr. Charles E. Louden of Morrisburg who rushed to the scene when the alarm was given treated men who landed on the Canadian side. As soon as word of the tragedy was received in Morrisburg, Mayor Fred Broder organized a party of citizens who stood by

Rescues Husband From Bull's Feet, Fights off Beast With Pitchfork

Tavistock, Ont., Sept. 24 — A race with death was won by Mrs. Henry Cheslock it was learned today when the slightly-built woman fought off an enraged bull with a pitchfork after rescuing her husband from its trampling hooves.

The feat of bravery took place Monday on the couple's farm home, a mile west of this Perth County centre, when Cheslock attempted to move the bull from a root cellar to its pen in the barn.

When he entered the cellar and took the bull by its nose ring, it tossed its head, threw him between its front feet, butted him, threw him over its back and rolled him against the cellar wall, butting him repeatedly.

Mrs. Cheslock came running at her husband's shout and ran screaming into the cellar. The bull turned on her and she fought it off with the pitchfork. Keeping the animal at bay, she managed to drag her husband out of the cellar and across the barnyard to safety with the full following all the way.

When a doctor was called the bull attacked the doctor's car. Later neighbors helped to round it up. Cheslock's injuries included six broken ribs, a broken collarbone and severe lacerations of the ear.

13 Men Taken to Hospital

Accident East Of Iroquois

Iroquois, Ont., Sept. 24 (CP)—Two veteran Great Lake boats—one an oil-laden tanker, the other a coal carrier—collided full force early today, setting off a huge blast which rocked the colorful international rapids section of the St. Lawrence River.

The explosion which tore apart the tanker Translake as its store of oil caught fire, accounted for at least one dead while 10 others of the crew of 25 aboard the collier Milverton still were unaccounted for at mid-afternoon. The entire crew of 22 aboard the Translake were reported safe on the United States side of the river.

The Milverton was heavily laden and the oil spurting from the tanker caught fire immediately and spurted forward over the collier. Its captain, L. E. Pain of Montreal said from his hospital bed at Ogdensburg, N.Y., across the river.

The Milvertons second mate, William Robertson of Toronto, died before he reached hospital at Ogdensburg. It was believed that the collier's third engineer F. Dobson of Montreal also died in the blast but immediate confirmation was not obtainable.

Farmers Assist.

As the crew of the blazing collier took to the water in the still canal section of the river, local farmers awakened by the explosion in the early morning hours went to their rescue. Confusion grew as some of the crew members swam to the United States side of the river, others headed for the Canadian shore and rescuers pulled others from the water.

Over the scene there hung a cloud of dense black smoke, red-tinged by a tower of flame in the centre. The smoke became denser making rescue work in the dim light difficult.

Hospitals in the nearby towns were pressed into emergency work as seven of the injured Milverton crew were taken to hospital at Ogdensburg, three to Messena, N.Y., two to Brockville, Ont., and another to Morrisburg, Ont.

The 2,600 ton Milverton, heavily laden with coal, was bound from Oswego, N.Y., to Port Alfred, Que. Capt. Pain said his vessel was cutting downstream when the tanker, upbound, cut across her bow.

Couldn't Stop.

"The tanker must have jammed her steering gear," he said. "She cut directly across my bow.

"There were no possibilities of stopping my ship and we struck her amidships."

The collier weighed down with cargo cut a deep gash into the side of the smaller tanker and as the oil poured over the Milverton's bow, it caught fire almost immediately.

The Translake was carrying a cargo of crude oil from Montreal to Prescott, 15 miles from here. The tanker, with oil continuing to gush from a huge hole in its side, slowly sank on the spot, while the blazing Milverton headed for the U. S. shore and beached.

NEW TOPCOAT STOLEN FROM PARKED CAR

When sneak thieves are active it is more or less expected that they work at night and not in the full light of the afternoon as was the case of the Belleville fair grounds Tuesday afternoon.

Claude Nugent, R. R. Deseronto, parked his car at the west of the grandstand in the exhibition park and as he thought, securely locked his auto. When he returned to his car at the conclusion of the afternoon performance he saw the door lock broken with a new topcoat belonging to a friend missing from the back seat.

As the incident took place outside the city limits the investigation was turned over to provincial police.

Bruce Lattimer Lieut.-Governor Ontario Division

Word has been received in the city that Bruce Lattimer former president of the Kiwanis Club and member for some years, was elected Lieutenant Governor of the Lake Ontario Region of the Quebec - Ontario - Maritime division at the district convention just concluded in Quebec City.

This will come as a distinct pleasure to all clubs in this division as Alderman Bruce has been a very consistent and hard worker in the Belleville Club since his entry some years ago. He was one of the few members who followed his father into the president's chair and he has served on practically every committee of the club. The announcement that his name was the only one presented to the convention through a wire from President Jack White who is in Quebec, at the luncheon meeting on Tuesday brought hearty rounds of applause.

Coach of Rockets Speaker

The attendance at the luncheon presided over by vice president Ted Schwab was not as well attended as usual due to many members being busy with fair duties and those who stayed away missed a fine address by Wally Kilrea, who is coach of the Philadelphia Rockets, now training at the Memorial Arena. Wally, an old Ottawa boy, was introduced by Aubrey Coe, who formerly lived in Ottawa and knew the speaker personally. Mr. Kilrea spent 17 years under the big tents playing with such teams as the Ottawa Senators, New York Americans, Detroit Red Wings and the last six years with the Hershey Bears. He served two and one half years in the armed forces of the United States in India and last year played with Fort Worth. His worth has been recognized by his appointment as coach of a team, that is starting a complete rebuilding after a most disastrous season last winter.

Tells of Changes

The speaker told of the changes in the game of hockey that have taken place in his playing career, stating that in olden times players were required to play forty or fifty and sometimes the full sixty minutes of the pastime but today with the face lifting the game has undergone when players who can perform for twenty minutes are a rarity. "The younger players never got a chance," said the speaker, "and I sat on the Ottawa bench for 11 straight games and was never on the ice." "Today the last man on a team is as valuable as the star because there is a job for everyone to do." He told of the organization of the Rockets by the insertion of younger players with a few veterans to add the experience. He also told how the boys were procured and the agreements that they sign before becoming a full-fledged member.

Sponsor Junior Teams

Mr. Kilrea stated that junior teams were sponsored by the parent club in order that the boys left in these ranks would get coaching comparable to the system used by the first team so that when they came up they would fit into the scheme of things quickly. He claimed the game was more scrambly than in former years with most of the goals scored being lucky ones but he was working on a system that would eliminate a great deal of the luck and the teams would play a set pattern for the patrons. He claimed that Happy Day of the Toronto Leafs was one of the best coaches in the game today and rated Eddie Shore as tops although his methods were not liked by some members of his teams. He told his audience that practices of the team were open and that he or the manager Max Kaminsky, were willing to explain any points of training. The thanks of the club was expressed by Fred Symons.

Clever Acts, Smart Band Enjoyed By Throng Who Jammed Grandstand To View Garden's Show at Fair

The glitter and glamor of a smart stage show, the brilliancy of midway illumination, embellished by the traditional noise and color; the extraordinary quality of exhibits from the lowly hen to the proudest Percheron or Holstein; from the wisp of milady's handkerchief to the raucous roar of modern agricultural machinery in motion, and the thousand and one attractions that are part and parcel of this year's Belleville Exhibition drew upwards of 10,000 people to the Fair Grounds yesterday afternoon and evening.

Today, the final of the three-day exhibition, and tonight, is expected, weather permitting, to attract one of the largest crowds in the history of the institution.

The weather man tempered his frosty atmosphere of Monday night with milder promise. Brilliant sunshine, albeit accompanied by gusty winds, favored the afternoon crowds which saw exciting trials of speed on a fairly good track and an exhibition of some of the finest horseflesh in Ontario, from the majestic Clydes and Percherons, Belgians and other heavy draft horses to prancing hackneys in singles and teams.

Wind Dies Down

In the evening, the wind died down somewhat, but temperatures were considerably higher than the night previous. Star attractions of eight o'clock plus were the smart Billy Garden Stage extravaganza and Conklin Midway, not to mention the splendid exhibits in the buildings and cattle sheds.

Then there was the fine music of the Belleville Municipal Band which last night was directed by E. Reg. Hinchey in the absence of Bandmaster Laidlaw Addison. Mr. Hinchey wielded an effective baton during the pre-stage show concert, and a well-deserved ovation greeted each number.

The concert was featured by the impromptu antics of "Toto" the Garden Show Clown. "Toto" himself an accomplished musician, not only conducted the band in one number, but inserted himself with a trap-drumming scores and gave a finished performance.

Source of Merriment

His antics while leading the band, and previously, were a source of consistent merriment to the large crowd in the grandstand and bleachers.

The Garden Shows scored another hit with Belleville Fair goers with a varied program of excellent talent. Billy Garden himself acted as master-of-ceremonies, and carried the show along in his usual masterful style.

Opening the performance, and who were seen in several colorful routines during the show, were the Metro Girls, a sextet of comely chorines, whose pulchritude equalled from an attraction point of view their marked versatility in front of the foot lights. They were seen in, at first a swing number, then followed a delightful nautical routine with costumes distinctly naval; a rhumba numba, 'that had the Latins in the audience tapping their feet and as a finale they staged a tuneful Scotch routine, costumed in abbreviated kilts and Glengarries.

Songs Well Received

Violet Murray, prima donna of the show was in excellent voice, and her renditions of 'My Hero" from the "Chocolate Soldier" a Scotch number, and other songs were well received.

The "Flying Rollers," a young man and a petite miss, whirled over the stage in a maze of rolling skating routines that denoted marked ability. The smart finale of this act is the performance of the young lady whirling in two directions at the same time, from a precarious position about her partners neck.

Joan Ross, beautiful young Australian, costumed in the colorful garb of an Australian cow girl, showed amazing ability with a pair of bullwhips. Flicking out from expert hands like rapiers, the lashes of the whip cut pieces of paper to shreds, or in definitely measured lengths from the hands of her comely partner.

One of the hits of the show was the Dolores troupe of trained dogs. The clever canines, two of them diminutive terriers scarcely fifteen inches long, and which nearly stole the show, from their fellows with their cute but clever antics, went through a routine of tricks that amazed the audience. The pooches pranced, danced, turned somersaults, pirouetted on hind and front legs, rode pig-a-back, balanced themselves like acrobats in a performance that left nothing to be desired.

Rate Top Billing

The Claremont Brothers, a team of comedy acrobats also rated top billing in an act that had the people in near-convulsions at times. The two men are clever acrobats and their act is strictly pantomimic. They interspersed clever comedy with equally clever balancing stunts. It is one of the better acts of the show.

For actual chills and thrills however, there was the death-defying dive of Aurel Thomas, who plunges from an aerial ladder towering sixty feet above into a small tank, ablaze with fire. High winds prevented the act in the afternoon, but Thomas taking plenty of chances went through with his performance at night to avoid disappointing the public. He leaped into the air, turned three somersaults and plunged into the flame-rimmed tank below to emerge smiling and unscathed.

Popular Band

Then last but not least, and one of the hardest working units of the show is popular Kenny Good and his stage band. Ken, long a popular favorite with Belleville audiences has another smart musical aggregation, which carries the show along, in a musical sense, in a tuneful manner.

The Garden Stage Show was repeated this afternoon and will be offered again tonight starting at eight o'clock.

Following the stage presentation, the crowd joined the throng which was already milling in the Midway. Here the brilliantly illuminated rides attracted a large clientele as did the tented shows and the various games. During the evening, a colored searchlight which swept the sky at intervals added a smart touch of modernism to the Fair.

71 Babies, Including Two Sets Of Twins, Enteredin Baby Show

Barbara Ann Joudua was announced the winner of the one to six months old class at the Baby Show held in the Merchants' Building at the Exhibition on Tuesday afternoon. Barbara Ann is the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Joudua, 78 Victoria Avenue. In the seven to twelve month group the winner was Sandra Day, eight months' old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Day, R. R. 5, Belleville. Sandra was one of twins, but her twin sister died at birth. She has one brother, age four, who was quite unimpressed with having a prize-winning sister.

This was the largest class of entries for the baby contest of any year with seventy-one babies entered, including two sets of twins, Vernon and William Fraser in the one to six month class, and Carol and Sandra Francis in the seven to twelve month class. Boys and girls were about equally represented, with the boys having a slight majority. One feature of the entries was the number of wives from Overseas who brought their babies, including English, Scottish and several from The Netherlands.

Judged by Nurses.

Under the capable direction of Mrs. Erle Denyes and Mr. Harry Rollins the large group of babies was listed, called up, and dispatched to the tables where volunteers from the St. John Ambulance Nursing Division assisted the mothers with undressing the babies. The tiny contestants were then weighed, measured, and judged for color, personal appearance, shape, clear skin, and general structure by the three registered nurses who acted as judges, Mrs. Wellard, Mrs. Ayrhart, and Miss Stanton.

It was a most difficult task for the judges as the proud mothers, grandmothers and a few fathers presented each healthy, lusty specimen of babyhood, and whatever the result, each parent knew in her heart that hers was the best baby in the show. Enjoying the performance least of all were the babies themselves, who set up a discordant symphony of wails as they protested at being undressed and grew tired of waiting.

Long Time to Judge.

It took well over an hour for the judges to reach their decision as they conscientiously examined each record. During this intermission Mr. J. Devine interviewed a number of the mothers with their babies which was broadcast over CJBQ.

The youngest entrant was six-weeks'-old Warren Calbury.

The complete list of prize winners follows:

One to Six Months' Class.

Second — Nancy Jean Poste, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Poste, 82 Foster Avenue.

Driveshed on O'Neil Farm Destroyed

Fire of undetermined origin starting just before midnight Tuesday completely destroyed the large frame driveshed owned by Mr. Harry O'Neil, Thurlow township farmer residing on No. 2 highway east of Belleville. All contents of the building, including farm machinery, were lost in the blaze.

With a strong wind blowing directly toward the O'Neil tenant house at the time, this building was endangered but members of the Belleville Fire Department, with the assistance of neighbors who quickly responded to the alarm, prevented the spread of flames to the dwelling. The tenant house was situated close to the driveshed. The driveshed had been recently reshingled.

Although origin of the blaze was not determined, members of the O'Neil household considered it possible that a passing transient seeking shelter for the night, may have been responsible for the fire.

Don't Forget To Change Clocks Saturday Night

"Backward, Turn Backward O Time in thy Flight."

Daylight Saving Time ends Saturday night.

That is right. On Saturday midnight the long days will become an hour shorter, and weary citizens will get an extra sixty minutes beneath the coverlets.

So don't say you weren't warned. And if you are an hour early for that church appointment on Sunday, don't approach the minister with the excuse that "I didn't know anything about it."

So mark it down on the calendar, your notebook, the wall, or any other available spot or place where it will be seen, and after the brown bread, beans and bath, set the family timepieces back one hour.

Remember, Daylight Saving ends midnight Saturday, September, 27th.

Importance of Agriculture In Canadian Economy Stressed In Address at Jr. Farmer Banquet

Hastings county girls and boys from Northumberland and Lennox and Addington counties carried off top honors in the junior judging and homemaking club competitions held Tuesday in connection with Belleville Fair.

Close to 100 boys and girls from the four counties of Hastings, Prince Edward, Northumberland and Lennox and Addington competed in the various contests, their full day being concluded by a banquet at Holloway Street United Church where they were addressed by E. C. McClelland, Inspector of Agriculture for high schools in Ontario. Contest results were also announced.

The importance of agriculture in the Canadian economical outlook was stressed to the juniors by Mr. McClelland who pointed out that 52 per cent of the entire population lived in rural districts while close to 30 per cent earned their living on the farms.

"You may not agree with this," he went on, "but statistics show that the farmers receive approximately 50 per cent of the national income."

More Attention Paid Agriculture

Turning to the teaching of agriculture in Ontario schools the speaker stated that 25 years ago certain schools in the province began teaching agriculture. Today, agricultural science is taught in 175 schools, while in 56 others straight agriculture is taught. The first named course was termed as a general science course plus a little agriculture, while in the latter course agriculture was treated as a major subject.

Teaching of agriculture which also entails a certain amount of shop work and related subjects was termed by Mr. McClelland as a stop in the right direction as only about one per cent of rural students go on to attend university. Practical courses in this respect were much better than the straight matriculation course, he said.

The agricultural course gave farm boys what is new in agriculture, taught them farm management and kept them up to date in farm machinery.

Improved Barns

In reference to machinery the speaker pointed out how the hay baler had made the former large barn unnecessary. Also basement barns were losing their favor because it had been shown the proper type of construction and insulation was cheaper and kept stock warmer than concrete.

"Through the agriculture course in Ontario High Schools it is hoped to show agriculture in its true light to urban boys and girls and give them an appreciation of the farm," concluded Mr. McClelland.

Chairman for the evening banquet with A. O. Dalrymple, agricultural representative for Hastings who expressed appreciation for Hastings of the Fair Board in making Junior Day a success. Elmer Sandercock, fair president, declared that the Junior program was one of the bright spots of Belleville Fair and paid tribute to the agricultural representatives in their work among the Junior farmers.

Showmen of Future

Agricultural leaders have proven themselves very interested in junior farmer work," he said, "and this is fine because it is the juniors of today who will be the showmen of tomorrow."

Wesley Downs, Hilton, Junior Farmer president for Ontario, advised Juniors not to be discouraged at early failures. The fame of the Ontario Junior Farmers is widespread, he said, indicating that letters had been received from interested young people in Australia and also in Engand.

Howard Evans, president of Northumberand Junior Farmers stated that juniors in his county looked forward expectantly to the competitions at Belleville Fair. The guest speaker was introduced by Ralph Banbury, agricultural representative, for Northumberland with appreciation being expressed by Mr. Dalrymple.

The banquet for the juniors was sponsored by the Belleville Fair Board, the Trenton Dairies; Swift Canadian Company; Belleville Creameries and Trent Valley Creameries of Campbellford.

13 MEN

Immediate precautions were taken to prevent serious damage in the event of the Milverton's 45,000-gallon fuel oil load exploding.

13 in Hospital

Aside from the 13 crew members in hospital and the one known dead, only one other of the 25-man Milverton crew was accounted for as police continued to patrol the river near the scene of the accident. He was Fireman Mike Prochnicki of Fort William who managed to swim clear of the burning vessel and give aid to several of his mates.

Further details of the collision were not available since Capt. R. Chatel of the Translake declined to comment to newspaper men pending an official inquiry. He claimed "a person gets too excited and says things that may not be correct."

Capt. Chatel, a veteran lake boat master, expressed grave concern for the fate of the Milverton's crew and said his men had been afraid of the results had fire broken out in the Translake's 360,000-gallon cargo of crude oil.

Many of the Milverton crew were asleep when the collision took place Murray Sarson of Pictou Landing, N.S., a fireman aboard the ill-fated Collier, said "we're lucky to be alive." Sarson was taken to hospital at Brockville along with Gilbert Dillabough of Ottawa, a lookout. Neither were seriously injured.

Rescued From Water.

Sarson and Dillabough were both picked out of the water by Gerald Cornell whose farm borders on the picturesque St. Lawrence near the scene of the accident. Cornell and his brother Ronald were among the first to effect rescues as the quiet waters quickly became coated with green oil and caught fire.

"I don't think it's possible that everyone could get off," Sarson said later. "There must have been some lives lost."

Cornell said he and his brother saw several bodies lying on the decks of the Milverton which they said soon became only a skeleton as flames swept through her body.

Second Mate Dies in Hospital

Ogdensburg, N. Y., —(CP)— Seven persons were brought to hospital today from the wreck of the two lake boats, Milverton and Translake, and one, William Robertson of Toronto, second mate of the Milverton, died of third degree burns shortly after his arrival.

Hospital authorities reported the burns covered the man's entire body.

The others, in less serious condition, were:

Capt. Glen Edward Pain, 45, Montreal, skipper of the Milverton, with a badly injured shoulder, possible internal injuries but no burns; Arthur Fowlow, 48, Montreal, bad burns to one arm and one leg; William Howerychuck, 21, Wishart, Sask., elbow burns; John Widdis, Stratford, Ont.; Clayton Dunnett, Hamilton; Charles Mahoney, Kingston.

Hospital authorities said the latter three were not seriously injured.

Eight rowboats went out to the scene of the crash from the American side to assist.

Danger of Explosion

Meanwhile, Provincial Police re-routed all traffic from the marginal roadways of the St. Lawrence River due to imminent danger of the explosion of 45,000 gallons of fuel oil in the storage tanks of the Milverton.

Traffic was brought to a standstill and sent to secondary roads. Householders whose homes face along the bay where the Milverton is aground have been warned to take precautions in event of an explosion.

LEGION DIVIDED

Left in abeyance was the lengthy report which recommended "the Legion's home ownership plan for low income veterans" as the answer to the problem.

Under this previously-disclosed plan veterans would be loaned 90 per cent of the total money needed for land, construction and municipal services of a home. The period of amortization would extend 30 years if the veteran wished, and interest rate on the mortgage would not be more than 3 1-2 per cent.

The report states that the National House and Builders Association is 100 per cent behind the plan.

Also suggested is government action to channel supplies for residential construction, a move which the committee believes would put genuine house builders back in business and provide incentive for keen competition in producing low-cost attractive houses to meet the demand.

Reviewed Program

Legionnaires yesterday heard an address by Walter S. Woods, Deputy Minister of Veterans Affairs, who reviewed the post-war program of aid to veterans.

He pointed out that more than $700,000,000 had been spent under veteran legislation and $450,000,000 had been approved for the current year. This averaged $1,000 per veteran.

The Legion's report from its service bureau, presented last night by Crown Attorney T. F. Forestell of Fort Erie, was adopted after considerable discussion.

The service bureau is the Legion's department in charge of pension adjustment.

With district administrative offices now located in Toronto, Kingston, Hamilton, London and North Bay, delegates spoke of need for establishment of bureaux in other centres. The committee promised to consider and take action of the proposal.

Senator Taft Heckled By Labor Leaders

Seattle, Sept. 24 —(AP)— A snarling, heckling demonstration, blamed by a Republican leader on "Communists," prompted Senator Robert Taft (Rep.-Ohio) to predict last night that such protest methods would "help the Republicans win the next election."

Ignoring union members and others who booed lustily his defence of the Taft-Hartley Labor Act, the Ohio Senator called for a reduction in taxes to help cut the high cost of living.

Keeping a bandaged left hand carefully at his side, Taft planned to return to a discussion of major political issues after an unruly meeting last night in which the small minority of an audience overflowing a 2,100-seat auditorium noisily walked out during the Senator's denunciation of labor leaders who have criticized the new plan.

"The whole propaganda against the Taft-Hartley Act relies on attempts to silence the arguments in favor of that act."

The audience, preponderantly Republican, drowned in resounding cheers the booing and the catcalls of those who were departing.

Previously Taft had been slightly injured in the confusion of a rail station demonstration that Wilbur Zundel, president of the Young Men's Republican Club had said "could only have been put on by Communists."

As placard-bearing picketers mingled with cheering Taft admirers, a nervous driver slammed a car door on Taft's hand.

Crazy Invention Foils Gunman

It was Saturday noon at Brownsville, and the Farmers' Bank was ready to close. "Stick 'em up" snarled a character from the doorway. The gunman walked to the teller's cage. He threw a canvas sack in front of the grill. "Fill it up" he barked. The teller reached gingerly for the sack, but at the same time touched a floor button with his toe. The gunman disappeared through a trap door. That's the way the inventor figured it would work. However, when Squire Dobb's wife, a regular customer of the bank, accidently disappeared the same way, the bank was sued, the teller fired, and the trap door sealed up. See The Standard's Magazine Section this week for an interesting article on inventions — crazy and otherwise. The Standard — on sale now at all newsdealers for 10 cents.

Fiorello La Guardia

Fiorello La Guardia, known as the "Little Flower," because of his Christian name, has left this earthly scene where his life was one of intense activity in the public cause. His service to the City of New York of which he was thrice the mayor, his attack on the Tammany Organization, made him a popular figure. Therefore to New York his passing is a blow.

But the "Little Flower" had an even wider sphere in which to move. He early saw the menace of the German Nazis and did not delay in giving voice to his feelings regarding the evils of that sinister German product which launched the most destructive war in history. Always a figure attracting attention he threw himself into every question and effort and rendered his own city and his country and the freedom-loving world a priceless service.

In the latter years he became an outstanding figure in the Allied world and in the United Nations Organization. In the world sphere he was able to achieve much for the cause of the freedom of mankind. He had unbounded contempt for such a scoundrel and warmonger as Hitler and he hit hard at the Nazi head. His great gifts in public affairs brought him into high office as chairman of the Canadian-American Joint Board on Defence. He became director-general of Unrra in which he was able to help a vast number of people in the war-devastated countries.

He was a dynamic figure and into his sixtyfour years he crowded an immense body of work as a citizen of his own New York, as an individual and as a citizen of the world which needed the services of such a leader.

His profound sense of responsibility while mayor of New York was indicated by the fact that he was well known for his chasing of fires. But he was not a fire-chaser in the sense in which many persons are fire-chasers. He attended fires because he wanted to know conditions under which people lived, how to protect them and how to make their lives more happy and fully contented. In fact he felt that as administrator of New York he should know how New Yorkers lived and what their problems were. That was a very human and honest service and it showed in his wide interest in everything pertaining to the life and happiness of his fellow citizens.

He lived and fought for the right. He had courage, he was a great showman and he lived a life that was marked by honesty of purpose and deed. He was intensely human and through these characteristics he was able to make a large contribution for good to the life of his time in the United States and in the large world of humanity everywhere.

He was a citizen of which the world might be proud. His country was justly proud of him. He will not be forgotten.

Cut Noxious Weeds Now

This is the time when noxious weeds should be cut, advises John D. MacLeod, director of the Crops, Seeds and Weeds Branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture. The labor situation has made it extremely difficult to give these weeds on Ontario farms the attention they should have had during the past three months and as a result many areas can now be observed which are heavily infested with such weeds as wild carrot, chicory, ragweed, golden rod, toad flax and others. If neglected these will produce millions of viable seeds and new areas will be infested.

Now that harvesting is nearly completed property owners are urged by the Department to mow any weeds which require attention on their property and also on adjoining roadsides. If weeds are cut, raked and burned at this time, many viable weeds will also be destroyed.

As to the wild carrot, the director says that flowers and seeds will be produced to the time of the first severe frost which may not be until November. Seeds remain on the plant until winter, when they may be carried miles over frozen ground and in drifting snow.

Commenting on the present weed situation, Mr. MacLeod said that "weeds have never been as bad as they are at the present time. If neglected, the work of previous years will largely be undone. Weed cutting should receive attention now, and farmers and others are urged to co-operate during the next month in cleaning up this menace to crop and food production."

A foe to God was never a true friend to man.—Young.

Heigho the Wind and the Rain!

Had man the making of the weather things would have been different during the past nine months which have upset every expectation from January until now with the equinox passed. First it was a winter of heavy snow, then it was a tardy spring, then suddenly the full heat of July was all around and except for a few dips in temperature this warmth was maintained until almost half of the present month. Then the other night came a heavy rainfall with high winds at the time of the autumnal equinox and crowning all, on Monday night and during Tuesday morning a very early severe frost, causing damage to crops.

It has been said that men could not make the weather satisfactory for one another because they could not agree. But most all do agree that the seasons and times have been rather topsyturvy for 1947.

Sunday night's wind was enough to draw attention to the part wind can play in a storm. The news last week had been full of the Caribbean hurricane that lashed Florida and then doubled back. And so even northerners were wind-conscious immediately the Sunday evening storm came.

But the wind, considered so rough and strong here, was mild as compared with the hurricanic blows in the Caribbean.

Measurements of the Beaufort scale as devised by Rear-Admiral Beaufort, hydrographer to the Royal Navy, when he was captain of the storeship Woolwich, are quoted by the Windsor Star in referring to last week's hurricane:

"Here, winds under two miles an hour are classed as calm; a light breeze is two to 12 miles an hour; moderate wind, 13 to 23; strong wind, 24 to 37; gale, 38 to 55; storm, 56 to 75, and hurricane, anything over 75 m.p.h. Cyclones move with a velocity of 20 to 30 miles an hour and are characterized by winds rotating, often at the rate of 90 to 130 miles, clockwise in the Southern Hemisphere, counter-clockwise in the Northern. A tornado is a sort of supercyclone in which the wind is 'too violent to be measured'."

From these figures it can be seen that the wind hereabouts was not in the class with the great disturbances and convulsions of nature elsewhere.

Nevertheless everyone feels that this summer has disappointed a good many people in the sorts of weather it sent them. Not even a disagreeing body of men, if they had power to make the weather of their choice, could have devised as many disappointments for the nine months so far passed in 1947 as the weather itself has succeeded in doing. The unaccountability of the weather has stirred the people but as a great humorist once said, they do not seem able to do much about it.

No Artificial Beauty Needed

The Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church in Washington, D.C., adopted the village of Hedel, the Netherlands, after the war. One member of the church, Clifford V. Evans, is now flying around the world in a Piper Cub. He dropped in on Hedel.

In the plane Evans carried a sackful of gifts, which were joyously accepted by Mrs. van den Bogaert, wife of the leading farmer. Clothing, candy and baby shoes were the main items. As a special treat nail polish and lipstick were included. These last were shyly returned to Evans with the explanation that such things are never used in the village of Hedel.—New York Herald Tribune.

MOTHERS AND GOSSIPS

Whenever mothers chance to meet,
What is it that they talk about?
Most often what should children eat
And what to do with frocks worn out;
How stop the trait of sucking thumbs,
And what to give when fever comes.

I've heard them gathered in a group
And never bitter word was said.
The talk was all of colds and croup,
And how to get a child to bed;
What books to read, what games to play,
How guard the youngsters, night and day.

The mothers are a busy crew.
They've little time for gossip small,
Or watching what their neighbors do
And noticing who comes to call.
Their only thought till day has sped:
To see the children safe in bed.

The gossips are an idle throng;
They've time through windowpanes to stare
And wait and watch and fancy wrong
And carry rumors here and there.
The worst of gossips I have known
Had never a child to call her own.

Says Communists Give Allegiance To Russia Only

Windsor, Sept. 24 — CP) — A scathing attack on Communists in Canada was delivered here Saturday in a much-publicized address by Dr. Watson Kirkconnell of McMaster University, Hamilton.

The address which wound up United Nations Week in Windsor and Detroit had drawn wide interest after Windsor Union members opposed Dr. Kirkconnell's appearance here, charging him with being opposed to minority groups in the Dominion.

The professor warned his audience that "certain groups" of Canadians are a greater threat to security than those "we call foreigners."

"The chief peril to peace comes from groups of our own citizens whose allegiance is to a foreign power — Russia," he declared.

No Rationing Of Natural Gas In Ont. Expected

Toronto, Sept. 24 (CP) —There will be no rationing of natural gas in Ontario this winter, and there will be no increase in gas rates until Oct. 1, 1948, when a $1,750,000 oil-gas plant to be built at Port Stanley, Ont., by the Dominion Natural Gas Company, is expected to begin operation.

This was announced yesterday by Mines Minister Leslie M. Frost, who released the report of a municipal committee which has completed a study of the gas situation in Ontario.

Ontario has managed to "borrow and beg" enough gas from five different sources to last through this winter only, said Mr. Frost but admonished consumers to conserve gas, warning that unusually cold weather or failure of one of the five sources might cause a shortage.

Two Main Reasons

The committee's report revealed that the minister rejected the gas-rationing scheme proposed last July because it would have caused great hardship among consumers many of whom have no chimneys and none of whom could readily install other heating equipment because it is practically unobtainable.

Decision to build the Port Stanley plant was made for two main reasons: Much of the gas obtained from various concerns this winter must be paid back; and secondly, Ontario's over-all resources of natural gas are steadily diminishing.

Rates will be raised when the huge plant goes into operation because, in the words of the report, "it is necessary to assure the Dominion Natural Gas Company of rates that will justify such an expenditure." However, the report emphasized that the price must remain "competitive" or consumers would turn to other fuels.

The company's present estimate of the new rate, which will be officially set by Aug. 1, 1948, is 23 cents per 1,000 cubic feet, but the rate will be adjusted to operating conditions from year to year on a non-profit basis.

Normal supplies, plus output of the new plant — 6,000,000 cubic feet a day — will assure present consumers of adequate supplies, said Mr. Frost, adding that no difficulty is anticipated in obtaining sufficient oil from the United States to operate the plant.

500,000 Hungry Mouths Affected By Meat Strike

How'd you like to have 500,000 — that's half a million — mouths to feed in the middle of what promises to be the worst meat shortage in Canada's history?

That's the giant - sized headache bothering officials of the fish and wild life division of the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests. The 500,000 hearty appetites belong to the bustling colony of baby trout at the government fish hatchery near here.

And not a single one of the fish is a vegetarian.

Prospects are good that the 500,000 will continue to eat well — for at least another week. There's a pretty fair supply of liver and other meat foods on hand. Shipments were received from Winnipeg and Toronto before the strike had a serious effect on supplies—and district farmers came through with a little more.

But the backlog can't last much longer — unless the trout's weekly consumption of 400 pounds is drastically reduced. Those macaroni, egg and cheese substitutes? They'll be met here with 500,000 upturned noses.

These guys can't be hooked with that kind of bait.

YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT HANSEN'S DISEASE

More than three hundred of the 392 patients in the U. S. Marine Hospital at Carville, Louisiana the only national institution in the country where persons with leprosy can receive treatment — the best possible treatment by the foremost medical authorities from four states, namely, California, Florida, Louisiana and Texas. The rest came from other parts of the country, from 27 different states.

The hospital was for 53 years a Louisiana State institution. In 1921 the Federal government took it over, rebuilt and enlarged it to 500 bed capacity and has conducted it for 26 years as a Class A hospital under the name United States Marine Hospital. Class A means that the hospital compares favorably with the best hospitals in the country. For instance there is a competent staff, the best of modern equipment, a full time resident dentist, expert technicians, dietitians, in fact everything a patient might hope to find in a hospital anywhere, plus the main thing—treatment by the foremost authorities on the disease. On the beautiful grounds are baseball diamond, golf course, tennis court etc., for the use of patients.

Because of the shameful ignorance of most people, many law officers and even some physicians and health officers regarding the nature, cause and treatment of Hansen's disease (as we call it today), the recital of these facts here may deter criminal State or local governments from persecuting or mistreating helpless citizens—as such criminals mistreated the man Early—remember, old timers?

The disease is called Hansen's disease after the Norwegian physician, Gerhard Hansen, who discovered the cause of leprosy in 1871 (about ten years before Robert Koch discovered the cause of tuberculosis), a germ that resembles the tubercle bacillus (tuberculosis germ) and is called Mycobacterium leprae or Hansen's bacillus.

Hansen's disease is only feebly communicable—a case in the community or the household endangers other residents of the community or occupants of the house even less than a case of tuberculosis does.

Not a single member of the medical or nursing staff at Carville has contracted the disease in the 53 years the hospital has been in existence. Hundreds of workers—plumbers, painters, cafeteria help, laboratory technicians, clerks houseworkers — have been employed in and about the hospital, yet none of these has contracted the disease, with the possible exception of one who was a native of Louisiana and may have had the disease before he began working in the hospital.

It is pretty evident that long and intimate contact and not just casual, accidental or incidental contact or exposure, is the way the disease spreads.

Treatment with Chaulmoogra oil and its derivatives was the best bet at one time but at present the most gratifying results are obtained from treatment with sulfa drugs. In fact, twenty-four patients treated with promin and diasone have been discharged from the Carville hospital as arrested—physicians do not speak of either tuberculosis or Hansen's disease as "cured" but rather as "arrested," when there are no longer any symptoms or signs of activity and after many examinations have failed to reveal any of the germs of the disease, the criteria for discharge from the Carville hospital being (1) the patient must be clinically free from all symptoms and (2) have had twelve consecutive monthly negative examinations.

As Dr. Frederick A. Johansen, medical director of the U. S. Marine Hospital at Carville, frankly admits, 'We do not know how one catches Hansen's disease. It is assumed that long and intimate contact generally precedes infection. Despite extensive research we simply do not know how the Hansen bacillus is transmitted from one person to another."

Dope That Damages The Heart

My husband takes (a nostrum containing a large quantity of acetanilide) two or three times a day—he says he has to take it for headache or other pains... maybe if I could show him your statement in print it would make him quit (Mrs. C. McL.)

Answer — Send twenty-five cents and stamped self addressed envelope and ask for booklet C-VD (cardiovascular degeneration heart artery failure). A chapter in the book describes in detail how acetanilide breaks down the blood and damages the heart. Probably it is now a drug habit and your husband should have medical care to cure the habit.

What Presidents had living parents?

Ulysses S. Grant was the only person to become President while both his parents were living. James Root Grant died in 1873 at the age of 79, and his wife, Hannah Simpson Grant, died in 1883, at the age of 85. President Grant survived his mother only two years.

George Washington, John Adams, James Madison, James K. Polk, James A. Garfield, William McKinley, Franklin D. Roosevelt and Harry S. Truman became President while their mothers were living, while John Quincy Adams, Warren G. Harding and Calvin Coolidge assumed that office while their fathers were alive.

Mrs. Mary Ball Washington died in August, 1789, of a cancer of the breast at the age of 82 only a few months after her son had become the first President of the United States. General von Steuben, who had been Washington's drill-master at Valley Forge and who stood beside him when he was inaugurated the first time, was in conference with President Washington when he received the message that his mother was dead.

Mrs. James Madison, Sr. ("Old Mrs. Madison") died in 1829 at the age of 99. President Madison, who died in 1836 at 85, survived his mother only seven years.

Picton, Sept. 24 — Damage to the tomato crop in Prince Edward County is estimated at many hundreds of thousands of of dollars as a result of severe frost in the early hours of yesterday morning. The temperature dropped to 28 degrees and ice half an inch in thickness formed in pails.

It was the most severe frost experienced here in 40 years. While there are usually light frosts in September, these just kill the vines, but yesterday much of the fruit was frozen solid. Farmers were advised not to pick yesterday to let frost out of the tomatoes which would still be food for juice. Sections of patches were not ruined and picking will continue for a time. It is not yet known how many more can be picked.

The killing frost came as a surprise, as there had been no warning that it would be of so serious a nature. Both high and low ground areas were hit.

The crop suffered more than usual due to the fact that late blight had earlier killed vines which would have afforded protection.

Other Vegetables Unharmed

Corn for canning was not severely damaged by the frost but leaves were wilted. Pumpkins escaped injury, as did apples which benefit by frost.

The tomato season has been a difficult one for growers. Rain caused late planting, spraying was necessary for worms and late blight which caused heavy loss and now, with a good per cent of the crop unpicked, a killing frost came.

Double Murder Case Still Baffles Toronto Police

Toronto, Sept. 24 — (CP)—Police today sent circulars across Canada in their hunt for the murderer of George Vigus 39, and his girl friend, Iris Scott, 21, whose strangled bodies were found 13 days ago stuffed in the trunk compartment of Vigus' car in west-end High Park.

Police said the murders were the most mysterious in Toronto in years. No motive for them has been established nor have police determined the time or place the two were killed.

Police now believe the killer or killers may have been driving the car to the lake in order to sink it but a motorcycle policemen behind frightened him into abandoning the car. The theory that the couple may have been strangled near the box factory where Vigus worked has been discarded.

Wet Weather Delays Harvesting On Prairies

Ottawa, Sept. 24 — (CP)—The Dominion Bureau of Statistics, its statistical eye cocked on Canada's prospective crop yields from grainfields and orchards and fields, issued its last of a series of telegraphic crop reports yesterday and one that was far from optimistic.

The report said wet weather had held up harvesting operations in the prairie provinces; that the apple crop in the Maritimes would be below average and Quebec cereal crop yields are expected to be below normal.

Only for Ontario and British Columbia was there any optimism. The Bureau said the Ontario grain corn crop was progressing favorably and Ontario corn for ensilage was much better than expected. But rains had hampered bean growths in Huron county and the harvest of flaxseed — and that was before the recent killing frosts.

Good weather had prevailed throughout British Columbia where grain harvesting was practically completed in the southern areas and was in full swing in the north. Picking of late fruit crops was well under way in the Okanagan Valley and yields and quality were good.

Little Benny's Note Book

I woke up this morning on account of pop and ma both calling me, and I started it, and I thawt, G, if they thawt I need sleep more than I need education, maybe I mite not have to get up.

Not sounding likely but seeming werth trying, so I stuck my face in the pillow practically asleep; and I herd ma come in my room saying, Benny what's all this, why dont you speek up when you're called?

Being a question without a answer on account of me acting like somebody so tite asleep their heering wasn't even werking, and I herd pop come in saying, is he alive?

How is it possible to sleep so soundly? ma said, and pop said, How indeed? Maybe we'd better pull the shades down and let him have his sleep out if it takes all day, he said.

Perhaps so, growing boys need plenty of sleep, ma said, and pop said, So the docters say, and perhaps he's growing an unusual amount this morning.

That must be the reason, ma said. Let's tip toe out, she said, and pop said, He'll be bitterly disappointed at missing school, but when a boy's got to grow, he's got to grow.

Me thinking, Herraw for me, its werking, and ma said, It seems too bad it just had to happen when we're having hot cakes for breakfist.

Me thinking, Heck, hotcakes. And I yawned a big yawn, saying, Did anybody call me?

Only one of 2 people, pop said, and him and man went out of my room, and I heard ma say, Now I suppose I'll really have to make them.

Proving it was all a plot about the hotcakes but not keeping them from taisting among the best hotcakes I ever had, and ma made me a exter pile just to relieve her conscience.

D. Hartin, Batawa, when Ethel Amanda, daughter of Mr. Herbert R. Fox, of Corbyville, and the late Mrs. Amanda Fox, became the bride of Albert Edward Fisher, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Post-Nuptial Presentation

The early part of the evening was spent playing games and later the gathering was addressed by Mr. Harold Hart, acting as chairman for the occasion.

Mr. and Mrs. Thompson were invited to sit in conspicuously placed chairs, while Miss Helen Sills read an address signed on behalf of the community, and Miss Norma Bates presented a gift of money, for which Mr. and Mrs. Thompson graciously expressed their thanks, inviting their friends to visit them in their new home at Springbrook.

A social hour was enjoyed while delicious refreshments were served.

White's Church Sunday School Rally Service

White's District — A Rally Service for the Sunday School of White's United Church was well attended on Sunday afternoon, with Rev. A. C. McCallum assisting the superintendent, Mr. W. A. Jeffrey.

A promotion of children from the primary department to the junior department was of special interest, when Donald Bowers, Bobby Meyers, Patricia Sutcliffe and Bobby Sutcliffe received diplomas, after they had each repeated the Ten Commandments.

Misses Jean Cotton and Della Meyers told the story for the day, and the choir rendered suitable music. The Scripture Lesson was read by Mr. Donald Sandercock, and Mr. McCallum gave a very appropriate address. The congregation joined enthusiastically in singing of hymns and the responsive readings.

The offering was dedicated to the building of a new boat for the Pacific coast mission work, and for Christian education in various fields.

60th Anniversary Of Wedding Is Celebrated

For 32 years resident of Toronto, and previous to that having lived in Manchester, England, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Gledhill, 20 Dunbar Street, today are celebrating their 60th wedding anniversary. Mr. and Mrs. Gledhill moved to Belleville one year ago to be with their married daughter, Mrs. H. Miller.

Although September 24th is the day of the anniversary members of Mr. and Mrs. Gledhill's immediate family gathered at the Miller home on Sunday to pay tribute to their parents. All four children of the couple, together with several grandchildren were present for the family gathering.

Both natives of Manchester, England, Mr. and Mrs. Gledhill grew up in the English manufacturing centre where Mr. Gledhill worked as a bricklayer — an occupation he followed throughout his working days. He retired from active construction work about 15 years ago. Both Mr. and Mrs. Gledhill are 86 years old.

In 1913 deciding that greater opportunity for their family beckoned in Canada, the Gledhills with their five children moved to Toronto. They had lived in that city until one year ago when Mr. Gledhill suffered a partial stroke. The Gledhills are members of the Anglican Church, while Mr. Gledhill is a life member of the Bricklayers' Union.

A son of Mr. and Mrs. Gledhill is a veteran of the First World War, having served with the air force. He now operates a garage at Grimsby. Other children of the couple are Mrs. May Miller, Belleville; Mrs. Sarah Long and Mrs. Lily Helliwell, both of Toronto. A daughter, Mrs. Emma Moss, Toronto, died three years ago.

"Why don't you be sociable . . . and SCRAM!"

Miss June Crosby Feted by Friends In River Valley

On the evening of Thursday, Sept. 18th., Mrs. H. A. Morrow, River Valley, was hostess for a cup and saucer shower in honor of Miss June Crosby, of Belleville, who spent two years as teacher in the River Valley School.

The rooms were prettily decorated in a color scheme of pink and white, with an arch effect in front of the fireplace, where Miss Crosby was given a seat of honor.

Little Miss Linda Anne Morrow presented the bride-elect and her mother with corsages, after which some novelty games and contests were enjoyed.

Miss Eleanor Taylor read an address and on behalf of those present a large assortment of balloons was presented, each of which contained instructions for a "treasure hunt." This resulted in the finding of nineteen beautiful cups and saucers, for which Miss Crosby graciously thanked her friends.

Dainty refreshments were served by the hostess.

Mrs. Tom Alexander is visiting relatives in Hamilton, Ont.

The new Christ Church at Hillier will be re-opened by Bishop Lyons, on Sunday, Sept. 28th at three o'clock.

Mrs. Robert Wood motored to South Bay on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Clapp and small son, Chris, of Toronto, spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Clark Clapp.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Preston spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Walter Forsythe.

By VERA WINSTON

THERE IS PLENTY of navy around, but out of compliment to the season, it appears as winter-navy. So, anyway, it is winter-navy faille for this most useful daytime dress, an unobtrusively smart design. The hips are slightly padded by means of buckram at the strategic spots. The shoulders are gently rounded, so that the silhouette subscribes to the new look without overdoing it. The dress buttons centre front below the buttoned-down scalloped collar. Released tucks on the skirt lend extra fullness to the flare.

Women's Activities

WHITE'S W.A.

White's District — Mrs. Ritchie Ketcheson opened her home on Thursday afternoon for September meeting of White's Church Woman's Association with the Vice-President, Mrs. W. H. May presiding. Mrs. Cecil Jeffrey acted as secretary. Rev. A. C. McCallum spoke briefly and led in prayer.

The hostess and assistants served delicious refreshments and a social hour was enjoyed.

PRINCE EDWARD - BELLEVILLE WOMEN'S CLUB

On the afternoon of Sept. 17th., Mrs. C. Earle, Ann. St., opened her home for the regular meeting of the club, with Mrs. Cavers assistings in receiving the members.

Opening exercises were conducted and letters of thanks for cards, flowers, and fruit were read.

Mrs. N. Montgomery gave a vivid word picture of the havoc wrought by the tornado in the north. It was decided to meet and pack bales of quilts, linens clothing and household utensils for the needy victims, and $15 was the sum voted to be donated toward the relief fund.

Mrs. Osborne had charge of the musical program, with Mrs. G. F. Lent reading a poem presenting music in Nature, and Mrs. E. Adams one by Robert Browning. Mrs. J. Parrott contributing a piano solo, "Sabbath Chimes." Mrs. Osborne read a paper on the "Life of Handel," the great composer, and Mrs. Guthridge played one of his compositions. Two vocal solos by Mrs. M. Davidson were greatly enjoyed, and two piano solos by Mrs. E. Hubbs.

Three new members were welcomed, and the meeting closed with a benediction. Co-hostesses for the afternoon were Mesdames Holmes, Davidson, Thomas and Cavers. Delicious refreshments were served, the beverage being poured by Mrs. Thomas with Mrs. Rorabeck and Mrs. Cavers assisting.

The October meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Rorabeck. Thanks for hospitality was extended to Mrs. Earle.

TABERNACLE Y. W. GUILD

The Young Women's Guild of Tabernacle United Church met last evening at the home of Mrs. George Wishart, Dufferin Ave., with Mrs. Grant Coulter presiding.

The constitution was read to reacquaint members with the aims and purposes of the Guild. It was decided to follow some of the programs of the Citizens' Forum, as a basis for the discussions; the subject at the October meeting to be "Psychology versus the Hair Brush." The members were urged to form listening groups to hear the broadcast and then attend the meeting prepared to discuss the problems intelligently.

Mrs. Cornish conducted the devotional period, basing her remarks on a poem, "The Road Ahead," which urged everyone, individuals and nations, to accept some responsibility toward the unifying of the world and for the promotion of world peace.

Miss N. Arkels, guest soloist, sang "Bless This House," with Mrs. Gibson as accompanist.

Miss Alice Heasman, recently returned from England after a year there as an exchange teacher, gave an interesting account of her experiences. England's educational system emphasizes the preparation of children to enjoy life, rather than training them for working to earn their living. More opportunities are afforded students to gain a knowledge and appreciation of Shakespearian plays and of musicals. During her vacations, Miss Heasman travelled on the Continent, spending last Christmas at Lucerne, Switzerland. Other visits were made to France, Belgium, Germany, Czechoslovakia and Scotland. She displayed several pictures typical of the countries visited, which added considerably to the interest of her address.

Mrs. Coulter, on behalf of the Guild members, expressed appreciation to Miss Heasman, to Mrs. Wishart for her hospitality and to all who assisted with the program.

The meeting closed with the Benediction, and the executive served delicious refreshments.

Is Education The Curse of Mankind?

When one of Canada's ace cartoonists suggests to one of Canada's ace newspaper writers that a university extension course might sharpen his mind, it speaks well of Canadian thirst for knowledge. However, when Jim Frise broached the subject to his friend, Greg Clark, recently, he wasn't quite prepared for Greg's violent reaction. At first, it was Greg's opinion that universities and their professors were at the root of all the world's troubles. Read this hilarious Greg-Jim episode in The Standard this week. The Standard is on sale now—10 cents at all newsdealers.

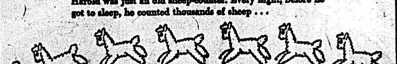
..."And Then There Were None"

Harold was just an old sheep-counter. Every night, before he got to sleep, he counted thousands of sheep . . .



Then one day an Experienced Friend suggested maybe it was the caffein in the Tea and Coffee he drank that kept the sheep jumping over the fence . . .

So Harold STOPPED tea and coffee, and changed to POSTUM . . .

And right away he only got a few hundred sheep over the fence before sleep overcame him . . .

And in a few nights only a dozen . . .

And then there were none!

Many people can safely drink tea and coffee. But others are upset by the caffein these beverages contain. If you find yourself sleepless, nervous, irritable—try changing to Postum. You'll like its rich, heartwarming flavor. Not like tea, not like coffee, just a grand flavor all its own.

Easy to fix—make Postum right in the cup just by adding boiling water or hot milk. Costs less than 1¢ a serving.

Advertisement Warns of Danger Of Communism

Believing that Canada should strengthen its guard against the loss of personal freedoms, two Canadian companies Nash Motors of Canada Ltd. and Kelvinator of Canada Ltd. are taking space in all major newspapers across Canada to sponsor an advertising program warning the people of the dangers of communism. The advertisement being used is entitled, "Before It Is Too Late" and it appears in today's issue of the Ontario Intelligencer.

This particular advertisement carried on a public service series established during the war years. In it, a veteran's thoughts on the present world condition are set down, along with his mental comments on what he thinks Canadians have to do to further consolidate their position in the eyes of the world.

Because of the potent and timely message this advertisement brings to each and every Canadian, we take pleasure in drawing our readers' attention to the add on page 11.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Poor Prune Palooka is in a meckuvahess at the bridge table. Most of what he hears there is utterly useless to him. Even if it goes in both ears, there is nothing to which it can cling.

Not that his brain is useless. The trouble is that his mind is too bare of correct fundamentals. So, any bridge facts that come in his direction have nothing with which to make contact.

What he needs is a comprehensive reason for each basic step. Fortified with this understanding, each next subject begins to make sense. Every new item then makes an impression on him.

For instance, let him understand that a jump bid is forcing to game for one reason and one reason only. It is because the jumper is able to see tricks enough to help make a game.

He is then ready to grasp the next fact that an immediate one-jump response makes two promises. Not only does it show tricks enough to help make a game. But it admits having two sure among them.

It is not enough that he knows this. He must know why. Since an opener shows five tricks and the jumper six, suppose opener has one more trick. Opener will then see 12 tricks in the pair.

With 12 tricks discovered in the pair, a player sees a chance for slam. Such slambitions should not be encouraged without the right stuff. The jumper should be fortified with at least two sure.

Without two sure tricks, responder can still show tricks enough for a game. To show them he can wait until the second round. Thus is partner warned not to expect sures as slam help.

South opens with a heart when north has this hand:

♠K 7 3 2
♥Q 7
♦K J 9 7 2
♣K 8

With six tricks, north sees 11 in the pair. But lacking two sure, it is not enough for an immediate one-jump.

To promise enough you need the right stuff.

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Sept. 24 —(AP)— The church-going, smoking, divorcing, night-clubbing and other habits of Hollywood citizens have been polled and the results indicate that the town is a fairly tame place. Or so the figures say.

The quizzing was done by the Hollywood Reporter and of the 1,056 of the trade paper's readers who answered, 70 percent are in show business. Eighty-five per cent are males.

The divorce mill has claimed 29.7 per cent of the quizees, whereas the Reporter quotes the National average (Bureau of Census report) at 40 per cent. Seventy-seven per cent of the readers are married and 42 per cent have two children.

Democrats claim a majority of those polled, pulling a total of 56.4 per cent. The Republicans draw 43.2 and the remaining 0.4 is spread among other parties, presumably Communist, Prohibitionist, etc.

Hollywood firmly believes the rest of the United States has the wrong impression of Hollywood. At least that's what 85 per cent indicated on the poll. Thirty per cent don't use tobacco and 14.5 guzzle no liquor. Forty-two per cent visit a night club but once a month.

It may surprise you to learn what the favorite hobby is. It's reading. And photography ranks second. Twenty-nine individuals possess yachts and 83 own television sets. A mere 10 per cent and this should upset legend, have swimming pools in their back yards.

Dress Well.

Hollywood dresses well, says the survey. Eighty-one per cent of the boys have some of their clothes custom-made and 45.5 per cent own five to nine suits. Fourteen gents replied they have over 40 suits!

Hollywood is a land of immigrants, only 8.5 reporting they previously lived on the Pacific coast. The largest percentage, 32.1, came from the Middle Atlantic States and only 6.4 came from outside the United States.

And look at the educational figures — 35.5 per cent were graduated from college, 36.1 more attended college and 13.9 got past high school graduation. Of course it could be that they're the ones who like to fill out polls.

Deep Loss.

The loss of Harry Carey will be deeply felt around Hollywood. He and his wife, who was always with him, were familiar and friendly figures on movie sets. Once he told me his secret of success as an actor: "Always say a line with your eyes before you say it with your mouth."

STARTING GATE USED FOR FIRST TIME AT RACES

Contraption Eliminates the Tedious Scoring Before Each Heat

Thanks to the concerted efforts of the racing committee, the fair board staged two excellent races on Tuesday. The track was left a sea of mud after the weekend rain but the boys went to work and when the horses were called to the post for the first heat, the racing strip was really fast except for a short stretch in the "homelane." There were two races carded a 2.27 class and a 2.18 class with the slow race going to Stewart Worthy from Peterborough in straight heats, while in the fast class Bonnie G, a former Futurity winner, took the final two heats after being headed by Benny Grattan in the first canto.

For the first time in Belleville, the starting gate was used and there was a wide divergence of opinion as to its value, but the consensus was that the gate eliminated the constant scoring and the races therefore were run off more quickly. After the horses draw their positions for the first heat they are allowed a couple of scores to warm up and then are placed behind the gate in their proper positions. The gate is drawn by a car and as the car starts to move the horses follow closely behind until they reach the wire when the vehicle draws away quickly, the sides are folded in and the horses are on their own.

Stewart Worthy was much too good for the slow class pacers winning as he liked. In the fast class it was different with Bonnie G. forced to show her best to head Benny Grattan, who has been raced quite hard this season.

(By The Associated Press)

Syracuse Chiefs and Buffalo Bisons, who finished third and fourth respectively in the International League pennant race are tied with three games each as they meet at Syracuse tonight in the deciding contest of the Governor's Cup finals.

The Bison's tied up the series last night with a three-run explosion in the 13th inning for a 7-4 triumph.

Right-handers have been nominated by both clubs for the mound chores in the game that will decide the team to meet the American Association winner in the Little World Series.

Herm Wehmeirer, who has one victory and one defeat in the current series, will pitch for the Chiefs. He will be opposed by Clem Hausmann, who has beaten Syracuse twice in this set.

The Bisons went out in front three times in the sixth game and each time the Chiefs tied the score. Each scored a run in the fourth, two in the fifth and one in the 10th.

The herd finally broke loose against relief pitchers Alex Mustaikis and Mike Schultz in the 12th with three hits, a walk and the only error of the game.

CANADIAN SPORT SNAPSHOTS

By DOUG GREEN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Regina, Sept. 24 (CP) — The post-war revival of the Olympic games — scheduled for England next year — finds no favor with one Western Canadian sports writer.

Murray (Moose Jaw Times-Herald) Brown offers the opinion the games should be abandoned in the light of world conditions.

"In the first place," he asks, "what business has England attempting to stage the big show? According to those who knew about these things she is in bad shape financially and otherwise.

"Then too, how many countries are going to be able to dig up athletes who can measure up to fussbudget Avery Brundage's definition of that rare species of athletic world — the pure amateur?

"If golf, tennis and other international competitions in the post-war period mean anything, the United States will probably sweep the Olympic boards clean. European athletes, especially those in Britain, weren't getting the right types of food during the war, and even now the same holds true. Canada holds all the cards in world hockey games — if she wants to use them.

"She probably won't because C.A.H.A. officials don't see eye-to-eye with the Olympic Hockey Committee regarding the definition of an amateur..."

Brown suggests that sportsmen and sportswomen on this continent band together and use the money raised to send them overseas — more if necessary — to see that the necessities of life are "provided a people who must be considered among the gamest on earth."

The Olympic games can wait, he concludes. "They have in the past and can, with no great harm done, be shelved again."

Dave (Regina Leader-Post) Dryburgh takes the role of prophet regarding the news that the Big Four and Ontario Rugby Football Union have been ruled not liable for the 20 per cent professional tax on their gate receipts.

Says Dave:

"The 20 per cent professional tax would have ruined the shamateurs who had their drawing power figured out to the last dime and set their overhead accordingly. You can now expect the pros to ask that the tax be removed altogether."

In these golden days of sport, he adds, they're not exactly suffering, though they could present quite a case.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor.

The Peterborough Intermediate "A's" roared back into the Ontario Baseball Playdowns up in Perdueville the other gloaming setting the doughty Shoemen from Batawa back on their haunches with a 4-3 defeat. The third game has been ordered played, or at least was a mutual agreement between the different managements, here on Friday night under the kleigs at Exhibition Park.

* * *

Without detracting from the Petes' ability the Batawa defeat was a bit of a surprise to local baseball fandom. In their first meeting the Shoemen showed superiority in all departments, and the general consensus hereabouts was two straight for the sole-and-heel gendarmerie.

* * *

According to the CP report of the game, the Batawa masterminds started tall Ken Peacock who lasted a couple of innings and then gave way to Gordy Muffitt who stifled the Pete batters with four hits over seven innings. But the damage was done and the Bata batters could not produce sufficient hits and runs to pull the pastime out of the fire. Opinion hereabouts in which we definitely concur, is that had the Shoemen started Muffitt, the Batawa buckaroos would now be looking for fresh Intermediate "A" fields to conquer.

* * *

Howeverr the die is cast and the payoff playoff is scheduled for Friday gloaming at 8.30 in Exhibition Park. And thereby hangs a tale, possibly of woe to the Petes-Batawa coffers, as the first professional hockey joust seen here in many a moon is scheduled for the Memorial Arena on the same night, same station and same time.

* * *

On Friday night, as has been advertised ,the Philadelphia Rockets will take the ice against the Rookies, and if the weather is at all cool, the hockey game should get the nod over the baseball tilt. However, there are a number of dyed-in-the-wool baseball fans in this village, not to mention the guys and gals from the home hamlet of Batawa who will bus down to see the boys battle in that all-important third tilt, and that should make for some box-office results.

* * *

On the other hand, if the railbird attendance at the training sessions of the Rockets during this week is a criterion, then the hockey lads should pull in a neat attendance. Interest in the Rockets and rookies is increasing daily, and hockey fans here, especially the younger fry, are all agog over the visiting pros and their practices.

* * *

Apropos of the reports of a more or less bitter controversy raging in Western Ontario over the question of neutral umpires for playdown games, O.B.A. Convener Ernie Summers informed us yesterday that on-the-fence arbiters will be chosen for the Batawa-Peterborough game here on Friday. M'sieus. Frawley and Reason of Kingston, who turned in a grand job of arbiting in the last joust between the jobs have been named for the chore, but nothing definite has been arranged as yet.

* * *

We have nothing against local umpires. Nor do we think that any fair-minded player, fan or master-mind would object to the selection of out-of-town officials. There are those, however, who trend toward the hometown product, and feel that they are being unjustly treated by being left out of the playoff money after working all season in the schedule.

* * *

It is not a case of unjust treatment to the local officials. If they are good, then they will get their share of games between out-of-town teams, and that should not only salve their injured feelings, if any, but put more lettuce in their financial gardens than they would get otherwise. There should be no complaint from home-brew umpires in that respect.

* * *

Furthermore, the appointment of unbiased officials would eliminate a lot of senseless bickering; and the direct and indirect accusation, in case of a close decision, that the home-town boy behind the plate or on the bases is favoring the home squad. Naturally the home fans want to see their prides win. And a lot of them will accept a so-called raw decision, if it favors their team, as lively as they will boo a similar one against their squad.

* * *

By all means let us have neutral officials in playdown games. Evidence of the success of the idea was seen here in the last game between Batawa and Peterborough when Frawley and Reason officiated. There was not a single squawk from the fans. The umpires turned in an excellent job. In Napanee recently, Don Thomas and Eddie Schrieder officiated at a game between Port Hope and the Gibbardville crew. True, there were some howls on the part of the Napanee fans when they felt the arbiters called a "raw" one against the home-town crew, but at the same time, an excellent job of work was done by the umps who had nothing at stake nor any sentimental reasons either. And the fans were satisfied.

* * *

It may be a case of history repeating itself. Remember the famous gesture of Babe Ruth some years ago when he pointed to the left field stands, swung the big black bat and the ball zoomed into the designated stands for a home run. Practically the same thing occurred here this week. but minus the color and drama of the now famous Ruthian gesture.

* * *

Fourteen-year-old Carmen Coon, ace hurler for the Rotary baseball juveniles, had battled for four innings against the Kiwanis Club squad and the score was tied at 9-all. The weather was frosty and the umps decided to squelch the pastime after the fifth innings. The Kiwanis kids smashed out a flock of hits good for a couple of runs and the Rotary youngsters went to bat with that margin against them.

* * *

Coon was the first man up. He exuded confidence. "Look, youse guys," he grinned. "I'll get one, and you fellers get the othe rtwo. How about it?" The gang nodded its collective heads. Came the first pitch. A ball. Coon pointed his bat to the left field. The second pitch was in the groove. Coon swung. You guessed it. The ball sailed over the left fielder's head for a four-bagger. His mates, inspired by the feat, swung mean maces. Five hits clattered in the faraway pastures for two runs and when the officials finally called the game the Rotary kids had the bags cluttered with runners with none out, and another win.

* * *

The impressive flock of junior hockey talent now training with the Philly Rockets here will not be weeded out for a couple of days, Manager Max Kaminski stated today. "We want to give these youngsters every opportunity to make good, and that cannot be done overnight. We want them to feel that they have had a good chance with us, and we are not sending them home with the feeling that they have not had the opportunity to show their real ability."

* * *

And speaking of the Rocket juniors, there was some audible wishful thinking on the part of a couple of city hockey master-minds yesterday. Watching the kids cavort over the ice, one murmured in almost a prayerful voice, "Brother, what a Junior "B" squad I could pick out of that aggregation."

* * *

Two years ago this anecdote might have made headlines. In fact the principle of the story would have been a hero of sorts. It seems that a junior rookie reporting to Rocket headquarters here, got a trifle mixed in official nomenclature. He barged upstairs in the Queen's Hotel. pounded on a door and demanded, "Is that guy Kilroy here?"

* * *

A few minutes later Coach Wally Kilrea admitted that possibly he was the man the rookie wanted. He was—and a rookie, slightly scarlet of face, enjoyed the laugh with the Rockets' coach.

Jolly Jack Adams, graduated from coach of the National Hockey League Red Wings to manager of Detroit's ice chain, will be seeing hockey players in his sleep. Some 200 hopefuls were on hand today for the official opening of the training season at Detroit's Olympia, aspiring for places on the Wings, Indianapolis Capitols, Omaha of the United States League and Detroit's newly-acquired junior team, Windsor Spitfires.

The Red Wings had so many players, they broke them up into two advance camps. The 50 or so who trained at Waterloo, Ont., including such veterans as Syd Abel, Billy Taylor, Pete Horeck, Ted Lindsay, Eddie Bruneteau, Jim Conacher, Doug McCaig, Leo Reise and Harry Lumley, will begin skating at Olympia today. The remainder, who trained at Saskatoon are due in about Thursday.

The Saskatoon section of the Red Wings stopped off at Winnipeg last night enroute to Detroit and walloped Cleveland Barons of the American Hockey League, 8-2, in an exhibition. Jim McFadden and Max McNab, lanky rookie centre from Watson, Sask., each scored three goals for the Wings.

Johnny Quilty, the centre who didn't see much action with Montreal Canadiens last season until playoff time, looked like the pick of the early crop at Montreal. In mid-season condition, he centred Bobby Carse and Jimmy Peters, the best line in yesterday's reds-whites exhibition. He scored two goals, Peters four.

Johnny Donlevy of Kirkland Lake, Ont., was in goal for the Whites as Canadiens divided into two teams for a tussle and gave a good account of himself, even though the Reds poured 17 pucks by him to win 17-4.

Graduation Day: The Maple Leafs moved Tod Sloan up from Pittsburgh Hornets, working out with them at St. Catharines and used him with Gus Bodnar and Gaye Stewart yesterday. The new "fourth line," worked like a team together, scoring five goals in a 50-minute scrimmage.

Chicago's potent scoring combination—the Bentley Brothers and Bill Mosienko— are clicking again in the Black Hawks workout at Regina. The Hawks still appear to be having defence woes, however, with Johnny Mariucci and Bill Gadsby about the only sure rearguard starters.

Manager Frank Boucher, anxious to test his Rangers, has matched them in an exhibition game against New Haven Ramblers Sunday at Lake Placid, N. Y., where both are working out.

Ogdensburg Man To Attend Meeting For Further Plans

(By The Canadian Press)

Professional baseball appears a certainty for Belleville next year. Sportsmen and hotel owner, Jack Yanover is heading the club which aims at placing a team in the Class C Border Baseball League.

The Belleville entry makes it probable that Ontario will have four entries in the league. Kingston has been in the loop for two seasons, Ottawa entered this year and Peterborough is a possible 1948 starter, as a farm club designed to develop Canadian talent for the Toronto Maple Leafs of the International Baseball League.

The executive plans to start forming a stock company to finance the team and they are hopeful of reaching an agreement with a triple "A" ball club to obtain player talent.

Jack Ward of Ogdensburg, N.Y., is to attend a meeting this week to prepare for further plans for the Belleville entry.

Secretary Gene Dopp of the Canadian Lacrosse Association last night announced that the eastern Canada junior lacrosse final between St. Catharines Athletics and Cornwall has been cancelled and that the Athletics will enter the final for the Dominion championships against the winner of a series now being contested in Winnipeg between Vancouver All-Stars and Winnipeg Elmwood Terriers.

The Vancouver team swept the opener last night 16-3 before 1,200 fans and the teams wind it up tonight. Ed Hanson, Don Fleming and Bill Manula paced the coast sharpshooters with four points apiece. Hanson and Fleming each rapped in three goals.

The best-of-five final, for the Minto cup along with the Dominion title, will be played in St. Catharines and opens Sept. 29.

Out on the coast, New Westminster Adanacs took the first step toward entering the Mann Cup final against the eastern champions for the Dominion title. They walloped Rossland Redmen 24-6 in the opening game of a best-of-three series. Their opponents will be either Mimico or Cornwall, now playing a best-of-three set at Cornwall. Norm Baker, versatile coast athlete, lea the New Westminster attack with four goals and two assists and little Archie Browning also tallied four times.

Norman Gregory, President of the Canadian Figure Skating Association, announced yesterday that Barbara Ann Scott of Ottawa and Suzanne Morrow and Wallace Diestelmeyer of Toronto have been selected to represent Canada in the figure skating events at the 1948 Olympics.

The British government is going to subsidize sports training in a bid to stop the rout of British teams in international competition. The Ministry of Education said two coaches already had been appointed by the Amateur Athletic Association and a third had been arranged under the scheme, in which the government pays most of the cost.

Of the 90 horses entered in the Cambridgeshore Handicap, Oct. 29, on which the next Irish sweepstakes are based, the Maharaja of Barodas Might Marharatta was made favorite today after the first call-over of the entries.

Yellowknife, three - year - old daughter of Filisteo and Siss was returned a driving winner of the 54th running of the Maple Leaf Stakes at Woodbine Park yesterday. The R. W. R. Cowie filly ran the 1 1-16 miles in 1:46 3-5 and paid $4.35, $2.75 and $2.20 for a $2 ticket.

Saturday's $100,000 match race between Armed and Assault was officially declared "on" yesterday after a conference between both owners and Belmont Park President.

Ray (Sugar) Robinson signed to defend his welterweight boxing title Nov. 17 at Honululu stadium against Honolulu's Franke Fernandez. Robinson has been guaranteed $20,000 in the 15-round affair with the privilege of 40 per cent of the receipts, whichever is greater.

Yanks' Hurling, Inconsistent Since Mid-July, is Looking Better Every Passing Day

By JOE REICHLER

New York, Sept. 24 (AP) — New York Yankees have been installed as heavy favorites over Brooklyn Dodgers in the 1947 World Series which starts next Tuesday largely because they have, in Joe Dimaggio, one of the greatest outfielders in the game today.

No flychaser on the Dodgers can come close to matching the Yankee Clipper either at bat or in the field, although in Dixie Walker the Brooks have one of the most dependable and smartest hitters in baseball.

It is doubtful even if Walker or Pete Reiser, best of the Dodgers' outfielders, can match Tommy Henrich, hustling Yankee rightfielder who with Johnny Lindell comprises just about the best outfield in the majors. This trio easily rates the call over Walker, Reiser and either Carl Furillo or Gene Hermanski.

Although Dimaggio is the only outfielder hitting over .300, each of the Yankee trio has belted 10 or more home runs and Henrich, with 95 runs batted in, is second only to Ted Williams of Boston Red Sox in the league. He has clouted 16 home runs. Dimaggio has batted in 94 runs and hammered 19 out of the park.

Lindell, a converted pitcher, has done an amazing job filling in for the ailing Charlie Keller in left field this year. Big John has been flirting with the .300 mark all season and has driven in 64 mates in 122 games.

Good Defensively

In the field the Yankee picket line leaves nothing to be desired. Each can run and get 'em and each can throw with the best. As a unit, the trio has made only 12 errors in 894 chances for a .987 percentage. Dimaggio has made but one miscue in 309 chances.

The fine all-around work of this regular trio has overshadowed the play of young Al Clark, a hard-hitting outfielder acquired from Newark of the International League early in August. The 24-year-old rookie, in his limited opportunity, has banged the ball at a .361 clip and may see service in the series.

The Dodger outfield, despite its lack of home-run-punch, could have come close to providing a match for Dimaggio and company if Reiser, a great player before the war, could have escaped some of the numerous injuries he has incurred the last few seasons. He currently is being "rested" following his latest mishap — a twisted ankle. It was the same ankle which kept him out of the lineup last year when the Dodgers made their losing pennant bid.

Reiser Paces Mates

Reiser still has been able to pace his mates with the stick, batting .312 in 107 games. He also has outshone his mates in the field with only three errors in 244 chances. Walker, a veteran of 16 years in the big time, is another better-than-.300 batsman. He has driven in 92 runs to vie with Henrich and Dimaggio in that department. Only his legs (he is 37 years old today) keep him from getting the call over Henrich in right field.

A real problem faces boss Burt Shotton of the Brooks when it comes to selecting his third outfielder. All season long he has alternated Furillo and Hermanski with Ed Miksis, Arky Vaughan Al Gionfriddo getting an occasional assignment in left field.

Shotton has hinted that he would stick to the same alignment, using Furillo against left-handed pitchers and Hermanski or Vaughan against right-handers.

Since the Yanks don't run to southpaws, Furillo probably will see little action and his absence is bound to weaken the Dodgers for he ranks second only to Walker among his mates in the important runs batted in department with 86. He has 128 hits.

YANKS FAVORED TO BEAT DODGERS IN WORLD SERIES

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York Yankee pitching, inconsistent since mid-July is looking better with every passing day. Instead of a crippled, sore-armed staff, manager Bucky Harris now has four starters bidding for the coveted opening World Series job.

Bucky has most of the staff outdoing one another in a wholesome rivalry for that No. 1 job against Brooklyn Dodgers. Allie Reynolds, Frank Shea, Bobo Newsom and Bill Bevens are in the running with the ailing Spud Chandler beginning to show signs of life in batting practice.

Reynolds and Shea yesterday tossed the Yanks to a double-header victory over Washington 2-0 and 3-1. Reynolds, working eight innings, blanked the Senators with six hits, before yielding to a pinch-hitter. Shea gave only two hits, although he walked seven, in his eight-inning chore. Reynolds' shutout was his 19th success and Shea picked up win No. 14.
stalked from the bull pen to tune stalked fro mtne oull pen to tune up his arm with a one-inning stint.

Hatten Given Workout

Brooklyn also started work with the series in mind, instead of worrying about the Cardinals who finally have been eliminated mathematically. Joe Hatten was given a five-inning outing against New York to gain credit for his 17th victory 6-1. Dan Bankhead tossed the last four innings after Hatten went out for a pinch-hitter and most of the reserves were thrown into action.

Even Jackie Robinson, who was presented with a new automobile, television set, $500 watch and other gifts in Robinson Day ceremonies, yielded to Ed Stevens midway in the game.

St. Louis, a bit concerned about Boston's challenge for second money, disposed of Pittsburgh 8-4 despite Ralph Kiner's 51st homer. As a result, the Cards now are two full games ahead of the Braves.

Whitey Kurowski and Chuck Diering of the Cards and relief pitcher Al Lyons and pinch-hitter Cully Rickard of the Pirates also homered.

Cubs Trounce Reds

Chicago trounced Cincinnati 7-2 in the other scheduled National League action, pounding Johnny Vander Meer and two successors for 17 hits.

The American League second-place squabble warmed with Detroit shoving a half game ahead of Boston by a 4-1 triumph over Chicago while the Red Sox split two with Philadelphia. Hal Newhouser hooked his 16th victory. The Red Sox won their second 6-5 after bowing to the A's Phil Marchildon in the opener 9-3. It was the 18th victory for Marchildon, native of Penetanguishene, Ont.

Bob Lemon, Cleveland's hottest pitcher of the moment, hoisted the Tribe within 1½ games of the second place Tigers by hurling a 7-4 night triumph over St. Louis.

Almost five years ago this advertisement was published by Nash-Kelvinator. It seems to us appropriate that at this time we should reappraise the situation.

Before it is too late

I remember how I felt when the word came through: The war was over! Peace had come, this time for keeps.

A wonderful new world was on the way . . . remember?

I got to thinking about it last night, about what's happening—and I couldn't sleep.

Beyond our town I seemed to see the lights of all the world. And as I watched, they were going out one by one.

I saw the foundries grow cold against the moon, the wheels stop in the factories.

I saw the printing presses smashed, and free people taken away and shot.

I saw the rise of the dictators.

I saw their lines of puppet men jerking to the polls, while bands played and banners waved.

Yes—the disciplined state had come.

"Turn on your radio, comrade. The orders for the day are coming through . . ."

"Turn over your children to us. We will indoctrinate them for the state . . ."

"Your union is no longer necessary. Your hours, your rations and your work have been set by the bureau . . ."

"Tear up the ballot. You have no need for it now . . ."

I want to thank God today that I live in Canada.

That I can still speak my own mind and do as I please, work as I please and vote as I please . . . that the way ahead of me is still wide open.

Now I know how easily these priceless privileges can be lost.

* * *

I have a young son and this is what I'm going to tell him—

If you cannot learn to discipline yourself, there will always come a tyrant to teach you.

—It takes spunk and sweat to become a good Canadian citizen. Don't let anybody try to tell you differently.

—You'll never find peace in any doctrine that preaches violence to prove its point.

—You'll never be happy under any kind of government that denies the love of God and the natural goodness of man.

—You'll never get ahead in any scheme of life that puts a halter on your initiative and your ingenuity.

Above all, beware the man—whether he is a Right or a Left, or the Middle, or of the Proletariat or whatever label he wears—if he tries, under any pretext, to trade you out of any of your rights as a citizen—he is a tyrant, who will take away all your liberties, one by one.

* * *

No, I don't think it's going to happen in Canada.

But make no mistake about it. The danger is still here.

We have been challenged to prove the stuff we are made of—to prove that the way we live and work beats that of any other system in the world.

And there's only one way to prove it. That's to produce the goods . . . before it is too late.

We've got to bury our little squabbles, and start pulling together.

We've got to set our wheels in a new high—and keep them rolling.

We've got to quit looking back to 1939, or '29—and start building a many-times-greater Canada.

We've got to plant more wheat and raise more corn. Dig more nickel and roll more steel. Build more, make more.

It's got to be done—not only to bring back the lights of Europe, but because it is our only salvation—

—because it is the Canadian way, to ever increase our ability to bring better living to more people.

—because only by being productive can we be strong—

And only by being strong can we remain free!

The Death of a Doll.

By Hilda Lawrence

CHAPTER 21.

The mask, the costume, and the music box were on Dr. Kloppel's table. Mark pointed to the mole. "So," he said, "that's the key. If that isn't Ruth Miller's mask, it's a copy."

"Copy?"

"The girl who killed Ruth needed a mask with a mole. She needed to show her ugly, hidden self to the public and give the impression that Ruth still walked the earth. She had the mask she swiped from Miss Campbell's room, but it was what you might call unadorned. So she removed Ruth's mask and substituted Miss Campbell's, or she marked Miss Campbell's to look like Ruth's. This mask rode down in the elevator with Mrs. Marshall-Gill when Ruth was dead."

'But Mr. East! If she took the original away from the poor girl, it would be—I mean it wasn't a very neat—"

"Listen. If this is the original, it isn't stained because she got hold of it first. Get me, first. And that would be easy, too easy. Ruth Miller at bay, like a little cottontail facing a man with a gun. No trick at all. Simply snatch it, do the grisly job, substitute the other when she was self-conscious. Go on downstairs and parade around. A beautiful alibi, for self and victim. I don't know why I haven't heard it. Why hasn't somebody given me a wide-eyed stare and said, 'Oh, I'm sure I saw her, Mr. East. I'm sure I saw her at 9:30 or 10. The mole, you know. I think I even called so-and-so's attention to her.' Why hasn't somebody given me that"

"Maybe because it wasn't needed."

Mark turned and twisted in his chair and went on with a sudden, repressed fury. "Somebody lied to me! Not a good, big lie that I could see coming a mile away, but a mousey little stinker that merged with the landscape. Some smart girl fed me a smooth little whopper that got by because it was the natural, normal thing for her to say. Such as, 'I went into the lounge to see if the fire needed more wood.' That's the kind of thing I mean, that's what a woman like Plummer could give me if she wanted to hide her actual whereabouts, and I'd swallow it whole. She might have been walling up a body in the cellar, but I'd have a picture of the old girl messing up the wood basket, because that's her type. That's how I've been reasoning, and that's where I've gone wrong. I've put too much time on the outstanding deviations from routine when what I really want is the small piece of extraneous matter that some bright girl slipped into the machinery. It's so small and so simple that I don't know what it is or who did it. But somebody looked me straight in the eye, folded her hands in her lap, and told me she was breathing, Mr. East, just breathing. And she's my girl."

'Getting mad now, aren't you?" Dr. Koppel said with satisfaction. 'In people like you it's a good sign . . . You've been on this case less than a week and look what you've done. Then look at Foy.".

"I haven't got time to look at Foy. I haven't got time to take those girls aside one by one and beat a life story out of each and double check. That would do it. And Foy hasn't got the time, either. Foy and I ought to take turns at 24-hour duty in that place, but if we do, I'm afraid we'll be opening another window. If you get what I mean . . I don't like my girl."

"Do you mind telling a practically superannuated stork just how much you know about your girl?"

"My girl is the kind who couldn't take it when she was five years old and some other kid in the block was prettier than she was. When she was ten, she couldn't take it when some other kid got better marks in school or had more spending money. She can't take anything now, anything that makes her feel inferior, imposed upon, or gets in her way. Anybody who does that, even unconsciously, is asking to be a dead duck. My girl will gamble on the impossible and bring it off, because she runs around with people who've been taught that nice girls don't do bad things. Nice girls do anything and everything, as your stork trade must have taught you. My girl gambled on Ruth Miller. Ruth Miller was a threat, still unclassified, but a threat just the same. So out she went. And for several weeks it looked like success. Then I came in, then Foy came back. That must have burned her up, but it hasn't finished her, not by a long shot. Look at Lillian Harris. One of these nights I'm going to wake up screaming because my girl is walking in my sleep. Walking and talking, telling, telling me that if she's caught she'll blow the place up and herself with it. She's capable of it, too. If she can't have what she wants, then nobody else can. Life is cheap. See?"

Without warning, a door slowly opened in the back of his mind, a door that had been closed and camouflaged. He could almost see a face peering through. It made him whistle and kept his mouth open after the whistle had stopped. Dr. Kloppel looked at him, he was seeing someone else. His girl . . .

She had staggered her appearances, dressing for the part each time. She had gone upstairs as herself, done her work, and returned wearing Ruth's mask. Then up stairs again, then down as herself once more. If she used the second floor as a base, she could do it half a dozen times. She wouldn't be missed, not gone long enough at a stretch. She had broken it up, spread it out; there one minute, not there the next. No wonder...no wonder...

The doorbell rang, a series of sharp, clear rings. He jumped. Dr Koppel gave him a disapproving look and went to answer it, mumbling to himself. When he returned he had Bessy and Beulah.

'I thought I told you to phone," Mark said coldly.

"Wait," Beulah advised. She advanced to the table, holding a paper garment bag at arm's length.

Mark said, "Dr. Kloppel, these are my friends. And I suppose this bag holds the suit?" He drew it out, carefully.

Dr. Kloppel carried the mugs over to the bookcase. He refilled them with his back to the room and added two glasses of sherry to the tray.

"Oh, thank you," Bessy said before he turned around.

"We didn't phone," Beulah said, "because the place was near Hope House where I said it would be all along. So we simply came. Tom the Cleaner and Dyer. A European peasant of some sort, and a grandson with the same accent and so on. We had no trouble at all. I get along with peasants."

"What's this?" Mark fingered the slip of paper pinned to the lapel. It was an oblong of pale pink with a serrated edge, and had obviously been torn from a pad. He frowned at the penciled scrawl. The peasant's code for Ruth Miller, electric blue, two-piece. Wiggle wiggle, 2 dash 8277. He hung the suit on the back of a chair. "Cleaner's ticket," he decided.

"On Hope House paper?" Dr. Kloppel asked pleasantly.

"Hope House!"

"Telephone pad. One on every floor, hanging beside the phone." He saw Mark's face and added—hastily, and in time. "Ladies present!"

Mark smoothed the paper, held it to the light, read the penciled scrawl a half dozen times. Then he left, hatless and coatless and without explanations. They heard the front door slam.

Bessy said, "Have we done something wrong or right?"

"Right." Beulah's voice was pitying. "If we were wrong, he'd be the first to tell us. Loud."

U.S. Demands Return of Three Kidnapped Men

Trieste, Sept. 24 — (AP) — United States army headquarters in Trieste Tuesday demanded the return of an American officer and two men taken captive by Yugoslavs while on mounted patrol duty on the Trieste free territory Monday and "forced across the border at gunpoint."

An official report issued by headquarters of United States troops in Trieste said the missing men were patrolling near the sector where Yugoslavs last week tried to force their way into the free territory.

The army identified the trio as Lieut. William Van Atten, Pte. Earl G. Hendrick, and Pte. Glen A. Myers.

Van Atten was caught in a Yugoslav ambush in July, 1946, on the road between Gorizia and Trieste, the army report said. His driver was killed and he and a soldier were wounded.

Huge Citrus Loss In Florida Storm

Washington, Sept. 24 — (AP)— The Agriculture Department estimated that last week's hurricane caused the loss of between 5,000,000 and 7,000,000 boxes of citrus fruit in Florida.

The department said losses to vegetable crops in Florida include 300,000 to 400,000 acres of snap beans and 2,500 acres of tomatoes. Eggplant, pepper and cucumber crops also were hard hit.

Food Prices Decline in U.S.

New York, Sept. 24 (AP) — Prospects that the United States housewife's shrunken dollar might grow a little larger brightened as the wholesale price decline of meat, butter and eggs, major items in the high cost of eating, carried into its second week.

Livestock prices generally held about steady on principal markets, after nearly a week - long decline, but grains, principally wheat pushed higher at major exchanges.

In the New York wholesale market, butter sold for 80 cents a pound, down 2½ cents from Friday. Eggs were seven cents to 4 cents below Friday, selling at 64 to 66 cents. In Chicago, the best wholesale eggs were off as much as three cents, selling at 60 to 63 cents.

Wholesale prices of meat generally were lower in both New York and Chicago.

Wheat in Chicago closed 7 1/4 to nine cents higher and gained from seven to nine cents in markets at Minneapolis and Kansas City.

"WHO'S WHO" IN POLICE FILES

Something has been added to police district stations. Now, every policeman going in and out of their stations can see, framed on the wall, the "who's who" of the underworld and shady characters they may meet in their districts, and lessening the cumbersome job of thumbing through the present big and heavy "album." Shown here is Officer Carroll Hardenbergh of the Summerdale station in Chicago, Ill., taking notes on, maybe a new face, he might meet on his beat.

Polish Communists Unable to Buck Strong Religions Feeling of Peasants

By DANIEL DE LUCE

Czestochowa, Poland, Sept. 24—(AP)—The only red stars in Czestochowa, shrine of Polish Roman Catholicism, are on Russian soldiers' graves.

This is a city in the Russian sphere of Europe where the propaganda of the newly-dominant Communist minority is muffled and the moral authority of the church is unchallenged.

By the tens of thousands, pilgrims march into Czestochowa for Sunday services. Many come in carts drawn by horses or oxen, decked with crosses made of pine boughs. Others trudge afoot, carrying the banners of their faith.

A monument to the Red Army stands on the edge of the city, but is almost unnoticed by the endless procession.

Two fundamentals baffle Russophiles who would complete the transformation of Poland from modified state socialism to rigid Sovietization:

One is the love of the peasant for his own land. The other is his deep religious feeling. There are 16,000,000 like him — that is, two-thirds of the Polish people.

The Kremlin apparently has been unable to devise a non-violent short-cut for Polish Communists, who are blocked from fulfillment of their ideology.

The Kremlin, as history records, forced the Russian peasant into collectivization and extinguished nearly all religion for a generation by its decrees.

Either strong-arm policy, if not repugnant to Polish Communists, is at least beyond their power in the present coalition government to attempt.

The priests of Czestochowa have a tradition of patriotism that is centuries old. Polish Catholicism was in the forefront of the resistance to Nazism. It is immune to Communist tactics which in Yugoslavia and Slovakia resulted in the trial of priests as alleged war criminals.

Skeleton on Verandah Back in Closet After Night in Jail

Baltimore, Sept. 24 — (AP) — Uncle George, an elderly skeleton with a taste for top hats and excitement, is back in his closet today after a succession of highjinks that included a night in jail.

The dead man's holiday began when friends of John S. Hartlove, who is keeping George for a friend, decided to give the old fellow an airing on the front porch. That sent a startled neighbor running to the police station, and police ruled that as an ex-human being, George was eligible for a jail cell and a $25 fine for disturbing the peace.

After grinning at a few pop-eyed and howling fellow-prisoners who had been arrested on drunk charges, George was called for and removed by Hartlove.

POLIO PATIENT GIVES BIRTH TO BOY

Akron, O., Sept. 24 — (AP) — A 24-year-old woman under treatment for poliomyelitis has given birth to a six-pound boy, children's hospital reported.

Mrs. Margie Poole, attaches said was admitted with polio Sept. 14 and still was in isolation Sunday night when the child was born. Dr. M. E. Farris reported he probably would display no signs of the disease.

Princess Will Attend State Opening of House

London, Sept. 23. (Reuters)— Princess Elizabeth will make her first official appearance at the State opening of Parliament when the King and Queen perform the ceremony during the last week of October, it was learned authoritatively today.

It is only now that she is of age that the heiress presumptive has a place in the official proceedings.

Like the Queen, she will have no active duties in the ceremony, but will sit on a chair beside the thrones of her royal parents while the King reads the Speech from the Throne that will outline the governments' program for the ensuing session of parliament.

The speech is expected to make complimentary reference to the new independent Dominions of India and Pakistan, and to announce legislation that will give sovereign independence to Burma. It will contain no major nationalization measures.

The opening of parliament takes place in the House of Lords, which, since the original House of Commons was bombed during the war, has been functioning as the Lower Chamber.

Last time the heir to the throne appeared with his royal parents was when King Edward VIII then Prince of Wales, attended officially the late King George V and Queen Mary.

Princess Elizabeth's fiance, Lieut. Philip Mountbatten, can have no place in the proceedings, but he may attend as a spectator.

Sooner or later, before the royal wedding Nov. 20, Mountbatten is likely to be created a duke.

If this happens before the opening of parliament, he will be sworn in as a peer and could then attend the opening of parliament as a member of the Upper House.

FUTURE ENGINES WILL USE LESS GASOLINE

Chicago, Sept. 24 — (AP)—Automobiles within the next three years will be powered by engines using less than two-thirds of the present amount of gasoline, Charles F. Kettering, research consultant of the General Motors Corporation said Monday. The new engine would be in general use by 1950 and would be a natural growth of gasoline and diesel engine development.

Prices of Steel Scrap Advance Nearly $5 Per Ton

Ottawa, Sept. 23. (CP)—The Prices Board last night announced that the prices of steel scrap have been advanced by approximately $5 per gross ton, effective today.

The Board said that the action was taken on the recommendation of the steel control and that the adjustment includes a number of changes in the dealers' allowances for the preparation of charging box size of heavy melting steel scrap as well as the maximum commissions they are permitted to charge.

For Ontario and Quebec mixed steel scrap prices have been increased to $19.00 per gross ton at basing points, Hamilton and Montreal. All other classifications have been advanced $4.50 per gross ton and preparation allowance for No. one heavy melting is now $3.00 per gross ton. Dealers commission has advanced from 50 cents to a total of one dollar.

The Board said that as steel scrap is a basic material required in the production of steel products the move is designed to increase the flow of this commodity to the mills.

33RD DEGREE MASONS MEET

Cincinnati, Sept. 24 — (AP) — The 135th annual meeting of the Supreme Council, 33rd Degree Masons, Ancient and Accepted Order Scottish Rite of Freemasonry, opened formally yesterday with ceremonies in the Scottish Rite Auditorium. The meeting, which has attracted some 1,800 delegates from all parts of the United States and several foreign countries, may be asked to make a comparative study of Communism and democracy.

BOMB WRECKS CAR IN BUENOS AIRES

Buenos Aires, Sept. 24 — (AP) — The central section of Buenos Aires was shaken Tuesday by the explosion of a powerful bomb which wrecked a parked automobile belonging to Juan Carlos Chaone, an official of the Construction Workers Union. The blast shattered windows in the neighborhood and caused momentary panic, but there were no casualties.

'COLD AIR FROM CANADA'

New York, Sept. 24 — (CP)—It might be the makings of a new international situation but a New York newspaper (World Telegram) headlined a weather story this way:

"Cold air from Canada damages U. S. crops."

Robbery Believed Motive in Slaying, Man Living Alone

Police Seeking Two Youths For Questioning in Shooting

Niagara Falls, Ont., Sept. 25—(CP) — A killer with a rifle, apparently bent on robbery, yesterday shot and killed 56-year-old John Bell on the threshold of his suburban Stamford township home and today police sought two youths for questioning in connection with the slaying. Officers said one of the wanted youths formerly lived with Bell.

Known to have been in the habit of carrying large amounts of money with him, Bell went to neighboring Niagara Falls, N. Y. Tuesday for the first time in 14 years and friends reported he spent money freely.

When his body was found late yesterday afternoon, Bell's pockets had been turned inside out and a billfold and an old-fashioned money bag he usually carried were missing.

Neighbors said they saw Bell, who changed his name from Cupolo several years ago, sitting in his living room about 3 p. m. A short time later neighbors heard shots but paid little attention as hunters' gunfire often is heard from nearby woods.

One of the persons who noticed the shots was Mrs. Vera Thorne, 25, a neighbor, and about the same time she saw two boys hurrying into the bush, she told police. A mother of three, Mrs. Thorne said she saw the youths when she went to look at her baby.

Found Man's Body

Arnold Gay, a bread delivery man, told police he found Bell's body lying at the foot of the front steps of Bell's house when he called to deliver bread. He went to Mrs. Thorne's house to call police.

Inside Bell's house police found two shotguns and a rifle. Two cartridges were missing from the rifle and a bullet was imbedded in the living room.

Coroner E. T. Kellam, reconstructing the slaying, said he believed the attacker confronted Bell in the living room, fired one shot at him with the rifle and missed. Bell tried to run out of the three-roomed dwelling but the gunman followed him to the front door, took careful aim and shot Bell through the head as the victim fled down the steps.

Police said they had called in a Royal Canadian Mounted Police ballistics expert. They expressed belief the slayer used the rifle found in the house, replaced it on a table after the killing and then left the house, which stands near a road, by way of the rear window.

Born here, Bell spent all his life here and at the time of his marriage several years ago was a mail man. Prior to that he operated a piggery and at one time had 400 pigs on his farm. He and his wife separated some time ago but the wife still goes by the former family name of Cupolo.

Mrs. Cupolo lives with her only daughter, Mrs. Josephine Sawada, and her blind son, Rocco, 32, who was a noted wrestler until a ring accident 10 years ago. Rocco had written several songs but he has had little luck getting them published.

Signals Operator Exonerated By C.N.R. Officials

Winnipeg, Sept. 25 — (CP) — The Board of Transport Commissioners inquiry into the Labor Day train wreck at Dugald, Man., entered its final stages today after Canadian National Railways officials had exonerated Donald F. Tedlie, 55, signals operator at Dugald, from all blame in connection with the mishap which claimed 31 lives.

Exoneration of Tedlie, however, seemingly left the Commission no closer toward determining cause of the mishap — most disastrous in Western Canadian railroad history.

The announcement by railways officials last night that Tedlie had been cleared of blame by them still left his position slightly uncertain. A former R. C. A. F. signals instructor at Moncton, N.B., he had been arrested on a coroner's warrant following the collision of two C.N.R. trains.

Later released on $5,000 bail, he still remains on this bail and disposition of it is not expected until after the coroner's inquest. A spokesman for the Provincial Attorney-General's office said this hearing would follow immediately conclusion of the commissioner's inquiry.

Hear 20 Witnesses

Up to today the commissioners had heard 20 witnesses, with none of them being able to explain why the campers' special had not headed into a siding about 2,300 feet east of the waiting east-bound Transcontinental train. Several witnesses estimated that the train was moving at about 30 miles when it approached the switch.

Assistant Superintendent A. C. Nicolls, who had been on the train at the time of the wreck, admitted on the stand that this speed was in excess of that permitted a train about to take a switch. But he added that disregarding rules a train could go from a main line to a siding at 25 miles.

Another witness, H. A. MacKay, a Winnipeg electrical engineer who had been returning to the city from Minaki, Ont., said that shortly before the train reached Dugald he estimated its speed at 72 miles an hour.

Mr. MacKay also said that the fire which swept the special after it collided with the standing Transcontinental train had been caused by gas lamps in the wooden coaches.

Spirit of Defeatism Prevails Amongst Germans, Many Want to Emigrate

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Duesseldorf, Germany, Sept. 25 (CP)—Two years after the war it is hard to find a single town that does not still bear the scars of Germany's defeat from the air or a single German who had confidence in his country's future.

Up and down the industrial Ruhr—through Wuppertal, Essen, Dortmund, Mulheim and Duisburg to Tereford, Hanover and Frankfurt in the American zone, I visited a succession of battered towns, some mere skeletons of brick and rubble below which German families exist in cellars.

Here in once-prosperous Duesseldorf 6,000 are living in cellars, 7,000 more in the small, windowless cells that serve as living and sleeping rooms in the big, square concrete shelters. Essen has nearly 15,000 homeless, Dortmund more than 7,000, Mulheim at least 6,000. Even Herford and Hanover, miles outside the Ruhr, have extensive bomb scars.

As in most bombed areas these cities—with the possible exception of Essen and Dortmund—have residential areas that escaped bombing but these, too, are seriously overcrowded with as many as eight and nine families sharing the larger homes.

Everywhere in the Ruhr a spirit of defeatism is expressed in such phrases as: 'Many of us will die off this winter..the crop is so poor this year we cannot hope to get enough to eat..the German mark will collapse soon...there will not be nearly enough fuel when the cold comes...our only hope is emigration."

Talks with German civilians—laborers, industrial magnates, clerks, politicians, professional men—revealed growing disillusionment concerning the Allies' mission to bring democracy to Germany. Many tell you that they distrust democracy itself.

Some claim they are being deliberately starved so as to keep Germany in a state of subjection. Because of the scanty foreign news in the German press—chiefly given over to local politics — they have little conception of Britain's own food problems.

In all German towns, particularly those of the Ruhr, the black market is rampant.

Emigration seemed to be the only topic that aroused any enthusiasm for most Germans say they would rather live anywhere than in Germany.

GUNPACKING TRIO ROB CALEDON EAST BANK OF $5,700

Force Two Employees And Customer to Lie On Floor While They Rifle Teller's Cage

Caledon East, Ont., Sept. 25. (CP)—Police throughout Central Ontario were on the alert today for three armed men who robbed the Imperial Bank here of $5,700 and fled in a new high-powered automobile towards Orangeville at a 75-mile-an-hour clip yesterday.

Although the bandits escaped toward the north, police said they might later try to double back to Toronto, and all available Toronto police cruisers were rushed to cover roads leading into the city, 35 miles southeast of this tiny Peel County community.

Forcing two bank employees and 70-year-old farmer to lie on the floor, the three thugs, their faces hidden by sun-glasses and handkerchiefs, rifled the teller's cage about five minutes before closing time.

A woman who entered the bank during the hold-up, Mrs. Jimmy Shaw, was told to lie on the floor alongside the three men. Mrs. Shaw, a gray-haired farmer's wife, replied, "There isn't any room there for me. Do you mind if I stand here?"

She stood by the door as the trio hurried out of the bank. The manager, Alex Hutchinson, followed them and fired a shot from his revolver as the getaway car roared north.

Takes Licence Number

J. S. Weir, who runs a service station next door, took the licence number of the car —Z8023 —believed by police to have been stolen earlier. His sister, Lily Weir, who had watched the men enter the bank, said one had a pistol which flashed in the sunlight as they came out and she cried, "hold-up!"

Mrs. Shaw ran across the road and asked a truck driver to follow the bandit car. The truck driver did not take up the chase but a bystander, Jack Perdue, 20, of Toronto, started after them in his automobile. He followed them to Mono Mills, where he was outdistanced and lost sight of the holdup car on the road leading to Orangeville.

The bandits — described as about 20 years of age —wore coveralls apparently new, two in khaki and the third in blue. One carried a black bag.

Looked Like Welders

"They looked like welders," said Miss Weir, "and I wondered why they were going into the bank." They entered the village from the north, and backed their car up and turned it around after the robbery.

John R. Cronin, 70-year-old farmer who was going over his bankbook at a table in the bank, did not hear the gunmen's first command to "get back against the wall and lie down." In the the belief the manager was telling him it was closing time he replied "I'm through, I'll get out." Lookin around and seeing a pistol he joined the manager and Don Bolton, teller, on the floor.

Three R.C.M.P. Officers Injured At Indian Dance

Muncey, Ont., Sept. 25 —(CP)—A comparatively quiet Indian fair here erupted after the windup dance early today and a small riot resulted in three R.C.M.P. constables being injured, one badly enough to be sent to Westminster Veterans Hospital near London.

Constables William Ritchie and J. S. Duncan were cut and bruised in the fight which followed their attempt to arrest the drunken occupants of an auto which drove into a group of by-standers after the dance.

More than a dozen Indians were reported to have set upon the R.C.M.P. officers and provincial reinforcements were called to this Indian village in Elgin County west of St. Thomas. By the time the provincials arrived, however, the fight was over.

Scientists Skeptical of Reports Of Big Crops From Radioactive Soil

(By The Associated Press)

A report from Tokyo of huge crops yields in radioactive soil at Nagasaki brought expressions of surprise and some skepticism today from United States atomic scientists.

Increases of from 50 to 300 per cent over normal yield were reported to Kyodo news agency by Takeo Furuno, Japanese agricultural expert who is conducting experiments in the centre of the blast zone just outside atom-bombed Nagasaki city.

In Chicago, Dr. Austin M. Brues called the report "interesting" and said "anything is possible." He added that he was acquainted with Furuno and considered him a competent agriculturist. Dr. Brues, a University of Chicago atomic scientists, visited Nagasaki last winter.

Dr. George Gamow, Washington, D. C., scientist, said that normally radioactivity would hinder rather than help the growth of crops and added that the Nagasaki report "looks very strange."

Another Washington scientist, Dr. Ugo Fano, said, "If it is true, it is a phenomenon not generally known to science or it would have been tried before."

Dr. Fano, a member of the Federation of Atomic Scientists, told a reporter:

"Perhaps the explanation is that the decayed matter in abandoned ground around the blast area acted as a fertilizer."

Dr. Stafford L. Warren, Dean of the Medical School at the University of California at Los Angeles, said he did not believe there was enough radioactivity anywhere in the bombed areas to account "for the bumper crops reported from Japan."

(Furuno reported the wheat crop was about twice normal and the cotton crop three times average. He said pumpkins, sugar beets, tomatoes and similar produce showed a 50 per cent increase over previous production and that some freak development in the plants was noted.)

"It would be easier to explain the increases on local weather conditions, planting in burned off areas or that the ground had rested for some time and recovered a good deal of its fertility," Dr. Warren said.

Dr. Warren was wartime chief of the medical division, Manhattan project, and went to Japan to investigate the physiological condition of the people in atom-bombed areas.

TOY TRAIN'S FATE AROUSES JUDGE'S INTEREST IN CASE

Mother Seeking Custody of Young Son Testifies on Association With Boy

Toronto, Sept. 25 (CP) —The fate of a large electric toy train, bought for seven-year-old Terry McKee by his mother but not delivered today occupied the attention of Mr. Justice Dalton Wells of the Ontario Supreme Court as the hearing to determine which of the child's divorced parents should have custody of Terry entered its second day here.

George Lochead, counsel for Mark T. McKee, 60, United States airline magnate and former Michigan politician, continued cross-examinations of Mrs. Evelyn McKee, 39, of Los Angeles, who is trying to regain custody of the boy, now living on a farm at Linwood, Ont., 23 miles from Kitchener, under the care of his father.

With today's dip in temperature Mrs. McKee wore a mink coat over her light grey gabardine suit and a black felt, off-the-face hat with a cockade of coy feathers over the brow. Her blond hair was arranged in a shoulder-length page-boy bob and she wore a large diamond engagement ring.

Mr. Lochead read a Kitchener Record news story of last March 19 describing the train which Mrs. McKee said she would give to Terry when he was returned to her custody. Mrs. McKee denied she had specified conditions under which Terry would get the gift.

"I didn't give him the train when I saw the conditions he was living in. He should not have toys which need care," she said.

Mr. Justice Wells said he did not think "all these events in Kitchener will help me decide. Here is a woman who has behaved in a rather hysterical manner, no doubt with provocation, but what I want to know is which parent should have the child."

The hearing is the latest in a six-year legal battle between the parents for Terry's custody. The boy was brought by his father last spring to the Kitchener home of A. W. Ament, a friend of Mr. McKee's first wife by whom he had 11 children.

Mr. Lochead submitted he was trying to show Mrs. McKee had given false information to newspapers in an effort to prejudice the case, continuing the theme followed yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. McKee denied she had given a Toronto Globe and Mail reporter information in a story of last March 21 saying she had that day seen her son for the first time since October 1946.

"That is something the reporter dreamed up?" asked Mr. Lochead.

"I wouldn't like to say that."

Press Story Denied

She also denied a Kitchener Record story quoting her as saying Mr. Lochead had remained in the room during a visit with Terry, adding that the lawyer had not allowed her to see Terry for a week after the child returned to Kitchener from a holiday on Linwood farm last Easter.

It was established she had been able to see Terry two or three hours on Sundays since he had gone to live at the Linwood farm "but a detective named Moyer came along on all visits." Later it was established she had seen the boy alone on several occasions.

Asked if, on any occasions when she, Mr. Lochead and Terry were all in Kitchener, she had been prevented from seeing the child, she said it was "partly true," that she had not always been told truthfully where Terry was.

The last newspaper clipping entered as evidence was from the Toronto Star of last Sept. 18. In it Mrs. McKee said there were mistaken statements about Terry riding a Shetland pony and about the reason he was brought to Kitchener.

Uses Buggy To Ride In

"He doesn't ride the pony. He rides to school in a little buggy behind the pony, and I did not say Terry had been brought to Kitchener just prior to the expiration of the nine-months custody of his father. I wouldn't be true."

Turning back to evidence at previous hearings on the matter in California and Milwaukee, Mrs. McKee confirmed that California court order had forbidden her to have Terry in the presence of Max de la Fuente Peruvian consul in Los Angeles, or to let de la Fuente call at her home while Terry was living with her.

Mrs. McKee was named co-respondent in a divorce suit brought against de la Fuente by his wife.

Yesterday's session was devoted to cross-examination of Mrs. McKee by Mr. Lochead to establish the truth of previous evidence in the case.

SEVEN PROVINCES TO DISCUSS MEANS OF ENDING STRIKE

"Fair" Volume of Meat is Still Reaching Markets, Reports Show

(By The Canadian Press)

Seven provinces will be represented at a conference in Toronto tomorrow on means of ending the nation-wide strike of 12,000 packinghouse workers, one has declined an invitation to the parley and one is undecided.

Labor ministers or other high officials from Alberta, Manitoba, Quebec, New Brunswick, Saskatchewan and Nova Scotia as well as from Ontario will attend the Ontario-sponsored talks.

The United Packinghouse Workers of America (C.I.O.) continued to insist on conciliation on a Dominion-wide scale and its walkout over demands for higher wages held the threat of the worst meat shortage in Canada's history. The union seeks wage increases averaging 17 cents an hour to bring the minimum hourly rate up to 92 cents in plants of Swift Canadian, Canada Packers and Burns and Company.

The Quebec government yesterday declared the strike in that province's packing plants illegal and stripped union locals of bargaining rights in the province but last night union officials appeared little concerned over the development.

The strike in meat plants in all provinces except Nova Scotia steadily reduced the amount of meat available as cold storage stocks ebbed but independent packers and small town butchers helped to fill the gap.

Despite the strike, now 11 days old on a national basis, a "fair" volume of meat supplies continued to reach the Winnipeg market, most of it in the form of dressed beef from independent packing plants in country points. Most butchers in the Winnipeg area said last night they still had sufficient supplies for the coming weekend.

COLLIER HULL BELIEVED TO HOLD 10 MISSING MEN

Buckled Plates Damaged Collier Still Too Hot To Permit Search Of The Hold

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Iroquois, Ont., Sept. 25 (CP)—The blackened and smouldering hull of a fire-seared Great Lakes collier is believed to hold the bodies of most or all of the 10 men still missing today after an explosion which shattered the vessel in a St. Lawrence River collision with an oil tanker.

Her buckled plates still too hot to permit a search, the vessel —the 7,940-ton Milverton — lay grounded and listing to starboard about five miles downstream from this picturesque St. Lawrence River town and a mile or two from the spot where she sliced into the tanker Translake early yesterday morning.

Of her crew, of 23, two are known dead, 10 are safe in hospitals on the Canadian and American sides of the river with varying degrees of burns and injury, and another man in uninjured.

The 20 still unaccounted for are believed to have died below decks when explosion and fire ripped through the collier a few minutes after the collision or to have drowned when they plunged into the St. Lawrence to escape the rapidly-spreading flames.

None of the 20 men aboard the 664-ton tanker, stove in on the starboard side when she unexpectedly swung broadside in the river before the approaching Milverton, was injured. She now is anchored close by the accident scene, a 12-foot gash torn in her side.

Died After Rescue

Of the Milverton crew, second mate, William Robertson, of Toronto and third mate, William Goldsworthy, of Montreal, died after rescue while the ship's master, Capt. L. E. Pain, of Montreal, and five others are reported in critical condition in hospital at Ogdensburg, N.Y.

Two other men, one of them also critical, are receiving treatment in hospital at Massena, N.Y., while two others are in hospital at Brockville, Ont.

The uninjured man is fireman Mike Prochnicki, of Fort William, who swam ashore to the American side and walked to Ogdensburg while two other crew members—William Tuttle and Douglas Lynch, both of nearby Morrisburg—had left the ship Tuesday night on leave.

Bow Exploded

The mid-stream collision occurred a few minutes after 7 a.m., ploded in a shower of flaming oil as the liquid fuel gushed over her from the tanker. The vessels clung together momentarily, then parted, the Translake running aground on the American Shore and the burning Milverton swinging around to lodge in a small bay.

A great oil slick burned across the surface of the river as her crew members, many of whom had been sleeping, sought to man boats that already were aflame. As some of the men dove into the river and swam ashore, riverside farmers put out in small motor launches to rescue nine who still were aboard and pick others from the water.

Those taking part in the rescue work included Ed Casentree, John Van Allen and Arthur Cornell and his sons, Ronald and Gerald.

Landed on U.S. Shore

Casentree, proprietor of a tourist camp just fronting on the crash scene, said he and Van Allen took the captain and eight men from the Milverton before she broke free and began drifting down the river again. The burned and injured men were landed on the United States shore.

W. M. McGannon, whose home also was close by the river, said he heard the screams of men presumably trapped below decks and saw several of the crew leaping overboard into the flaming, oil-coated water. They went, he said, to certain death.

Prochnicki, the uninjured firemen, said he was thrown out of his bunk by the explosion but managed to reach the deck, leap over the side and swim to shore. He later returned to rescue two crew mates.

Capt. Pain of the Milverton, said in hospital that the oil tanker "cut directly across my bow" just before the collision while Capt. Raoul Chalet, of Montreal, master of the Translake, declined to comment pending an official inquiry which already has been ordered from Ottawa.

Mayor G. Kohl Charges Frame-Up In Corruption Case

Names Six Office Holders As Parties in Conspiracy

Collingwood, Ont. Sept. 25 —(CP) — Mayor Graydon Kohl, acquitted recently of a charge of municipal corruption, told town council last night that the charge was "a deliberate frame-up" and said that six men "should be removed from public office."

The six men named by the Mayor: J. H. Ferguson, Progressive Conservative Member of Parliament for Simcoe North; Councillor Stanley H. Wallace; Crown Attorney Frank Hammond; George Bryan, Collingwood lumber dealer; Jack Bermingham, Ancaster Ont., contractor, and Dr. C. W. Maitland of Collingwood.

The corruption charge against Mayor Kohl was heard in Barrie Ont., by a county judge and a jury. Defence counsel called no witness and the jury returned the acquittal verdict after being out only a few minutes.

The charge arose from dealings concerned with construction at the harbor of this Georgian Bay town. Mayor Kohl was alleged to have accepted a bribe to withdraw opposition to the project. Mr. Bermingham was the contractor to whom town council assigned the job.

Councillor Wallace, one of the six named by Mayor Kohl, arose once during last night's meeting to interrupt. He said his actions as chief crown witness against the mayor were "not irregular."

Mayor Kohl asked: "You wouldn't like to drag your own family through the mud like you did mine, would you?"

"No," said Councillor Wallace.

"I won't tolesate underhand tactics," said the mayor, "and if you had to go through what I went through you would know exactly what I mean. I wouldn't have thought any person capable of such a low trick. Why, Bermingham and Wallace are guilty of a criminal offence by their own testimony at my trial."

No other member of the nine-man council spoke after Mayor Kohl read a statement.

It said in part:

"You gentlemen could not possibly imagine the humiliation of my wife and daughter and the adverse publicity that this grand old town of Collingwood has suffered at the hands of at least five people."

He said "Calls were made" at the home of Dr. Maitland and that "meetings" were held at the homes of Mr. Bryan and Mr. Ferguson. Of Mr. Ferguson, the mayor said:

"I suggest he is a fine specimen of a Member of Parliament, who ignored the wishes of the Board of Trade as well as that of the town council is having work done on our town harbor and instead supported the opposite proposal."

Mr. Ferguson had "been prominent in the framing of April 17, 1947, against myself."

"In my opinion there has never been such a slanderous campaign carried on against an individual as was carried on against me on the night of July 9 and 10, 1947."

Mr. Bryan "took an active part in (the) frame-up" and councillor Wallace was "a leader in the framing of such a vicious charge."

'Dangerous Man'

Mayor Kohl's statement said of councillor Wallace:

"I warn you, gentlemen, he is a very dangerous man. During the first part of March he came to me and suggested there was a lot of money to be made in the billboard business and suggested that the licence law pertaining to billboards be altered and the licence increased."

Crown Attorney Hammond was "a man not worthy of that high position, a man who challenged every juryman of the petit jury, who stood in front of the Grand Jury when they were considering the (corruption) bill, whether true or not, and calling the Crown witness a liar."

"Gentlemen, I say to you, if democracy and all it stands for is to survive, these men of the calibre of Frank Hammond and these other five men should be removed from public office."

The mayor said he had heard a rumor that if he "mentioned or attempted to rebuke any of these men, Mr. Wallace had something more up his sleeve."

"I challenge Mr. Wallace right here in the open to come out and mention one particle of business that has been transacted behind doors or in an improper manner..."

Wrapping Paper Found in Garbage Box at Factory

St. Catharines, Sept. 25 (CP)—The hunt for clues to the Christmas week disappearance of nine-year-old Marian Rusnak was described by Constable William Watson yesterday at the second trial of Sydney Chambers, 34, on a charge of murdering the child.

The Crown contends that Chambers lured the girl Dec. 23 to his living quarters in a canning factory which employed him as watchman, strangled her and then cremated her body in the plant furnace. Convicted of murder last March, Chambers was granted a new trial by the Ontario Court of Appeal.

Constable Watson said that when he and other officers searched the canning plant grounds Christmas day, Chambers accompanied the police and helped them in the hunt.

In the plant garbage box in the yard the police found red and white tissue wrapping paper, Constable Watson said. Earlier in the trial another witness identified the paper as that she used to wrap gifts she handed to Marian Rusnak a few minutes before the child disappeared.

The trial is continuing.

Brave New World of Ease, Comfort Pictured by Engineering Leader

London, Sept. 25 —(Reuters)—Car-airplanes, typewriters without ribbons, ultra-violet rays in the kitchen to make tough meat tender, doors which open themselves, moveable walls in houses, streets and clothes warmed by electricity, radios which deliver flash news, cigaret lighters with glass wicks which will outlast the lighter. . . .

These are only a few of the items "just around the corner" for all if we really want them, according to Prof. A. M. Low, principal of the British Institute of Engineering Technology.

In his new book, "Your World Tomorrow," just published here, Low describes this new world which, he says, is within our reach in the near future if only we are willing to devote to peacetime research a fraction of the money and effort expended during the war on seeking new and more effective means of destruction.

Nevertheless, that search for more speedy and improved means of destruction and defence has advanced by many years the possibility of bringing into practical everyday use many new processes, fabrics and materials which, without the war, would still be in an early experimental stage today.

In our homes of tomorrow, for example, says Low, television showing current events in any part of the world in clearcut, three-dimensional pictures and natural color will be the rule rather than the exception; flash news which comes in after our newspapers have "gone to bed" will be "printed" for our return simply by telephoning the home robot; and the garage doors will open as we approach simply by turning on a silt light upon them.

The saying "a woman's work is never done" will be entirely outmoded. Housework, with the use of tomorrow's appliances will be done in two hours a day. The working week will consist of three or four days during which more will be produced than is produced at present in five or six days.

"QUAKER QUILT" ATTRACTS ATTENTION

The quilt is owned by Mrs. George Garratt who resided in the lakeside village practically all her life prior to moving to Rochester a few years ago. It is inscribed with autographs of members of many famous Quaker families, such as the Saylors, the Laziers and the Hubbs, who lived in the village and district a century ago.

OBITUARY

CLARENCE TRUMAN BUKER

Clarence Truman Buker, 27B Turnbull Street, died in the Belleville General Hospital on Wednesday afternoon. He was in failing health for some time. His last illness in the hospital was of three weeks' duration.

Born in this city 34 years ago the late Mr. Buker was a son of Mrs. Beatrice Buker and the late Charles Buker. He was well known in the city and by the many fine traits of character and pleasing personality which he possessed he attracted many friends and to them his death has brought sincere feelings of regret. For fifteen years he was in the employ of Messrs. Clark and Miles and as an expression of the high regard in which they held him, their place of business will be closed all day Saturday.

Clarence Buker was interested in military matters and for some time before the Last Great War he filled in a capable manner the office of Quarter Master Sergeant of the 34th. Battery here. In June 1943 he enlisted in the Canadian Navy and served his country in this branch of the service for two years and four months. At the close of the war he resumed his position with Clark and Miles. He was a member of the Church of England and a parishioner of Christ Church.

Surviving to mourn his loss are his wife, the former Gladys Pearl Elliott; his mother, Mrs. Beatrice Buker; two brothers, Gerald Buker of Tamworth, and Earl Buker of Belleville; four sisters, Miss Edna Buker, Miss Elsie Buker, Mrs. William (Hilda) Fitzgerald, and Miss Betty Buker all of Toronto.

Resting at the Grant Funeral Home, 68 North Front Street; the funeral announcement is made in this edition.

Keg of Nails, Tar Paper, Stolen From New House

If building materials cannot be secured legitimately, they might be picked up in another manner, apparently is the attitude of a sneak thief who under cover of darkness caused a keg of nails and five rolls of tar paper to disappear from a house under construction, the property of Ted Brenton, College Street.

Mr. Brenton yesterday reported to police that he had left the nails and tar paper at his still uncompleted house at the corner of Lewis and Sidney Street. When he went to work in the morning the nails and five rolls of paper had disappeared.

Two other cases of petty thievery were reported. Elmer Helm, Front Street, reported the loss of a spot light from his car parked at the rear of a Front Street store, while David Mason, local cafe nightman, reported hub caps missing from his car parked on Campbell Street. Two tires were also flat on the vehicle.

Former General Secretary Local 'Y' J.L. Hess, and Mrs. Hess Will Observe Golden Wedding Anniversary Sept. 28

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Hess of 156 Birmingham Street, Stratford, Ont., will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary on Sunday, September 28.

For many years Mr. Hess was in Y.M.C.A. work, having served in Owen Sound, Midland, Belleville, Quebec City, Stratford, Ottawa and Halifax. In Belleville he was general secretary of the Y.M.C.A. coming here in 1905 when the association rooms were on Front Street. It was during his term that the present Y.M.C.A. building, which has served so many causes for more than a generation was erected. In the work of the planning and building of the Y.M.C.A. Mr. Hess took an active part.

Mr. Hess was a tireless and devoted general secretary and was associated with philanthropic and religious causes, devoting his gift of leadership to these purposes, while performing the very important duties as an official of the Young Men's Christian Association.

Many pleasant memories are recalled by Mr. and Mrs. Hess of their years in Belleville, 1905-1914, and of their service here — building campaigns, enthusiastic Bible classes, exhilarating camp days with the war canoe, camp suppers and above all, hosts of friends for wherever Mr. and Mrs. Hess went they made friends.

Those who remember the years Mr. and Mrs. Hess spent in Belleville, treasure memories of the devoted general secretary of the Association and his wife. Members of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church with which they were associated recall their devotion to the work of the church. During the period of their residence they were linked with many efforts and undertakings of a religious, social and philanthropic nature and were privileged to do a wonderful work for the Y.M.C.A. and other bodies. In the history of the Belleville Association, the name of Mr. Hess will always stand as that of an outstanding leader and worker in the cause of the boys and young men of Belleville. What the Association means to Belleville today is in no small measure owing to the devotion of Mr. and Mrs. Hess in the years they spent in Belleville.

As they celebrate on Sunday their golden wedding, their many friends in Belleville will have them in mind and unite in wishing them heartiest congratulations and many happy future anniversaries.

At the anniversary will be Mr. and Mrs. Hess' daughter, Mrs. Mary Hess Ramsay of 151 Roehampton Street, Toronto, who has many friends in this city.

All entrants should have their names clearly written on the entry in black letters. The competition closes on October 25th.

Entries should be forwarded to the following address: The Public Relations Department, Canadian Legion, B.E.S.L., 75 Sparks Street, Ottawa.

POLICE COURT

Pleads Guilty To Theft Of Trousers, Money

"I took the trousers because the seat of my own pants was torn," admitted Francis Leween, Mohawk Indian Reserve, as he pleaded guilty in County Police Court to a charge of theft of a pair of trousers and six dollars from another Reservation Indian last March.

"You were going to wear the six dollars too were you?" asked Magistrate T. Y. Wills as he gave the accused suspended sentence for one year with orders to pay the court costs.

Leween had been living in the United States from the time of the alleged theft until the day of Mohawk Fair last week when he was apprehended by provincial police as he attended the Mission House dance.

Traffic Cases Dominate

Otherwise traffic cases dominated the morning's court docket with Charles Antolick pleading guilty to charges of careless driving and of driving without a permit. He was assessed $19.50 on the first charge and $12.50 including costs on the second.

Harold Stinson, was found guilty on a charge of careless driving arising out of an auto accident at the village of Plainfield last August 6th, and was fined $25 plus $2.50 costs. Harry Tugnett was found guilty on a like charge and was assessed a total off $7.50. The charge arose out of an accident at the corner of College Street and No. 37 highway on Sept. 14.

Also on the docket were two charges against Albert Haines of Shannonville. One charge concerned alleged illegal possession of liquor and the other was for an alleged attempt to supply an Indian with liquor. The case was still continuing at noon.

Trieste Port Strike Ended By Agreement

By OSGOOD CARUTHERS

Trieste, Sept. 25 (AP)—A general strike which paralyzed shipping in Trieste's port for 24 hours was brought to an end early today.

The Allied Military government of the new free territory announced that an agreement to call off the stike had been reached at a midnight conference attended by A.M.G. officials; leaders of the Sindacati Unici, which ordered the work stoppage and of the moderate non-communist Camera Del Lavoro, which refused to participate.

Both unions claimed a "moral victory" and military government officials made no effort to conceal their pleasure at having the strike ended. The British-American A.M.G. had feared that the work stoppage might embroil it in an east-west political struggle with the Leftist Labor movement. About 12,000 workers were idle during the strike.

The military government announcement said that under the agreement to end the strike A.M.G. "provisionally" would release nine Sindacati Unici members arrested early Wednesday under accusations that they molested workers who refused to participate in the strike. They are to be brought to trial within 48 hours.

A.M.G. said it further agreed to re-instate all suspended Sindacati Unici members and permit them to work. Sindacati Unici claimed its "moral victory" on these grounds, since suspension of some of its members had been given as the technical basis for the strike.

Thirty-one persons were arrested by military government police during the 24 hours of the trike for bomb-throwing and other alleged illegalities resulting from the work stoppage. Civil police clashed with a crowd of 400 Communists marching from the Slovene section of Trieste to the heart of the city yesterday in an effort to stage a demonstration. No arrests or injuries were reported.

Bullet Fired By Constable That Killed Man

Niagara Falls, Sept. 25 —(CP)—The bullet that killed 37-year-old Elvy Martin as he walked home from work along Lundy's Lane in suburban Stamford Township Saturday morning was fired by Constable W. R. Kinghorn, it was established last night.

Constable Kinghorn fired five bullets into the air while pursuing a fleeing car on Lundy's Lane Saturday morning, and Martin's body was found on the sidewalk shortly after.

The bullet removed from Martin's lung was fired from the constable's revolver, Royal Canadian Mounted Police ballistics experts at Ottawa decided after examining the weapon and the bullet.

Constable Kinghorn resumed his duties on the city police force today after the Niagara Falls police commission lifted the suspension order issued by Chief Constable Melvin D. Tisdale Saturday.

Belleville Fair One of the Best In its History

Belleville 1947 Exhibition passed into history last night after a highly successful three-day run despite opposition from the weather man.

Ten thousand people crowded the Midway, grandstand and exhibits yesterday afternoon and evening bringing the aggregate attendance to 27,000 people this year.

Laudatory comment, especially from those from the faraway places were heard on all sides regarding the fine calibre of the fair this year. The improvements on the grounds, new fences, new horse barns, the spacious buildings with their splendid exhibits; the fine displays of horses, livetock, swine, sheep and poultry came in for their quota of praise from appreciative neutral fairgoers.

Yesterday afternoon a filled grandstand saw and appreciated some of the best racing seen here in years, an account of which appears in another column. Of special interest was the judging and parades also races of the various classes of horses, from the huge Clydes and Percherons to diminutive ponies. The Hackneys, in singles and pairs also came in for their share of audience appreciation. A running race had all the thrills of the big tracks, while dainty misses and young men paraded in western style atop their various mounts.

The livestock exhibits too came in for their full share of public patronage as did the industrial and business exhibits in the buildings.

The Billy Garden Shows acts interspersed the horse-racing and judging during the afternoon and a full performance was presented to a filled grandstand in the evening. Later the Midway was thronged with the last-night crowd and by midnight the exhibition was officially over.

Wallet Containing Over $400 Lost

Former Belleville resident, Mr. J. A. Wensley, of Lynn, Mass., will remember his current visit to the home town, if he does not recover his wallet containing something over $400 in cash, together with personal papers.

This morning Mr. Wensley reported at the police station that he had lost his wallet containing the above sum, but was not certain where he had last handled the purse. He remembers having the wallet at Watertown, N. Y., before he crossed the Canadian border, but did not miss the purse until after he had registered at a Belleville hotel.

Jack Trudeau Named Director For Province

Jack Trudeau of Trudeau Motor Sales in this city was appointed a director for Ontario representing the Province on the Board of Directors of the Federation of Automobile Dealer Associations for 1947 and 1948 at the annual meeting of that Association held in Toronto on Wednesday. The newly-appointed director is president of the Belleville Automobile Dealer Association, which embraces the counties of Hastings and Prince Edward. His name was proposed by Harry Moorman, voting delegate, at the convention and although three other names were proposed Mr. Trudeau was selected without a ballot.

The new director, Harry Moorman and the late J. B. Boyce have been strong supporters and workers in the local association since its inception and the late Mr. Boyce was elected a Provincial Director for 1945 and 1946 but passed on shortly after his election. Mr. Trudeau is well qualified for his new post, he having served as a director and was president for two years following, representing the Garage Operators' Association of Ontario, which association has done a great piece of work respecting dealer problems and general garage operations.

Mr. Trudeau and Mr. Moorman along with other members of the local association will attend the annual meeting in Quebec City on October 28th and 29th.

UNWELCOME PARTY

Chatham, Sept. 25 —(CP) — Thomas Nottage, returning home late Tuesday night, found several things missing including 15 bottles of beer, meat and a quantity of soup. Police are hunting three men suspected of breaking in and staging a party in his home.

IN MEMORIAM

BLACKBURN — In fond memory of my brother, W. Blackburn, who was killed September 25th., 1945.

We often sit and think of him when we are all alone,
For memory is the only friend that grief can call its own;
Like ivy on the withered oak, when all other things decay,
Our love for him will still keep green and never fade away.
—Sadly missed by Patricia and David.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Sept. 25 (CP)—Industrials eased off in the early session on the stock exchange today but golds and base metals were about unchanged. A mild flurry in western oils was the only relieving aspect of a dull morning market.

The exchange's noon index listed industrials down .35 to 164.25, golds down .05 to 114.36, base metals .01 to 81.24 and western oils up .13 to 25.40. Volume for the first three hours was 630,000 shares.

Golds moved narrowly in mixed trend with senior issues trading both ways while better juniors were Chesterville, Cochenour, Negus, Norbenite and losers Anglo-Rouyn, Eldona, Malartic, O'Brien, Pioneer. In the base metals smelters, Hudson Bay was up and east Sullivan, Eureka, Nickel and Noranda were down.

Newsprints were less active on gains for Abitibi PFD., and a new high for International at 56 up 1 1-4 but the St. Lawrence issues were down. Loblaw "A" and "B" were off 1-4 and ½ respectively while liquors saw Walker's and Distillers off and Canadian Breweries up.

Hunt for Clues In Sex-Slaying Is Continuing

Owen Sound, Sept. 25 (CP)—The hunt for clues in the sex-slaying of 11-year-old Betty Playford continues today with a $1,000 reward standing for information leading to the killer.

A transient held for questioning as a suspect in Montreal was released late yesterday after investigators announced they were satisfied he was in Montreal when the little girl was raped and then bludgeoned to death here last Sunday night.

Suspicion first pointed to the man — described as a religious crank — when police saw long scratches on his arms. He told several stories concerning his activities of the last few days, including an assertion that he hitch-hiked from Toronto Monday, but eventually established an alibi and was freed.

Police here are continuing a painstaking search of the area in the vicinity of the girl's home on the northeastern outskirts of this city of 14,000 on Georgian Bay.

They hope to find the heavy weapon used to crush the skull of the child, who was spirited away from a street near her home as she dashed through the rain after visiting a playmate. The nature of the weapon and any fingerprints or bloodstains on it could conceivably help police track the killer.

Brown Tam Missing

Still missing is the brown tam the little girl wore the night of her death. Its discovery might mark the scene of the slaying. The body was found Monday in a grass-screened roadside ditch but investigators said it apparently had been placed there after the slayer inflicted the fatal blow.

Boatmen Guide Boats Thru Flames To Rescue Twelve

Iroquois, Ont., Sept. 25—(CP)—Five St. Lawrence River boatmen guided light rowboats through searing flames to rescue survivors of yesterday's ship collision here, it was revealed last night when the rescuers told their stories.

The five, Arthur Cornell, his sons Gerald and Ronald, Edward Casantree and Clare Van Allen, took 10 men from the steamship Milverton and picked up two others who were swimming to safety.

Casantree said one of the ship's officers he rescued said the oil tanker Translake, which collided with the Milverton crossed the Milverton's bow and didn't give the Milverton a chance to avoid the collision.

"This officer, who wore three rings on his uniform, said he thought the other ship's steering gear or rudder had jammed.

"I asked the captain how many were aboard the ship and he said there were 23. I shouted to him that we would go aboard and search for any others and he said:

" 'No, it is too dangerous. She may blow up again at any moment. Besides, if anyone was still there, they would be dead.'

"The plates of the ship were so hot you could hardly touch them but they were not glowing."

Casantree said he was aroused by the distress signals of six whistle blasts and then heard a loud explosion. The whole river appeared to be a mass of flames. Riverbank residents moved out of the immediate area as the burning Milverton was drifting directly towards them. He heard cries for help coming from the Milverton. He and Van Allen went to the ship's side in Casantree's boat.

"I started to circle her and they beckoned to us to come in.. The captain asked if we could take off the injured. He said some of them were pretty seriously burned. We could see they were badly burned because some of them had all the skin off their faces. We took off three the first trip."

Arthur Cornell said he thought the engineer staff must have been killed outright, because "all control of the Milverton seemed to have gone when we arrived."

Negro Girl Refused Admission To Training Course

Owen Sound, Sept. 25 — (CP)—Marrisse Scott, 21-year-old Negro girl whose application for admission to Owen Sound hospital nurses training course was rejected because of her color, said in an interview last night that all she wants to do is "try and forget the whole matter."

One of a family of six girls and two boys, she said that since she obtained her junior matriculation three years ago she has unsuccessfully sought admission to various nurses training schools in Ontario.

She enrolled in a Red Cross course in home nursing as the first step toward realizing her ambition of becoming a nurse.

Advised by friends that there would be opposition to her from factions in the Owen Sound hospital, she applied to other institutions for admission to avoid creating "unpleasantness," she said.

"It was only as a last resort that I applied for enrollment at the school here and I am distressed at the publicity that has developed. I certainly did not ask nor expect that any publicity would be made on my behalf."

After Mayor Ed Sargent discussed her case in Toronto yesterday with Health Minister Kelley, the minister said he could not intervene in the Owen Sound situation.

However, if the girl still wanted to take up nursing, he would arrange for her admission to the nine-months' nursing assistants' course. He added that taking the course would shorten the time she would have to put in if and when she was admitted as a nurse-in-training.

An official of the University of Toronto's School of Nursing said there was no bar to Negro girls at that institution, but Miss Scott could not be admitted at present as she lacks senior matriculation.

Prompted by Need

Such disasters as the tornado which swept through the northern parts a few weeks ago and the hurricane which came out of the Caribbean Sea and battered the Florida coast draw the sympathy of the people who live in areas far away and prompt them to send help and comforts. Today human sympathy goes far bceause more and more people feel their ties of brotherhood. Natural events which upset the routine of civilized man come under study as it is man's hope to gain such knowledge about the nature of these storms and disruptions of the normal or quiet course of nature that he may be able some day to limit or curtail these evidences of her unbridled wrath. Floods for instance have taken much of the attention of engineers and great projects have been undertaken and will be undertaken so as to reduce the havoc of floods by using nature's laws to hold the violence of the elements in check and prevent such visitations upon mankind.

Man is gaining a deepening knowledge of the natural world and while the quest of greater knowledge continues, man takes steps to prepare against the senseless fury of wind and water to ameloriate the suffering it causes and to rehabilitate its victims, says the Christian Science Monitor, which notes that "man today pushes on even farther. He suspects that "destructive floods need not happen and is doing something about them. He even experiments with breaking up tornadoes, hurricanes and drought. What a great stride these things are from the primitive savage, cowering in the dark, offering incantations to his devils of the storm! What is more, they betoken courageous, affirmative acceptance that we are our brothers' keepers."

Man sympathizes with victims of such events as he knows his brothers' needs and his growing knowledge of the elements of nature inspires his wholehearted service for the victims of natural events and prompts the scientist to more and more study in safeguarding man in the natural world.

Commend Gift Selection

The thoughtfulness shown by the City of Toronto in planning a great shipment of goods and non-perishable products for the British people as a wedding gift to Princess Elizabeth and Lieut. Philip Mountbatten has been commended in many quarters as one that would win the approval of Her Royal Highness and as the most suitable which could be made to the Princess and her fiance at this time of national stringency in Britain. Toronto's residents are to be given the opportunity to have a personal part in the gift shipment by contributing their own share to the municipal gift.

It has been pointed out that this is in accord with the sentiments of the Princess and that a great number of the British people would share in the gift.

What the British people have endured for the sake of freedom and a free world has cost them a heavy burden. But they bear it with stout hearts and will come through their trials because they have been in the right and because they have the soul and the will to carry the great burden they have assumed.

A shipment of such a kind as planned by Toronto seems in view of the need a very commendable gift that would mean so much to so many. The Throne and the Royal Family are close to the heart of the people, who too, are close to the hearts of the Royal House. Such a gift seems therefore very appropriate.

U. K. Training Foster Mothers

Special courses are being organized in Britain and candidates selected for instruction as foster mothers to look after homeless children. The Home Office has just announced the appointment of a Central Training Council in Child Care which will undertake this work. This step implements one of the Curtis Report's main proposals. This recommended that the children who have been deprived of a normal home life should be specially catered for and given all the benefits of a happy home. In carrying out the recommendations of the Curtis Report particular attention is being paid by the Home Office to the importance of recruiting young women of the right personality and of providing them with the best possible traininig. Accordingly, arrangements are being made with certain universities and Local Education Authorities to start, this year, two types of special training courses. The first is for boarding-out officers who will supervise the care of children who have been placed in foster homes, and the second is for house mothers in children's homes. For the university course for boarding-out officers, women aged between twenty-one and forty are required who are graduates or possess a social science diploma or equivalent qualifications. For the house mothers' courses, the women should be aged eighteen to thirty-five, well educated and have a deep interest in providing a home background for children. Grants towards fees and maintenance will enable the right type of candidate to take the courses regardless of their personal incomes.

Singing Highway

An engineer in the New Jersey Highway Department, seeking to build road separators on a six-lane highway in Passaic County that would reflect light at night and in fog, is credited with hitting upon an entirely new idea in traffic safety. Each separator, consisting of a strip of white cement twenty-four inches wide, has a scored surface and when the tires of an automobile hit it a loud hum is heard. The hum makes the highway, in effect, seem to "sing."

The road in question — a new section of State Route 6 — has its east and west-bound traffic divided by a safety aisle. The separators set off each of the three east-bound and each of the thre west-bound lanes. The strip lies flat with the smooth surfaces of the lanes which it separates, and as any erring driver allows his car to veer from one lane to the other the resulting hum warns him to get back into the lane where he belongs.

The endless possibilities of improving upon and using the newly developed traffic safety device already are being explored by the highway department engineers, some of whom suggest — seriously, we are assured — that the scoring on the separator might be so spaced that the tires would sing: "Get over, get over," or some other such recognizable warning. Even as it stands, however, the new wrinkle has attracted the attention of motorists and has tended to make them stay in their own lane. The improvement may therefore come to be considered a success even without further refinements. — New York Times.

Italy's Surplus Warships

Now that the Russians have ratified the peace treaty with Italy the question will arise of the disposal of Italy's surplus naval tonnage, which has to be divided between the navies of Great Britain, the United States, France and Russia. The proportions in which it will be shared have still to be announced, but it is known to include three battleships, five cruisers and a considerable number of destroyers, torpedo-boats and auxiliaries, says Manchester Guardian.

"It is improbable that either the Royal Navy or the United States Navy would have much use for any of these ships, but under the terms of the treaty they will doubtless take the share that is due to them. Both France and Russia are known to be anxious to add to their depleted naval strength, and Greece may well put in a claim, in view of the extent to which her navy suffered during the war.

"Speculation is also rife concerning the future of over a dozen modern trawlers and a similar number of motor-minesweepers which are on loan to the Italian Navy from the Admiralty. It is not clear whether these have to be returned by a certain date or if the Italians have the option of purchase."

Get to Work and Make It

It might not be a bad idea if the "pie in the sky" doctrine were superseded by a more old-fashioned one — the one that if a man work not, neither shall he eat. The prime problem of today is not distribution, but production. We are still short of almost everything, and the remedy is to get to work and make it, doing without the superfluities until we have enough of the essentials. — London Free Press.

BLUNDERER

I say the things I shouldn't say,
  I do the things I shouldn't do,
For none is here to signal "Nay!"
  And watch o'er me an evening through.

I tell the tales I shouldn't tell;
  Forget the names I ought to know;
For she's not here who guarded well
  And gave the hints I needed so.

There was a lifting of the brow,
  The gentle shaking of her head
And I was saved; where blundering now,
  I say what should be left unsaid.

Across the table not a sign!,
  Across the room no signal thrown!
Oh, what a sorry plight is mine
  To have no judgment save my own!

AMERICAN MEDICINE NOW THIRTY PERCENT COMMERCIAL

I still say a nose and throat specialist is not outside of his province when he diagnoses and treats ear troubles, for there is intimate association between the nasal cavity, throat and the middle ear — the small cavity within the ear drum that houses the famous hammer, anvil and stirrup and is ventilated and drained through the Eustachian tube (pronounced yu-stako-yen) 1½ inches long that connects it with the nasopharynz, the post-nasal cavity.

So far I'm all hunky-dory with the ALR men—nose, throat and ear specialists. Why can't I leave it that way? Well, if I did leave things like that in this column it would make dull reading, for one thing, and for another I must say what I have in mind even if it kills me.

When the ear, nose and throat specialist includes in his repertoire diseases of the eyes, I contend he is covering more territory than a doctor purporting to be a specialist can possibly cover and do it well. He might as reasonably hold himself out as a specialist in lungs, heart, digestive diseases and nervous system—leaving night calls, vaccinations and ordinary headaches to the general practitioners.

Many small towns, one physician protests, have only one eye, ear, nose and throat specialist. If he limited himself to nose, throat, and ear or to eye diseases he would not be able to make a living. Would it not be better for such towns to have an eye, ear, nose and throat specialist (OALR) than none at all? The doctor goes on to observe that years ago when he took a post-graduate course in Vienna, out of 200 American doctors doing post-graduate work there no less than 80 were eye, ear, nose and throat specialists or intended to be when they returned home.

Answering the doctor's question, I think it would be better for a small town to have no specialist at all than an all around specialist.

Moreover, from the all around specialists I have observed, I'm sure the "ordinary" doctor could do as well, or better, for most cases of eye, ear, nore or throat trouble and at ordinary cost to the patient.

That's primarily what ails American Medicine today — the profession has gone wild on specialism. Brass specialism, I mean. The difference between a real specialist and a brass specialist is that the real specialist co-operates with the general practitioners who refer patients to him or call him in consultation. The brass specialist competes with the general practitioner for the business—and once he gets holds of a patient the patient will be his from now on, if he can contrive to convince the gullible customer that an "ordinary" doctor doesn't understand the case.

And are the Yankee Wiseacres gullible? Well, why else do they love to go over the head of these ordinary doctors around here and consult the "clinic" specialists far away? If the "ordinary" doctor decides that perhaps a couple of laboratory tests might reveal something which routine physical examination does not, the Wiseacre squawks about the cost of the tests, especially if they prove negative. But when the businesslike hands at the "clinic" put the Wiseacre on the assembly line and give him the works he likes it.

If anybody wonders what a person is to do, when a real specialist is needed I beg to suggest this: Leave it to your regular physician, your family doctor . . . if he or she is worthy of your confidence at all then certainly he or she should be trusted to summon a specialist or to send you to a specialist when a specialist is needed or likely to be of any help.

Three Missing Explorers Found

London, Sept. 25 — (AP)—The Colonial Office has announced that three British explorers, missing since Sept. 15 on a flight to establish a weather observation base in an uncharted section of Germa Graham Land Peninsula in the Antarctic, were found safe Tuesday night.

The announcement said the trio crash-landed their plane south of Cape Berteaux, Sept. 15. The cape is on the west side of the peninsula, some 50 miles from an appointed rendezvous with larger aircraft carrying depot stores for the expedition.

A sledging party had been flown to the area and a group dispatched overland to find the three explorers, all of whom have been returned to their base.

The trio were listed as W. H. Thomson, pilot; B. Stonehouse, meteorological observer, and R. L. Freeman, surveyor, all of the Falkland Islands Dependencies Survey.

Four Are Overcome By Coal Fumes

Toronto, Sept. 25 — (CP) — Inhalators were used early Wednesday to revive four persons overcome by coal gas in a house on eastend Bingham Avenue. It was the first such accident since the start of the season's first cold snap and the fire department issued a warning to householders to inspect flue pipes.

Overcome were Mrs. Isabelle Perkins, her daughter, Audrey, 16, Mary McNabb, and 10-year-old John Reid. Miss McNabb collapsed on the verandah after managing to open the front door.

OUT-OF-TOWN PERSONALS

Mr. Robert B. Elliott, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Elliott, Stirling, returned to Toronto, on Monday to continue his third-year studies at Victoria College, University of Toronto.

WEDDINGS

PITCHER—WAY

A very pretty Autumn wedding was quietly solemnized at four o'clock on the afternoon of Sept. 20, in the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Harder, R.R. 3, Sidney Township, when Bernice Marie Way of Trenton, daughter of Mrs. Florence Way and the late Mr. Blake Way, was united in marriage with Harold Raymond Pitcher, of Frankford, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Pitcher, of Stirling. Rev. H. H. Lackey, B.A., B.D., was the officiating clergyman and wedding music was provided by Miss Helen Way, of Toronto, cousin of the bride, who also accompanied the soloist, Mrs. William Pitcher, of Frankford, who sang "I'll Walk Beside You" during the signing of the register.

The living room was decorated for the occasion with a color scheme of pink and white streamers, and a corner arch, augmented with baskets of gladioli, asters, zinnias and potted ferns. The bride made a charming picture in a gown of brocaded white satin, floor length, with finger tip veil falling from a coronet of orange blossoms. She carried an arm bouquet of red roses and baby's breath.

The bride's only attendant was her sister, Mrs. J. B. Harder, as matron of honor, while Mr. Wm. H. Pitcher, of Frankford, was his brother's groomsman.

Following the ceremony a reception was held with the bride's mother receiving the guests in a dress of flowered beige crepe, with a corsage of Talisman roses. The groom's mother also received, wearing a dress of poudre blue faconne crepe and a corsage of Talisman roses.

For travelling to Niagara Falls, Detroit, Mich., and Windsor, Ont., the bride chose a gold colored gabardine suit, with brown accessories. After their return Mr. and Mrs. Pitcher will reside near Frankford.

Out-of-town guests were from Aurora, Toronto, Brougham, Trenton, Frankford and Stirling.

BERRY—CLAPP

Tall white standards and baskets of gladioli in pastel shades of peach and pink, with white and the greenery of ferns, were used to decorate Bridge Street United Church yesterday afternoon for the marriage, at half-past two o'clock, of Phyllis Irene Clapp, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Clapp, 263 Ann Street, and Randall Eugene Berry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Berry, 288 Foster Ave., with Rev. D. C. Amos performing the ceremony. Mr. Wm. Connor supplied suitable organ music during the assembling of the guests and the signing of the register.

To the strains of "The Bridal Chorus" from Lohengrin the bride entered the church with her father, who gave her in marriage. She was becomingly gowned in white slipper satin, the fitted bodice featuring a full length buttoned back, sweetheart neckline and long pointed sleeves. The full skirt was festooned across the front with cords of the satin, caught at the centre and sides with roses made of the same material. Her embroidered fingertip veil fell gracefully from a coronet of orange blossoms and pink Sweetheart rosebuds, and she carried a cascade bouquet of white glomellias and Sweetheart roses.

Miss Wilma White, of Valleyfield, Que., as maid-of-honor, was the bride's only attendant. She was very charming in a floor length gown of shell pink taffeta, with matching mitts, and a headdress of one shell pink ostrich plume and matching veiling. Her bouquet was a semi-cascade of baby blue pom-pom 'mums.

Mr. Ernest Berry, of Woodstock, was his brother's groomsman, and the ushers were Mr. Al. Reid and Mr. Ralph Clapp, brother of the bride.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where Mrs. Clapp received in a floor length gown of heavenly blue silk crepe, with gold colored hat and accessories. She wore a corsage of Sweetheart rosebuds and white button 'mums. She was assisted by the groom's mother, wearing a floor length gown of azure blue sheer, with inserts of matching imported lace. Her hat and accessories were of navy, and she wore a corsage of pink rosebuds and white button 'mums.

For a wedding journey by motor to the Laurentian Mountains and Montreal, the bride chose a suit of taupe gabardine, with Beauvais brown ostrich trimmed half-hat, matching accessories and a kolinsky fur neckpiece.

After their return Mr. and Mrs. Berry will take up residence at 128 Victoria Ave.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Berry entertained the bridal party at dinner, Tuesday evening, in the dining room of Chez Henri.

IODE Shipments Sent Overseas Total $150,336

It was reported at the September meeting of the National Executive Committee of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire, with Mrs. F. P. McCurdy, 1st vice-president, presiding, that the I.O.D.E. overseas shipments have greatly increased during the past six months.

Mrs. K. I. G. Drope, National Post War Service Convener gave the following figures for the period January to June 1947:

57,835 lbs. to the Women's Voluntary Services, valued at $90,484;

8,911 lbs. to the Soldiers', Sailors' and Airmen's Families Association, valued at $13,537;

25,887 lbs. to the British Save the Children Fund, valued at $46,315;

Two thirds of I.O.D.E. shipments forwarded are for use in Great Britain and one third is distributed in Europe by the British Save the Children Fund.

Mrs. Drope reported that many grateful letters had been received from mayors of towns and from individuals thanking the members of the Order for clothing distributed to them after the floods last spring. One old lady of 84 years who received a shawl, wrote as follows:

"To think I lived over eighty years and wooding I will go and wear the lovely woollen cape that suits me well I know;
and the trees and flowers at me will look and think how smart I be,
and help me thank the kindly folk who have been so kind to me."

Personal Food Parcels for Great Britain are to be the chief work of the I.O.D.E. members this year and hundreds of names of old people and families in Britain are available to any group or individual, as well as chapters of the Order, who are willing to send a parcel a month — average value $5.00, including postage. Suggested lists for contents of these parcels will be sent to anyone applying to the local I.O.D.E. Chapter or to I.O.D.E. National Head Office, 182 Lowther Avenue, Toronto 4, for a name.

The sailors on minesweepers and fishing boats are still looked after by the I.O.D.E., Mrs. Drope says, and letters have been received recently from the Royal National Mission to Deep Sea Fishermen and the British Sailors' Society, asking for woollens for the winter months.

During the first six months of this year, 739 lbs. of new articles, valued at $907, were sent to the Royal National Mission to Deep Sea Fishermen and 1,317 lbs of new articles, valued at $1,372 to the British Sailors' Society.

Mrs. Gilbert Scott New President Hospital Aux.

The regular meeting of the Hospital Auxiliary was held in the Nurses' Residence on Tuesday afternoon. This being the opening meeting of the coming season a great deal of business was transacted.

Miss Laura Johnston, Director of Nursing, gave a very interesting report of her expenditure during the summer months of the indigent fund provided by the Auxiliary. Miss Johnston also reported on the Student Nurse who had received the $500 scholarship now being awarded each year by the Auxiliary.

The winner this year was Miss Christine Makush and she is using this to aid her in a course at the University of Western Ontario in London. Miss Johnston spoke very highly of Miss Makush's personality and capabilities.

A very gratifying report of the recent tag day was submitted by the convener, Mrs. Ray Grant.

Mrs. Gilbert Scott was elected representative to the Hospital Aids convention to be held in the Royal York Hotel in Toronto early in November.

Mrs. Jack Howe, representative for the Junior Group, presented two large boxes of infants' clothing and knitted wear for the Good Samaritan Cupboard, another service which the Auxiliary has undertaken. This clothing is to be given to needy babies.

A Membership Committee was appointed composed of Mrs. A. E. Miles, Mrs. L. Allore, Mrs. H. Wray, Mrs. L. Langlois and Mrs. George Stobie.

The four projects for the year are to be an Autumn tea and sale of homecooking, a Christmas season dance, the Spring Fashion Show and a tag day.

During the meeting bandages were folded by the members and at the close tea was served by Miss Johnston.

Burr's Church Holds Anniversary Service

With the pastor, Rev. J. F. Lane in charge, the seventy-fifth anniversary of Burr's Church, Prince Edward County was observed on Sunday, Sept. 21st. In spite of the threatening appearance of the weather, a large congregation attended the evening meeting.

The interior of the church was decorated with a profusion of Autumn flowers, adding considerably to the beauty of the service. Members of the Wellington United Church choir contributed suitable music, under the capable leadership of Mr. T. Fillingham. This was greatly appreciated by the congregation, as well as by the minister in charge.

The Thankoffering received amounted to $92.00.

Censure Vote Made Against Walter Reuther

Detroit, Sept. 25 —(AP)— A censure vote against Walter P. Reuther, United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.) president, by the union's executive board served today to widen the breach between the U.A.W. chief and three other high-ranking officers.

The 14-9 vote came as an expected climax in the verbal fight between Reuther and his opponents within the union's top circle—Secretary-Treasurer George F. Addes, and Vice-Presidents R. J. Thomas and Richard T. Leonard.

Thomas moved that the executive board, on which the anti-Reuther factions holds a majority, censure and rebuke the president for a "report to the membership" published last week in the union's official publication.

Reuther had charged in that report that $500,000 in U.A.W. funds had been squandered, and also accused leaders of the union with promoting "factionalism" within its ranks. Addes and Thomas then declared they had been subjected to "slander" and accused the president of "betraying the trust of his high office."

Petkov Execution 'Crime Against Civilization

London, Sept. 25 — (Reuters)—The execution in Sofia of Nikola Petkov, former leader of the Bulgarian opposition party, the Agrarian Union, constituted a crime against European civilization, a Foreign Office spokesman said here Wednesday.

"This execution of Petkov," he said, "is a tangible and concrete culmination of a series of oppression of freedom of thought and expression which have gone on in Bulgaria for some time past and of which mention was made in a statement by a foreign office spokesman last Sunday. It was then announced that in the British view any further action of this type would constitute a crime against European civilization. This is such a crime.

"If you look at the life of Petkov you will see that for many years past he has fought against totalitarianism and it seems tragic that his life should have ended in that fight at the hands of his own countrymen."

The spokesman could not make a formal statement on whether the execution constituted a breach of the Bulgarian peace treaty which came into force last week. Such a statement was being considered in connection with the action which Britain intended to take in regard to Petkov.

800 Carloads B.C. Apples Roll Eastward Daily

By ERWIN FRICKE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Kelowna, B.C., Sept. 25 —(CP)—Freight trains jammed to the roof with boxes of B. C. apples, today are leaving this bustling Okanagan Valley fruit-growing centre every 15 minutes bound for the fresh fruit markets of the Prairies and the United States.

Growers, pickers, packers and shippers are working feverishly from dawn to far into the night to get British Columbia's estimated 7,000,000-box apple harvest rolling eastward. About 800 carloads leave here each day.

Many growers, although admitting that this years crop will fall far short of last years record harvest of 9,000,000 boxes, say that the color and quality of apples this year is superior to anything they have known.

Plagued by a shortage of pickers and fearful that the apples might fall prematurely, many growers for the past few weeks have been experimenting with a hormone spray that may revolutionize the fruit industry.

A. T. Howe of Vernon, B.C., reputedly the owner of the largest McIntosh orchard in the British Empire, said the spray which is scattered over the trees from a helicopter "apparently is successful" in making apples hang on more tenaciously.

Poor Accommodations, Inferior Food Criticism Aimed at Tourist Industry

By DAVE McINTOSH
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Charlottetown, Sept. 25 —(CP)—The Canadian tourist industry had a brusque warning from its overseer today that it should pull up its socks — and fast — or it could not expect another season of prosperity such as 1947.

D. Leo Dolan, chief of the Canadian Travel Bureau, told the 13th annual convention of the Canadian Associations of Travel and Publicity Bureaux here that the Canadian tourist industry was losing trade because of poor highways, deteriorating cuisine, bad reservation arrangements by hotels, haphazard ground activities of airlines and some battered railway coaches.

His sharp criticisms of the trade which will gross about $235,000,000 this year, rudely jolted some 50 delegates who previously had listened to accounts of a record-breaking season.

Immediately after his hard-hitting talk delegates were on their feet with suggestions for improvements in and expansion of the vititor business. Many of the speeches dealt with a longer tourist season, better accommodation and the association's annual tourist service education week campaign.

Presentation of resolutions and election of officers will be held tomorrow.

Mr. Dolan warned that the tourist industry could not expand its present volume unless changes and improvements came "very, very soon" and added "the traveller is not going to be satisfied with the same things he found before and since the war."

It was not good enough for hotels, restaurants and resorts when their rates were going up and the war had been over for two years.

Two-way world trade and more travel by Canadians was seen by Garth Cate of New York, chairman of the special committee of the National Association of United States Travel Officials, as the means of expansion for Canada's visitor commerce.

LOBLAWS CHEESE

Cheese is the most highly concentrated source of the highest quality protein known — from 20% to over 30% of its total weight being tissue-forming foods — yet pound for pound it is one of the cheapest protein foods that can be bought. In addition it is also an excellent source of calcium, phosphorus and vitamin A.

From 90% to 95% of the total weight of cheese is digested — there is practically no waste. Cheddar cheese keeps well. Under proper refrigeration there is practically no spoilage waste and it can be served in a score of appetizing ways.

Recipes to Cut Down Waste

BY KATE AITKEN

Lucky families with vegetable gardens can use them right up until frost time. Every tomato, every cucumber, every pumpkin can be used to reduce your grocery bills. Here's a recipe for Curried Green Tomatoes. Wipe off 6 green tomatoes; cut off the blossom and stem end; cut in half. Combine 1 teaspoon brown sugar, 2 tablespoons butter, ½ teaspoon curry powder, ½ teaspoon salt and dash of pepper and paprika. Place a dab of the mixture on each tomato half; broil in a hot oven, adding a second dab of the mixture when half the broiling time is completed. See the rest of Kate Aitken's "Waste Not" recipes in The Standard this week. On sale now—The Standard costs only 10 cents at all newsdealers.

Meat gives your baby a headstart on health!

Doctors recommend Swift's Strained Meats for Babies

Babies thrive on meat—shown by scientific feedings to infants as young as six weeks*! They're healthier, more satisfied . . . do better when they get meat! Now it's easy to give your precious baby the benefits of meat much earlier in life than ever before! You may feed body-building Swift's Strained Meats as soon as baby starts on any solid food! Specially prepared for tiny stomachs, Swift's Strained Meats give your baby a headstart on health!

Meat—has the "musts" for growth!

Your fast-growing baby needs 3 to 4 times more proteins, proportionately, than an adult! Swift's Strained Meats are an abundant source of complete, high-quality proteins, plus B vitamins and the blood-building iron your baby must get every day for growth and development! Swift's Strained Meats are 100% meat—not mixtures! When you feed them, you can be sure your baby is getting plenty of the "musts" for growth!

Form good eating habits—feed foods separately

Baby forms the best kind of eating habits when foods are fed separately. That's why doctors recommend introducing foods one at a time—not all mixed together—so baby gets to know and enjoy the individual flavour and texture of each one. Each variety of Swift's Strained Meats: beef, lamb, pork, veal, liver and heart, is all meat. No other foods are mixed in to alter the distinctive meat flavours and textures. Feeding all six kinds in a well-rounded diet—cereals, vegetables, fruits, milk—helps baby establish sound, sensible food habits for life!

No Meat Scarcity In Smaller Centres

Toronto, Sept. 25—(CP)—Outside Toronto and other large centres there is no scarcity of meat in Ontario, Agriculture Minister Kennedy said Tuesday.

He added that any butcher who wants to buy meat can go outside Toronto and obtain as much as he likes from small town abattoires — and without risk of people getting diseased meat because of the loosening of slaughter restrictions.

"Most rural slaughtering is done by local butchers who have been in the business for 25 years or more," he said. "They maintain clean establishments."

TOUGH ON A BOY

Los Angeles, Sept. 25 —(AP)—The doctors call eight-year-old Wyman Reams a rare case but he's not very appreciative of the distinction.

He fell to the ground when a limb broke on a tree, fracturing both forearms.

Not only that but the medics said the X-rays of each arm were identical — two fractures, same time, same place, same way.

But what impresses Wyman the most seems to be the fact he has to wear casts on each arm for a month.

3,000 ACRES RUINED

Cardston, Alta. — (CP) — It was disclosed at the Indian Agency on the Blood Reserve that from 2,500 to 3,000 acres of grain were ruined by a recent hailstorm that swept the Cardston district.

DESTROY TROOP CAMP

Vernon, B. C. — (CP)—Vernon military camp, remembered by thousands of men from all parts of Canada who trained there during the war, is to be demolished, Mayor David Howrie has announced.

"LATE SEPTEMBER SUNSHINE"

While the easterner is apt to think of Saskatchewan's grain production as being entirely in terms of wheat and just a little oats and barley, many farmers in park and valley regions diversify their crops to a large extent. Here is a fall scene in the beautiful Qu'Appelle Valley, showing corn shocks with a substantial farm home in the background.

Mounties Open New Radio System

By the end of this month, throughout half a million square miles of prairie provinces, something dramatically new will be added to the famed Royal Canadian Mounted Police operation with the inauguration of a streamlined radio set-up. It will link 962 officers and men, 352 police cars, several police planes, police toboggans and patrol boats. Extending across Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, and ranging Northward to the bleak "nothing" stretches, this new radio system will have no comparable set-up in the modern police world. The system will receive its first major test immediately, because autumn represents the most strenuous season for the Mounties of the prairie provinces. Read all about it in The Standard this week. The Standard is on sale now at all newsdealers for 10 cents.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

You need not inflame your brain trying to reach slam. Nor need you give your partner a dizzy merry-go-round to get there. Unlax and let simple rules lead you to it.

We ran across this pair of hands:

SOUTH
♠Q 8 3
♥A K Q
♦K Q 9 7 6 3
♣9

NORTH
♠K 7
♥J 7 6 2
♦A 8 4
♣A J 6 4

The bidding went like this:

South	North
1 D	2 C
3 D	4 NT
5 S	6 D

First response by my partner in north shows three tricks. With eight in my own hand, we should have a game in something. My jump to three diamonds is a game-go signal.

Partner has four instead of three tricks. With my eight he sees 12. He has support for my diamonds. With two aces and a king, he bids four no-trump. It asks partner to show how many aces and kings he has.

Replies in The Kibitzer convention are: Five clubs shows no aces; five diamonds, an ace and no kings; five hearts, an ace and one king; five spades, an ace and two kings; five no-trump, an ace and three kings.

Thus, five spades by south shows an ace and two kings. So, a grand slam should not be bid. And it seems to me there should be no argument against any of this.

But bystanders dug up all sorts of reasons for doing what comes unnaturally. They said a jump shows a fit in partner's suit; a jump rebid in the same suit is not forcing.

They thought my second bid would have been a better force with hearts. Even if that suit is not biddable, they said. They even tried to show me that their ideas were gleaned from experts.

Can I help it if experts are nuts? Or can I?

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Sept. 25 —(AP)— Barbara Stanwyck is working before the cameras for the first time since February and the reason for her idleness was taxes.

"It's silly to make as many pictures as I did last year," she said. "I netted a total of $7,000 for working in 'California.' I was paid $9,000 for two radio shows and could keep $600.

"Why won't they let us give it away to charity? All I can give away now is $15,000. If the government would let us give more away, we wouldn't mind working more."

Joan Fontaine, Sam Goldwyn and Gregory Peck have agreed to postpone "Earth and High Heaven," from the book written by Gwethalyn Graham of Montreal, until late 1948. It's about anti-Semitism and there have been several such films this year. . . .

(Scene of Miss Graham's book is wartime Montreal. It describes the impact of anti-Semitism on the romance between a wealthy Montreal girl and a young Jewish intellectual.)

Long Task.

Irene Dunne jests about her service in "I Remember Mama" which is in its fourth month and not finished yet. She claims she is now shooting the sequel. When she ends the chore, she'll buy a new wardrobe ("the one I had at the start of the picture is out of date") and take a long trip, probably to South America. . . .

Eddie Cantor will have his childhood school teacher on his air show tonight to kick off a campaign for better teaching pay.

ADVISED TO QUIT LIQUOR

Toronto, Sept. 25 —(CP)— John Pierce was acquitted of a charge of throwing sulphuric acid with intent to maim his wife, Mildred, a year ago. The county criminal court jury took less than two hours to decide its verdict. "I hope you won't mind," Judge Samuel Factor told Pierce, "but I would like to advise you to stay away from over-indulgence in liquor and also, if you don't mind, I would like to convey the same message to your wife."

Health Dept. Unable to Act

Toronto, Sept. 25 — (CP) — Ontario Department of Health can take no action to lift the ban which the Owen Sound Hospital Board invoked to prevent a 21-year-old Negro girl from entering nurses' training there, says Health Minister Russell T. Kelley.

Owen Sound Mayor Ed. Sargent and Alderman J. H. Parkes visited Queen's Park, and the minister, along with Deputy Minister J. T. Phair, conferred with them. Mr. Kelley expressed his sympathy with the popular feeling of protest which has arisen, but told the visitors the department could take no action.

Tuesday night Mayor Sargent told a meeting of Owen Sound's city council that "there is no place in this city for racial discrimination."

OXFORD LAD WINS FREE-FOR-ALL PACE AT FAIR

Kingston Horse Paces Fastest Mile of Afternoon and Wins in Straight Heats

That brilliant old campaigner, Oxford Lad, owned by Burns McKane of Kingston, easily defeated a fast field of pacers in the Free-For-All staged at the closing day of the race meet in connection with the Belleville fair. This horse was bought by Mr. McKane a couple of years ago when the owners thought he was through in the big time but the present owner took the horse home, nursed him through a winter and with practically a new set of legs started again to burn up the circuits with his fast miles. The horse went a little wrong early this spring but good care and attention brought him around again and on Wednesday he was flying. Every horse in the race took a crack at him but he had too much "lick" for the field and won in straight heats.

Mr. McKane was also winner of $15 extra of his purse when the horse went the fastest mile of the afternoon. He paced the last mile at 2.14, which was very good considering the condition of the track caused by the heavy rain over the weekend. $10 was donated by Frank Corrigan and $5 by "Sandy" Lummiss. In the slow class pace, Vivian McKinney came back after losing the first heat to Silk Grattan to cop the next two and the race. This mare is owned by Waples of Victoria Harbor and has a lot of "lick" in the stretch. The starting gate was again used and the patrons were divided in their opinion as to its advantages. With the gate a man must have a horse that is not fractious at the post and has a lot of early speed.

The results:

There are rumors prevalent along the sports rialto that the scheduled Friday night hockey game between the Philadelphia Rockets' professional team and the rookie amateurs at present undergoing training here, will be nothing but a practice session for both squads.

* * *

Nothing is farther from the truth. Statements from Rocket headquarters today said that the game will be for "keeps." There will be no babying or pulling punches so to speak. Both teams will be out there to win and there will be no panty-waisting, coddling, or kissing between periods.

* * *

It stands to reason. The professionals have a job. If they want to see that pay cheque coming in every month, they'll have to hold that job. And if they're to hold the job, they've got to show by their performance on the ice that they are capable of doing so. If they don't — they've had it.

* * *

On the other hand, the amateurs are fighting for berths on the professional team. They are here to show their wares to the master-minds and on their performance hinges their hockey fate. If they're good enough to make the grade, they're in — if not, they'll wait another year.

* * *

Don't let anyone kid you that Friday night's tilt between these two squads is a set-up. It's part of the training, and it's one of the methods by which professional coaches and managers can form an opinion as to the ability of the various players. True, they can do that in practice sessions in everyday routine training — but there's a whale of a difference between a practice session — and one when the chips are down. These amateurs will be out there battling to the last ditch in an effort to lower the colors of the pros. And by the same token the pros will go all out to show the bosses that they can hang onto their jobs.

* * *

Coach Wally Kilrea has lost no time in putting his pro, amateur and amateur juniors through a stiff training grind. Loss of a week, due to the inability to procure ice, has crowded Kilrea's program with the result that he has had to do double time this week. Ordinarily the junior crop and also the amateurs have been sorted, and those not needed on their way home before the regulars report. In this case it was different. Kilrea and trainer Jordan have been busier than the proverbial one-armed paperhanger with the hives this week, trying to catch up with the schedule.

* * *

However, things are rounding into shape and all three squads have been put through their paces with three stiff workouts daily. The pros take the ice at nine a.m. for an hour's workout; again at 1:30 p.m. and taper off the day's activities with another strenuous session at 7.30 in the evening. Juniors and seniors also get three drills daily.

* * *

Big Jack Portland is teaming with Bill Walsh on one defence with huge Eddie Bush and Jimmie Drummond taking care of the rearguard duties at the other blue line. Failure of Nick Damore to report is giving Maurice Courteau, Montreal pro, and Freddie Sparks, Stratford goalie, plenty of work between the pipes.

* * *

* * *

Bob Walton, Wendell (Jimmy) Jamieson, Joe Delmonte, Steve Wochy and Ralph Buchanan, George DeFelice, Sid Lovelace, Fred Kovalchuk, Boyd Prentice, Al Shewchuk, Leo Richard and other forwards are rapidly rounding into shape and will be ready for the test game here Friday between the Regulars and the Yannigans.

* * *

Bill Easton's Batawa crew will have their backs to the figurative wall here on Friday night when they meet the Peterborough Intermediates in their third tussle to decide the winner of the second round O.B.A. playdowns. The Shoemen lost a close decision to the Petes last Monday, and by mutual consent the squads decided to settle their differences under the lights at Exhibition Park here come fish day gloaming. It isn't likely that Easton will take any chances this time, and will send his ace, Gordy Muffitt, to the mound. Muffitt appeared to have the Indian sign on the Liftlock village gang in relief roles in both previous games, and if he is up to form Friday, he should send the visitors home to hang up their spikes.

* * *

Friend Bill Dumsday, secretary of the Toronto Mens' Press Club, sends along a note informing us that the popular football broadcast "Monday Quarterbacks' Club" is again being broadcast over CJBC from the Press Club on Yonge Street. Bill adds that the grid show is aired at 9.30 every Monday morning and features coaches, players, officials and sportswriters. If you like your football hot from the gridiron, tune in on the Press Club broadcast.

The management of the Philadelphia Rockets have kindly consented to forego the scheduled Saturday night workout this week and accordingly Manager Walter Gerow has thrown open the facilities of the rink and ice to city skaters.

* * *

Reports from Kingston state that the Kingston Senior Hockey Club will hold a meeting in the near future to organize matters for the coming season. The report states that the Limestone City club expects to sign players by the names of Walter Gerow and Ken Murphy. That "ain't the way we heerd it," brother.

The fall fistic season gets under way with the announcement of promoter Frank Tunney that he has signed "Lil Arthur" King to battle the hard punching Joey Bagnato in a "rubber match" at Maple Leaf Gardens on October 1st.

* * *

Bagnato, who handed King his most decisive defeat and had him on the verge of a k.o. in their first encounter, has been screaming for a return shot ever since King eked out a decision in their second encounter.

* * *

Both have undergone a change in management since their last fight. King is now under the guiding hand of the veteran fight figure "Deacon" Jack Allen, while Bagnato was the principal of a triple play which reads, Dan Keller to Frankie Genovese, Genovese back to Dan Keller and now Dan Keller to Phil "Darky" Daniels who returns to the fight game after a number of years.

LEO DUROCHER ON WAY EAST TO SEE RICKEY

Don't Know Whether He Will Manage Brooks Next Year at Present

Los Angeles, Sept. 25—(AP)—Leo Durocher deserted Hollywood and flew back to Brooklyn today — and a fate in baseball that even shrewd Lippy couldn't foretell.

He and his actress wife, Laraine Day, took off via American Airlines and were due in New York early today.

Their avowed interest: to see Brooklyn, the team Leo might have managed, in the World Series against New York Yankees.

The next two weeks should prove most eventful in the lives of pretty Laraine and loquacious Leo, whose suspension from baseball — for "failure to measure up to standards, etc."— ends with the windup game of the World Series.

"Yes, as I understand it, that's when it ends — but," and he grinned, "you know as much about that as I do and I'm not supposed to even mention it."

He was exceedingly affable and posed willingly for photographs with Laraine.

Who did he like in the series? "Brooklyn, of course."

Would he be back with the Dodgers next year? A ready reply brought, "I can't say a thing about that until I see Mr. Rickey." That's Branch Rickey, big chief of the Dodgers.

Had he received feelers or offers to replace Billy Herman at Pittsburgh? "None at all."

Would he be interested in a Pittsburgh offer?

"I'll repeat what I said before—I hope to manage Brooklyn until the day I die."

Would he accept a coaching job in the majors? "No."

Did he really believe the Bums could beat the Yankees?

"Certainly. Everyone always asks, 'What chance has Brooklyn against New York?' Why not, 'What chance has New York against the Dodgers?' "

Is Education The Curse of Mankind?

When one of Canada's ace cartoonists suggests to one of Canada's ace newspaper writers that a university extension course might sharpen his mind, it speaks well of Canadian thirst for knowledge. However, when Jim Frise broached the subject to his friend, Greg Clark, recently, he wasn't quite prepared for Greg's violent reaction. At first, it was Greg's opinion that universities and their professors were at the root of all the world's troubles. Read this hilarious Greg-Jim episode in The Standard this week. St. Catharines, winners of the Eastern Canada junior lacrosse title will meet Vancouver All-stars for the Dominion junior crown at a date which has not yet been set. The All-Stars took the western division championship at Vancouver last night with a 19-11 victory over Winnipeg Elmwood Terriers. Terriers were defeated 16-3 the night before in the two-game total-goal series.

The Kitchener-Waterloo Senior Ontario Hockey Association Club will see action on the ice long before the circuit opens in November. Next Saturday the team meets Houston, Tex., Buffs, a minor pro club; Oct. 4 they tussle with Fort Worth; Oct. 11, Springfield Indians; and Oct. 14 they meet Boston Bruins in a special charity match at Waterloo. Twenty-five per cent of the proceeds will go to the Ontario Society for Crippled Children.

Larry McPhail, President of the champion New York Yankees, revealed that he intends to give up active direction of the organization "after 1950." He added that Bucky Harris would be back next year as manager of the Yankees.

New York sources report that Leo Durocher, suspended former manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, has applied to baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler for reinstatement. There was no confirmation, but the same report intimated Durocher would be reinstated after the world series.

Skeeter Newsome, shortstop of Philadelphia Phillies, has asked for and received his unconditional release, effective at the end of present season. Newsome, recuperating from an operation, declined a manager's post in the Phillies' farm system.

Defeating the Petes 12-3 in a slugfest at Peterborough last night Toronto Staffords tied up their O.B.A. Senior A playoffs series at two games each. The Petes lost the first in Toronto won the second there, and took the third in Peterboro last Saturday. The winner of this series meets the London-Niagara Falls victor in provincial finals.

New York, Sept. 25 — (AP) — Wonder if Maxie Hirsch has taken a hint from the football coaching fraternity in building up Assault for Saturday's match race with Armed? . . . You know the grid routine: On Monday the team is a wreck; Tuesday or Wednesday it's "We'll show up for the game but don't expect anything of us;" by Friday the athletes are expected to play but won't be in top shape. Then Saturday — boom! . . . and don't forget those long prices on Assault when he won the triple crown . . . although he has played baseball all over the map since 1928, Bobo Newsom has pitched in only one World Series — winning two games and losing one for Detroit in 1940 . . .

Bobby Feller of Cleveland First Hurler in American League to Win 20 Games

Hal Gregg May Prove Hero of World Series That Opens Tuesday

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The 1947 World Series may go down in the books as the "Battle of the Bullpens" but it hasn't looked that way in the final tune ups of the Brooklyn and New York starters.

Not to be outdone by the Yankees who daily parade a new mound gem, the Dodgers' staff has been showing great form in recent effort of Joe Hatten and Hal Gregg.

Gregg, who may be the dark-horse of the series, warmed up for series duty yesterday by shutting out the home run-happy New York Giants with one hit over a 5-inning stretch. It mattered little that rookie Willard Ransdell who came in after Gregg was lifted for a pinch-hitter blew a comfortable lead and the game 6-5. Gregg had looked fine in his turn.

Cincinnati, picked to scramble for the cellar with the Phillies, clinched fifth place, a fine tribute to freshman manager Johnny Neun. The Reds had to go hard to make it, shading Chicago 6-5 on a ninth-inning home run by Grady Hatton.

George Munger hurled his second straight three-hitter for his 16th victory, as 5-1 edge for St. Louis over Pittsburgh. Whitey Kurowski led the Birds' attack driving in four runs, two on his 27th homer.

Bobby Feller finally became the first American League pitcher to win 20 games, subduing St. Louis Browns 9-1. Cleveland routed Ellis Kinder in a four-run fifth inning attack.

The loss eliminated the Browns last chance of climbing out of the cellar and the triumph left the Indians only a half game out of third.

Detroit stretched its second-place margin over Boston to a full game by nosing out Chicago 5-4 in 10 innings.

Although Bob Kennedy nicked him for two homers, Freddie Hutchinson went the route, yielding nine hits for his 17th victory. Dick Wakefield's pinch double off reliefer Earl Caldwell scored the two winning runs in the 10th.

BROOKLYN HAS BEST INFIELD IN THE LEAGUE

Probably Will Outplay the Yanks' Inner Works in Short Series

By OE REICHLER

New York, Sept. 25—(CP) — Ralph Branca won 21 games for the Dodgers, Bruce Edwards did a great job behind the plate, Dixie Walker still is an large as life in right field, but when it comes down to cases, Brooklyn won the National League pennant because it had the best infield in the league if not in baseball.

With such standouts as Jackie Robinson, Ed Stanky, Pee Wee Reese and Johnny Jorgensen guarding the stations, the Dodgers' infield doesn't suffer by comparison to any quartet in baseball.

After all, the Dodgers' inner works contains the majors' greatest base runner in first baseman Robinson, the scrappiest performer in Stanky, the best shortstop with the possible exception of Cleveland's Lou Boudreau in Reese and one of the most promising first year men in third baseman Jorgensen.

This foursome has contrived to pull off more twin killings than any other infield.

Against this superb quartet, the American League champion New York Yankees offer a fair-to-middlin' infield of their own. Veteran George McQuinn at first has proven the surprise of the league. George Stirnweiss, at second, is a steady, dependable fielder if not a robust batter. Phil Rizzuto, at short, is one of the best double play operators in baseball and is no slouch at the plate. Bill Johnson, at third, is the steady man of the infield. A good fielder and solid batsman, he is at his best in the clutch.

McQuinn Better Fielder

Neither infield boasts a real power hitter, a la DiMaggio, with only McQuinn and Robinson flirting with the .300 mark. McQuinn is considered the longer ball hitter of the two, but Robinson trails him only by one homer, 13 to 12, and has banged out 24 doubles and five triples compared to 21 and 3 for the Yankee first baseman.

McQuinn, a past master in the art of playing the bag, is by far the better fielder of the two. Although playing in fewer games, he has made 110 assists to 93 for Robinson and has committed only eight errors to 15 for the Brooklyn first sacker.

Each club is well fortified with infield reserves, although it is doubtful if they'll be called upon in such a short series. Bobby Brown, Lonnie Frey and Jackie Phillips give the Yanks' strong replacements at any of the four positions, while Cookie Lavagetto, Eddie Miksis, Stan Rojek and Tommy Brown of Brooklyn stack up as just about the best "second infield" in the game.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

(By The Associated Press)

Jackie Robinson, Dodgers — Walked in first inning, scoring on Bobby Brown's boot of Duke Snider's grounder, grounded out and walked in fourth before leaving game.

John Mize, Giants — Popped to third base, lined to left, walked, scoring on Walker Cooper's three-run double, and singled in eighth.

Stan Musial, Cardinals — Singled and scored a run in only official time at bat in Cards' 5-1 victory over Pirates. He walked four consecutive times.

Lou Boudreau, Indians — Singled twice, scoring three runs in 9-1 romp over Browns.

(Joe DiMaggio, Yankees and Ted Williams, Red Sox — did not play).

Frankie Boucher, gazing at this season's crop of Rangers at Lake Placid, N.Y., was optimistic. "I feel that we will climb another notch or two in the National Hocky League this season," he said. The New Yorkers, fifth last season, spent the four previous years in the cellar of the six-team circuit.

Newcomers Buddy O'Connoer and Frank Eddolls, whom Rangers obtained from Montreal Canadiens in exchange for Hal Laycoe and Joe Bell, are partly the reason for Boucher's optimism. The slim centre and chunky defencemen are training well.

Minor injuries cropped up in Rangers first three days of practice at Lake Placid's Olympia. Under treatment for cuts and bruises are Eddolls, Church Russell, Ian Mackintosh, Jean Paul Lamirande and Herb Bourgeois.

The Rangers have arranged a tough schedule of five exhibition games in 11 days, starting with New Haven at Lake Placid Oct. 4. From there, they play in Ottawa against the amateur Senators Oct. 8 and Oct. 11, in Shawinigan Falls Oct. 12 and at Quebec against the Aces Oct 14. The Ottawa games will find Frankie Boucher masterminding against his brother, George (Buck) Boucher, Senators coach.

Gaye Stewart, a disappointment with Toronto Maple Leafs last season after his previous prize-winning rookie year, looks to be heading for a big comeback. He's the leading scorer in the Leafs training sessions at St. Catharines, Ont., with seven goals and 11 assists in three days of drill. Stewart is patrolling left wing on a line with Gus Bodnar and Rookie Tod Sloan,

The first Leafs casualty was Ted (Teeter) Kennedy, who suffered a cut foot. The rugged centre went to City Hospital at St. Catharines and will miss practice for the rest of the week. Coach Hap Day plans to use Bud Poile, slated for defence duty, in Teeter's place between Vic Lynn and Howie Meeker temporarily.

Coach Dick Irvin feels he has come up with a patent new line for his Montreal Canadiens in Bobby Carse, Johnny Quilty and Jimmy Peters. Carse, up from Cleveland for an N.H.L. comeback, seems to be just the linemate for the other two and the trio scored nine goals in two days practice games.

The Canadians board of strategy decided to demote six rookie aspirants to the Buffalo Bisons Training Camp at Barrie, Ont. Going back with Bison Manager Art Chapman are Tom Rockey, Les Hickey, Ken Campbell, Phil Maloney, Norm Dussault and Gilles Dube.

Badly in need of defencemen, Coach Johnny Gottselig has come up with at least a couple of likely-looking prospects at Chicago Black Hawks Camp in Regina. They are Joe Conn, who played with Vancouver Canucks last season, and Art Michaeluk, a former Calgary Stampeder.

Holdout? Alex Kaleta still hasn't reported to Chicago's Regina workouts and the Black Hawks management has announced no reason for his absence.

Montreal, Sept. 25. (CP) — With football and hockey contesting for sports page space it becomes apparent from the public prints that Montrealers are serious in the kind of team they'll support— it's got to be a winner.

To start with, take the footballing Alouettes who dropped two games last weekend to Ottawa Rough Riders. The double loss brought this from Baz (Montreal Star) O'Meara: "Judging by the letters coming this way fans are pretty wall disappointed over the showing of Alouettes. . Just think how different it would have been had Als won . . . A couple of wins will put a different complexion on the situation."

Hereabouts football interest is centring on the performance of Hamilton's Frank Filchock when Tigers come to town next weekend and Baz says "there is a very good chance that Filchock will be given a clean bill of health by the Big Four before the weekend."

Hockey Talks

Baz O'Meara reports Elmer Lach is playing as though he never heard of that skull cracking that laid him low last year and will be O.K. when Montreal Canadiens face the seasons' opening face-off. . . Kenny Reardon is recovered too from the toe injury that bothered him in last year's playoffs.

And Dink (Montreal Gazette) Carroll comes up with this latest Rocket Richard story:

The Rochet, reported still unsigned, approached Coach Dick Irvin and got this greeting: "Say Rocket, do you know we've got 18 right wingers trying out with us?"

"Well," said the Rocket, a right wing who knows the answers in English as well as in French, "at least you've got enough to start the season with."

SERIES NOW TIED

Milwaukee, Sept. 25 (AP) — Louisville Colonels and Milwaukee Brewers stood knotted at three games each in the American Association play-offs today, with the winner of tonight's final game scheduled to meet Syracuse of the International League in the Little World Series Saturday.

The Colonels bounced back from Tuesday's 10-inning setback last night and drubbed the Milwaukeenans 11-1 in cold weather which got the crowd of spectators to a series low of 3,150.

OTTAWA WINS TITLE

Ottawa, Sept. 25 — (CP)—The T. P. (Tommy) Gorman stamp of success today was branded on another of his many enterprises: Ottawa Nationals of the Border Baseball League, the capital's first professional ball team in seven years.

Last night the Nats climaxed their one-year career with an 11-2 win over Ogdensburg Maples to win the league championship four games to two. And even though manager Paul (Daffy) Dean was not around to see them do it — he left yesterday for Little Rock, Ark. — they played inspired ball.

SYRACUSE CHIEFS DEFEAT BUFFALO IN WIN TROPHY

Will Meet Winners of American Association Playoffs on Saturday

Syracuse, N.Y., Sept. 25.—(AP)—Syracuse Chiefs will meet the winner of the American Association play-offs Saturday night in the opener of the Little World Series.

The Chiefs, who finished third in the International League pennant race, defeated Buffalo Bisons 10-3 last night in the seventh and deciding game of the circuit's final play-off series for the Governors' Cup.

A crowd of 11,388 saw the Chiefs take a three-run lead in the second inning, and score three more in the sixth and four in the eighth to clinch the contest.

Hank Sauer, the League's home run king, blasted his 55th circuit clout of the year in the sixth to give him a play-off record of 37 total bases.

Herm Wehmeier started on the hill for Syracuse, but had to have help from Howie Fox. Wehmeier, who yielded nine hits in six frames, gained credit for the victory, his third in post-season play. Clem Hausmann, the second of three Bison hurlers, was the loser.

The Death of a Doll

By Hilda Lawrence

CHAPTER 22

He was back in less than five minutes. "It was in the coat pocket," he said. Crumpled up as if it had been put there in a hurry. The cleaner calls everything in a pocket personal property, so he saved it. Pinned it to the coat himself. Didn't think it was worth mentioning, because he was sure Miller would know what it was." There was a lift in his voice. Can any of you bright people identify it?"

Wiggle, wiggle," Bessy began.

He interrupted with bitter, triumph. It's a telephone number. Tom the Cleaner and Dyer knew what it was right away. He looked me straight in the eye and said it was a telephone number in a beeg city like New York or Worcester, Mass. Because it had five leedle figures. If I had a shield I'd turn it in and shoot myself with my service gun. Which reminds me, I was going to take all this stuff over to Foy. Now I think I'll call him to come over here."

When Foy arrived he studied the slip of paper. That could be something beginning with a W. That would be a W, an M, or an N. I can have the number called on every local exchange, but it may take awhile."

Worth it if it takes the rest of the day. Meanwhile I'll run over to Hope House and see if it clicks there. It may be one of their regulars. You know, drugstore, ice cream, cigarets. I'll be back before you're ready for me."

He left Foy murmuring instructions into the doctor's phone.

Kitty denied all knowledge of the number. She checked three months' records while he looked over her shoulder. There was no 2-8277. When he asked if Ruth Miller had made many calls, she shook her head.

Not when I was on duty," she said. 'Maybe late at night when Miss Plummer ran the board. You'd have to ask Miss Plummer."

He nodded. Then, "You don't look well, Miss Brice."

"What does?" she answered.

He was thinking of that when Miss Plummer finally admitted him to her room after asking him to wait until she got back in bed. Her face was ashen.

"What is it?" she whispered. "Why did you come back?"

"Miss plummer, did Ruth Miller ever use the phone when you were on duty?"

She looked as if she had struck her. "How did you know?"

"I don't know. I'm asking you. If I could be sure, it might help me."

"Yes, she did. I forgot to tell you." She corrected herself painfully. "No, I can't truly say I forgot, it was more like being afraid to say anything. You see I lost the slip I wrote the number on."

She told him how the call had come through, how she had been surprised to hear Ruth Miller's voice, because it was so late.

"The Sunday night, it was," she said. "The night of the tea, the night before she died. And she was breathing hard, like she'd been running, and she begged me to put it through quick. A person-to-person call, long distance, and she didn't know the number, only the name. It was to a gentleman, a prominent gentleman in Chicago she said. She said I wouldn't have any thouble finding him because he was prominent."

"Chicago!"

"She hung up just when I was ready to put her on . . . . Wait a minute, Mr. East! Law, Craw—"

"What is it, Miss Plummer?"

"Crawford," Miss Plummer said quietly. "Crawford or Lawford."

When he got back to the doctor's, Bessy and Beulah had left. "I sent the ladies home," Foy said virtuously. "They were anxious to do all they could, but I told them this wasn't woman's work, not now. You've got something new, haven't you?"

"What about the New York calls?"

"Too soon. Why?"

"Because it's Chicago we want. At least I think so....I've got a name, or part of a name, of a man Ruth Miller called. My source of information isn't too strong in the head, but I don't want to throw this away because of that. Do you think Chicago could track down Lawfords and Crawfords with one hand and check the 2-8277 phones with the other? Lawford or Crawford is supposed to be a man of prominence. We can let them keep on with the New York calls at the same time."

The only sound for the next few minutes was Foy's low voice apologizing to Chicago.

Then Foy hung up. "They'll do what they can, but they say it's a paper chase. Can't you dig up a little more?"

"One thing at a time, wash this up first. Did they know a big shot with a name like Lawford or Crawford?"

"They didn't say so. Sometimes a man is so big that people don't think of him."

"Right. But he needn't be big at that. A man of prominence in Ruth Miller's world could be anything, a civil-service employee or a minor city official, a nice guy in a clean white shirt who finished high school and took courses at night to improve himself."

Foy said, "That guy could be a former employer."

"That's what I'm crossing my fingers for. An employer preferably in a department store or a shop. Maybe a floorwalker. Miss Libby thinks there's a tie-up with a store or a shop. Miller claimed inexperience, but she knew too much about selling. Libby thinks—"

The phone rang. It was the first New York call, from Headquarters. Four exchanges had been cleared and a squad was covering the locations.

They sat on; talking, silent, talking, watching the clock. New York reported at intervals, but there were on leads.

"I don't know why we can't lock somebody up," Foy snapped. "I don't like to be diddled by a girl!"

"But this is no ordinary diddling and no ordinary girl. She looks and acts average, and that's why she has us by the throat. This one is as smart as anything that ever went through your hands. She did her stuff like a mathematician. In the end, when we take her aside for a little heart-to-heart, we'll probably find that her schedule ran something like this. She got hold of the extra costume, because she knew all about it. She hid it—by guess in the second-floor bathroom or packroom; easy to get at. She was lucky about the chef's accident, that gave her a break; but she could have worked without it.

Rundown, Nerves On Edge, Couldn't Sleep At Night

Also Suffered from Headaches, Indigestion and Dizzy Spells, Says This Woman. Tells How Syntona Helped Her.

Nervousness and sleeplessness are among the most distressing symptoms of a rundown condition of the system. Often accompanied by poor digestion, gas, headaches and dizzy feelings this condition frequently indicates the use of a stimulating tonic to improve appetite, and assimilation of food and to build up the system. In many instances it is necessary to continue the treatment for some weeks until the worn out, fatigued feeling and other symptoms disappear.

As in the case of Mrs. Olga Pepper, 574 Aberdeen Avenue, Hamilton, Ontario, Syntona can be counted on to bring highly gratifying results.

"For over a year I was rundown and troubled with poor digestion. After my meals I would have gas and indigestion very badly and I was subject to headaches, backache and dizzy spells. I became extremely nervous and could not get to sleep after going to bed at night.

"A friend of mine suggested that I try Syntona and I must say this medicine made a wonderful difference in the way I feel. Even from the first bottle I felt an improvement and now that I've been taking it a few weeks my nerves are calmed down and I am able to enjoy sound, restful sleep the night through. The digestive troubles are cleared up and I am now free of headaches and dizzy spells and the aching pain has gone out of my back."

Centenary

Successful S. S. Rally

Centenary — On Sunday morning the Centenary Church School held the annual Rally Day Service in connection with the morning church service when the school superintendent, Mr. Edgar Ray, was in charge. The object of the service was to demonstrate to parents the work of the school in its several departments.

A special feature was the dramatization of promotion from the Primary to the Junior class of Mary Ann Ray, Gwen Radford, Beulah Cooney, Jean Cooney and Bobby Hart, Larry May, Peggy Sargent, Bobby Nobes, Elaine Bain, Marion Vader, Billie Sargent.

The story entitled "The Church of the Friendly Heart," was exceptionally well told by Dorothy Ray who pointed out how the church can truly show the spirit of Christ.

The capable teacher of the Primary class gave a demonstration of the newly installed Flannelograph type of instruction which clearly showed the power of visual teaching.

Youth Tells Paper He Killed Girl At Owen Sound

Montreal Herald Says Statement Signed in Office

Owen Sound, Sept. 26 (CP)—Police Chief T. H. Carson said today he had "good reason to believe" that the suspect held in Montreal, was the man wanted here on charges of the sex-slaying last Sunday night of 11-year-old Betty Playford.

The chief would not give any details as to what reason he had to believe the man who signed a statement last night in the office of the Montreal Herald admitting the killing, was the "fiend" who bludgeoned Betty to death after raping her. The child's blood-smeared body was found in an eight-foot ditch on the outskirts of Owen Sound after she had been missing since the previous night.

In Montreal Capt. Allain said, "I would be greatly surprised if it was not the man. Three times we made him tell his story all over again and not once was there any change in the details."

Montreal, Sept. 26 —(CP)— A slight, 22-year-old Regina man who admitted he had been hospitalized as a "psychopathic personality" while in the armed services, was held by Montreal police as a suspect in the sex-slaying of 11-year-old Betty Playford of Owen Sound, Ont., and the Montreal Herald in a copyright story said the man signed a statement in the paper's office that he was the killer.

The Herald identified the man as Fred Bussey.

Detective-Capt. Georges Allain said only that "a lot of checking has to be done on his story by the Ontario Provincial Police."

The only possessions carried by Bussey when he walked into the Herald offices Thursday night and signed a statement were discharge papers and a booklet of typed precepts for correct living which he said had been prepared by his mother.

In the statement he said he alone was responsible for the brutal killing of the Owen Sound child.

Inspector Wilfrid Bourdon told The Canadian Press the man had also given his name as Thomas Bussey, though the Herald reported him saying his Christian name war Fred.

O.P.P. to Interrogate Suspect.

Bourdon said Ontario Provincial Police were en route this morning from the Perth division to interrogate the suspect.

Bourdon said that according to the man's story the suspect was driving last Sunday night from Hamilton to Owen Sound in a stolen car and was drunk when he picked up the girl. The man denied he raped the child but had said he killed her with a hammer he had in the car.

In greater detail the man's story recounted how in pelting rain he was driving 40 to 45 miles an hour at times. About 9.30 p.m. Sunday, in backing up his car he hit the child and later, so the story went, he put her in the car and later killed her.

Asked whether he would give an opinion as to the sanity of the suspect Insp. Bourdon would only say "well, he has a funny look."

Insp. Bourdon said police had no knowledge of the man until the suspect visited the Herald last night.

He told the Herald that he was 22, that he was born and raised in Regina. That he was a veteran of war service with the Navy.

The slight young man with watery brown eyes was the second man to go to the Herald and make a statement that he was a slayer in the course of the last several months. The killer of gambler Harry Davis did just that within the last year and later was sentenced to life imprisonment.

THREE YOUTHS PLEAD GUILTY TO ARMED ROBBERY

Statements of Accused Read Into Records of Court Proceedings, Remanded

Oshawa, Sept. 26. (CP) — three youths today pleaded guilty to the armed robbery last Sept. 18 of Austin E. Bennettt, Oshawa taxi driver, and were remanded to Sept. 29 for sentence.

The trio: Raymond LaFrance, 18, Ottawa; Bruce May, 17, London, Ont., and Robert Tomlinson, 19, Sudbury, Ont.

Evidence was given by Bennett and by Det.-Sgt. Herbert Flintoff of the Oshawa Police Department, who read statements he said were made by the three youths, admitting the holdup.

Bennett was robbed of $120, trussed and kidnapped by three armed bandits who dumped him from the cab on a country road near here.

Lafrance, May and Tomlinson were arrested early the next day in a downtown Ottawa hotel after a constable spotted them on an Ottawa Street. The Constable called reinforcements from headquarters and the trio was taken into custody without a struggle.

Bennett said after the robbery that he believed one of the men who held him up was Nicholos Minille, who with Donald (Mickey) McDonald and Ulysses Lauzon escaped from penitentiaary at Kingston, Ont., last Aug. 18. The convicts still are at large.

Brands Statement As Ridiculous

Collingwood, Sept. 26. (CP)—Julian Ferguson, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Simcoe North, yesterday termed "ridiculous and absurd" a charge by Mayor Graydon Kohl of Collingwood that he was instrumental in a "frame-up" directed at the mayor. Mayor Kohn recently was acquitted of a municipal corruption charge in which he was accused of agreeing to accept a bribe to withdraw opposition to a harbor construction project.

Princess Elizabeth's Allowance Under Study by Advisers of the King

London, Sept. 26. (CP)—What increase, if any, in her allowance of £15,000 ($60,000) yearly Princess Elizabeth should receive after her marriage is being discussed by financial advisers to the King headed by Sir Ulick Alexander, keeper of the Privy Purse.

They have to decide in time for the King to ask Parliament to adjust the civil list allowance when Parliament resumes Oct. 21st.

In May, 1937, when she was 11 years old, Parliament decreed that Elizabeth should receive £6,000 yearly, increasing to £15,000 at the age of 21. But under the Act of 1937 no provision was made for any increase on her marriage.

Such an increase, if approved by Parliament, will come from the revenues of the Duchy of Cornwall, normally held by the Prince of Wales. These revenues produce more than £100,000. They are vested in the King and the residue goes to the reduction of the civil list.

Lieut. Philip Mountbatten will not be entitled to any state income—even when he receives a dukedom—but it is expected he will derive a substantial income from royal estates normally given to the Prince Consort as a wedding gift.

As a single woman, the income tax payable on Elizabeth's £15,000 is £11,000 leaving her less than £4,000. But there are a number of exemptions for household and entertainment expenses.

Opposition to any increase in Elizabeth's salary was crystallized in a number of letters to London newspapers, a few protests from labor organizations and critical editorials in the Left-Wing press.

On the other hand there has been no large-scale public opposition to the increasing salary or to expenses of the royal wedding and the general view seems to be that Elizabeth must be given enough to maintain her position as heiress-presumptive to the throne.

FOUR CONSTABLES KILLED, ROBBERY NETS $180,000

Hebrew-Speaking Band Gunmen Sweeps Busy Tel Aviv Streets With Machine Gun Fire

By EDWARD CURTIS

Jerusalem, Sept. 26. (AP)—A band of Hebrew-speaking gunmen killed four British constables in the busy streets of downtown Tel Aviv today during a daring armored car holdup which netted the robbers $180,000.

They took $600,000 from the closely guarded car outside Barclay's Bank but dropped one bag of money containing $420,000 during their getaway in a white jeep.

A Jewish policeman was wounded in the gunfighting which accompanied the holdup and a bank official was smashed in the face by members of the robber band.

Police officials said two of the extremists also were believed to have been wounded.

The attack on the armored car, which was loading two sacks of money from Barclay's Bank in crowded Allenby Road, was preceded by the bursting of a bomb against the Palestinian Economic Corporation building across the street. This apparently was intended to distract attention from the holdup.

Toss Grenade in Car

Witnesses said four men drove up in a white jeep after the bomb explosion and tossed a hand grenade into the group of British constables guarding the armored car. In the grenading and exchange of shots which followed three constables were mortally wounded.

Witnesses said accomplices of the robber band apparently were inside the bank. There was an unusually large number of persons dressed as Arabs and some of these were believed to have been members of the extremist band.

When these men tried to force their way out of the bank, two constables barred the way and in the ensuing gunfire one constable was shot dead and another badly wounded. The robbers seized the two sacks of money, leaped into the jeep and sped away. One sack of money was dropped by the fleeing men and was recovered later.

A general alarm was sounded immediately throughout the all-Jewish City and armored cars poured from neighboring Jaffa and police billets at Sarona. A burst of gunfire was heard in the vicinity of the bank about 10 minutes after the robbery. Police said three persons were detained as suspects in the first searches.

Marilyn Charlton, 3, Consecon, Instantly Killed When Run Over by Truck Near Home

Three-year-old Marilyn Charlton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs Harry Charlton, two miles west of Consecon, was almost instantly killed shortly before nine o'clock Friday morning, when she was run over by a milk truck which had stopped at her parents' farm home to deliver butter.

The mother of the small girl saw the truck pass over the body of her daughter as it moved away but was helpless to avert the accident.

Mrs. Charlton had been husking corn near the side of the highway when the milk truck, driven by Charles Jinks, stopped to deliver butter. She sent her small son, Charles, to the truck to get the butter and as the truck started off Mrs. Charlton was horrified to see Marilyn lying on the road beneath the truck. Before she could attract the driver's attention the wheels had passed over her body. The little girl was thought to have been at the house and to have come to the road unnoticed.

Still breathing the little girl was carried to the house and Dr. R. A. Thompson of Wellington was called. While looking for splints to bandage a broken leg, the girl suddenly died, presumably from internal injuries.

Coroner Dr. Thompson has ordered an inquest, the date not being immediately set. County Constable Earl Marvin of Wellington, investigated.

P.E.I. Meat Strikers May Work Pending Conciliation

(By The Canadian Press)

Amid indications that strikers in Prince Edward Island may return to work pending conciliation of their wage demands, labor ministers and other high officials from seven provinces convened in Toronto today to discuss means of ending the nation-wide strike of 12,000 packinghouse workers.

All provinces except British Columbia are represented at the conference which may name a conciliator for the 12-day-old strike called by the United Packinghouse Workers of America (C.I.O.) to enforce demands for a minimum hourly wage in the packing industry of 92 cents.

Increases sought average 17 cents an hour.

Labor Minister Daley of Ontario is presiding at the conference in the Members' Room of the Ontario Parliament Buildings at Queen's Park. The meeting is closed to press and oublic but twice-daily press releases are planned.

A proposal that provincial labor ministers and officials of their departments from all the provinces confer annually on matters of mutual concern will go before the meetings, first of its kind ever held.

Labor Minister Daley said yesterday he was hopeful the conference would be able to devise a formula for settling the strike, which involves employees of Canada Packers, Swift Canadian and Burns and Company.

The Union demands national-scale conciliation but the Federal government, which relinquished emergency labor powers last May, cannot intervene without provincial consent.

Premier J. Walter Jones of Prince Edward Island announced last night that leaders of 70 striking U. P. W. A. members in Charlottetown were ready to accept terms of a government order-in-council under which they would return to work pending national settlement of the dispute. They would go back at wages prevailing before the strike but would receive a government bonus of 50 cents for every hog slaughtered during the three weeks following their return to work.

Implementation of the formula hinged on acceptance by the head office of Canada Packers, employers of the 70 workers and approval by union headquarters.

80 P.C. Accidents Are Caused By Human Failures

Brantford, Sept. 26 —(CP)— Eighty percent of accidents in industrial plants are caused by human failures, delegates attending the fifth annual meeting of the Grand River Valley Division, Industrial Accident Preventions Associations Inc., were told here yesterday.

R. G. D. Anderson, director of job safety training for the John Labbatt Ltd. plant of London, said to reduce the number of mishaps "workers must be educated and continually trained."

Every job in a plant should be analyzed and broken down as a means of preventing accidents.

Delegates from Guelph, Kitchener, Galt and Brantford attended the convention which was presided over by W. A. Osbourne of Galt, dicision chairman. About 500 delegates attended.

Louis Lang of Kitchener was guest speaker at a banquet last night. He said that Canadians wanted security based on a high standard of living, economic justice and individual freedom.

"This can only be achieved through a system of free enterprise, an incentive system," he said.

"Labor must learn that the best way wages may be raised is by increasing output. There must be peace on the industrial front and the time to start is now."

Eldon Willis, of Kitchener, was chosen chairman of the division for the coming year. F. D. Howell, Brantford, was re-elected secretary.

Vice presidents of the division will be: Ivan Metz, Kitchener; A. H. MacKenzies, Fergus; S. Moffett, Galt, and B. Kenny, Brantford.

President Needs Sense of Humor States Truman

Washington, Sept. 26. (AP)—President Truman said today that "if you don't have a good sense of humor, you're in a hell of a fix" when you are President of the United States and have to work from 5 o'clock in the morning to 11 o'clock at night.

State bank commissioners, who took time out from their convention here to visit the White House heard him say that and laughed loudly when he told them he always got "the jitters when I have to talk to a banker."

He told his audience that in touring the White House they had just been in "the finest prison in the world."

Presidents, he added, are prisoners of the public, but most of them like it.

He told them about going down to a Washington bank and coming out to find traffic blocked in four directions by persons who realized he was there.

He told about sitting on the portico of the White House and deciding to take a look at a ball game of Negro players just outside the grounds. He said he walked across the lawn, accompanied by some police and secret servicemen.

"When I got there," he grinned, "the ball game broke up and they came to peek through the fence at me."

Bodies of Six Crew Members of Milverton To be Removed Today From Blackened Hold

Iroquois, Ont., Sept. 26 (CP) — Bodies of six crew members killed in the explosion that rocked the collier Milverton after her collision with the oil tanker Translake may be removed today from the fire-blackened deck and hold of the coal-carrier.

Four other crew members are missing and believed dead. They are thought to have plunged into the fiery curtain of oil that spread over the St. Lawrence River after the collision early Wednesday near this eastern Ontario town.

Of the crew, 13 were saved but two died of injuries after being rescued, nine still are in hospital and two escaped injury.

John Widdis, 21-year-old engine room oiler previously reported in critical condition in hospital at Ogdensburg, N.Y., notified his parents in Stratford, Ont., last night that he was uninjured.

None of the Translake's crew was injured.

Searching Party on Board

A boarding party of Ontario provincial police and new York state troopers found six bodies on a search of the still-smouldering Milverton last night. Earlier in the day a worker from the tug Salvage Queen sighted four bodies huddled together on the afterdeck.

He said two of the bodies were lying face downward. He suggested the men were injured in the explosion and managed to make their way to the deck but were unable to jump overboard. In the hours after the collision, flames ravaged both bow and stern of the vessel and made rescue attempts impossible.

The police boarding party tentatively identified five of the charred bodies but declined to release the names until definite identification was established.

The Salvage Queen was expected to continue efforts today to pull the Milverton free from a rock shoal on which she grounded and tow her to Iroquois for examination which may help investigators to determine the cause of the collision. Efforts to release the ship yesterday were unsuccessful.

HEN TAKES OVER CAT'S FAMILY

Decatur, Ill., Sept. 26 — (AP)— Because Virgil Bland's cat ignored the box he had prepared for her expected kittens and invaded a hen's nest for the birth, she has lost her family temporarily.

Katsy, who had tested the softness of the nest last year, returned to it last week to bear five kittens. When she left the nest temporarily, the hen moved in and took over the mothering job.

Now the hen won't let Katsy near the nest. Owner Bland has to remove the kittens when their feeding time comes.

Favors Immediate Termination Of 25-Year Mandate

Early Withdrawal British Troops Seen in Decision

Lake Success, Sept. 26 — (CP) — Britain told the United Nations today that she has decided to pull out of Palestine completely regardless of the outcome of current Palestine deliberations before the U. N. General Assembly.

Colonial Secretary Arthur Creech Jones advised the Assembly's 55-power Palestine committee that Britain favored immediate termination of her 25-year-old League of Nations mandate.

He announced the future of Palestine is in the hands of the U. N. and that "in the absence of a settlement" Britain has decided "for an early withdrawal of British troops and of the British administration from Palestine."

Not Committal

Creech Jones did not commit Britain definitely to the report of the Assembly's committee of inquiry, which recommended the Holy Land's partition into Jewish and Arab countries. He said, however:

"I cannot easily imagine circumstances in which we should wish to prevent the application of a settlement recommended by the assembly."

The main problem was enforcement of the Assembly's recommendations. He said the U. N. itself must handle this problem.

"His Majesty's government are not themselves prepared to undertake the task of imposing a policy in Palestine by force of arms.

"Likewise, in considering any proposal to the effect that His Majesty's government should participate with others in the enforcement of a settlement, they must take into account both the inherent justice of the settlement and the extent to which force would be required to give it effect."

Statement

Creech Jones began his 1,000-word statement with a declaration that Britain was in substantial agreement with the 12 general recommendations submitted by the U. N. Palestine inquiry committee (U. N. S. C. O. P.), including termination of the league mandate and U. N. action to aid displaced persons in Europe.

He said Britain was prepared to make specific proposals on the problem of displaced persons at a later date.

Taking up the inquiry committee's recommendation for the future government of Palestine, Creech Jones said:

"I desire on behalf of His Majesty's government to state that they endorse without reservation, the view that the mandate now should be terminated . . .

"We accept this necessity and shall willingly lay down the obligation imposed upon us so that the goal of independence may be brought without realization."

NOT ENOUGH SCRAPS FOR PIGS

South Charleston, W. Va., Sept. 26 (AP) —Mayor A. V. Fitzwater said yesterday the city had been forced to sell 57 pigs it kept at the city dump to consume the garbage collections.

Not enough scraps for them in recent week, he explained. "Began to look like razor backs."

SUBSIDY RELIEF ASKED IF PRICE CEILINGS LIFTED

Farmers Faced With "Real Emergency" Due to Strike of Packinghouse Workers

Kelowna, B.C., Sept. 26 (CP)—Livestock producers in Canada, faced with reported "period of real emergency" because of the Dominion wide packing house dispute, shortage of feed grains and the contemplated early removal of price ceilings on coarse grains, today were awaiting the federal government's reaction to a three-fold recommendation for the solution of their problems.

The directors of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, an organization composed of farm groups claiming three-fifths of Canada's farmers as members. During the course of their three-day convention here urged the government to implement the following:

1. Put into effect measures of relief, "by subsidy or otherwise," concurrent with the lifting of price controls on coarse grains.
2. Establish immediately a Dominion Export Control Board to supervise the movement of livestock to the United States: This board to accept livestock at public market price levels in effect at the weekend prior to the cessation of slaughterings at Canada Packers', Burns' and Swifts' plants. The resulting surplus funds to be utilized in the interests of the livestock industry.
3. Remove temporarily any restrictions to the slaughter and sale of livestock in any community. They also urged cities, towns and villages to remove whatever sales restrictions they have to the minimum which public health demanded.

The federation said it regretted that the government had progressively removed ceilings on the many commodities related to agriculture until now ceilings remained only on coarse grains and meat which the government announced would also be removed at the earliest appropriate time.

The extreme shortage of feed grains after a poor harvest this year, together with the price increase which would follow the ceiling price removal, would create "a problem of exteme emergency which may gravely imperil those sections of farm industry" and bring about a serious food shortage.

During the convention, concluded yesterday, resolutions were also passed urging federal government to enact Dominion natural products marketing legislation, pressing for a uniform time system across Canada and asking the removal of the sugar ration.

SAYS FLUORESCENT LIGHTING WOULD SAVE U.K. MUCH COAL

London, Sept. 26 (Reuters) — Britain could save 2,000,000 tons of coal yearly by the general adoption of fluorescent lighting. Sir Clifford Patterson, Fellow of the Royal Society, told a London audience last night. Sir Clifford was giving a lecture to commemorate the discovery of the electron by Prof. J. J. Hhomson of Cambridge 50 years ago—an event which led ultimately to the splitting of the atom and the production of the atomic bomb.

Discrimination Against Negro Girls Exists in Number of Canadian Hospitals

Toronto, Sept. 26 (CP)—Discrimination aganist Negro girls seeking to become student nurses exists in a number of hospitals across Canada, according to the results of a Dominion-wide survey of 58 schools of nursing.

The survey, made public yesterday, was conducted by the National Council of the Y.W.C.A. in the form of a questionnaire sent to 178 hospitals. More than two-thirds of hospitals receiving the forms did not reply.

Public attention was focussed on alleged discrimination practices this week when a hospital in Owen Sound, Ont., rejected the application of Marrisee Scott, 21-year-old Negro girl, for admission to a nurses training course. The Mayor of Owen Sound was so displeased with the situation he came here to interview Health Minister Kelley but the minister said he could not intervene.

No regional basis was found for the anti-Negro discrimination. One Toronto hospital disclosed a hostile attitude, while on the other hand the University of Toronto nursing school was praised by the council for its willingness to lower education requirements to admit Negro students.

Returned questionnaires recorded no rejections on the grounds of race, but the council noted "a real tendency to discriminate specifically against Negro girls."

Indian and Chinese girls are more readily accepted in nursing schools, the survey showed, and the open discrimination practised against Japanese-Canadians during the war has eased off.

SHORT CHANGE ARTISTS REPORTED IN TRENTON

Short change artists are reported to be working in the district with Trenton police stating that a chain store clerk in that town was yesterday short changed to the amount of $10 following a series of transactions. Police in Belleville advised local merchants to be on the lookout.

According to the Trenton report two men walked into the chain store, one of them purchasing a package of doughnuts and tendering a $20 bill in payment. After the purchaser had received his change the other man pulled out a five dollar bill, two, two dollar bills and some silver and asked for the $20 bill back. The pair then made another small purchase and left the store.

But when the clerk checked her change she found she was just ten dollars short. Although given a good description of the pair the Trenton police were unable to locate the two men.

Y's Men Hear History of Nylon

Miss Stella Sprowell and Mr. Harry Hants of the Nylon Division of Canadian Industries Ltd., Kingston, were guests at the regular Y's Men's Luncheon on Thursday evening, when Mr. Hants presented a movie on the birth and growth of Nylon, and Miss Sprowell in a very interesting address carried her audience from the basic products of coal, air and water up to the finished Nylon product.

Speaking of the vast research campaign being carried on to improve the qualities of Nylon so that it could be used in almost every type of clothing, the speaker mentioned stockings, dresses, sandals, blouses, handbags, etc., as present products, and within a very few months, Nylon would be available in Men's Shirts, Suits and Coats, also in Nylon Yarn for knitting.

The speakers were introduced by Ed. Shortt and thanked by Larry Buck.

President Don Williams presided. Jack Wilson was Sgt. at Arms, Alec Gordon, pianist, and Roy Wilcox, song leader.

Y'menettes were special guests at the dinner and were given a welcome by the president.

PARDON US, SIRS

Winnipeg — (CP) — Two 'girls' entered a beer parlor here recently and consumed ale with the rest of the customers. The proprietor told them women were not permitted in Manitoba beer parlors. Their gruff return, — "We're not women — we're only dressed up for a masquerade," was their pass in.

Board of Governors Recommends City Take Over Ownership of Hospital

The Board of Governors of Belleville General Hospital have recommended that the hospital building and equipment be offered to the City of Belleville it was made known to members of city council at their regular committee meeting Thursday evening.

During committee meeting a letter from the Board was read stating that at the last meeting of the Board, members had recommended that the hospital be offered to the city and asked that council indicate by early November whether or not the offer would be accepted.

Committee Named.

Acting on the Board's letter council named a committee of Mayor Follwell, with Aldermen Clarke and Lattimer and the city comptroller to instruct the municipal auditor to obtain all particulars regarding the hospital offer by the Women's Christian Association and report to council.

A committee of Aldermen Armstrong and Duffy was named to interview the firm of Meadows and Critoph, town planning engineers, to ascertain information as to plans for annexation of properties immediately adjoining the city. The city desires the information immediately.

James Matthews, market clerk, was voted $50 per month for collecting and servicing the parking meters while Alderman Clarke was authorized to procure an itemized account of expenditures of the local Industrial Commission up to September 15th of this year. A new hot water tank was authorized for the fire hall.

The city solicitor was instructed by recommendation to prepare a by-law requiring all charitable organizations in the city who wish to solicit contributions from the citizens of Belleville to join one community chest organization with only one solicitation per annum and a committee be named to administer the fund.

Discontinue Sidewalk Plowing.

Council will not purchase any more equipment for sidewalk snowplowing, the city to revert to removal of snow from sidewalks by hand cleaning by residents and property owners. The purchase of a new one-way snowplow for cleaning city streets was recommended at a cost of $418.

The city disclaimed liability for the account of Margaret Tait, indigent patient at the Mrs. M. Cain Nursing Home at Foxboro.

The city comptroller will ascertain from the solicitor if an application has been made for patents to the waterfront areas recently surveyed by the Ontario Land Surveyor.

A committee of Aldermen Harvey and Clarke with City Engineer Charles Mott and the Comptroller will investigate the request of L. Wayne Francis to extend his store at the corner of Dundas and Church Street to within one foot of the sidewalk. This would mean an extension of approximately seven feet.

A committee of Aldermen Harvey, Duffy and Armstrong with Mayor Follwell and the city engineer will investigate the advisability of constructing a concrete curb on King Street from Colborne to Brock Street, while a committee of Aldermen Hyde, Armstrong with the Comptroller and Engineer will consider a request from V. M. Amodeo for the construction of a garage at the corner of Moira and Ponton Street.

But little they know the heartache
Our smiles hide all the while.

Investigation Now Turning To Inquest Phase

Winnipeg, Sept. 26 — (CP) — Investigation into the Canadian National Railways' Labor Day train wreck at Dugald, Man., turned to the inquest phase today following conclusion of the three-day hearing held by the Board of Transport Commissioners.

Attention of witnesses and legal counsel alike swung sharply towards the pending inquest — likely to resume Tuesday at Transcona — following a submission advanced yesterday by J. J. Kelly, Winnipeg lawyer representing the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen and the Order of Railway Conductors.

He suggested that the engineer of one of the two trains involved in the collision, which claimed 31 lives, might have been stricken ill just before the crash.

In advancing the suggestion that Gay Lewis, 62-year-old Transcona resident and engineer on the campers special which smashed into a standing eastbound Transcontinental train at the small Dugald village, had been taken ill suddenly while at the controls Mr. Kelly said he was surprised the point hadn't been introduced earlier.

It would have been logical for evidence to have been submitted on the findings of an autopsy performed on Mr. Lewis, he said.

The other main point brought out during the hearing's last day was the charge by another counsel that disobedience on the part of the special's head-end crew had caused the collision.

A. K. Dysart, C. N. R. assistant general solicitor, said that "such breaches of the rules as have been observed (in the evidence) were due to the Minaki special."

The same charge had earlier been made by L. St. G. Stubbs, representing Donald F. Tedlie, Dugald signals operator who had been on duty the night of the mishap. Wednesday Mr. Tedlie was cleared of all blame by the railways in connection with the accident and his job restored. He is still on $5,000 bail, however, posted following his arrest by R. C. M. P. on a coroner's warrant shortly after Labor Day.

Bellvue Acceptance Corp. Declares Dividend

The Board of Directors of the Bellevue Acceptance Corporation, Limited, at their meeting today, declared the regular quarterly dividend of $1.25 per share on the preference shares of the company.

The president, Mr. C. M. Cawker, in presenting the financial statement pointed out to the meeting that the results to date had been in excess of expectations. He called attention to the fact that the co-operation which this company received from the Belleville Finance Corporation Ltd., was in no small measure responsible for the satisfactory results. These two companies were the only local institutions of their kind operating in this area, and between them were able to provide the community with a complete borrowing and instalment purchase service.

The matter of the cheese board meeting every week again came up for discussion but no action was taken. Buyer Richard Hart asked why the board would not meet every week, claiming there was no ceiling on cheese. "It would be a step backwards," he stated, "all other boards in the province are meeting weekly."

Mother States She Could Give Child Proper Care

Toronto, Sept. 26 (CP) — The breakfasts seven-year-old Terry McKee ate at his father's 14-room summer home at Port Austin, Mich., yesterday occupied Mr. Justice Dalton Wells of the Ontario Supreme Court after the boy's mother, 39-year-old Mrs. Evelyn McKee had stopped weeping from the stand in yesterday's session of the hearing to establish custody of the child.

The lad who had been the bone of contention for six years between Mrs. McKee and her divorced husband, Mark T. McKee 60, United States Airline magnate and former Michigan Republican politician, is at present living at his father's farm at Linwood Ont., 23 miles from Kitchener. Mrs. McKee has been trying to regain custody of him since he came to Ontario in the spring.

At the close of Mrs. McKee's testimony and cross-examination yesterday Mr. Justice Wells said he wanted her to search her conscience carefully before answering this question.

"Do you want Terry because you feel you can do better for him than his father or because you want to take him away from his father?"

Mrs. McKee burst into tears and sobbed that she loved the boy and felt she could take better care of him.

If she did not get sufficient resources from Mr. McKee she would support herself and the boy. "I can design dresses," she said.

His Lordship suggested some workable plan to share the child's custody might be worked out but that a six-months split custody would not be workable since the child went to school for nine months a year and "he deserved a good education."

G. R. Brock, K.C., Mrs. McKee's attorney, called as witness Joshua Stever, 63, farmer of R.R. 3 Moorefield about 12 miles from Linwood with whom Terry has been living.

Mr. Stever told how he had worked as a gardener for Mr. McKee at the Port Austin home for a few months in the spring of 1946 but had left "because the meals weren't what they should have been."

He told of having to get his own breakfast after the housekeeper left and of taking Terry to school "sometimes without his breakfast," even after the new housekeeper, Miss Nettie Eastman of Cornwall, had arrived. He had to get the boy's breakfast at times.

He added that Miss Eastman had "not paid an awful lot of attention to the child. Her attitude was just that of a housekeeper."

Under cross-examination Geo. Lochead made McKee's counsel ask why the witness had not got the boy's breakfast along with his own.

"It was not my business," Mr. Stever replied "my business was to get the horse hitched and get him to school. Terry was not up early enough for me to get his breakfast."

"It was your business to get him to school. Why didn't you get him up in time?"

"It was not my duty to get the boy up," Mr. Stever said.

Mr. Justice Wells entered the debate about breakfast to try to clarify the witness' apparently conflicting testimony that he had not got Terry's breakfast and that he had and had not told Mr. McKee about the boy's lack of food. Mr. Stever said he had told Mr. McKee once.

Previously, Miss Margaret Kirby, Mr. Brock's secretary, and Mrs. Wilbur Hiller, both of Kitchener appeared to testify to Ms. McKee's good character. Mrs. McKee is living with Mrs. Hiller.

Progress of Fair

Belleville Agricultural Society has closed a memorable exhibition, one of the best in its long history. Twenty-seven thousand people passed through the gates and each of the three days drew large crowds. As for the exhibits and the program, those who were present at the annual fair know best how much they meant to the success of the exhibition.

The fair brought to these thousands three days of round enjoyment, interest and education. The proof of the importance of the district from which the fair draws its attendance was seen in every phase of the show.

The exhibition has now reached the stage where large crowds can be expected even if the weather should prove adverse. The evening before the opening there had been a heavy downpour which in other parts of the Province caused heavy damage but on Monday and the other two days of the exhibition the fair was auspicious as far as fair weather was concerned though threatening at times, but these threats did not materialize and the programs day after day were carried through in their entirety.

The fair board under whose auspices the district fair was held can take pride in the result of their 1947 show, which has added another to the long train of successes that have favored the society.

The inspiration of this year's record will bear fruit in the planning for next year. For the agricultural society does not lose interest after the annual show ends but consistently goes forward with plans to assure the public in the next year a fair of which they may be proud and in which they can find plenty of attractions.

A great deal of effort goes into the success of such an institutian. That is true of the Belleville Fair as well as of others. Only planned co-operation, the interest of the rural and urban public and the progressive spirit of the exhibitors can create success.

This year's results assure success for next year's exhibition.

This Autumn Scene

October, the month of color, is not far off. Already there are traces in the foliage of the trees of that rich embroidery of nature which is characteristic of a Canadian mid-autumn. Nature is in readiness for the grand panorama of beauty in the richness of the maturity of the year, the climax marking the fullness of harvest. To many nature's coloring at the coming time is its best though it is the flush and color that mark the ripeness of the year.

The equinox has come and gone and the sun begins its slow but steady retreat to the south where the farthest south of its course will be observed a few days before the Christmas feast.

At this season there comes a calmness in nature as of rest after the growing of spring and summer months. Summer's birds have been gone for some time. The air is still.

Autumn's pageantry will shortly unfold with the beauty of reds, crimsons and golds, woven in patterns which words cannot describe and which only the eye can appreciate and transmit to the brain of the observer.

And other big events are ahead, besides the mass coloring of the countryside with the blaze and glory of the foliage. There are yet many fall fairs to draw their thousands upon thousands of visitors and spectators, there are those autumn festivals, those gatherings when the whole countryside population assembles for church anniversaries and suppers, where the proof of the wealth of the harvest is in the eating at these enjoyable autumn feasts. In Canada these events hit a high mark of enjoyment for the year.

Into this Ontario scene comes a sense of quiet and rest after the toil of preparation of the land, and planting, the care associated with the growth of the crops, and the gathering-in of harvest-home. Such a time and such a mood bear the symbol of the value of life, reward after labor. The human spirit is then in full accord with the spirit of life.

Roller-Bearing Locomotives

An interesting experiment is to be made on Britain's railways this year. Twenty-two of the one hundred and fifty steam locomotives being built in the workshops of the London - Midland - Scottish Railway are being fitted with roller bearings. The aim is to obtain higher annual mileage and lower maintenance costs with smoother and faster running. If the tests are satisfactory this new method of construction will be more widely adopted. It is anticipated that a further advantage will be the reduction in coal consumption. But further experiments in fuel economy are also being carried out on twenty engines fitted with special-type valve gear, ten of which will have roller bearings. The different groups of locomotives will be tested against each other and the comparison of results will include a detailed examination of the running costs.

Singing Roads

Walt Whitman, "cosmic loafer" of Camden, N.J., would find his "Song of the Open Road" oddly streamlined on Route 6 in New Jersey today.

Whitman contentedly ambled on foot, inhaling "great draughts of space." The modern motorist speeds along a six-lane highway, and woe betide him if, with old Walt's loose impulsiveness, he weaves pleasantly back and forth from lane to lane. From now on, when he veers out of his own proper lane, the road will hum or sing as a warning to him to get back to the straight and narrow path.

Highway engineers are thinking of translating that wordless song of warning into the words, "Get over. Get over." What would the great-hearted Poet of the Open Road say to that?

We do not think Whitman would believe in freedom any less today than when he announced:

> From this hour I ordain myself loosed > of limits and imaginary lines,
> Going where I list, my own master
> total and absolute.

But he would find that freedom is a more disciplined thing than 19th-century anarchic individualism recognized. "One's self I sing, a simple separate person," he wrote, yet even then he did not forget to "utter the word Democratic, the word En Masse."

If the busy highway of today sings of law and restriction, it still sings of freedom to the individual who freely welcomes law for the good of all.—Christian Science Monitor.

Smell of Frost

After the last belated summer day has pulled around the bend with slow, sticky stride there is bounce and pep in September's step. Dry air replaces Dog Day sultriness. There is a welcome tinge of coolness in the mornings. A deep-blue sky replaces the faded, washed-out color of the Thunder Moon month.

The sweet fragrance of rowen comes from meadows and upland mowings where farmers are harvesting the last of the hay crop. Fruit hangs heavy on the bough and kernels are glazing in the ear. Pumpkins are dots of gold among brown stalks of corn and ripe cucumbers are long yellow hyphens on the brown page of the garden.

The land drowses through peaceful hours. But when the lower-circling sun begins to drop near the horizon there comes a subtle smell that tells a story. It is compounded of Earth's fulfillment; it is blended from goldenrod and aster, sun-cured grasses and maturing leaves. It is spiced with the red of swamp maples' pennants and the pungency of fall-plowed soil. There's the good aroma of ripening pears and apples and the acridness of acorns and beechnuts. After the evening chores when a man pauses a moment in the darkness he is certain. It is the smell of frost on September breeze. — New York Times.

JUST FOLKS

POISON IVY

There is a reason, I suppose,
For all the various ills and woes
Which fall to man 'twixt birth and death;
For what is termed "unpleasing breath";
For fevers and for ague's chills
And everything that calls for pills.
All things are ruled by nature's laws.
For every pimple there's a cause.
But, only Mother Nature knows
The reason poison ivy grows.

It thrives near summertime resorts,
Where lovely maidens dress in shorts,
And barefoot children gayly run
And flesh is open to the sun.
Lest golfers grow too stiff with pride,
It lies in wait where golf balls hide,
And grievous is the price he pays
Who lifts his ball before he plays.
A punishment—all golfers read—
Which justifies the noxious weed.

Yet even that I would forego
To spare the pains its victims know.
So sly, so venomous with hate,
So meek that plant trifoliate,
Yet, fearing human hands so much,
It poisons with the slightest touch.
The innocent and base alike
Without a warning it will strike;
And that is why I cannot see
Why poison ivy has to be.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

How many times has the Vice Presidency been vacant?

The Constitution does not provide for choosing another Vice President in case of his death, resignation, removal or succession to the Presidency and consequently the office is often vacant.

Since 1789 the Vice Presidency has been vacant 15 times. Seven Vice Presidents have died in office — Clinton, 1812; Gerry, 1814; King, 1853; Wilson, 1875; Hendricks, 1885; and Sherman, 1912. One resigned — Calhoun, 1832. Seven vacated the office to succeed to the Presidency — Tyler, 1841; Fillmore, 1850; Johnson, 1865; Arthur, 1881; Theodore Roosevelt, 1901; Coolidge, 1923; and Truman, 1945. During the first 158 years of the Federal Government the Vice Presidency was vacant more than one-fourth of the time.

The Vice President has no duty as such except to preside over the Senate and even that duty is generally performed by a Senator. The sole purpose of the office is to have a person constitutionally qualified and elected to be ready to step into the President's shoes if anything happens to the latter.

Some have advocated abolishing the Vice Presidency on the ground that it is an office vacant too often to serve the purpose for which it was designed. It is an interesting fact, however, that during the first 158 years of the Federal Government no President has died when there was not a Vice President to succeed him and no person who has thus succeeded to the Presidency has died in office.

With a few exceptions the Vice Presidents have been inferior to the Presidents and the Secretaries of State in stature as statesmen and national leaders. This is due in part to the common practice of nominating "first-class second-class" men for Vice President to compose inter-party factions and "to balance the ticket." Only three men — John Adams, Jefferson and Van Buren — have been elected President while they were Vice President, and Jefferson was the only one of the three elected President twice. While the Vice President is always a potential President, the office came to be regarded as a poor position for further advancement on merit.

After he was nominated for Vice President in 1900, Theodore Roosevelt wrote General Leonard Wood: "By the time you receive this you will have learned from the daily press that I have been forced to take the veil." In 1920 Vice President Thomas R. Marshall observed: "The Vice President . . . is like a man in a cataleptic state: he cannot speak; he cannot move; he suffers no pain; and yet he is perfectly conscious of everything that is going on about him." In his "Recollections" (1925) Marshall told this story: There were once two brothers. One ran away to sea, the other was elected Vice President and neither was ever heard of again. Vice President John N. Garner in 1934 referred to his office as "a spare tire on the automobile of government."

Letter to the Editor

Thinks D.P.'s Not Needed in Canada

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

In regards to the article in the Ontario Intelligencer of September 8th., in which it was reported that Mr. A. Cekota of Batawa had addressed the Manufacturers' Division of the Chamber of Commerce in regards to bringing 400 displaced persons over here, to alleviate the labor situation.

I worked at the Bata Shoe Co. at Batawa for two years in the tool room. Last May they laid off between 100 and 150 in the tool room and machine shop. I understand that they are now re-hiring workers. If there is a shortage of labor in Belleville at the present time I would like to get a job. I have been out of work since May 1st and have been reporting to the unemployment office every week and sometimes two or three times a week and there are no jobs open in Belleville for skilled help. Canada did in my estimation a fine job of producing during the war and all of our young men were in the services. Now the war is over there is not the production required that there was in war time, all our young men are home most of them looking for jobs, and now they want to bring in a bunch of displaced persons.

I think if Mr. Cekota would look after Batawa and let Belleville look after Belleville's affairs, it would be better for everyone concerned.

Soon Arrested After Attack On Taxidriver

Toronto, Sept. 26 —(CP) — Harold Garden, 34-year-old taxi driver, was stabbed last night in what police described as a hold-up attempt at the intersection of Yonge and Gerrard Streets in downtown Toronto. His injuries were not severe.

Five minutes after the attack police arrested George A. Warne 25, no given arrest and charged him with wounding and attempted robbery.

Garden told police that, cruising in his cab, he picked up the man identified as Warne on Yonge Street. As he stopped for a traffic light at Gerrard, the passenger ordered him to hand over his money, he said. He told police that when he refused the man drew a three-inch pocket knife and slashed his neck.

With blood streaming down his neck, Garden halted his cab with brakes screaming at College St., the next main intersection and fled. His attacker also leaped into the street.

Police watched Warne dash into a drug store but was brought up by a locked rear door. Police cornered him within 10 minutes.

Police Search North York Field For New Clues

Toronto, Sept. 26. (CP)—Detectives were to search a field in suburban North York today in the belief it may have been the scene of the "Lovers' Lane" strangling of George Vigus and Iris Scott, whose bodies were found crammed into the trunk compartment of Vigus' automobile in west-end High Park, September 11.

A search of the field yesterday yielded no clues, but police continue to believe they may find the woman's purse or Vigus' wallet, which were stolen.

A resident of North York yesterday told police he heard a woman scream from the direction of a car parked in the tall grass of the field while he was gathering dew worms the night of Sept. 10 when the pair were murdered. He said he thought the car was the one owned by Vigus.

After reading of the double killing, the man said he recalled that the car he had seen might have been one he towed out of some mud in that vicinity one night last July. A woman whom he thinks after seeing newspaper pictures was Iris Scott paid him $1.50 for towing the car. A man was with him, he said.

Goes Back to Prison "Felt Sorry for Dog"

Kansas City, Sept. 26 — (AP)— Glen (Pinky) Pinaire has spent half his 46 years behind bars and is going back to prison because, he said, he "felt sorry for a dog."

Charged with theft of the dog from an interstate shipment, he was sentenced to a year's imprisonment.

Pinaire, pleading his own case, told the court he heard a dog whining and yowling on a railroad loading dock last August and decided to get it a drink. He said his mistake was trying to "take the dog to water instead of taking water to the dog."

THE GERM KILLING IDEA

Mrs. Wiseacre says it is her inflexible rule to use a certain "antiseptic" nostrum on her hands as soon as she gets home from theatre, shop, bridge or restaurant and she believes this prevents her from catching disease. There may be a grain of truth in her belief but I'd prefer an application of soap and water for my hands.

On what do surgeons rely for sterilizing or disinfecting their hands before an operation? Almost solely on scrubbing with soap and water — and when they have gotten their hands as clean or as nearly germ-free as possible with prolonged soap and water scrubbing and repeated rinsing, they put on steam sterilized rubber gloves.

So far as the use of an antiseptic agent as a remedy is concerned say for sore throat or coryza or diphtheria, there is no evidence that such a remedy is of any value. That is, no antiseptic agent can appreciably affect the life or activity of disease germs which have invaded the tissues—and of course the germs have invaded the tissues hours before the sore throat, coryza or diphtheria develops. Although antiseptic remedies can't help the patient, they may do good in some instances by disinfecting secretions or discharges and so preventing spread of the disease to others.

Speaking killing germs, undoctored toilet soap or laundry soap itself has antiseptic germicidal and disinfectant properties superior to those imparted by the addition of redolent chemicals.

Having cogitated the question for an hour, and rolled half a dozen somersaults on it, I can think of no condition which would call for the use of antiseptic, germicide disinfectant or deodorant more efficient than one of the following: Boric acid, tincture of iodine, soap, formalin, chlorinated lime (commonly called "chloride of lime"). If I had to carry all my own medicine on a long hike I believe I'd carry only the soap.

Ordinary laundering, washing with hot water and plain laundry soap, is as dependable disinfection as any other method, no matter what disease or disease germs may have soiled or contaminated the clothes. If the washing is followed by ironing, that makes the clothes practically sterile. There is no need of using any powerful chemical disinfectant for clothing that can be washed with hot water and soap. Persons who do the washing in the home, and laundry workers, are not more exposed to disease and do not have contagious or infectious disease more commonly than the general population. This has been ascribed to the use of chlorinated lime or similar chlorine solutions used for bleaching or whitening the clothes, but it was so long before the use of chlorine-solutions in laundering became popular. Not that there is any objection to the regular use of chlorine-solutions for that purpose and for deodorizing or keeping the clothes sweet. We'll deal with chlorinating in further detail shortly.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Heartburn

What is heartburn and what causes it? I have what I suppose it is occasionally, but I find that on drinking several glasses of warm water I get relief.

(Mrs. S.P.)

Answer — The pain or discomfort due to overacidity. Send stamped envelope bearing your address and ask for pamphlet Yankee Stomach. Do not use a clipping of this item. I shudder at the idea of drinking one glassful, to say nothing of several glassfuls of warm water, but then I don't see how any one can drink mashed potato either. If you get relief from warm water, you can't find a better remedy.

I Call It Vile

My sister has been taking the mineral and vitamin supplement you recommend for adults and youths who are not blessed with ambition and pep. She writes that she hasn't felt so well in years, and her nails, formerly brittle, have become strong and easy to care for. Please tell me more.

(Mrs. E.A.)

Answer — Send twenty-five cents and stamped envelope bearing your address, for the booklet V-I-T-E Spells Youth.

So You Have Indigestion?

Three severe attacks of acute intestinal indigestion, gas pains and heart weakness in the past year . . . one doctor wanted to rush me to the hospital for operation (Mrs. E. A.)

Answer — Maybe the doctor was right. Send ten cents and stamped envelope bearing your address, for booklet "So You Have Indigestion?" If it hurts, rest assured or get as uneasy as you like about it, certainly it is not just "indigestion."

Murder Charges Against Two Are Sworn Out

Niagara Falls, Ont., Sept. 26—(CP)—Investigation into the fatal shooting of 56-year-old James Bell took on international aspects today after Police Chief R. W. Worm of suburban Stamford township swore out warrants charging Norman Kendy, 16, of Niagara Falls, and Edwin Farrington, 26, of Glendale, R.I., with murder.

Police say the man and youth are believed to have crossed the border into the United States. New York State and municipal police have been asked to join in the search and are co-operating fully, Chief Worm said.

Police were told that Kendy and Farrington had been at Bell's bungalow in Stamford township Wednesday shortly before Bell was shot to death on his doorstep. Neighbors said Bell usually carried a large amount of money and both his wallet and money bag are missing.

Kendy lived with Bell on several occasions in the last few months, police said. Investigators said Farrington twice sought shelter at the police station last week and Bell, taking pity on him, took him to his home.

Waste Less Food To Keep Europe From Hunger

—Truman

Washington, Sept. 26—(AP) — President Truman has appealed to everyone in the United States to waste less food as part of a program to keep Europeans from hunger.

Truman told a press conference that food conservation also would help the family budget.

The president said:

1. A decision on a special session of Congress for emergency aid for Europe will flow from a meeting he has scheduled Monday with Congressional leaders of both parties. He hopes a special session can be avoided and has an open mind on the subject.

2. On the long-range Marshall plan for helping European countries which help themselves and each other, careful study will precede any action and the government will move cautiously.

3. A special committee of citizens has been named to consider the immediate food problem and advise "on ways and means of carrying out the necessary conservation effort."

4. Other committees have been assigned the responsibility of studying the report drawn up by 16 countries in Paris, outlining their needs under the Marshall plan.

Truman said he had been advised that Americans waste the equivalent of 70,000,000 bushels of wheat. Presumably he meant 70,000,000 bushels a year.

Pain at Childbirth Discussed In Letters to London Times

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London. (CP) — Three-fifths of British women have no relief at childbirth and a month-long flood of letters to The Times resulted from an appeal for an "arousing of the public conscience."

None of the correspondents suggested complete unconsciousness for the mother but more urged that some form of analgesia—relief of pain without deep sleep—be provided.

Even in hospitals relief of pain is withheld "all too frequently," wrote Miss Isabel Fletcher of Troon, Ayrshire, starting the debate. Too often, she said, hospital staffs "become conditioned to a degree of suffering in the labor ward which would not be tolerated for one moment in the operating theatre."

Dr. Andrew M. Claye, professor of obstetrics and gynaecology at Leeds University, said every pupil midwife must take training in giving mothers nitrous oxide to reduce pain but suggested "more emphasis on the value of psychological and physical training" methods to avoiding pain in childbirth.

Dr. Grantly Dick Read, originator of one system of this kind being adopted by medical schools, hospitals and universities, argued that no woman should be allowed to suffer but that all pain relief is attended by some risk to both mother and child.

"Investigation during the past 25 years has proved, beyond doubt, that pain can be avoided and thereby the risks of pain relief nullified," he said.

Women's Viewpoint

Women correspondents disagreed.

"It is mockery to rely on psychological methods only," wrote Dr. Letitia Fairfield, senior medical officer for London County Council, though she acknowledged that demands for "painless labor" were dangerous and futile. The ideal was a diminution of pain and discomfort, not a complete blocking of sensation.

Juliet Rhys-Williams, vice-chairman of National Birthday Trust Fund, said the big problem was "how to overcome apathy, indifference, and a certain degree of callousness." During the last two years, she reported, more than 750 nitrous oxide machines have been sent by the fund to hospitals and district nursing associations and they "are being put into successful and increasing use."

Only once did the correspondence get acrimonious and that was after Dr. Leslie Housden of Basingstoke, Hampshire, said, "this frightening clamor for anaesthesia" was teaching potential mothers to "fear the normal function of childbirth."

"I had no fear of the pain involved before the birth of my first child, but after this, nothing could persuade me to have another baby without anaesthetics," retorted Mrs. Winifred Wilcox, Claygate, Surrey.

"Curiously enough, it is usually men who are opposed to this (pain relief)," said Mrs. Beatrice Granger of Chilwell, Nottinghamshire, mother of two children, "when they themselves do not think of having their teeth extracted without an anaesthetic."

"Some mothers express the wish to be fully conscious of what is a great emotional experience," said The Times in an editorial, but most women appreciate some relief of pain, and it would seem that there is strong public sympathy with the view that . . . there should be a routine provision of a proper service of anaesthesia or analgesia in labor for all cases in which medical opinion permits it."

LOYAL SUBJECT IN KINGDOM OF BEAUTY, BUT NO JUDGE

Baton Rouge, La., Sept. 26 — Dr. Harold W. Stoke, new president of Louisiana State University, has announced a firm policy.

He won't, despite several invitations, judge beauty contests.

His explanation:

"I learned long ago that every woman was a queen — someone's queen. In the presence of Royalty I am always a loyal subject, but never a judge."

Fire, Explosion Traps Two Men In Engine Room

Texas City, Tex., Sept. 26 — (AP) — A flash fire and explosion occurred aboard the tanker Cedar Mountain Wednesday night trapping two crew members in the engine room.

The body of one of the men was recovered early Thursday.

W. L Turner of McDonough, Ga., second engineer on the tanker, identified the body of the crewman as Third Assistant Engineer Albert Bruback of Pittsburgh, Pa.

Crew member William Fall, Flushing, L. I., said the explosion "blew me out of my bunk." Fall said he believed the second man in the engine room was a fireman.

Texas City was the scene of a major disaster April 16 and 17 when two ship explosions resulted in 700 dead or missing.

The Cedar Mountain arrived at Texas City Wednesday from Port Everglades, Fla. It is a 135,000 barrel high octane fuel carrier, Fall said.

The intense heat prevented rescuers from entering the engine room after the explosion.

REMANDED ON CHARGE

Guelph, Sept. 25 —(CP)— Mrs. Angela Anderson of Damascus, 25 miles north of here, was remanded today to Oct. 1 on a charge of wounding Ormand Bunnell, 27, also of Damascus.

Clifford is 25 miles west of Damascus.

Salvation Army Campaign Needs Your Assistance

A total of $1,016,767.19 was contributed to The Salvation Army's national appeal last year, according to Colonel Joseph Tyndall, Financial Secretary. This amount was needed to meet the deficit incurred in operating Salvation Army services in Canada for the twelve-months period. Colonel Tyndall was stressing the importance of the National Red Shield Appeal, with an objective of $1,000,000.00 currently in progress across the Dominion.

Of the amount subscribed last year $375,559.60 went towards assisting the maintenance of over 300 Corps Centres. In each of these, Salvation Army Officers, in addition to their regular evangelistic work, assume responsibility for character-building activities among young people, visitation of the sick and needy, welfare investigation and assistance.

Maintenance of 65 social and welfare institutions last year required $319,939.85. Most institutions attempt self-support, but this figure represents the deficit incurred in the operation of Children's Homes, Homes for unmarried mothers, Hostels for homeless men, Homes for the Aged, and Women's Hospitals.

Approximately $202,624.62 was needed for the training of 52 new Salvation Army Officers, payments to retired officers and national supervision. Of this amount also a portion was allocated to the rehabilitation of men and women of the services.

At all military hospitals and sanatoria visitation of the sick, distribution of threats and literature and the arranging of programs was made possible. Individual and family breakdowns were also cared for.

Considerable building extensions and renovations were also accomplished during the year, the Colonel said, but a number of important projects are being delayed until building costs level to a point where the Salvation Army feels it can use publicly-contributed funds to better advantage.

The Belleville Campaign for $5,000 is now under way. Support this worthy cause to the maximum of your ability.

Cartoonist Knows His Rural Canada

Jim Frise, Canada's top cartoonist, who draws the famous comic "Juniper Junction", started life on a farm near Port Perry, Ontario. It was here that he obtained a deep and abiding understanding of farmers and farm life. Only a man who had lived the life could get the authentic quality of humour into a comic like "Juniper Junction". This is perfectly illustrated in the "Juniper Junction" episode in The Standard this week. When Archie and The Missus bring the granddaddy of all pumpkins to show at the Turtletown Fall Fair, and Pigskin Peters catches wind of it, anything is liable to happen—and does. THURLOW LADIES' AID

2nd Thurlow — The September meeting of the Thurlow Neighbor's Aid was held at the home of Mrs. Percy Sprackett on Wednesday afternoon, September 17. About twenty-five were in attendance. A quilt was partly quilted during the afternoon. Mrs. E. Leeming took the quilt to her home and Mrs. Moncrief offered to help finish it on Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. A. Mitchell was in charge of the meeting. Mrs. R. Mitchell had made and quilted two quilts recently; one to be sent to the Red Shield work, the other taken to Mr. Rollins, reeve at Coe Hill, for some unfortunate family in the tornado swept area. Boxes of new and good used clothing were brought to the meeting to be sent to Coe Hill by Mrs. J. Bunnett, Mrs. J. Donaldson, Mrs. C. Mitchell, Mrs. D. Leeming (coat), Mrs. Moncrief (coat), Mrs. D. Atkins, Mrs. A. Mitchell (2 pair bath towels), Mrs. J. Hanley ($1.00). The boxes contained children's clothing of all kinds, goloshes, rubbers, snow suits, coats, caps, pyjamas, skirts, dresses, undergarments, quilts, curtains, sweaters, windbreakers, and many other useful items, all of which were in exceptionally good condition. $10.00 was donated to the Tornado Fund, $5.00 to the Institute for the Blind and $5.00 to the Red Shield. Refreshments were served by the hostess and conveners were in charge.

Jr. AYPA Changes Name to 'Allteen'

The Christ Church Junior AYPA is no more. At the last regular meeting it was unanimously decided to change the name to Christ Church Allteen AYPA. Other items of business included the reading of the minutes of the last executive meeting and a short discussion of the proposed publicity campaign to recruit new members. Mr. Sparling spoke briefly on the necessity of obtaining a new stove before gas is discontinued. Prior to the business session enrolment of those present for the new season took place.

Rev. Cantrell of Milford was guest speaker for the evening. He spoke of the work of the minister in a rural parish. It was felt by the speaker that a rural parson should be 'one with his people.' To be thoroughly at home with his parishioners is a basic requirement. Anything which affects the members of the rural church affects the parson o fthe rural church. A minister should adopt himself to the needs of his flock, should aid them in their daily tasks...be one with his people.

Some feel that a minister should refrain from manual labor. To Mr. Cantrell's way of thinking work is anything but degrading. Often it is when working with a man that you really get to know him. The general impression left by the speaker was one of 'closeness to the people.' Because he deals with a smaller if more scattered, group the country parson is closer to the members of his church than some of the rectors in large city parishes.

With Mr. Cantrell were six members of the young people's group of Milford. Clifford Walker, president of the Milford organization, extended an invitation to the Allteen's to join with his group in one of their meetings.

On conclusion of the regular meeting the Allteen's and their guests joined the Senior AYPA meeting downstairs for recreation and refreshments.

Mrs. W. J. Doyle Gives Report On Convention

"Two hundred and fifty members represented Canada at the International Conference of University Women, which met in Toronto during the week of Aug. 11th. to 18th.," said Mrs. W. J. Doyle, speaking to the Belleville Club last evening in the home of Mrs. A. C. Locke, E. Bridge St. Approximately forty ladies were present to hear the report brought by their representative to the Conference.

"This," continued Mrs. Doyle, "was the first International Conference of its kind to be held since the war, and the very first to be held in Canada. The next conference will be held in Sweden in 1950. Trinity College was the centre for registration and information, though the official reception was held in the Royal York Hotel, with four hundred in attendance.

Representing every continent, and dressed in the costumes of their thirty-two native lands, delegates were present from India, Philippines, Mexico and China, as well as from the Scandinavian countries, France, Austria, Czechoslovakia and Poland. The key note of every address was, "Faith in international relations", and members were urged to accept the challenge contained in these words. One outstanding speaker said,—"Let us see to it that we become part of the answer; and not part of the problem."

Work We Can Do

Dr. Helen White, professor of English at the University of Wisconsin, said, "There is work we can do. Bring people together, bring ideas together, and help the war-torn countries to re-establish educational systems. May our will to dream be exceeded only by our courage to act."

Mrs. McWilliams, first president of the Canadian Federation, submitted that university women have much to do with keeping world peace. Now is the time for educated women to give to the world the products of their minds, reaching toward liberty without distinction of race, religion or political views. Women in all countries are now taking a leading part in education.

Mrs. Doyle attended the "special interest circle" discussing "Adult Education", where eleven different countries were represented. Each delegate told of the means being used in her homeland to reach the common goal. French underground promotes adult education. In Denmark High School classes are held for men during the winter, and for women during the summer months. Progress in Poland is handicapped by the great lack of everything needful for advancement, buildings, books and teachers.

"Federation delegates were convinced that the power of the press which was a strong factor in spreading the imminence of war a few years ago, may be used to stress the importance of education," said Mrs. Doyle.

Canada and Canadian women have been signally honored, this year in having Dr. V. Douglas of Queen's University, Kingston, chosen as the new president of the International Federation, to replace Dr. Admaociwz of Poland.

Several social events during the week were climaxed on Saturday afternoon with a tea at Niagara Falls.

Mrs. Doyle thanked the club for the privilege of attending the conference as its representative; while several members voiced appreciation for the very interesting report which she had given.

SMITHFIELD W.M.S. AT HOME

The W.M.S. of Smithfield United Church entertained a missionary group from Brighton on Tuesday at the home of Mrs. E. Bedal, when approximately 35 ladies were present.

Mrs. J. Doige, president of the Smithfield society, had charge of the program. The devotional exercises conducted by Mrs. F. Edwards, leader of the Brighton group, were very inspirational. Mrs. F. Snelgrove repeated the 91st psalm, and Rev. W. Sunter offered prayer.

Mrs. E. Hendricks told an interesting story of how much missionary boxes from Canada are appreciated by missionaries in foreign fields, and suggested the slogan, "It must be Done by Me."

A vocal duet, "Will You tell me His Name?" rendered by Mrs. C. Lawson and Miss P. Lawson, was much appreciated.

Dainty refreshments were served, bringing to a close an afternoon of interest and inspiration.

Expects Fashions And Hairdos Will Not be So Extreme

Toronto, Sept. 25 (CP) —Women are all in a dither about new styles these days but fashion soon will calm down and so will extreme types of hairdos.

That's word after a European tour from Madame Marguerite, who calls herself a Canadian after spending 19 years in this country.

The small, chic head is the thing, she says. Short hair swept off the face in soft waves with side hair curling around the ears forms a neat frame for the new, snug-fitting hats.

More complex coiffures call for a draped chignon to match the draped skirt or for braids interwoven with pearls to set off evening styles. To be in keeping with the period effect of certain evening gowns, false hair is often necessary, says the Swiss born designer.

She has little to say in favor of the hairdos she saw in Paris.

"Parisian women have too much hair and it is untidy and too heavily dyed. In trying to grasp at flaming youth they have killed it."

The new long skirts? A retreat for bow-legged women, says Madame Marguerite.

"If you have beautiful legs, why not show them?"

Iroquois, Ont., Sept. 26 (CP)—I saw the charred bodies of six seaman sprawled grotesquely on the after decks of the blackened S. S. Milverton last night.

They never had a chance. Mercifully, the flames brought to them a speedy death.

Two were tentatively identified as third engineer F. Dobson Montreal, and wheelsman A. Haynes, St. Zotique, Que., after police found a wrist watch and an engineers disc.

The four others would not be identified immediately. All were very badly burned.

The only newspaperman to get aboard the Milverton, I clambered on the gutted freighter at dusk on Thursday.

I walked across the grimed decks to the after companionway of the vessel. I saw a crumpled, blackened body curled alongside the deck railing. A few feet further on I saw another body.

The open doorway of an aft cabin showed a third victim. He was lying on the floor of the cabin, his face upturned as though seeking air.

I walked past these three bodies to the stern. There, within a few feet of one another were the wizened bodies of 3 more.

One was at the bottom of a companion way. It seemed he had tried to escape the fire but the flames had struck him down. The other two, I thought, had died immediately after the sheet of flames swept from stem to stern of the vessel.

Only Six Found

Police told me they had found only the six bodies. They could not be certain, however, if remains in the aft cabin were those of one or two men.

All thought the men still missing, three or four of them, had jumped overboard only to perish in the cold waters of the St. Lawrence.

When I came aboard the Milverton, men of the tug Salvage Queen were pumping water into No. 1 hold and smoke clouds still swept across the deck. The remainder of the ship was no longer on fire.

The S. S. Milverton, once proud lake freighter, was a horrible thing to see. It was a mockery of a ship. It was burned and blackened, its beams and plates twisted at crazy angles.

On the Milverton I spoke with white-haired Mrs. Florence Dunlop, Massena, N.Y., coroner. She viewed the remnants of the six victims.

Official Clearance Given

Mrs. Dunlop gave official clearance for removal of the bodies to the American shore on Friday morning. Arrangements were also under way for return of the bodies to their Canadian relatives.

Darkness, lack of proper marine transport and the swift current eddying around the Milverton halted attempts to remove the bodies Thursday evening.

On board the Milverton were Canadian ad American Police. They searched the ship thoroughly. The Canadian officers mere Cpl. L. C. Carr, of Cornwall Provincial Police, and Provincial Constable Earl Wellesley of Morrisburg. The American officer was Lt. D. Wilcox of the New York State Troopers.

Before leaving the Milverton. I walked once more around her decks and saw the gaping holds and their cargo of water-soaked coal. The engine room, surprisingly was untouched. Papers in this section of the ship were not burned, not even scorched.

DISCRIMINATION

Hospitals operated by Roman Catholic nuns seemed generally free of discrimination, but in two of these—one in Halifax, and one in St. Vital, Man.—The medical staffs were reported as objecting to Negro trainees, although the nuns were willing to receive them.

In summarized form, here are the questions asked concerning Negroes, North American Indians, and Japanese-and Chinee-Canadians. (1) Have any members of these groups applied for admission? (2) Were any applicants admitted? (3) If admitted, were they acceptable to students and patients? () If graduated, what were their professional prospects likely to be?

Seventeen hospitals reported no discrimination and 13 said they had graduated Negro girls or now had Negro students.

Two Toronto hospitals said they had trained Negro girls as well as girls of other racial groups and found them satisfactory. A Saskatoon hospital admitted turning down a Negro applicant because it was felt she would not be happy there.

At Windor, Ont., one hopital had refused applications by two Negro girls, while the other hospital said it had two in training. "They are bright, intelligent and one is expected to be among the top graduates," the survey makers were told.

The superintendent of one Halifax hospital where two Negro students are in training wrote: "I do not think their professional prospects are very good at the present time until the public becomes educated to the importance of greater tolerance."

Winnipeg hospitals, said the pollster, apparently thought it wiser for Negro girls to train in Negro hospitals, but from Waterford, N.S., hospital authorities reported their one Negro nurse-in-training was exceptionally well liked by the patients.

YOUTH TELLS

Asks For Reporter

The man was Louis Bercovitch. Bussey entered the offices of the Herald, so the paper's story went, and asked for a reporter. He said he could lead the reporter to the slayer of the Playford girl. He and reporter Harold Gardner left the paper's office and went to the Y.M.C.A. where Bussey announced himself as the wanted man.

Later in the newspaper's office he dictated a statement and signed it in presence of a witness summoned from the courthouse staff.

Ever since the brutal weekend killing, during which the Playford girl was criminally assaulted, her head bashed in ad her body tossed in a ditch, Montreal police had been on the alert in their search for a suspect in Montreal.

Vagrant Had Alibi

Only Wednesday they released a 52-year-old vagrant held for 24 hours on suspicion in connection with the murder but he was able to offer an iron-clad alibi which, after being substantiated, led to his release.

Bussey, a drifter and wanderer around the United States for six months and subsequently was a "shill" for carnival shows was turned over to Detective Capt. Georges Allain of the Homicide Bureau by the Herald early this morning.

His signed statement, written on a Herald letterhead, was witnessed by a commissioner of the Superior Court and then given Capt. Allain for examination.

As soon as reporters ascertained Bussey was sincere and sober he was transported to police headquarters, still wearing the same brown double-breasted suit and sports shirt he has been wearing for the last week. There he was questioned by Allain and Sgt. Bill Fitzpatrick and Det. Gerry Lawton. He told them he had served with the navy on the minesweeper Malpeque and on the corvette H.M.C.S. Calgary.

Tells of 'Psychopathic Personality'

Then he added that he was in hospital at Greenoch, Scotland, for what he called a "psychopathic personality" and subsequently returned to Halifax where he was given a dishonorable discharge for stealing $1,800. He told the Herald he did so "only so that I could get the discharge."

He said he had been married for five years but was separated from his wife. He admitted to serving six months at the boys industrial school in Regina when he was 15.

The only possessions he carried were his service discharge and a booklet of advice which he said had been typed by his mother.

One of the articles read, "The loose liver canot escape sorrow and pain. The undisciplined mind falls, weak and helpless, before the fierce onslaught of passion."

Bussey told reporter Gardner that one week ago yesterday he took a 1942 car from a Gypsy named Demitro with whose family he had been touring the carnivals.

He explained that he took the car because he felt that the Demitro family were cheating him out of money.

Bussey said that he travelled around Ontario in this car and arrived in Owen Sound Sunday night.

Says He Slugged Girl

The Herald story went on:

"He gave a young girl a lift because he had lost his way and wanted directions. Bussey told me he slugged her several times with a hammer because she was screaming and then pushed her out of the car.

"The automobile subsequently stalled near Collingwood and he hitch-hiked to Montreal via Barrie, Toronto and Cornwall.

"Bussey said that he was given some pills at Cornwall General Hospital for his arthritis and he tried to take his life by swallowing all the pills at the same time. When he survived he decided to make a clean brest of the whole matter."

No Direct Comment at Owen Sound.

Owen Sound, Sept. 26 —(CP)—Police today declined direct comment on the story told by a suspect held in Montreal in connection with the sex-slaying here last Sunday night of 11-year-old Betty Playford.

The Montreal Herald said the man had signed a statement in the newspaper's office last night admitting he was the killer. The statement said in part that he gave a young girl a lift in Owen Sound Sunday night and that he slugged her several times with a hammer, then pushed her out of the automobile he was driving.

Owen Sound police said their investigation indicates that a hammer "could have been" the murder weapon and that a car "might have been used" by the slayer.

But first reports indicated no car was involved, they said. A woman who reported hearing the scream of a child about the time Betty disappeared told police she did not hear a car.

Say No Record of Hitch-Hiker.

Cornwall — (CP) — Cornwall general hospital has no record of a hitch-hiker who stopped here this week and was given pills for his arthritis, officials said today, commenting on a Montreal report of a suspect held in connection with the slaying in Owen Sound, Ont., five days ago of 11-year-old Betty Playford.

The suspect was said by the Montreal Herald to have signed a statement in the paper's office that he was the killer of the little girl. Part of his story was that he hitch-hiked from Owen Sound to Montreal via Barrie, Ont., Toronto and Cornwall.

He said he was given pills at the Cornwall hospital and tried to take his life by swallowing all of them at the same time.

The hospital said there is no record of any such man.

Hotel Dieu hospital also reported no record of the hitch-hiker incident in the suspect's story.

Checking on Story.

Toronto — (CP)— Provincial Police here today confirmed a Montreal report that they were checking a story told there by a suspect being held in connection with the slaying in Owen Sound, Ont., last weekend of 11-year-old Betty Playford.

Officers said they had to move slowly on the case and it might be some time before they could say anything for publication regarding a statement signed by the man in the office of the Montreal Herald last night admitting he was the killer of the child, whose body was found in an eight-foot ditch on the outskirts of Owen Sound. At the time police said Betty was criminally assaulted before she was beaten to death with what was believed to have been a blunt instrument.

BANDITS WAIT ON CUSTOMER

Nashville, Tenn., Sept. 26 — (AP) — Two daylight bandits staged a double "holdup" at a grocery Wednesday.

Grocer James D. McMillan said they took time out to wait on a customer, and "robbed" her by charging 10 cents too much for a pound of turnip greens.

FIRST MEAL IN 26 YEARS

Pittsburgh, Sept. 26 — (CP) — Mikey Schuster lay in a hospital bed today and concentrated on drawing up a menu for his first honest-to-goodness meal in 26 years. His throat seared by lye he swallowed as an infant, the 29-year-old Youngstown, O., furniture worker has had to take all nourishment through a stomach tube without tasting or chewing it. But now two successful operations have altered Mickey's internal arrangement and detoured the closed portions of his esophagus.

What is Your Housing Problem?
BY R. A. HUMPHRYS, B.Arch., M.R.A.I.C.

There are three main types of houses—bungalow, 2-storey and 1½ storey. Many people believe that a bungalow is the least expensive type of construction, but it's not. The cost of building and maintaining a bungalow is greater than either of the other types. There are several reasons. In the first place, a larger excavation is required, unless the owner decides to only partially excavate. More foundation and roof areas are needed, and a bungalow is more difficult to heat, resulting in higher fuel bills. One big advantage, however, is the lack of stairs. See The Standard this week for more details on things to be considered when building a home. The Standard is on sale now for 10 cents at all newsdealers.

The stricken Milverton is pictured shortly after collision with the tanker Translake in the St. Lawrence River. Heavy smoke and flames can be seen high in the sky. The ship is still burning in the river and police fear another explosion from large quantities of engine oil aboard. The collision and explosion may have possibly taken a toll of 12 lives, it was reported.

Launch Explodes, Burns, Petty Officer Drowns

Halifax, Sept. 25 —(CP)— Petty Officer Leslie Edward Weaver, 26, married, of Kingston, Ont., and attached to the Canadian Fleet Air Arm station at nearby Eastern Passage, was drowned early today when a motor launch exploded end burned in the Northwest Arm.

Petty Officer Hugh F. Clark, 27, of Chester, N.S., another Fleet Air member, suffering shock and undetermined injuries, was found clinging to the side of the charred launch. He told rescuers he held onto Weaver until the man slipped from his grasp.

Oarsmen rowed to the burning craft and rescued Clark. Later a naval diver started a search of the area for Weaver's body which has not yet been located.

The two men had set out in the launch Gypsy G. from the Dartmouth marine base for the Jubilee Boat Club on the Arm. On the return trip an explosion occurred and the launch burned to the water. The force of the explosion threw Clark into the water but Weaver jumped from the burning boat.

An investigation is being held into the cause of the explosion.

MOUNTING WAVE ANXIETY SPREADS AMONG FARMERS

Threatened With Loss of $75,000,000 Worth of Slaughter - Bound Livestock

Kelowna, B. C., Sept. 25 —(CP) —A mounting wave of anxiety today is spreading among Western Canada farmers and ranchers who are threatened with serious loss to more than $75,000,000 worth of slaughter-bound livestock unless settlement is reached in the packing house dispute.

Drastic emergency measures have already been recommended to the federal government by the Canadian Federation of Agricul- of the strike on its 450,000 farmer ture to offset the crippling effects members.

At an open meeting of the directors here yesterday, George Ross of Aden, Alta., president of the Canadian Beef Council said cattlemen were in danger of being deprived of market outlets for between 400,000 and 500,000 head of beef cattle and an unestimated number of feeder cattle and hogs.

This livestock was intended for slaughter this year but with Canada's major packing houses strikebound, farmers and ranchers would be saddled with their surplus production which they could not afford to keep.

"I don't care who settles it—either the Dominion of Provincial governments — but somebody has to," said Mr. Ross.

Severe Criticism.

Severe criticism of government handling of the strike came from W. T. J. Bulman of Kelowna, B.C., who charged that federal and provincial governments were merely "passing the buck."

He demanded that the federal government declare the situation a national emergency — and presumably take over the plants — and warned that "if this condition continues the government is in danger of losing its moral authority."

The federation, which has already urged the unions to call back their men to work while provincial and federal governments join in "the most aggressive action" to bring agreement by arbitration, also suggest as an emergency measure the establishment of a Dominion Export Control Board to supervise the movement of livestock to the United States.

The federation felt that this would provide an indirect solution to the packing house strike, although it would not improve the acute meat shortage.

Canadian Beef Council President George Ross said shipment of cattle to the U. S. would mean $125 more a head for rangers and farmers but would probably raise the price of beef to Canadian housewives by 10 or 12 cents a pound.

Calgary Stampedes Jack Oakie

"Cowboy" Jack Oakie was recently "stampeded" at Calgary by hundreds of autograph hounds while on location for Eagle Lion's $2,000,000 horse opera which uses scenic Alberta for a background and the Calgary Stampede. For six consecutive weeks some 100 Hollywood directors, actors and technicians commuted some 75 miles from Calgary to a typical Alberta ranch to shoot one of the most ambitious cowboy film in technicolor movie history. Titian-tressed Joan Leslie, who was educated in Montreal and Toronto, plays the role of girl ranch foreman. Co-star is James Craig, cast as a footloose rodeo rider, and Jack Oakie supplies the laughs. This week The Standard carries a four-page photo story on this motion picture epic. Niagara Falls, Ont., Sept. 25 — (CP) — Chief Constable Melvin D. Tisdale announced Wednesday that the suspension of Constable W. R. Kinghorn has been lifted by the police commission.

BETTER LIVING

TODAY ALL CANADA is benefitting from the tremendous impetus given Canadian scientific research during the war years.

In university, research foundation and industrial laboratories, increasing numbers of Canadian-trained scientists are working on projects which will make for better Canadian living. Staffs of the National Research Council laboratories have increased four-fold since 1939. Their activities are being maintained at the same high level as during the war—but now devoted to the needs of peace.

Research workers today are constantly opening up new fields of Canadian endeavour, giving wider scope for Canadian skills.

Organization of graduate schools by Canadian universities in the early years of this century marked the first important advance of research in Canada. The National Research Council was established in 1916 for the encouragement of scientific endeavour on a national basis.

Science in Canada before the war had already to its credit several achievements of world significance—among them, Rutherford's original work on radio-activity, Saunders' development of Marquis wheat, Banting's discovery of insulin.

In 1939 began a cooperation in research never before attained in Canada. The contributions of Canadian scientists in such fields as atomic energy, radar, aircraft design and the development of super-explosives, won world recognition.

"OPPORTUNITIES TODAY...GREATER THAN EVER"

ALEX FORST with his brother Edward took over their father's modest little hardware shop in Vancouver 17 years ago. The early years were difficult, but, profiting from their errors, maintaining sound policies and always hard-working, they slowly expanded the business. New lines were regularly added until today they operate the biggest retail independent house furnishings organization in Western Canada.

MR. FORST says: "Our early faith in Canada as the country in which to build a business has been confirmed and strengthened. Just as Canada is a much greater country than when we started out, so too Canadian opportunities today are much greater than ever for those now commencing their careers."

Dunbar Accepts Responsibility For Dismissal

Toronto, Sept. 26 — (CP)—Hon. George Dunbar, Ontario minister of reform institutions, Thursday said Henry S. Murray had been dismissed from the staff of the suburban Mimico reformatory for making remarks about Premier George Drew at a meeting of the Civil Service Association last week.

Mr. Dunbar said he took full responsibility for the recent dismissal of Mr. Murray who was quoted at the meeting as having said: "If we civil servants seek to unionize, Mr. Drew will reach into his bag of tricks for that old tattered red flag of his and shout 'communism' in true fascist style"

The minister said he "would not allow such remarks to be made about the premier or any other minister of the government," as Mr. Murray was reported to have made.

The dismissal was branded today by the provincial executive of the Ontario C. C. F. as "a deplorable act of intimidation."

46-POUND MELON BIGGEST IN 7 COUNTIES

Brantford, Sept. 26 — (CP) — Biggest watermelon in seven counties is the claim of Joe Barabas, township grower, for his 46-pound monster which is three feet seven inches in circumference. Seed, from which it grew, was sent by Barabas' uncle in Hungary.

Mystery still surrounds the death of James Bell, who was found murdered Wednesday afternoon in his small cottage (above) on the outskirts of Niagara Falls. Bell is said to have operated the place as a steak house, patronized by Niagara Falls couples.

James Bell,
Formerly Vincent Cupola, who was found in pool of blood at foot of cellar steps.

Arnold Gay,
Niagara Falls baker, who discovered Bell's body when he called at the cottage to deliver rolls at 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Verna Thorne,
25, neighbor of murdered man, who said she heard a shot Wednesday afternoon but paid no attention to it, because "there was always shooting over there."

Closer Relations Between Unions Being Debated

Hamilton, Sept. 26 — (CP)— Closer relations between Canada's big labor organizations — the Trades and Labor Congress and the Canadian Congress of Labor —looked today like a major topic of debate at the 62nd annual convention here of the T.L.C.

Several local units of the T.L.C. have petitioned the head office for action toward a closer liaison with the other Congress and it was forecast these moves would be followed up at the convention.

Some of the proposals under the head of Labor unity were for joint action by the two Congresses in laying down their legislative programs before the federal government, an initial step in which these bodies have not joined previously. Suggestions made to the T.L.C. by some of its 2,625 locals were that Labor's hand would be strengthened by both groups putting up a joint program.

The Winnipeg and District Labor Council was the chief proponent of this stand, which also was backed by locals in Toronto, London, Cape Breton, Victoria and other British Columbia centres.

On the unity question, another point expected to develop at the convention was that of membership raiding as between the two unions.

Some proposals have been presented to the T.L.C. executive for an agreement with the C.C.L. that would eliminate "poaching" by either union on the other preserves. These, it was expected, would be discussed before the end of this week.

Yesterday, the Congress heard resolutions touching on the question of communism.

It heard condemnation of J. A. (Pat) Sullivan, who resigned as president of the T.L.C.-Affiliated Canadian Seamen's Union.

Sullivan received a pasting from Harry Davis, C.S.U. president, and Jerry McManus, Secretary of the Union.

Ivanhoe

Ivanhoe (Special) — The Anniversary services held in the United Church on Sunday were well attended and very successful in every way. The addresses given by Rev. Charles A. Perkins of Belleville were much appreciated and many complimentary remarks were heard from those who had attended the services. The heavy rain and strong wind storms which passed over here in the early evening made attendance unpleasant and interfered with the Hydro, the lights being off for a time. Many telephones have been partially out of order since the storm.

The public school sessions were cancelled on Tuesday on account of so many children going with their parents to Belleville Fair on that day.

At a recent public meeting the congregation of White Lake decided to hold a supper in connection with the anniversary services and during this week a meeting was held at which the detail arrangements were completed.

Mrs. C. W. Thompson, of Stirling has returned to her home after a visit with her daughter Mrs. Clifford Mitz, and her family.

The heavy frost on Monday evening killed nearly all the vines and caught many people with cucumbers, tomatoes and other vegetables still in the gardens. In spite of efforts made by many to protect them by use of sacks and straw, the flowers also were badly damaged.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was taking a walk with pop for the good of his appetite and the improvement of his figure, and some of the fellows ran passed having a race, Skinny Martin being away ahead, and pop said, That Martin boy seems to have the making of a good runner.

Sure, and believe me he knows it, too, he's always bragging how fast he can run, I said, and pop said, Well, there's nothing like self confidence to bring out the best that's in you, in any line of endeavor.

It's his long legs that do it for him, that's all,, I said. Good night, anybody with legs like that cant help running fast. All they've got to do is just let their legs go, I said, and pop said, Now that's very intristing and proves an old theory of mine that nobody can excell in anything without nature's help. A great runner needs the gift of long legs and a long wind, and a great painter must have long hair and a naturel color sense. He knows instinctly that bernt orange mixed with medium well done tomato gives charred bannana, he said.

Anyways, running ain't everything, I said, and pop said, I agree with you. Walking is more healthful, even if it's less spectacular, he said.

I mean I can beat Skinny Martin at something, I said. I can make my little finger and the one next to it move sideways both together, and that's something Skinny cant do no matter how much self confidence he's got in his long legs, because every time he tries he gives up in diskust, I said, and pop said, Every athlete to his own specialty. Allow me to congradulate you, I hope you feel sattisfied, he said.

Well, kind of, I said.
Meening not quite.

Five Japs Executed For War Atrocities

Guam, Sept. 26 — (AP) — A Japanese general and two other officers convicted of cannibalism and two other condemned war criminals were hanged for atrocities mainly against downed U.S. fliers.

Accompanied by a Buddhist priest brought from Tokyo, they walked without a show of emotion to a scaffold where an army executioner carried out last October's verdict of a United States military tribunal.

Tanaka was condemned for slaying seven U. S. fliers with a sword on Truk, former Japanese naval bastion.

Igawa was sentenced to hang for decapitating a Guamanian while he was inspector of Japanese civilian police on Guam.

German Miners Think Industrial Problem Based Solely on More Food, But British Experts are Baffled

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Dortmund, Germany, Sept. 26 (CP) — To the coal-stained miners of the Ruhr, Germany's industrial problem is not so complicated as it seems. Their remedy is simple and direct: "Give us more food and we'll dig more coal. Then industry will work again and others will get more food, more fuel, more clothes and more houses."

This seemingly obvious policy, however, has baffled Britain's finest experts and control commission officials in the British zone wring their hands in despair at the mention of it.

As crisis after crisis shakes the zone, new aspects of the problem arise which concern not only Britain but the government of the three other zones, for the allies are far from United in their plans.

Meanwhile German workers obliged to supplement their meagre rations with black market purchases, readily accept assertions that the lack of food is part of a deliberate policy to starve them.

To ordinary men and women in this much-bombed industrial town British handling of the food crisis is disappointing and bewildering. Some are even surprised at the extent to which the black market is allowed to flourish when, in their view; it could be combatted with larger rations.

"It has reached the point where workers are absent for days on end because the money they earn will not buy enough food for their families," said a high British official.

"It would be futile to prosecute these small black marketeers. for one thing there are too many; for another we can't blame them when we are not supplying enough for their needs."

Dr. J. J. Kersken, adviser to German Ministry of economics in Duesseldorf, said every yard of fertile land in the Ruhr was being farmed "yet even the miner who has the best rations of any German worker gives up his own food for his family."

A British Official said one contributing factor was that German administrators had failed to adopt the British zonal system by which civilians register at individual stores for their supplies.

"German ration books can be used anywhere. If there is no bread in Dortmund, housewives rush over to another town and clean up supplies there. It is a chaotic system but the Germans preferred it to any other."

Restaurants in most German towns open only a few hours a day. They have little to sell and precious coupons have to be given up even for a slice of bread.

Devotes Life to Defeat Dread "Dry Guillotine"

Paris, (CP)—Brigadier Charles Pean was 19 when he entered the French branch of the Salvation Army. He joined them with one objective—to work for abolition of Devil's Island, the dreaded penal colony in the malarial swamps of French Guiana.

Today his life's goal is in sight. All but 800 of the liberated convicts, those who completed their sentences but had little chance of ever getting back to their homes, have been returned to France. The 2,718 convicts who still must finish out their terms soon will be transferred to a new prison in France.

No convicts have been sent out to the "dry guillotine" off the northeast coast of South America, 100 miles from the equator, since 1938, when France decided to abolish the penal colony. But the process of closing down Devil's Island, interrupted by the war, has been slow.

Napoleon III established the colony more than 90 years ago. As many as 90 per cent of the 70,000 criminals sent there died before completing five years of their sentences in the disease-ridden colony.

Pean concentrated first on getting help to the liberated convicts. These were men required to serve "doublage"— compulsory exile in the colony for a period equal to their prison terms.

For most, this "doublage" was the equivalent of life banishment. Even if they lived long enough to complete the double term, they had to find the money to pay their passage back. Most of them, ostracized even by relatives and friends, wandered the streets of Cayenne, dressed in rags and ill with tropical disease.

Helped Repatriation

After years of agitation Brigadier Pean won permission to visit the colony in 1928. He established workshops and farms where these liberated convicts could work for wages to cover half their passage home. The Salvation Army provided the other half.

Pean made five trips to the island. The French government invited him to serve on the commission which drafted the law abolishing the colony.

Up to the outbreak of war in 1939, when the work was interrupted, Pean had got 804 of the liberated convicts back home. Dressed in broad felt hats, open cotton shirts and cotton trousers, they returned to native soil many of them had all but forgotten.

So strong was the shock of finally finding themselves free for some of the returning men that they dropped dead upon stepping ashore after 40 or more years of exile.

Since the end of hostilities permitted resumption of repatriation a total of 1,582 liberated convicts have been returned. This practically completed that phase of work, because the 800 or so remaining were so aged and riddled by disease that doctors advised against their repatriation. The Salvation Army is establishing permanent hospitals in French Guiana to care for them.

The 2,718 prisoners still serving out their time are scheduled to be moved to a special prison on the Ile de Re, off the French Atlantic coast. And Pean is working for an amnesty to shorten the sentences of many of these.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

You are not amazed at the amount of information that pours from a single bidding method. You expect it, sort of. What you marvel at is why players still use less-revealing cumbersome systems.

We were told about this pair of hands:

SOUTH
♠K Q 7 2
♥A 7 4
♦A K Q 2
♣K 10

NORTH
♠A 8 5 4 3
♥9 8 3
♦None
♣A Q 9 6 2

Their bidding went like this:

South	North
1 S	3 C
3 D	3 S
4 NT	6 C
7 S	Pass

South explained how he knew the grand slam was a sound bid. It started with what was shown by the three club one-jump by north. Such an immediate one-jump promised six tricks with two sure.

Tricks are one for each high card (ace or king or queen) and one for each short card. Four no-trump is the ace-king asker. In The Kibitzer convention, six clubs shows two aces and no kings.

Two of the north six tricks are admittedly aces. No kings are there. The other four tricks must be queens and shorts. Even if two queens are there, the other two tricks must be shorts.

With clubs bid and spades assisted, the shorts must be in red suits. Thus, north can have no more than a total of four red cards. South has four solid reds. So there can be no red losers.

If there is any reason to expect a loser, it would have to be in a black suit. The blacks are known to have aces and kings. If the north hand does not have the club queen, the third round can be ruffed.

This leaves only the trump suit to consider. Ace and king and queen are there. Plenty of support is promised. It should be solid.

Just as if they had eyes.

THINGS WORSE THAN EVER, HE SAYS

Fort Erie, Sept. 26 — (CP) — Jacob Hanes, local railway veteran celebrating his 92nd birthday, says he disagrees with those who say the world is getting better. Hones started work as a tannery boy at $4 a month for a 15-hour day. Now he says: "I've seen a lot of trouble and hardship in the world, but today things are worse than I've ever seen them."

AT THE McCARTHY — Heading for another Academy Award, beautiful Joan Fontaine plays the title role in Universal-International's drama of suspense and intrigue, "Ivy", starting today at the McCarthy Theatre. Patric Knowles, Herbert Marshall and Richard Ney are also featured.

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Sept. 26 —(AP)—Just when you think things can't get worse, they do. Hollywood has been suffering the doldrums in recent months, due to an economic revolution in the industry, and it doesn't appear that conditions will improve.

The British film tax sent United States studios reeling and the wave of personnel upheavals, cost-cutting and re-gearing of product isn't expected to end until well in 1948. One important reason for the delay is the fact that studios do not like to shoot pictures over the holidays. Production is held to a minimum for tax reasons and because the bosses don't feel the holiday spirit is conducive to efficient picture-making.

Wired Jaw.

Merle Oberon is still sporting a wire on her jaw. She reports the injury occurred when she slipped in the shower while abroad on the "Berlin Express" location . . . Van Johnson is back for re-takes on "Virtuous" and told me how he took Evie and her children to the San Diego zoo during his short vacation. He didn't want to go but his wife convinced him he could get by with a disguise. So he slapped ointment on his face and donned a yachting cap and dark glasses. He wasn't in the zoo five minutes when someone said: "there's Van Johnson."

Animated Alice.

Walt Disney has tested 500 youngsters for his "Alice in Wonderland" and has narrowed the field down to four. One radio actress appears to be the favorite. But Walt still hasn't decided whether the feature will have a live Alice or be all-cartoon . . . Rosalind Russell, who seems like such a nice girl, enacts a murderess in "The Velvet Touch."

AVERAGE $49.29 EARNINGS FOR U.S. FACTORY WORKERS

Washington, Sept. 26 — (AP)—United States factory workers earned an average $49.29 a week in August, the Bureau of Labor statistics reported. The record high of $49.37 was set last June.

AT THE BELLE — Jane Wyman and Claude Jarman, Jr., is co-starred with Gregory Peck in "The Yearling," M.G.M.'s Technicolor adaptation of the prize-winning novel, closing a six days' engagement at the Belle Theatre tonight.

Woodbine Staffords Overcome Petes' Lead

Toronto, Sept. 26. (CP)—Woodbine Staffords overcame Peterborough DeLavals four run lead to win 10-6 in the first game of a best-of-three series for the O.A.S.A. Senior "B" Crown here last night. The second game of the series will be played Saturday night in Peterborough.

DeLavals collected four runs in the first inning when Pitcher Hal Prescott of Staffords gave up two hits and two walks. Lead off-man Bob Crowe walked, advanced to third on George Walton's line-drive and scored when Eddie Starr singled.

Shortstop Howie Dalton walked to load the bases. Jim MacNess batted in Walton but was out at first. First-sacker Charlie Recupero of Staffords bobbled the throw to first allowing Starr and Dalton to tally and Jim Ellis to reach first safely.

Peterborough collected their other two runs in the seventh when Dalton hit a two-bagger scoring Starr and then came home on MacNess long fly to right.

Staffords jumped ahead in the fourth when they scored four runs after being held down to single tallys in the second and third frames. One run in the fifth, two in the seventh and one in the eighth put them four runs ahead.

Good pitching by Hal Prescott of Staffords, who gave up 10 scattered hits to Ron Acker's 16, held DeLavals in check.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON Jr.

New York, Sept. 26 — (AP) — If the 1947 Brooklyn Dodgers have learned the lesson that Pepper Martin taught all National Leaguers back in 1931, this may be the running-est World Series of all . . . you remember Pepper, of course, the brash young Oklahoman who was said to have "the speed of a sprinter and the aggressiveness of a fullback." . . . He merely ran and worried the favored Athletics ragged that year stealing five bases, stretching singles into doubles, hitting .500 and making gray hairs sprout on the heads of the A's pitchers.

In Jackie Robinson, the Bums have a player who could easily become another Pepper Martin. He's fast and daring on the basepaths and a good enough hitter to get there often. Jackie's 27 stolen bases don't tell half the story; its his ability to stretch hits and to score on infield grounders that really upsets the opposition . . . the Martin-Robinson resemblance extends even to the salaries—Pepper was paid $4,500 for the 1931 season . . . In addition to Jackie, Brooklyn has another running threat in Pete Reiser, who set a stealing-home record last year, and a few others who can step—and even if the Bums' memories don't go clear back to 1931, they should remember how the 1942 Cardinals ran the Yankees off the field and last year's series-winning gallop by Enos Slaughter.

Leo, incidentally, found he had ballooned to 190 pounds after eating movie grub for a couple of weeks while he was on location with his wife, Laraine Day.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor.

Practically six complete teams, three professional and three amateur, will be tossed over the boards at Memorial Arena tonight when the Philadelphia Rockets "Regulars" meet the "Yannigans" or amateurs in their first crucial test of the season.

* * *

Coach Wally Kilrea, who will guide the destinies of the pros from the bench will send his regulars in intermittent relays, and Manager Max Kaminsky who will master-mind the amateurs from the opposite side of the arena, will do likewise. The ice is reported to be in splendid condition and the rapid changing of players will guarantee sixty minutes of sustained speed and action.

* * *

Coach Kilrea announced his line-up today. In goal will be Maurice Courteau, starry former Montreal net minder. On the defence will be big Jack Portland, Jimmy Drummond, Ed. Bush, Billy Walsh, Fred Ferrens and Al. Shewchuk. Flanking Johnny Mahaffy, starry centre player of the pros, will be Steve Wochy and Mike Narduzzi. On another line Walter Stefeniw will guard the centre ice area and his wingers are Leo Richard and Wendell Jamieson. Kenny Kilrea will do the playmaking for the third line and he will be flanked by Phil Hergesheimer and Chuck Kraiger.

* * *

Guarding the twine for the Rookies will be three goalies, Freddie Sparks, the Stratford flash; Bruce Philbey, and Ivan Walmsley. Defence stalwarts will be "Stew" Stewart, Keith Telton, Joe Delmonte, Boyd Prentice and "Tuffy" McEwan.

* * *

Up front the simons pure will have Lougheed centreing wingers Walter Natchuk and Nick Bangay; Louie Milani will take care of the centre ice job between wingers George DeFelice and Fred Kovalchuk, while Art Thompson will be flanked by Walter Zuke and Web Webster. Ralph Buchanan, a right winger, will also see service.

* * *

The officials for the game will be "Toots" Holway, referee and "Speedy" St. Louis, linesman. The game will get under way at 8.30 sharp, and the players will be introduced to the fans prior to the facing of the first puck.

* * *

The professional squad went through a strenuous drill this morning starting at nine o'clock and all reported to be in good shape. The amateurs also had a heavy workout, and Trainer "Lefty" Jordan reports no casualties in that camp.

* * *

Orville "Rusty" Waldriff, veteran campaigner of the American Hockey League and a member of last year's Providence Reds, reported to the Rocket's camp yesterday and says he will be ready in a day or so to take up his position on the defence. "Rusty" a former Port Colborne "Sailor" started his pro career in 1939-40 with the Springfield Indians. He played for Buffalo for the next two years and has seen action with the Dallas, New Haven and Minneapolis teams.

* * *

O.B.A. Convener Ernie Summers announced today that Messrs. Frawley and Reason, Kingston arbiters, whose work as officials in the last Trenton Flyers - Batawa game was outstanding, have been named for the Batawa - Peterborough playdown joust at the Exhibition Park tonight. The game will start at sharp eight o'clock under the lights.

* * *

Both teams will be at full strength for the third and final game of the series and Manager Bill Easton will send his ace righthander, Gerdy Muffitt, to the mound. There is no information as to whom the Petes will start, but you can bet your wife's last nickel he will be the best they've got.

* * *

A number of baseball fans of this village are taking off for Gotham early next week to see the subway World Series between the Brooklyn Dodgers and the New York Yankees. Jack Yanover and party are among those going while Vernon Weir will accompany brother Alex, of Niagara Falls, to the baseball classic.

To Mrs. (Dr.) George Faulkner, starry lady golfer of the Bay of Quinte Country Club, goes the honor of being the first player to represent that organization in the Canadian Ladies' Golf Championships. Although Mrs. Faulkner was defeated in the third round, she turned in a highly creditable card, and her play ranked with the best turned in by other than big-name lady players.

"Red" Townsends Belleville Collegiate Institute football squad get their initial test of the season at Albert College tomorrow (Saturday) afternoon when they meet the strong Peterborough C. I. squad in the first joust of the Senior C.O.S.S.A. football schedule. The Petes won the C.O.S.S.A. title last year and are reported to be as strong, if not stronger, than the team that copped the titular nod in 1946. The B.C.I. gang, however, is not an aggregation of weaklings and the game should be interesting. The affair starts at sharp three o'clock — and there is no admission.

* * *

Meanwhile, down in Kingston tomorrow gloaming, the Albert College senior team under the direction of Don Huycke will take on the Regiopolis team in the first game of an exhibition series. Albert boasts a strong aggregation and the Kingston Collegians will know they've been in a ball game before the final whistle toots.

* * *

In the afternoon the Galloping Ghosts of Cobourg, tackle the Queen's University Seconds. The Ghosts will boast a lot of Belleville "spirits" on their lineup. Big Vern Goyer, who is rated as one of the most powerful linemen in the district; Don Huycke, fleetfooted backfield star of Western U. last year; "Widge" Donovan, sturdy lineman and Allen Kelleher, another bucker, will be seen in action on the Ghosts' lineup. And don't be surprised if you see Dicky Fitzpatrick doing a "Hamlet" as quarter for the Blithe Spirits of Cobourg.

* * *

The sympathy of this city, especially in the realm of sport, goes out to the family of the late Flying Officer S. H. "Bud" Johnston who died yesterday in Sunnybrook Military Hospital, Toronto, after a lingering illness. "Bud" was well-known in football and hockey circles here prior to the war. He was a star gridder for the B.C.I. squad previous to his attending Queen's University where he made a name for himself with the college football squad. "Bud" signed with the R.C.A.F. team in the Greatest Game of All in 1940, went overseas and was discharged in 1945. We knew "Bud" personally. He was a grand guy; a man's man, who saw his duty and did it. He was here last year in connection with "Y" work but was forced to relinquish it due to illness.

N.H.L. Puck Chatter

(By The Canadian Press)

Old Hardrock Murph Chamberlain, Montreal Canadiens veteran centre who'll fight at the drop of a puck, is up to his old tricks. Just to get in some practice for the coming National Hockey League season, Murph traded punches with Gerry Plamondon in a brief flareup along the boards during yesterday's ice session.

The Habitants are still chuckling over the way Tom Rockey, rookie rearguard who left last night to join Buffalo Bisons, arrived in Montreal for his Canadiens tryout. It seems Tom is in the undertaking business out west and the boys relate, he breezed into camp driving a hearse.

On the serious side, coach Dick Irvin is pleased with the work of two new Canadiens defence prospects. Irvin thinks both Hal Laycoe, who came to the Habitants from New York Rangers, and Doug Harvey, up from the amateur Montreal Royals, have good chances of catching berths.

The injured knee of which big Bill Durnan had an off-season operation is still slow mending but Canadiens expect their all-star goalie to don the pads for the first time Monday. In his absence, the opposite net chores at Montreal are being divided by Gerry McNeil, up from the Allan-Cup Royals, and Jack Donlevy, a junior from Sudbury, Ont.

Managing director Conn Smythe announced the signing today of two juniors from Toronto St. Michael's, last year's Memorial Cup winners. They are Phil Samis, a rugged defenceman, and Fleming Maskell, tough little right winger. It is expected both will wind up with Pittsburgh Hornets, training with the Leafs at St. Catharines, Ont.

Ironically, both Samis and Mackell missed most of yesterday's 80-minute Leafs scrimmage, the defenceman with an attack of stomach flu and Maskell with a gash over his eye.

Gus Mortson, the prospector from Northern Ontario who reported in to Leafs' St. Catharines camp with a sore neck, was sent back to Toronto for treatment by the club's physician.

The Rangers gained a recruit yesterday when Manuel Bonero arrived at Lake Placid, N. Y., and asked for a tryout. He was Dartmouth goalie for the past four years and manager Frankie Boucher plans to give the American boy a chance.

The defence shortage is so acute with Chicago Black Hawks that owner Bill Tobin is rumored ready to trade one of his name forwards for a rearguard. A few months ago he offered Alex Kaleta, who reported yesterday to the Hawks Regina camp, but found no takers.

The Hawks laid out the red carpet today for the last of their regulars to report to Regina — the high-scoring Bentley boys.

Detroit Red Wings signed Leonard (Red) Kelley, fast-breaking defenceman from Toronto St. Michael's yesterday, and that makes five of last season's Dominion junior champions to join the monied ranks. Besides Mackell and Samis, Toronto signed Les Costello and Bob Paul previously while Eddie Sandford was snopped up by Boston Bruins.

Just where Kelly, a stocky 180-pounder, will fit into the Detroit chain will be decided when the Red Wings advance contingent who trained in Saskatoon arrives Saturday and joins in practices with the other half of the Wings, who did their early work in Waterloo, Ont.

GIVEN 16 MONTHS

Whitby, Sept. 25 (CP) — Accused of grabbing a 64-year-old woman from behind as she milked a cow, Norman Carlton, 36, of Pickering township, was sentenced by Mr. Justice George A. Urquhart yesterday to 16 months in reformatory on a reduced charge of indecent assault. He was originally charged with attempted rape, his arrest following an incident July 30, after the aged woman had identified Carlton as the man who grabbed her.

WEAKEST HURLING STAFFS EVER TO ENTER SERIES

Dodgers' Corps Complete Only 46 Games With Yankees' Staff Getting 72

By JOE REICHLER

New York, Sept. 26 (AP)—The 1947 World Series between New York Yankees and Brooklyn Dodgers will see the weakest pitching staffs that have ever carried their teams to major league championships.

Certainly no team has ever entered a World Series before whose mound corps had hurled a total of only 46 complete games as has this year's edition of the Dodgers. The Yankees' hurling crew which has accumulated a much more decent total of complete games —72, to be exact — has fared even worse than the Brooks during the last two months.

Since July 27, not one of the Yankees' big four of Allie Reynolds, Frank Shea, Bobo Newsom and Floyd Bevens has gone the route more than three times. Shea finished only once during that time.

The Brooks' hurlers, since July 27, have started the same number of games and have gone the route in 17. The big four of Ralph Branca, Vic Lombardi, Joe Hatten and Hal Gregg have pitched 15 complete games in 43 tries. That doesn't indicate that the Dodgers pitching staff is any world beater, but at least, it compares favorably with that of the Yankees

Some observers are pointing at the fine showing of the Yankee hurlers since the American League pennant was clinched. Reynolds and Benens have pitched shutouts and Newsom and Shea have hurled low-hit games which makes it look like the staff is all set for the series.

In the end it probably will be up to Joe Page and Hugh Casey to settle the issue. Page is hailed in some quarters as the greatest relief pitcher to come along in a decade. Already the lefthander has appeared in 55 games (no recommendation for the regular crew) and since July 27 has come to the assistance of his mates no less than 30 times. His won and lost record is 14-7.

Casey, Brooklyn's ace fireman, has hung up a 10-4 mark in 46 relief appearances. Like Page, he has saved many others, although the portly right-handed rescuer has been on the sidelines since Sept. 12 with a sore arm. The arm is reported to be sound again, however. Casey has a worthy relief mate in Hank Behrman who despite a 5-5 won and lost figure, has done yeoman work on the hill in close to 50 games.

Prospects are that Reynolds, biggest Yankee winner with 19 successes, will face Branca, 21-year-old Brooklyn ace, in the first game. Both are right-handers. Branca with a 21-12 mark, is the only pitcher on both sides with 20 or more victories.

OSHAWA GENERALS OUT

Oshawa, Sept. 26 (CP) —Tommy Anderson, new coach of the Oshawa Generals Hockey Club, had his team out for their first workout of the season here last night.

Among new defence prospects were Ray Aleksiuk of St. Mikes' Buzzers and Frank Sullivan, of last year's De La Salles, Junior A champions.

Dusty Blair, down from Timmins, Jerry Scott of Winnipeg Monarchs and French Mayer, with San Francisco last year after two seasons in Galt, were standouts.

Filchock's Status Appears Headed For a Showdown

Montreal, Sept. 26 — (CP) — The status of Frank Filchock in the Big Four football circuit appeared to be headed for a final showdown today after Leo Dandurand, president of Montreal Alouettes, indicated last night he was in favor of reinstating the pass-throwing Hamilton Tiger quarterback.

Dandurand, who also is a governor of the league, said Filchock "should be given the okay quickly" and that he would move to have the matter settled as soon as possible.

This reversed a previous stand of the Alouettes' executive, who along with Ottawa Rough Riders and Toronto Argos voted against participation in Big Four play by the former New York Giant ace suspended in United States pro ranks for failing to report a bribe offer.

In Hamilton, Doug Chilman, Big Four president, said a league executive meeting "may be called within a few days" to consider Filchock's status, but that "nothing definite has been decided."

Chilman pointed out that should any two other teams support Hamilton in using Filchock he could be declared eligible at least on an executive note.

Flinging Frankie has played in all three of Tigers' games this season, despite a league ruling that every fixture he engages in means an automatic loss. Chilman failed to explain what would happen should only Montreal support Hamilton if another vote was taken and resulted in a 2-2 deadlock.

T. C. (Tommy) Alison, Toronto prexy, reiterated that Argos "haven't changed their stand" on Filchock and Jimmy McCaffery, Rough Rider manager, said "We don't blow hot and cold," when informed of Dandurand's statement.

Filchock's drawing power at the gate would undoubtedly be increased if he was given the green light and any Hamilton victories could be classed as such. Ample proof that Big Four fans will flock to see the husky quarter in action was given last week when 16,000 crowded Varsity Stadium when Tigers played in Toronto, while only 13,000 watched Alouettes play Argos there the week before.

And Sammy Fox, the Ottawa coach, still rates Tigers the toughest team in the league. "They really gave us our toughest battle," said Sammy.

Brooklyn Pitching Begins Rounding into Form for World Series Clash With the Yankees

Lombardi and Branca Show Real Stuff and Taylor's Sore Arm Improves

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The Brooklyn Dodger pitching object of derision during the last few weeks, is beginning to show signs of rounding into form for the World Series clash with New York Yankees.

Only a week ago, following the failure of Ralph Branca and Vic Lombardi, two of the Brooks' front-line hurlers, in outings against Boston Braves, it was freely predicted that the Yankee power hitters would bat their brains out. Things are beginning to shape up a little differently now.

Last night at Philadelphia, it was Lombardi's and Branca's turn to shine. Lombardi, the pint-size southpaw who has been the bulwark of the Brooks' corps in recent weeks, hurled the last three innings of last night's game and allowed but one man to reach base. That was the Phils' Andy Seminick who belted a home run but could not prevent the Dodgers from winning 7-5.

In the second game, which the Dodgers also won 5-2 in 10 innings, 21-game winner Branca held the Phils to five hits and one run before retiring at the end of five innings. Harry Taylor, the brilliant rookie right-hander who posted a 10-5 won-lost record before being sidelined last August with a sore arm, made his first appearance in a month and pitched one hit ball for two innings.

St. Louis Cardinals, beaten in their attempt to retain the National League championship, clinched second place money by sweeping both ends of a double-header from Pittsburgh Pirates 15-3 and 3-1 while Boston Braves were losing 3-1 to Giants.

BOUCHER CLAIMS CANADIENS WON'T MAKE PLAYOFFS

Manager of Rangers Thinks Other Teams Have Improved More Than Habitants

Saranac Lake, N.Y., Sept. 26. (CP)—From the training headquarters of New York Rangers came today the pre-season statement of the year—the poor, unsuccessful Montreal Canadiens, who staggered to the National Hockey League championship the last four campaigns, aren't even going to be around for the playoffs this time.

High in the Adirondack Hills which provide the background for New York's new $100,000 training camp, Manager Frank Boucher broke a five-year silence to admit that this, finally will be the year for Rangers, with Canadiens skidding from first to fifth place.

And just to make things clear cut, Boucher predicted that Toronto Maple Leafs probably will finish first in the season which opens Oct. 15, with Detroit Red Wings and Boston Bruins a "toss-up" for second and Rangers moving up to the fourth and last playoff spot ahead of Montreal and Chicago Black Hawks.

"I guess this won't make me very popular around Montreal," Boucher told New York Sports writers, brought here by rail to inspect the 12-room lodge where the Rangers will live until Oct. 8. "But remember I haven't had very much to talk about for five years, and I think this finally is the season."

Canadiens will hit the skids, Boucher asserted with a little moral support from Coach Lynn Patrick of New Haven Ramblers, because "the rest of the clubs are just starting to catch up with them."

As for the Rangers, cellar dwellers for four straight years starting in 1942-43 and fifth last season, the acquisition of Buddy O'Connor and Frankie Eddolls from Montreal would provide the extra push needed to move them into the playoffs.

"O'Connor is a terrific playmaker and looks as thought he is going to fit well. As for Eddolls—he's a hard and willing worker. I think he'll be the Rangers top defenceman."

Ottawa, Sept. 26 — (CP) — Although Toronto Argonauts will be out for blood when they resume the Big Four championship struggle with Ottawa Rough Riders in Toronto tomorrow, coach Sammy (Kroy - and - Copeland - are - just - a - couple - of - Joes) Fox isn't worried.

"I'm sure they'll be tough up there at Varsity Stadium Saturday," said Fox in an interview with Bill (Ottawa Journal) Westwick, "but if they (the Argos) are improved by that time I think you'll find we'll be a better team too."

The towering, beak-nosed Sammy has been pretty quiet since his controversial pre-season crack—(bracketed above) about Joe Krol and Royal Copeland, mainstays of the double blue champions of last year. Now, with his Riders atop the O. R. F. U. and four clear wins behind him, he's willing to be conversational at least.

Fox flashy assortment of backs already has shown up well, as in last weekend's double - header with Montreal when both Tony Golab and Howie Turner were forced to the bench with injuries, but he takes his hat off to the man on the line as an "unsung hero."

"A fast - charging line is the greatest pass defence to be found" he says. "You show me the team that will out-charge our line and the odds are all in favor of that team beating us."

Argos, humiliated 23-6 by Ottawa in the season's opener, still command considerable respect in the capital, and most of the Argo abuse which followed the loss came from Toronto itself, centering about Jim (Globe and Mail) Coleman, whose post-game column was reprinted prominently here.

After reading the column, Tommy (Ottawa Citizen) Shields had this to say:

"Reading the Coleman classic, we were reminded of numerous occasions around race tracks when a losing bettor is encountered. This gent usually is one who has blown a $2 wager on a horse of his own choice. By the time the official placing is made, this character is spreading reports about crooked jockeys, needled horses, stupid officials . . . etc.

"In his tirade against the Toronto team, the Globe and Mail writer used a word that should be foreign to sport, or sports writing. We quote: 'It's the first time this reporter recalls seeing an Argonaut team Quit Cold when the score got away from them.' That word 'quit' is an ugly word, usually heard or used at long range . . ."

Coleman, after seeing Argos perform against Hamilton Tigers, took a more amiable view, and the controversy lapsed.

MIMICO CHALKS UP A RECORD PLAYOFF SCORE

Defeats Cornwall Flyers 33-12 to Win Eastern Canada Lacrosse Title

Cornwall, Sept. 26 — (CP) — Mimico chalked up a record playoff score last night, trouncing Cornwall Flyers 33-12 to take the Eastern Canada best-of-three lacrosse final by two straight games there by advancing to the Dominion finals.

Mimico will leave tomorrow for Vancouver where they will meet the Western Canada champions, New Westminster Adanacs in a best-of-five final for the Mann Cup, emblematic of the senior lacrosse title.

Jackie Macdonald and Bernie Hewitt scored five goals each to spark the Mimico crew. The Dickson Brothers, Kenny and Arch, came in for second honors with four goals each.

It was a big night for the Mimico crew as every member of the team except Rutherford figured in the scoring spree.

Cornwall netminder Jules Desrosiers had little chance to stop the avalanche of rubber coming his way as his defence all but deserted him, leaving Mimico an open target for most of the one-sided contest.

Gus Lebrun was the big gun for the homesters, with three markers while Rod Fillon and Camille Desrosiers each sniped two.

The game was played without a penalty.

The visitors got away to an early lead. At the end of the second quarter Mimico held a 22-3 advantage. Cornwall showed their best effort in the final when they sank five goals in a short-lived rally.

Heavily Fined for Alleged Breaches Of Income Tax Act

Hamilton, Sept. 25 — (CP) — George Smith of Galt, Ont., a bricklayer, today was fined $1,500 or 15 months for five alleged breaches of the Income War Tax Act. He was alleged to have defrauded the Dominion government of $3,200.

Smith also was fined $400 or three months for evading payment of tax, $300 or three months on three charges of making false or deceptive statements in income tax returns, and $200 or three months for not keeping proper records and accounts.

Billy Herman Resigns Post With Pittsburgh

(By The Canadian Press)

Boston Red Sox has purchased Neill Sheridan, 26, outfielder of San Francisco Seals of the Pacific Coast League. Sheridan, purchased for an unannounced sum and two players, had a batting average of .295 for the Seals.

President Frank McKinney of Pittsburgh Pirates has announced the resignation of Billy Herman as manager of the team. Herman's contract called for him to manage Pirates next season, and McKinney said he would remain with the organization.

Dinny Pails and Colin Long, Aussie Davis Cup team members, were eliminated in the Pacific Southwest tennis tournament at Los Angeles by Eddie Moylan of San Francisco and Frank Parker of Los Angeles.

The White Centre Athletic Club of Seattle eliminated Mount Dennis Athletic Club of Toronto last night at Phoenix, Arizona with a 4-0 score in the third round of the National Softball Congress men's tournament.

Norfolk county is to see intermediate hockey this year after an absence of several seasons. Port Cover sailors are returning to the Ontario Hockey Association's intermediate circuit. Oral Misner has been elected president of the club; Rev. A. W. Hare, secretary-treasurer; and Ted Schilk, manager.

Frank Boucher, manager of the National Hockey League, New York Rangers, is reported to be turning his attention to the filling of the left wing spot in his team. Ed Slowinski seems to be the candidate to work with Bryan Hextall at right wing and Buddy O'Connor at centre. Rangers open their season at Montreal, October 16.

Betting odds in the United States generally give New York Yankees a little better than a 2-1 chance to win the World Series. Betting Commissioner James J. Carroll released odds showing the Yankees at 9-20 and Dodgers 9-5.

BLAME COMMUNISTS

The Death of a Doll

By Hilda Lawrence

CHAPTER 23

. . . She eased Miller into position under Plummer's eyes when the other girls turned Plummer down. She'd had Miller spotted from the first, porbably because Miller appeared with April who was too easy to identify. . . . She then went upstairs and waited, and I think she locked Fister's door for added safety. Too close to the first floor. So Miller, poor little devil, had to go on up to Brady's. And in Brady's we had the business. Knockout with music box, trade masks. Then a quick look-see down the hall, another safety measure. But the elevator was ringing then, and that might bring trouble. So she took the elevator over, she didnt dare not to, and ferried Mrs. Marshall-Gill to the main floor. She returned at once to eighth. Marshall-Gill watched the indicator. Back in Brady's she finished her job, and I don't have to tell you what that was, went down to Miller's room and opened the window. Getting set for the suicide angle, see?" He gave his theory of the changed masks, the series of appearances as Ruth Miller and herself. "I've gone over that routine until I'm sick of it," he said. "It's clear. It fits with what I've been told. So what? So that's all it is. A piece of reasoning that fits.'

Then the phone rang.

Chicago had found a private residence in an exclusive suburb with the right phone number. I belonged to Norman Crawford, president of Bassett and Wright, one of Chicago's largest department stores. Crawford was not home, but they knew where he was and were getting to him fast. It would be a matter of minutes, they were keeping an open wire.

Foy sat with the receiver to his ear.

"At times like this," Mark said softly, "I wouldn't take a million for my job."

Foy said "Hello. All set here, get on with it."

The other two crowded him. They heard respect creep into his voice and saw it straighten his shoulders. He sat as if he were standing at attention.

Chicago talked, first in a hearty growl, then in a steady, flowing stream. Foy said little beyond, "Yes, sir, you have it correct, sir," but he clung to the phone as Ruth Miller must have done. He had nothing to fear, nothing to hide from, but his mobile Irish face told the watchers that Ruth was living and dying again in Norman Crawford's story. The story took seven minutes to tell, and Foy interrupted only twice, toward the end. He said, "I've got everything but the name, sir," and after that he said, "I'll be——!"

Mark knew she was Clara because her sweater was clearly a hand-me-down mended with too bright thread and fitting too well in the wrong places. She was eating bread puddings at one end of a long wooden table, and two other women were chopping soup vegetables at the other end.

The chef sat by the gas stove, dividing his attention between a pot of soup stock and a newspaper. The dinner rush had abated, the time was right for talk.

They hadn't noticed his entrance, and when he spoke to them, standing in the door that opened on the courtyard, they turned astonished faces.

"I'm East," he explained. "Mark East. It's Clara I want to see Clara and—Alexander, isn't it?"

The chef nodded. "You want to examine my hand?"

"Later," Mark said. He turned to Clara.

Clara ate steadily, her mild eyes unclouded and undisturbed. If she has a mind, he thought, it doesn't function in the presence of food. He moved the bowl of pudding ou of reach and laughed. "One thing at a time. Clara." Alexander laughed, too, and joined them at the table. Clara smiled helplessly.

"Is better you examine my hand now," Alexander said. "Later is no good." There was a red scar across his wrist, and he displayed it with loud modesty and a running comment on the capacity of Poles for bleeding and living. Mark encouraged him, tossing in names like Sklodowska, Kosciusko, and Pulaski. Alexander returned the compliment by pouring coffee, not the Hope House stock but his own special reserve. It was worth more than the time it consumed.

"Who looked after you that night?" Mark asked.

"Not her," Alexander said of the listening Clara. "She run out on me. No nationality, all mixed up, little of this little of that, all bad. But the ladies of the House were okay, and these others, the day workers, not so bad. The day workers got children of their own, and a man is like a little child when he is hurt, isn't it so? Miss Brady, no children, was very tender. Like a mother. Miss Plummer no children, no wits, arrives when the worst is over but is all kindness. Many come and go. I am always a novelty, everywhere I work I am always a novelty."

"What did they fix you up with?"

"A tight dressing. Gauze and iodine. No doctor, no stitches, I mend like a dream. It was all to the good, I have too much blood, too hot, it is okay to lose some." He winked.

Mark responded in kind. "When did this dressing arrive, and who put it on? Can you remember?"

"Me? Remember? I remember kindness, soft hands of ladies, and screaming." He glared at Clara.

Clara had been listening with a child's intentness. Now she interrupted happily. "I remember," she said. "But he don't, he can't. He kept his eyes shut, he was fit to be sick to his stomach when he saw his blood. On top of all that prune brandy. Mrs. Plummer brought it down we had to wait for it, and he drank his prune brandy with his eyes shut. Mrs. Fister is the same as a district nurse, she knows what to do. Around ten o'clock it was."

When he asked her how she could be sure of the time, it was the same old story built around the unmasking. She had been in and out of the kitchen all evening, taking her turn at guarding the punch, making sandwiches, washing the little glass cups. She had carried up a tray of clean cups a few minutes before the unmasking began. And a few minutes before that the bandage had arrived. She and Mollie and Pauline had taken turns at the kitchen work so they'd all have a chance to watch the party. She and Mollie and Pauline had seen some of everything that went on because they had taken turns. That's how she knew. Ten o'clock, as near as anybody could tell.

When he asked where Mollie and Pauline were, she said they were waiting on table in the dining room, with Agnes. Some of the young ladies ate later than others.

Four or five times she'd left the punch bowl and the clean little cups that were always getting used up, and walked to the front of the lobby to watch the young ladies. Singing as well as dancing, and playing that game where you march around chairs to music and fight over the last one. Something going on every minute.

Mark led her back, step by step, over the ground she had sketchily covered. Her four or five deflections from the bowl had taken l into disputed area, both in time and place. He gave her no theories of his own to play with a mangle, no names to tempt or confuse, no hours to recall. He g[illegible] her skillfully through the accident in the kitchen, through her turns at guarding the punch; he charted her little excursions to the front of the lobby and the doors of the lounge, where the fun was. When her mind had been brought to focus, she recaptured the night as it had literally and inexorably moved to its end.

She made the elevator hum from floor to floor, he could hear the doors clang. She put people where they were, not where they claimed to be, and she did it like the legendary child who told the world the king was wearing no clothes.

Clara didn't know how or why Ruth Miller had been killed, but she told him who had done it. He knew that already, but he needed Clara's soft say-so. If the State came up against a tough defense lawyer, Clara was the girl to make him sweat.

Mark walked and thought and talked to himself. He turned the thoughts into pictures, real and imaginary. Foy, parked in the snowy street, waiting. Sobeloff in the snowy courtyard, close to the wall for shelter, waiting. Another man on the snowy roof, watching the fire escape, watching the roof door, waiting. A man on each floor, pacing the dim halls, listening, waiting. Moran in the warm lobby. Those were the real pictures.

Will Canada Play Important Role In U.S. Aid Plan for Europe?

(By ROSS MUNRO)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Sept. 26 (CP)—In the weeks immediately ahead, Canada, which has already contributed nearly $5,500,000,000 in various forms of aid to European countries, is going to be faced with the problem of what to do about the Marshall plan—if anything.

At recent conference in Paris of the 16 European nations affected by this proposed air plan, several references were made to "aid from North America," and this has set some authorities here wondering if these European countries are expecting Canada to play a significant role in the United States scheme.

The United States, it is understood, has not approached Canada on the deal. Neither has Great Britain, and the whole situation regarding what attitude this country will take is very nebulous at present in Ottawa. But it seems likely some careful consideration will be given the question on a high level soon.

It is possible that Canada may become involved in the Marshall plan when it goes into action next year—assuming the United States Congress approves it—in her role as a supply nation.

If the European request for more than $19,000,000,000 in credits from the United States is endorsed by Congress, a considerable portion of this amount could conceivably be spent in Canada, buying needed supplies.

But this may not work out as easily as all that. In the first place, it is possible that Canada could not supply the specific requirements of the European countries.

It is doubtful whether Canada could meet large demands for such orders as rolling stock, electrical equipment, pit props, railway ties, wheat and other foodstuffs, which would be high on any list.

Secondly, this country has to consider its own domestic supply position and the contracts she already has to fulfill abroad.

But if Canada does not participate indirectly in the Marshall plan as a supply nation, it is highly unlikely she will have any part at all for there appears to be very strong opposition here to making further large credit loans in Europe—which would be the alternative method of sharing in the project.

Last Canadian Credit Loan

The government financial records show that the last Canadian credit loan to be made in Europe was in June, 1946, when the Norwegian loan was extended to $30,000,000.

Since that date all applications from foreign countries have been rejected, usually because of the Canadian supply position.

The general attitude of the financial people here obviously is against Canada going any further in advancing these credits.

This is, understandable, considering the huge amounts granted over the last five years, totalling $5,474,000,000.

The majority of this total was in outright gifts, with $1,000,000,000 made available to the United Kingdom in 1942 to purchase goods and services in Canada and $2,342,000,000 under the mutual aid program of 1943 for war and civilian supplies for the U.K., the Soviet Union, China, France, Australia, India, New Zealand and the British West Indies.

Gift of Wheat to Greece

In addition there was an $18,000,000 gift of Canadian wheat for relief of Greece before liberation; $154,000,000 to the United Nations relief and rehabilitation administration over two years and $20,000,000 in post-U.N.U.R.A. relief.

The rest of the total was in loans and repayable contributions. Under the Export Credits Act, $594,000,000 in loans to European countries was authorized; military relief supplies took $96,000,000, and $1,250,000,000 was advanced to the U.K. under the United Kingdom Financial agreements Act of 1946.

The $594,000,000 in credit loans went to eight European countries, with Norway getting $30,000,000, Czechoslovakia $19,000,000, Russia $3,000,000, Netherlands East Indies, $15,000,000, Netherlands $125,000,000, China $60,000,000; France $242,000,000 and Belgium $100,000,000.

Farmers can improve their property, and at the same time provide cover for game birds by fencing in their woodlots to keep out grazing cattle.

Whenever danger threatens her brood of downy chicks, the mother Ruffed Grouse invites death by trying to lure the intruder away from the nest. While she acts instinctively to preserve the species, we can act intelligently to help her. POLICE CHECK STORY OF CONFESSED KILLER

Burned Out Coal Carrier Beginning To Break Up

Bodies of Seven Crew Members Recovered Friday

Iroquois, Ont., Sept. 27. (CP) —The coal carrier Milverton, damaged in a St. Lawrence River collision near here and swept by fire in the resulting explosion, was reported today to be breaking up.

The Milverton has lain grounded in the St. Lawrence near this eastern Ontario town since shortly after she collided with the tanker Translake early Wednesday.

The bodies of seven crew members were recovered yesterday, boosting the known death toll to nine.

Slips Off Ledge

Reports said that the collier's stern started early today to slide off the rocky ledge on which it was resting. Within a short time the stern was almost completely under water.

By mid-morning the vessel was reported to have started breaking up.

Of the Milverton's 23 crew members, two died after rescue, the bodies of six were found in the ill-fated vessel, the body of one was washed ashore near Massena, N.Y., three are missing, nine were injured and two escaped injury.

Search of the grounded collier was delayed almost 48 hours because of the heat of the vessels plates and decks. It was not until yesterday that a combined force of Ontario Provincial Police and New York State police, was able to start the shipboard hunt for victims of the collision and blast.

Police said last night that several bow compartments remained to be searched for the three bodies still missing and that this task might take several days.

There was no official suggestion last night that the Milverton was in danger of breaking up.

Carried Saftey Devices

None of the Translake's crew was injured in the collision. That vessel, which did not catch fire, remains aground some distance downstream from the Milverton.

In Port Colborne, Ont., last night, Capt. R. Scott Misener, president of Sarnia and Colonial Steamships, Ltd., said the Milverton carried some of the latest safety devices, including radio telephone, direction finder and echo sounder. He said the vessel had been valued at between $250,000 and $300,000.

A formal public investigation is to be held into the collision. A preliminary inquiry by Transport Department officials is under way. Mr. Justice F. H. Barlow of the Ontario Supreme Court has been asked to act as commissioner in public investigation at Cornwall, Ont.

Daughter Claims Father Disowned Her in 1941

Toronto, Sept. 27. (CP) —The feudin' and fightin' McKees yesterday raised a fuss before Mr. Justice Dalton Wells of the Ontario Supreme Court when a dark chapter of family history was opened by Mrs. Cynthia McKee Pollack, 24, who testified about bad feeling between her father and herself.

The McKees, Mark T. McKee, 60-year-old, white-haired United States airlines magnate with 12 children, and Mrs. Evelyn McKee, 39 and blond, his second wife whom he divorced in 1942, have been feuding in the courts for six years over the custody of seven-year-old Terry, their only child.

Mrs. Pollack gave details of trust funds her father had set up for all his children and of how she had accompanied her stepmother away from her father's Azusa, Calif., home in 1941.

"The last time I spoke to my father was in 1941 when he disowned me," she said. Tall and slim, she wore a navy faille suit and small white felt hat. She was not wearing her wedding ring.

Later, during recess, Mr. McKee told The Canadian Press he had never disowned his daughter, adding that "I think the trust fund proves that."

Mrs. McKee has another son by a previous marriage which ended in divorce. Mr. McKee's first wife died in 1931. His second marriage took place two years later.

Terry is at present living at his father's farm at Linwood, Ont., 23 miles from Kitchener, where he was taken last spring when Mr. McKee was refused a hearing before the United States Supreme Court to appeal a California decision giving sole custody to Mrs. McKee.

The result of eight previous hearings of the case had been to give the boy to his father with his mother allowed access to him three months a year.

The present hearing was instigated by Mrs. McKee after she followed Terry and his father to Kitchener last March. She has dropped charges of abduction against Mr. McKee for bringing Terry to Canada.

Mrs. McKee yesterday sat quietly without expression beside her lawyer, G. R. Brock, K. C She wore a plain black dress topped with a mink coat, and a simple grey hat trimmed with black. She had on dark glasses and her large diamond engagement ring.

Although the McKees were seated only about five feet apart they carefully paid no attention to each other.

FIRE DESTROYS THURLOW BARNS, LOSS IS $7,000

Cecil Keene Loses Six Buildings, Hay And Grain, Winter Wood And Implements

Fire of undetermined origin starting in the large hay barn and sweeping through six farm buildings late Friday afternoon caused damage estimated at close to seven thousand dollars at the farm home of Cecil Keene, 2nd concession Thurlow township, and a mile and a half east of Belleville.

Burned in the fire were two hay barns, including approximately 100 loads of hay and between 1,400 and 1,500 bushels of grain, the driveshed, henhouse, pigpen and garage. With the exception of four pigs no livestock was lost.

Speaking with newspapermen Mrs. Keene stated they had no idea as to the origin of the fire which swept through their farm buildings. She had been picking plums in the orchard, while her husband was engaged in drawing in late hay, when she looked up and saw smoke rolling from one of the barns. An instant later the flames broke through the roof and quickly spread to other nearby buildings.

Neighbors quickly rallied and with the assistance of the Belleville Fire Department, succeeded in saving the farm home.

Lost in the fire was a new milking machine and approximately 20 cords of wood which had been piled for winter use. Some of the farm implements were saved by neighbors from the burning driveshed.

One Jew Killed, 9 Injured In Battle on Ship

Jerusalem, Sept. 27 (AP) — One Jew was killed and nine others were injured today when British sailors boarded a refugee ship trying to crack the Palestine blockade with approximately 450 person aboard.

The Jew slain was shot by a British sailor who 'had been surrounded by a party of Jews brandishing crowbars," a government spokesman said. Two other Jews were wounded by gunfire and a British sailor suffered a broken finger.

The ship, with a Hebrew name translated as "Despite" was intercepted about dawn off the coast. She was the first to try to run the coastal blockade illegally since the interception in July of the Exodus 1947 whose 4,300 passengers were ulimately returned to Germany. Plans were being made in Haifa for shipping the Jews aboard the Despite to detention camps on Cyprus.

Officials said resistance was quelled after a 20-minute battle. The ship is a converted landing tank craft.

Skepticism Greets British Announcement of Readiness To Give Up Palestine Mandate

London, Sept. 27.—Arabss, Jews and some Britons greeted with skepticism today Colonial Secretary Creech Jones' statement before the United Nations yesterday that Britain was willing to surrender her Palestine mandate and ready to withdraw her troops from the Holy Land.

British Press comment generally was favorable and some editorials expressed hope that the British stand might mean eventual peace for Palestine. In the Holy Land itself, however, the statement got a suspicious reception.

One British official in Jerusalem jokingly offered to "bet you five quid (£5 or $20) we are still here five years from now."

Emile Khoury, member of the Arab higher executive in Palestine, described the statement as "strangely like that by Mr. Creech Jones at our London conference when he told us Britain would take responsibility for a solution only if it was agreed to by Arabs and Jews. This will make our friends the Jews very happy since it tells them they can be even more radical in their demands, knowing if the Jews are displeased, Britain will stick by them."

Britain's position on Palestine was set forth in a statement before the U.N. Assembly's special Palestine Committee, in which she said she must plan for complete withdrawal of British troops and administrative personnel from Palestine.

Will Assume Burden

Dr. Hussein El Khalidi, secretary of the Arab higher executive, said six Arab states which signed the U.N. Charter would "take over the military burden and maintain law and order until a representative democratic government is set up" in Palestine.

Khalidi named the states as Egypt, Syria, Lebanon, Iraq and Saudi Arabia, now U.N. members and Yemben, to be admitted at the current assembly session.

David Ben-Gurion, chairman of the Jewish Agency executive declined to make a general comment on the British statement until he had read it in full.

He termed "meaningless," however, a paragraph which said Britain would make "an early withdrawal," without setting a definite time limit, if no satisfactory solution on Palestine is found by the U.N.

A Foreign Office spokesman in London expressed hope that as a result of the British announcement the Jews and Arabs in Palestine might resolve their differences.

Statement Receives Play

Creech Jones' statement received page-one play under banner lines in British morning newspapers.

The Liberal News Chronicle, under the steamer "Britain is Pulling out of Palestine" commented:

"The issues in Palestine are now more clear cut than they have ever been before. If international statesmanship can be brought to play on them in a spirit of genuine good will there is hope at last that within a reasonable time peace may be brought to a sorely troubled country."

"For once the government have acted with common sense and decision," the Conservative Graphic consistent critic of the Labor regime, said.

The Conservative Telegraph commented: "Britain's unequivocal notice of her intention to quit, or at most to act as interim executant of an agreed scheme of pacification should impart a fresh sense of realism to the deliberations of the U.N. and in particular to those members who were ready enough to criticize as long as they did not bear the responsibility of action."

The Times, declaring that Creech Jones made the British position "abundantly—to some it may be unpalatably —clear," noted that there still was a question as to whether Britain would join in enforcing a possible plan not acceptable both to Jews and Arabs.

Leaders Express Fear of War Between India and Pakistan Unless Solution Soon Found

New Delhi, Sept. 27 (CP). — India and Pakistan are counting their dead in communal fighting in the hundreds of thousands, and responsible leaders are openly expressing fear of war between the new dominions unless a solution can be found soon.

Mohandas K. Gandhi, himself the outstanding exponent of nonviolence in all India, spoke out last night of the danger of war. Gandhi said that if Moslem Pakistan "persisted in proved error" in her relations with Hindu India and attempted to minimize today's conditions, the alternative was war.

The Mahatma was giving voice to what was being said by many others both in India and Pakistan. Each dominion is firmly convinced the slaughter perpetrated by its own people is in retaliation for what is being done on the other side of the border.

Front-page prominence was given in Indian newspapers today to Gandhi's warning of war.

The India News Chronicle headlined its report: ::"Pakistan's persistent errors may lead to war," while the British-owned "Statesman" said across two columns: "War with Pakistan if necessary."

It was the third time Gandhi in one context or other had used the word "war" in the texts of his prayer meeting speeches since he arrived here 18 days ago.

MINISTERS MAY DRAFT FORMULA TO END STRIKE

Meeting Will Refrain From Issuing Any Statements Until A Decision is Reached

(By The Canadian Press)

A formula for ending the nation-wide wages strike of 12,000 packinghouse workers may be drafted today at the Toronto conference of labor ministers.

Labor Minister Daley of Ontario made this announcement last night at the close of yesterday's nine-hour session and said the meeting would refrain from issuing statements on progress until decision on the formula had been reached. Mr. Daley is chairman of the gathering.

It is presumed representatives of the United Packinghouse Workers of America (CIO) and of the meat packing companies concerned — Canada Packers, Swift's and Burns—might be called on if the conference agrees on a plan.

Thirteen officials representing seven provinces are meeting at the Ontario parliament buildings at Queen's Park with an observer from an eighth province looking on.

The meeting called to deal with the walkout arising from union demands for wage increases averaging 17 cents an hour to bring the hourly minimum in packing plants to 92 cents is believed the first of its kind in Canadian history.

Thirteen at Meeting

Taking part in it when it started yesterday were representatives of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Quebec, Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta—13 men in all—while a Prince Edward Island representative attended as an observer.

These were developments elsewhere:

A farmers' meeting in Charlottetown decided to urge the federal government to take "effective measures" to terminate what it termed "the present deplorable tie-up in our normal hog marketing practices."

Regina sources said the strike had strengthened determination of Saskatchewan's C.C.F. governmem to go into the meat processing business regardless of the outcome of the Toronto talks.

The Montreal Labor Council (CCL) asked Quebec Labor Minister Barrette to reinstate certification of U.P.W.A. locals revoked Wednesday by the Quebec Labor Relations Board.

The weekly livestock review of the Federal Agriculture Department showed "a fair supply" of livestock bought by small abattoirs and country butchers this week. Bidding was keen.

Car Abandoned By Suspect Found Near Collingwood

Playford Girl May Have Been Killed Inside Auto

Montreal, Sept. 27 — (CP) — Events that linked Fred Bussey with the brutal hammer-slaying of 11-year-old Betty Playford at Owen Sound, Ont., last Sunday were gradually coming to light today while the 22-year-old navy veteran from Regina remained in detective cells here on a charge of murder. Meanwhile police in Ontario checked the story told by the confessed killer.

While Bussey was undergoing questioning here by Ontario and Montreal police, an automobile the suspect said he abandoned near Collingwood, Ont., was found by Ontario provincial police last night 14 miles west of Collingwood.

Police Chief T. H. Carson of Owen Sound said the car would be examined for fingerprints and clues which might indicate that the girl had been killed inside the car. Bussey said in his confession to a Montreal Herald reporter to whom he voluntarily surrendered early yesterday that he took a 1942 model car from a gypsy named Demitro with whose family he had been touring the carnivals.

He told of losing his way, and arriving in Owen Sound, he asked the Playford child the way, offered her a lift home, but bludgeoned her to death when she screamed.

Inspector A. MacLeod of the Ontario Provincial Police said "There is no doubt about the car."

"We're not worried about that any longer. It was stolen in Hamilton," he added.

Bussey said in his statement to police that after throwing the girl out of the var the vehicle had stalled near Collingwood and that he hitch-hiked to Montreal.

Taximan Tells Story

In Collingwood yesterday, Donald Casselman, proprietor of the Veterans Cab Company, told police a man who gave his name as Fred Bussey rode with him to Barrie last Sunday night.

Casselman said the man gave his address as 229 Queen Street West, Toronto, and told him that he had abandoned his car, just after coming through Thornbury and that he had been given a lift to Collingwood in another automobile.

Bussey allegedly told Casselman he wanted to reach Toronto fast because his mother was dying. He gave Casselman the keys to his stranded car and told him he would return in four days to pay his fare to Toronto.

Casselman consented to drive Bussey to Barrie after checking that the latter's car had not been reported stolen. He waited a few minutes and saw Bussey climb into an automobile with one occupant.

In Toronto, the address given Casselman by Bussey, was listed in the city directory as the home of Mrs. Dora Demitro. It was padlocked last night. Neighbors of the Demitros said the family, including Mrs. Demitro and six children, were in Owen Sound.

Montreal, Sept. 27 — (CP) — Following is the statement Fred Bussey of Regina gave the Montreal Herald when he went to the newspaper office here and in the early morning hours of Friday named himself as the killer of 11-year-old Betty Playford in Owen Sound:

I, Frederick Thomas Langton Bussey, hereby admit of my own free will and without any coercion from any source that on the night of Sunday Sept. 21, I was riding an automobile, Plymouth 1942, along the outskirts of Owen Sound travelling towards Toronto.

During this time I lost my way and a young girl suddenly appeared before me. I asked direction from her and I offered her a lift home because it was raining. She accepted the drive.

We missed the turn towards her home and she attempted to jump out of the car, yelling "You're going the wrong way."

Previous to this I had drunk one-and-a-quarter bottles of wine. The car was travelling from 40 to 50 m.p.h.

In an attempt to stop her from jumping, I stepped on the brakes and grabbed her with both arms, letting go of the wheel. We ran part way into the ditch. Suddenly the girl relaxed in my arms.

I believed she was unconscious but to make certain I opened her coat to listen to her heart. It was still beating. While she was unconscious I manoeuvred the car around to take her home.

Reference to Hammer

Suddenly she came to life and started yelling again, kicking me and hitting out at me. I grabbed her again and somehow I lost my mind. I found a hammer beside me and hit her several times with it, I don't know how many times. My main object was to quieten her.

Then I realized I was in trouble I opened the door and pushed her out on the side of the road. Shortly afterwards the car which I had taken from a gypsy by the name of Mrs. Demitro, stalled and I abandoned it.

I subsequently travelled to Barrie, Toronto, Cornwall and Montreal. It was in this latter city that I read of the slaying of 11-year-old Betty Playford and fearing that this may have been the girl I beat, I turned myself over to Harold Gardner of the Herald staff who in turn immediately called police.

I must say at this time that I never in my mind in any manner criminally assaulted, by this I mean rape or try to rape, the girl I beat up at Owen Sound.

The only reason I hit her was because I had been drinking, my nerves were bad and she was screaming so.

And I have signed this of my own free will in front of witnesses.

(Signed)

F. T. L. Bussey

CUSTOMER WAITS PATIENTLY

Los Angeles, Sept. 27 (AP) — The three men were busy putting rings and watches into a big box so Mrs. Grace Ferrand, the lone customer, patiently waited for service in a jewelry store yesterday.

Then the trio walked out and incoming salesman Merritt Klowderman — much to Mrs. Ferrand's surprise — found clerk Lloyd Monroe, 20, bound and gagged in a rear room. Klowderman estimated they took 25 rings and 10 watches worth about $10,000.

Russian Quints Are Doing Well, Says Tass Agency

London, Sept. 27 (AP).—The Russian News Agency Tass reported today that a Russian woman had borne quintuplets, three boys and two girls. It said all five were developing normally and the young mother, Khonda Tsyrenzhapova, was in good health.

Tass added the mother was "of a Buriat Mongolian collective farm." The Buriats are Mongols in South Central Siberia, near Lake Baikal.

Mussolini's Picture in Church Mural Poses Problems For Parishioners

Montreal, Sept. 27 — (CP) — High above the altar of spacious Church of Notre Dame De La Defence, in the Italian district of northeast Montreal, the figure of Benito Mussolini has reappeared in a mural.

For more than seven years thick paper covered one corner of the huge fresco, blocking off the nearly life-size figure of the man, astride a handsome bay horse, who reached at the hands of his countrymen an ignominous end.

The story of the huge painting itself, Mussolini's inclusion, his eclipse and finally his reappearance is at once a story of religious expression, historical commemoration and ardent patriotism, with even a touch of comedy.

Back in 1927 parish heads, members of the Servites De Marie Order, conceived the idea of a symbolic, devoutly-expressive mural and Guido Nincheri, Montreal artist, began with a painting of the blessed virgin surrounded by a chorus of angels.

As he worked he strove to depict the glorification of the virgin in relation to all classes of mankind. He added the Pope, cardinals and other church dignitaries, patriarchs, prophets, virgins, confessors, missionaries and a few modern-day personages in ecclesiastical or uniformed garb.

In the midst of Nicheri's five-year work came the great Lateran Concordat of 1929 bringing reconciliation between the Italian government and the Holy See. Nincheri was filled with an urge to immortalize this event.

So, to the still-unfinished mural he added the figure of Mussolini as head of the Italian government of the day. Then were added other Italian statesmen — Bianci, Balbo, Di Borno, Di Vecchi.

Then came the war and Italy's entrance in 1940, eight years after the mural was completed.

What happened then was related today by Father S. Chell of

Exit Visa Refused Russian Wife Seeks Divorce

Ottawa, Sept. 27 (CP)—George F. Power, External Affairs official whose Soviet-born wife has applied to the Russian authorities for a divorce because they would not permit her an exit visa to join her husband here, said he was "resigned to the separation."

"The whole thing is the fault of the Russians and it not our fault," said Mr. Power. "I have known for two weeks of my wife's decision to seek a divorce in Moscow because Russian authorities will not grant her an exit permit," he added.

He didn't know, he said, whether any pressure had been put on his wife to get her to ask for a divorce. However, he said, a citizen of the Soviet Union couldn't say so even if that had been the case.

Mill Engineer Has Clothing Torn From Body

Bancroft Ont., Sept. 27 — John Cooke of Stirling, who is engineer for Frank Stapley's Mill at Green's Corners six miles south of Bancroft was quite badly injured Saturday morning just after the saw mill started running. Cooke went down underneath the main floor to oil the blower shaft and his clothing caught in the main shaft whipping him around until the clothing was torn from his body. When the mill power slowed down considerably, Foster McKilligan, who operates the carriage went down to investigate the trouble. He found Cooke lying on the ground badly injured. He was rushed to Bancroft Red Cross Hospital and attended by Dr. S. S. Lumb. His condition is reported not to be serious.

U.S. Oil Companies Have Greatest Foreign Commitments Near Palestine

New York, Sept. 27 — (AP)— American oil companies, with state department sanction, have their greatest foreign commitments in the Arab wilderness adjacent to Palestine, which Britain is preparing to evacuate at an early date.

American towns are springing up along the eastern coast of the Persian Gulf, and at least three great pipelines are in process of being constructed or enlarged, reaching from the oilfields of the scorched Middle East to terminals on the Mediterranean.

The newest of these, crawling for more than 1,000 miles, will span the Arabian Peninsula, cut across Iraq and Palestine, and terminate at Sidon, about 30 miles south of Beirut, Lebanon.

The strategic position of the United States as regards oil sources has been the source of bitter debate. Military spokesmen claim that within 20 years half the oil the United States uses will have to be imported unless large new discoveries at home are made.

Representatives of the oil companies, however, have said the United States possesses ample oil within its own borders, and that sources abroad are principally for marketing purposes in Europe.

A spokesman for a major oil company with extensive holdings in the Middle East said yesterday that if anything happened to prevent production of oil there that Europe would be the loser, not the United States.

Most oil in the Middle East lies at a strategic point between Soviet Russia and the western democracies, and if Britain pulls out, as she says she will, the last British position of strategic importance in the near east between Suez and the U.S.S.R. will disappear.

No one has been able accurately to estimate the full dollar value of American concessions in

WASHINGTON LIONS TO PLAY ROCKETS

Manager Walt Gerow, of the Memorial Arena announced late this morning that the Washington Lions of the American Hockey League will be here on Wednesday next for an exhibition game with the Philadelphia Rockets, the game to get under way at 8:30 p.m. The Washington team is at present training in Barrie under the coaching wing of Jack Riley, former National and American Hockey League star.

MOTORISTS WILLING TO PAY METER RENT

Already dubbed the "Friendliest City in Ontario". Belleville can lay claim to another descriptive moniker, that of one of honesty, according to an inspector of of parking meters who arived in the city on official business this week.

On a tour of inspection with James Mathews meter service man, the inspector noticed a meter which had been plugged with a coin and was not functioning.

His eyes opened wide in amazemen when he noticed three coppers placed on top of the meter, the deposit of a motorist who could not cause the meter to work.

"I've heard that Belleville has been called the friendliest city in Ontario," he smiled, "now you can call it the home of honest people."

BACK INJURIES SUSTAINED IN CRASH

William Casey, R.R. Holloway, is in Belleville hospital suffering from back injuries as result of his car going out of control on a curve on the 9th of Thurlow, the vehicle overturning in the ditch. Casey was alone in the car at the time of the accident. The injured man was rushed to hospital where he is under the care of Dr. J. Empson of Roslin and Dr. G. H. Stobie of Belleville.

CHEESE RETURNED TO TRANSPORT CO.

At least there are a few honest people in the world. This at least is the claim of the driver of a local transport company who lost a ninety-pound cheese from his truck some days ago. The loss was reported to police and a day or so later the transport company reported the cheese had been recovered.

Following the loss of the cheese from the truck two miles west of the city, inquiry made at a nearby farm home revealed that the farmer had seen a new car stop on the highway, the driver picking up a heavy object and driving on. It was this same driver who later returned the cheese to the transport company.

Arthur Smith, who will deliver the sermon at the dedication of Christ Church at Hillier by the Lord Bishop of the Diocese, the Rt. Rev. John Lyons. At evensong in St. Thomas' the sermon will be delivered by the Rev. Canon Bertal Heeney, D.D.

Daylight Time Ends at Midnight In Most Centres

(By The Canadian Press)

A "lost hour" of sleep incurred some five months ago by Canadians in towns and cities that switched to Daylight Saving Time for the summer will be regained this weekend when the communities revert to Standard Time.

The majority are due to set the clock back at midnight Saturday and citizens will be able to lie abed for the extra hour's snooze Sunday morning. Some places already are back on Standard Time along with the regulars—Windsor, Sarnia, Port Arthur and Fort William—who stayed on "slow time" the year round.

Railways stuck to Standard Time and the only difference this weekend's change makes to them is an adjustment of schedules to fit into the general Standard Time system.

Places which make the change Saturday, midnight, include, Halifax, Sydney, Nova Scotia, Fredericton in New Brunswick, Ottawa, Chatham, Kitchener, St. Catharines, London, Galt, Owen Sound, Kirkland Lake and Sault Ste. Marie in Ontario, Moose Jaw and Saskatoon in Saskatchewan, Edmonton and Medicine Hat in Alberta and Vancouver and Victoria in British Columbia.

Following them the next night will be Montreal, Kingston, Guelph, Oshawa, St. Thomas, Sudbury, and Welland, Winnipeg and Toronto, Brantford, Hamilton, Peterborough, Woodstock, Stratford and North Bay in Ontario, will turn their clocks back.

President of Women's Christian Assoc. Outlines Reasons for Asking City to Take Over General Hospital

On August 26th a motion was passed by the Board of Governors of the Belleville General Hospital stating they would recommend that the Hospital and its equipment be turned over to the City.

The Women's Christian Association had been considering doing so for some time, and after further consideration of how the citizens' interests could best be served, a motion was passed at our last regular meeting to offer the Hospital to the City.

The W.C.A. started the Hospital in a few rooms in 1886. It has grown to the now valuable plant it is, a 194-bed hospital, which is not now large enough to serve the demands of our community. Our hospital is not in debt, except for $11,250 still owing on the $300,000 new wing. It is as well equipped as any hospital of its size in Canada.

We think our hospital is the exception to the rule. We do not receive a grant from the Corporation or the County. They do pay part of the keep of indigent patients. Our endowment fund is trifling and up to this time we have been able to operate without a deficit.

Sometime ago the Provincial Government approached us regarding the building of a Convalescent Hospital, giving us a trust fund of $100,000 and we were to endeavor to raise the balance. The County, City and the Township of Ameliasburg together pledged us $62,500.00. After having plans drawn up and an approximate tender received we were unable to proceed with this project as the cost would be far in excess of available funds. We still hold this trust fund, which we should take advantage of for the good of this community. This is our foremost reason for making it a municipal hospital.

Considering the rising cost of materials, food, and a very large increase in the pay-roll, while the hospital is full at all times and further revenue from increase of occupancy impossible, we feel we can no longer break even financially with present rates for indigents. Neither can we see our way clear to enlarge or improve our present buildings. It is quite evident that present hospital accommodation is not adequate to meet the industrial expansion of city and district. For these reasons The Womens Christian Association feel the citizen of Belleville should now accept this gift from them on the understanding it will be YOUR Hospital and worthy of everyone's interest and support.

Yours very truly,
THE WOMEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION
Lillian Imlah,
President.

Vishinsky Believes Jews Must Withdraw If Britain Quits Palestine

By CLYDE BLACKBURN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Lake Success, Sept. 27 — (CP) — Soviet Russia shows every indication today that she will continue her attacks on the other major members of the United Nations. That was made clear yesterday by her verbal assault, through delegate Andrei Vishinsky, on both Britain and the United States.

There were indications that a firm Russian position on Palestine now may be emerging which would be critical of British policies. These came when Vishinsky, at his press conference, commented on Britain's morning announcement that she would pull out of Palestine and yield up her 25-year mandate, and that she will not undertake to impose a tstele a settlement there that will be unacceptable to Jews and Arabs.

Vishinsky said he did not know exactly what the British policy statement meant, but "I'm afraid the British proposal for ultimate withdrawal from Palestine should mean ultimate withdrawal of Jews from Palestine — if that is so our attitude is certainly negative."

Vishinsky, whose press conference attracted a record number of correspondents, delivered a second and enlarged edition of his "American war-mongering" speech of last week in a blast of ridicule and condemnation of United States and British foreign policy.

Russia intends to press its "war-monger" case to the limit. By what he said and did not say, Vishinsky brought his accusations closer to President Truman and State Secretary Marshall, both of whom have recently been under attack in the Russian press.

He added to his earlier list of nine alleged "war-mongers" the names of William C. Bullitt, former Ambassador to Moscow, columnist-commentator Walter Winchell and publisher Frank E. Gannett.

South Africa's defence of her refusal to submit a trusteeship agreement for the mandated former German territory of Southwest Africa promised to be the highlight of 10 committee and sub-committee meetings scheduled for today.

As the Assembly's second week drew to a close one thing had become clear: two weeks of debate and scores of speeches had produced no grounds for compromise of any of the major issues. The split between east and west was wider than ever.

Price of Eggs Shows Increase On Local Market

Price of eggs increased from two to five cents on the local produce market Saturday morning as vendors asked 52 and 55 cents the dozen for firsts. Last week the price was 50 cents. Mediums were 50 cents and pullets up to 40 cents the dozen.

The fowl offering was not large with 40 cents lb., being asked for mature birds, while spring chicken fetched 45 cents. A few ducks were offered at from $2.75 and up to $3.50 each.

On the outside market tomatoes took on a sharp price increase with farmers quoting 45 cents the small basket. Prune plums were $1 the basket, and Lombard and Blue Damsons 75 cents. Grapes were 80 cents; peaches $1.10 and Bartlett pears 90 cents.

McIntosh apples were 70 cents the basket and St. Lawrence 50 cents, with Wolf Rivers bringing $2.50 the hamper. Crabapples were 65 cents the basket.

On the vegetable market potatoes were 50 cents the peck with cauliflower selling up to 45 cents; muskmelons up to 45 cents and watermelons up to 70 cents. Bunched vegetables were a dime with carrots selling at 30 cents the half peck. Cucumbers were three for a dime as were peppers.

Quite a few farmers offered young pigs at from $7 to $8.50 each.

the Arab lands. The Arabian concession to the Standard Oil Company of California and the Texas Company is so great, however, that the two companies, with financial assistance from Standard Oil Company and Socony-Vacuum Oil Company, are exploiting what they feel will be the greatest oil development in history.

To facilitate exploration and exploitation they have created two wholly-owned subsidiaries—the Arabian-American Oil Company and the Bahrein Petroleum Company, Ltd.

A deal is currently under negotiation whereby 40 per cent of Arabian-American's great Saudi Arabian concession would go to Jersey Standard and Socony-Vacuum.

Another great line in process will link the Kuwait fields with the fields in Iran. Kuwait is an Arabian port at the northwest corner of the Persian Gulf, about 85 miles south of Basha, Iraq. According to announcement last Dec. 26, British and American interests pledged virtual partnership in future development of Middle East oil resources.

Belleville's Name And Attraction Known Afar

From Andy Clarke, CBC broadcaster of "Neighborly News" who opened the Belleville Exhibition here last Monday, comes an interesting letter from one of his radio listeners.

Mr. Clarke forwarded the letter to this office. It is signed by Colin H. Bayley, of Ottawa, who listened to Andy's airing last Sunday from the McCarthy Theatre. Mr. Bayley said that the name of "Belleville" recalled his birthplace" in a distant country where I was born."

"In the city of Bridgetown, Barbados, British West Indies, there is a pleasant residential section named 'Belleville'" Mr. Bayley wrote. "It was so named by the original owner who had travelled all the way to Belleville Ontario, to take a business course at a business college there in the 80's or 90's.

"Apparently he was so struck with the beauty of this old Ontario town that he applied the name to his venture in real estate.

"In Belleville, Bridgetown, you will find good streets and avenues, well laid out and lined with royal palms of impressive height; comfortable homes and beautiful gardens — a tribute to good planning and to the fair city from which it took its name.

Mr. Clarke added his own tribute. "Brother," he wrote, "you live in a dandy city amid people than whom there are no "ne plus ultra." Mrs. Clarke will endorse that."

Boy Scout Jamboree News

My name is Jimmy Scout, and I want to tell you all about our Jamboree.

Way last summer, our Scoutmaster started talking about it, and that's all we've heard about for ever so long. It may take me several days to tell you all about it, so I'll tell you just a little bit now.

I understand that Scouts, Cubs Rovers, leaders, friends and near everyone from all over the place is going to come. Even our good American friends from Canton and Watertown want to come. 'Sides all these people, we shall see our brothers from Peterborough, Cornwall, Toronto, Prince Edward County, and all points in between.

Who knows, perhaps someone might even come from Ottawa. Of course they would be Scout Officials, so we'll certainly have to be prepared. Naturally, several people will come down from headquarters in Toronto, and we'll have to be extra special good for them.

And now that I've told you just about everyone who is coming, suppose I tell you what a Jamboree is, and what you can expect to see, for of course, you'll all be there!

First, a Jamboree is a big gathering of people in this case, Scout people (and that means all their friends too). They have a parade usually, then a march past, and then a sort of a field day. After that, we find out who made the most points, and of course, although there will probably be prizes of some sort, that's not what we're going for, for it's not what you get in Scouting, but rather what you can give. Least that's what our Scoutmaster always says!

'Sides, all we want, is to meet all the other Scouts in the Quinte District, and exchange ideas with them.

And our Scoutmaster tells us there's to be a huge Campfire that night too, so if you want to see a lot of Scouts and Scout people all at once, you'd beter stick around.

Gee whiz, I could write a book about it, but perhaps you'd get kind of tired of me after a while so I'll go for now, but I'll be back in a couple days.

Sincerely,
Jimmy

Car in Collision With Freight Train A Complete Wreck

His car a complete wreck as result of being in a collision with the engine of a special freight running between Belleville and Peterborough George D. Stephens R. R. 1 Holloway, miraculously escaped with his life shortly after midnight Friday. The accident occurred at the C. N. R. crossing one mile north of Foxboro.

Stephens was admitted to hospital complaining of pains in his back, but fortunately escaped any limb fractures.

An employee of the Canadian Industrial Alcohol Co. at Corbyville, Stephens had gone off shift at midnight and was on his way home to Holloway when his car was in collision with the engine of the west-bound freight. Train crewmen apparently did not realize there had been an accident as the train did not stop.

Two eye witnesses to the accident Murray Smith and Jim McGowan of Madoc who were following 200 yards behind Stephens stated the car was in collision with the train. When they stopped Stephens was standing in the centre of the road in a dazed condition and could not say what had happened.

Provincial police who investigated the accident stated parts of the car were found three quarters of a mile up the track. The injured man is being attended by Dr. S. Demorest of Foxboro.

Two Trainmen Injured When Train Jumps Track

Salem, Ore., Sept. 27. (AP)—Two trainmen were injured near here early today when nine cars of the southbound Southern Pacific West Coast Limited jumped the tracks in a freak derailment and the locomotive continued a mile before the engineer discovered he had lost his train.

The two victims, both of Portland, Ore., were identified as George Miller, a mail clerk, and "Curly" Simpson, baggageman, both in hospital.

Engineer Victor Partipilo of Portland told reporters after the accident that the Limited had reached a speed of only 35 miles an hour after pulling out of the Salem Station. He heard no noise and felt no jar when the derailment near a siding one mile south of Salem wrenched the cars loose from the locomotive.

"The first I knew anything was wrong was when I looked back and saw I had no train. I backed up about a mile before I came on the wreckage," the engineer said. Neither he nor Southern Pacific officials offered any explanation on the cause of the accident.

North Pioneer Back in Montreal After Long Voyage

Montreal Sept. 27 (CP), — The North Pioneer, still damp from the chill mists in the great loneland of the north country came home today home to the great length of slips and warehouses and docks and early-morn searchlights and working stevedores that are her home port of Montreal.

There was drama in her return. But not quite the same drama as there used to be in the return of the Nascopie worthy little supply ship of the Hudson's Bay Company for which she substituted on this run to supply the northern outposts after the Nascopie came to grief on a northern shoal.

Still back of the North Pioneer were 5,000 miles of tortuous sea travel, fraught with the hazards of the north—iceburgs, ill-marked shoals and such, and in command of this tight little ship which took over from Nascopie was Capt. Janes Waters, the man who took the Nascopie north for so many years.

He was the man who was forced to abandon the Nascopie in Baffin Bay. He took over North Pioneer when she left on her relief volage Aug. 16.

He brought the North Pioneer home bearing a cargo of white fox and seal skins and 16 passengers hungry for the warmth of what in the north they call "the outside." But don't tell that to any Montreal apartment dwellers where in this late September chill the apartment heat still is not turned on.

At this point the laugh is from Factor George Anderson from his wife and his children. Cold? Well, for the last four years the Andersons have lived in a log cabin at Pangnirtung overlooking the ice hummocks of Cumberland Sound. That, brother, is north.

That's where you trade with Eskimos for the pelt of the seal and the silver fox Factor Anderson dealt with 600 Eskimos in his post there. His arrival here marked his first holiday in eight years from the silence that is the North.

Montreal Port Officials Wait For Grain to Come

Montreal, Sept. 27. (CP) — Port officials looked today to the new Fall grain crop, now en route from the Prairies, to boost Montreal back to prominence by next week as a point of exit for Britain-bound grain.

With Montreal quiet these last few weeks while grain moved to Europe in new record quantities from the northern port of Churchill, authorities here have been none too happy. They feel the greatest grain-shipping facilities in the world have been overlooked to get as much grain as possible out of Churchill which when the British freighter sails next week will have sent 5,000,000 bushels to Europe.

Westward the ports of Fort William and Port Arthur are reported booming as the new crop pours into lake freighters destined for Montreal.

Here, along the miles of docks and cranes of Montreal's waterfront that was considered heartening news because, since the August opening of Churchill the grain movement here has been a mere trickle due to little or no grain arriving from the west.

By the end of next week, say port officials, full grain movement should be underway here.

Meantime six ocean ships, including the liner Empress of Canada and the Manchester Trader, are stuffing vacant hold space with grain because package cargoes are scarce.

The Empress of Canada sails Sunday with about 3,500 tons of grain but, said one official, Montreal Harbor right now is scraping the bottom of the grain bin.

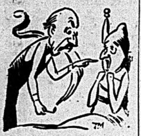
Father on the Farm

He Took Pride in His Own Judgment

Father sometimes implied that mother's people were lacking in judgment.

He didn't say it often and then only when he was extremely provoked, as when mother flew off the handle about there being no wood split or not getting places on time.

When he accused mother of flying off the handle, even with justification, the results sometimes were interesting, with references to various qualities in father's family and how his Great-Uncle Edwin set fire to the bed. Setting fire to a bed was not by itself, of such terrible consequence, but in this instance Great-Aunt Bella was in the bed.



The subject offered considerable scope anad during the years the histories of both families, present and past, particularly the generation of immigration, were reviewed with a patient eye for detail.

The Old Genealogical Tree

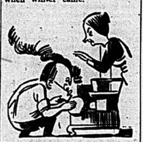
Not even Great-Uncle Alfred, long dead and buried and his famous black oats were forgotten Great-Uncle Alfred was on mother's side, a big trusting foreigner from the Old Country with a fine faith in anything a fancy name and a reputation for being the latest thing.

Mother got awfully tired of hearing father tell about how Great-Uncle Alfred paid $5 a bushel for three bushels of special black oats, that turned out to be wild oats and polluted his farm and raised ned among the neighbors.

"He was of my wife's people," father would say and by and by mother didn't bother to smile.

Mother was seldem provided with good kitchen wood for, although the farm had two lots of bush, father had a saving nature and could never see elm tops going to waste or, for that matter down wood even it were so dozy that swamp water was oozing out of the the end.

Old elm tops were mean to cut and not much better to burn and the woodyard was cluttered up with chunks no one could move around without a handspike let alone split. Father was always saying what a good fire they would make in the box stove when winter came.



But they never did. Often he would shove and work one of his chunks through the box stove door on top of a hot blaze and in half an hour the fire would be early out and it took most of the day feeding in small bits of good wood to get the stove cleared again.

In the rush season father was apt to get, as mother described it, "so all-fired wrapped up in his own work" that he overlooked cutting up fuel into stove size and she would have to scrounge small stuff from around the pile until only these big chunks were left.

"I have begged and pleaded for a week to get some wood cut," mother would say, probably adding on three days for effect. If that brought no action there was a golden opportunity and she wasn't above taking it. "I'm not like some that would burn the beds."

A Matter of Punctuality

Such a time was as good as any, also, to bring up how they were late again for church or in going over to a neighbor's for supper. Here the field was unquestionably so wide that almost any event would do. Mother used to say the only occasion for which father was on time was his wedding and two of her brothers saw he got there at the appointed hour.

"I've tried everything," she would say, "I've even gone out and harnessed the horse and hitched him up and come in and got ready myself to find you still diddling at something. We've always been the last to get anywhere and the first to leave. I'm tired of being belittled before every one," mother would say.

All this was reasonably true and sometimes one thing led to another, like never getting a cistern pump all these years, until mother had her wood cut and sometimes a short but critical review of some of her own relatives.

One branch of her antecedents settled on what is now blow sand in back of Port Hope on the Lake Ontario north shore. They came out of the peat bogs in Ireland where they to carry sand for miles in sacks from the seashore to lighten up their land.

When the first ones found this area on the Ganaraska River they saw it as a slice from the promised land and wrote to their friends back home that this was the country as the Lord had already carried the land there for them. After a few crops they starved and most of the land was ultimately abandoned.

That was what used to upset mother so much. Father was not particularly nasty about it and did not usually bring up family unless he were goaded. But he was on such ground in questioning the judgment of some of her forebears and he had a tendency to set himself up as a man of judgment, although his rating was inclined to be spotty in the bosom of his own household.

Concerning Relatives In General

His family had some pretensions as gentle folk and had always let it be known that they were a cut or two or three above the dialect-speaking Irish or county-accented English immigrants living around them.

For one short spell they had lived in Halton County and in the early days when the old Gaelic clergyman of their community heard that a group of Irish settlers were coming in he strove to prevent such a calamity.

"Oh, Lord," he led his congregation in prayer, "we beseech Thee to direct these wild and godless people into the hills of Caledon, and not lead them in Esquesing township which by Thy goodness has been preserved for Thine own appointed people the Highland Scots."

For the occasion, it is understood he included Great-Uncle Edwin, which was quite a concession on the part of a man who had no natural love for the English.

If really pressed, father would bring up mother's father and his brother. They had the pick of thousands of green acres in Ontario, but they went north and inland where the pre-Cambrian rocks first draw a barrier against the fertile south.

About Stones and Gravel

They didn't even pick the best land of the township, but chose some stony, gravelly hills because the trees were smaller there. They said, and believed it, that the big trees on the other land would have extracted all the fertility from the soil.

Father once worked a summer there with his in-laws and it gave him an aversion to stones the rest of his life. He said no one thought of going anywhere on the farm to do anything without taking a stone boat and they wore out so many stone-boats that summer they had to go way back in the forest country to get a new supply of curved ironwood poles for stone-boat runner.

He said he got stone-boat hands rough, calloused and scraped-looking, from heaving stones to a boat and from a boat to a stone pile. He claimed when he was plowing he was thrown nearly every time the plow point struck a stone and spent more time on his face than on his feet.

They lived precariously on their feeble land and then mother's brother had his reward when the government put the highway through. The contractors wanted stone, and wanted it fast. They took one look at the stone piles, as big as small houses and about 40 feet apart, and their eyes lighted up. Before Uncle Phelan could believe his fortune he was a comparatively rich man.

Great Aunt Bella's weak stomach made father's Great Uncle Edwin a resident of the New World. He never wanted to live here and never regarded it in any light other than, "God, what a country!"

He brought Aunt Bella, probably without consulting her here on her honeymoon and she was sick almost from the moment she put foot on shipboard at Southampton.

About a Family Legend

When she landed at New York and got her first relief from her dreadful sickness, Great Aunt Bella made what was probably her first great decision. She refused to get on a boat again, ever, and Great Uncle Edwin had to go back alone and bring their effects out, meeting his bride up in Canada, where they decided to settle.

For better said Aunt Bella—for worse, said Uncle Edwin! Actually they effected compromise, but Great Uncle never made a pioneer and some even doubted if he was a farmer. He probably only stuck it out because he liked overseeing things. Help was available in those days and there was plenty to oversee.

Great Aunt Bella's injury that kept her laid up a considerable part of the time was caused when the roof caught fire from the chimney and she was struck on the back of the neck by a bucket that slipped from a firefighter's hand. The bucket, unfortunately was nearly full of water.

From then on she directed most of her affairs from bed coped with Great Uncle Edwin and ruled over her household. Aunt Bella, when she so desired, could be a firm little party, or so the story went, and she didn't hesitate to use her invalidism to win her way. It was at the height of an unusally stiff altercation that Uncle Edwin said by George he would get her out of there and touched a match to Aunty's bed.

They got her out all right and extinguished the fire. Both were considerably shaken, but Aunt Bella bore no animosity and it became important only as the basis for one of the better family legends.

Father had even once thought it amusing.

Former Christ Church Pastor to Conduct Festival Services

Special sermons at the Harvest Festival services of Christ Church this coming Sunday will be given by Canon Bertal Heeney in the morning and Canon W. E. Kidd in the evening. Canon Heeney, best known for his volumes of church biography, was rector of Christ Church from 1901 to 1905. Born in Danford Lake, P.Q., he was educated in private school and at Lachute Academy. He graduated from McGill University at the turn of the century.

Canon Heeney has also been rector of St. George's Church, Newport, R.I., and St. Luke's Winnipeg. While in Winnipeg he became government representative on the board of the University of Manitoba, President of the Children's Aid Society and of the Winnipeg Art School. In recognition of his literary work Canon Heeney was made a Fellow of St. John's College and honored with a D.D. degree.

Canon W. E. Kidd, who will give the evening sermon, is an M. A. of Trinity College, Toronto. During World War I he was chaplain of the 21st Battalion, C.E.F. It was while serving in this capacity that Canon Kidd was decorated with the Military Cross. For many years chaplain of Kingston Penitentiary, Canon Kidd in the World War II became chaplain of military district No. 2. He is at present rector of Deseronto.

Special harvest music will be played during both services and the church will be appropriately decorated. The new carpet, a gift of the Parish Guild, will be dedicated. Recent repairs and painting of the exterior will be rededicated.

Three Motor Traffic Causes

Inattention, impatience and incompetence are in order the chief causes of traffic accidents, says the general manager of the Ontario Motor League, W. G. Robertson.

These faults in drivers should not exist and every driver ought to know how he rates on these very psychologic factors in the human makeup.

One would think that motorists would realize that inattention should be the last factor to be expected in one who ventures to drive on the highways and roads today. It certainly offers opportunity for smashes and fatalities. Then, too, the impatient driver is the cause of worry to others. Incompetence is the third of this trio of enemies of good driving.

Driving in view of the volume of traffic which flows over the highways is actually a calling in which mental and physical fitness occupies a preeminent place in the lives of people today.

The phrase "split second" is used so often as to become monotonous but it actually is what is the difference between safety and disaster. It is a very narrow margin of time and within that narrow margin of time traffci should flow with every driver at 100 per cent of fitness. The roads are no place for the irritating, impatient motorist, the incompetent and the driver that does not give all his attention to the duty at the wheel. There should be no driving that is not sane and safe.

Anyone watching traffic is highly aware of the thin margin between safety and accident. He realizes how every driver must be in perfect possession of himself and all his faculties so that it will not be his fault if an accident should occur.

Expect Sugar Ration Soon Over

News that rationing of sugar may soon pass into the great file room of history will be good news. With gradual easing up of the situation, the public's tension on such matters as rationing likewise eases and there is not the hurried and frantic quest for sugar that there was in the days of scarcity. Candies appear in the shop windows, one of the best signs that the public mind is at ease and satisfied it can get about as much sugar as it wants.

In the necessities associated with the conduct of war and in the recovery period rationing was essential but it spurred the thought of getting the rationed article, consumers being ever conscious of the yawning gap in supplies and fearful that they might be reduced.

Now such things are almost all come to the end and the consumers' mind is at ease. He or she is not so anxious whether the sugar is bought today or a week from today — the mind is no longer tense as sugar is in fairly good supply.

Rationing did a necessary service, not a pleasant one to everyone, but Canadians weathered the storms of war well, especially as regards foods. No one went hungry, all ate more heartily and they lived well. They now can be thankful that they were able during the days of struggle to make their contribution through the means of rationing.

Petkov Execution

There took place in Bulgaria a few days ago an event which could not have taken place in any democratic country. Nikcla Petkov, leader of the Peasant party in Bulgaria, which had recently been dissolved by the Comunist-dominated government, was hanged because he was found guilty by a Bulgarian court of plotting the overthrow of the Communist-ruled government. But Petkov had not taken up arms as it was pointed out to Bulgaria by Britain who protested the finding of the court and the condemnation of the leader of the agrarian group. The United States had joined in the protest but without avail.

Moscow refused to intervene when Britain made an appeal to Russia on behalf of Petkov.

This execution gives a grim picture of the political life in Bulgaria. The trial was a travesty of justice, according to the United States Department and the British Foreign Office officials said Petkov "lost his life through victimization."

Petkov was a strong man but an opponent of the Communist-led government. In democratic countries the opposition is given a place of importance as being a necessary part of the machinery of government. But it is not so in Bulgaria.

Petkov in his cell knew what was coming. He said, "My case is a prolongation of what has already happened in Hungary, where Communists killed opposition after alleging a plot to overthrow the government. My father and brother were murdered in the streets of Sofia as traitors. I am prepared to share their fate." He was a true prophet.

A Siege is Lifted

Somewhere in the maze of governmental holdings in Ottawa is a man who has the acquisitive instincts of a pack rat. How else account for the fact that 30,000 military tunics of South African War vintage still are stored in the capital?

The material is said to be excellent, and its condition still good after almost half a century. But the reason why the tunics were so jealousy hoarded all these years, and why a use so suddenly was found for them, remains unexplained.

Perhaps it was a sign of the pacifism of the times that they were not offered as clothing during the depression years. Certainly an obsession on preparedness could not have dictated the long-range conservation. Anyway, release of the tunics will make the Canadian scene a little more colorful, even though nothing will be added thereby to its sartorial elegance.—Windsor Star.

No Shoe Ration, Please

Because there is some "panic" buying of footwear in anticipation of an increase in prices some persons are suggesting that shoes should be rationed in Canada.

To propose that shoe rationing is necessary now, when we went through the war without it, seems foolish. We want less rationing in this country, not more.

No doubt the situation in the shoe industry will right itself quickly, and there need be no doubt of the ability of the industry to meet all the requirements of Canadians. Buying for the future will stop when prices are raised, and retail stocks now being depleted then can be restored. — Ottawa Journal.

Films for U. K. Pupils

A new era in education has just opened in Britain with the publication of the interim program produced by the National Committee of Visual Aids in Education. It forms a prelude to the comprehensive service to schools on which teachers, local authorities and the Ministry of Education are working closely together. One hundred and thirty films with other pictorial aids, all suggested by the teachers, will be ready for use in a few months. The principle to be followed throughout is that the teacher, as the man or woman on the spot knowing exactly what is needed, shall play a leading part in the ordering and preparation of the material.

A Hero

Len Reece, a section foreman with an American railway, was driving along the road, near Garfield, New Mexico, with his wife and child.

Another car was approaching and Reece saw that an accident could not be avoided. Just before the moment of impact he threw himself so that his body would take the full force of the collision and his wife and child would be spared as much as possible.

Len Reece is dead, but his wife and child were uninjured.

Peace-time heroism is just as magnificent as anything that ever took place on a battlefield. — Chatham Daily News.

Castle for Sale at a Bargain

There's a nice castle going cheap just four miles beyond Tonbridge. Hadlow Castle, it is called, and the price is $2,000. A nice bit of history for somebody to live in. Built in 1180, it belonged to Bishop Odo of Bayeaux; later Henry VIII had his nameplate put on the gate, then Queen Elizabeth was the boss of the place. Now it may become a country club or a glorified pub.—Canada's Weekly, London, England.

JUST FOLKS

YOUTH AND AGE

The maiden had a glorious smile—
The best, the Lord allowed her;
And she was dressed in latest style
And graced with scent and powder.

Her lips were of the newest red,
Her voice as sweet as honey.
I knew the bonnet on her head
Had cost a lot of money.

Oh, she was radiant to see—
Like Venus, only thinner.
I thought how very nice 'twould be
To take her in to dinner.

She chose a handsome youth, and strong,
And he was not her brother.
And so I sat the evening long
And chatted with her mother.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Are white horses albinos?

Cases of albino horses are known, but ordinary white horses are not born white.

Horses of certain colors, particularly dappled grays, become lighter and lighter as they grow older until they become pure white. Such horses do not give birth to white colts, and white colts are virtually unknown.

White horses, according to the Roman historian Tacitus, were regarded as sacred among the ancient Teutonic tribes, who permitted no person to ride such animals, fed them at the public expense and gathered auguries and omens from their neighing and snorting.

What is a collateral descendant? "Descendant" is often used without qualification when the sense would be expressed better by modifying the term by "collateral." For instance, from time to time we read about the descendants of George Washington. Since the Father of His Country had no offspring he could not have any descendants in the direct line although he had brothers and sisters and has many collateral descendants.

A person derived from another in the way of generation is correctly referred to as simply a descendant or a "lineal descendant." "Lineal" relates to direct descent from an ancestor. A person derived from the same stock but in a different line is correctly called a collateral descendant. "Collateral" relates to descent from a common ancestor through a different line.

Strictly speaking, the collateral descendants of a person are not his descendants; they are merely the descendants of one of his parents, grandparents, or other ancestors. First cousins are collateral kinsmen, for they have different fathers and mothers but the same grandparents on one side of the family. In tracing collateral heirs the common ancestor may be a more remote relative than a grandfather. Napoleon Bonaparte's only legitimate son died childless and therefore Napoleon had only one legitimate descendant, but he had brothers and sisters, uncles and aunts and other collateral ancestors and consequently many collateral descendants.

FLUNG UNDER TRACTOR

Barrie, Sept. 27 —(CP)— Flung under the wheels of a tractor in an accident on a neighbor's farm in nearby Innisfil Township, John Damstead, 38, was killed as his five-year-old son watched.

Sam Warnica, 60, whom Damstead was helping, said the man's leg became caught in a wheel of the tractor when he apparently tried to jump clear of the vehicle as it toppled over while crossing a gully. Damstead's body was found wedged between the tractor and a tree.

Canadian Airlines RappedbyCATPB At Convention

By DAVE McINTOSH
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Charlottetown, Sept. 26—(CP) — The Canadian visitor industry had a curt telling-off today that unless it got its house in order soon it would not harvest the $235,000,000 crop it reaped in this year.

In its final session of a three-day convention last night the Canadian Association of Tourist and Publicity Bureaux rapped Canadian Airlines for "inadequate and unsatisfactory" ground activities and terminal facilities and told "interested governments" to get busy and complete the Trans-Canada highway.

Earlier in the convention delegates hammered at "deteriorating" menus, suggested the grading of all resorts and used harsh words for "a lunatic fringe of resort operators who victimize and gyp" the traveller.

Unless fish and game conservation laws were observed strictly and the public educated to them by an extensive campaign, the tourist industry would "suffer inestimable and irretrievable injury," A. O. Seymour said yesterday when game protection and handicrafts came in for considerable discussion.

Many Matters Brought Up

Other matters brought up included lengthening of the tourist season, cuisines, winter resort management, transportation, accommodation, development of the historical, modern hotels and auto courts operation and trailer camps and travel.

Concerning the last, Gerald Geldert of Ottawa suggested that a survey be made to determine the feasibility of establishing community-operated camps.

J. P. Johnston, vice-president and general manager of Canadian National Railways Atlantic region, noting that American tourists had spent $214,000,000 in Canada in 1946 while Canadians were spending $131,000,000 in the United States, said Canada's adverse balance of trade was a "national problem."

If Americans had spent at the rate Canadians did the visitor trade in Canada would have grossed more than $1,000,000,000 in the first six months of 1947.

"We must make the continent Canadian-minded — and soon," he added.

Edwin G. Rowebottom, Deputy Minister of Trade and Industry for British Columbia, was re-elected president of the Association for a third term and delegates selected Quebec as their convention site next year.

Judge to Rule On Statements Made by Accused

St. Catharines, Sept. 27 — (CP) — The "voir dire" continued Friday at the trial of Sydney Chambers, 34, charged with the slaying of nine-year-old Marian Rusnak, and Mr. Justice Keiller Mackay's ruling on the admissibility of Chambers' alleged statement to police was not expected until tomorrow morning.

The 12-man Ontario Supreme Court jury was excluded Thursday as counsel started argument on the statements, which make up an important part of the Crown's case.

The Crown contends Chambers lured the girl to his living quarters in a canning factory where he was employed as watchman, strangled her and cremated her body in the factory furnace. Her body was not found.

Chambers, arrested 13 days after the child disappeared last Dec. 23, was convicted of murder last March and sentenced to be hanged but the Ontario Appeal Court granted a new trial.

MarriageAnnulled By Superior Court

Montreal, Sept. 27 — (CP)— Because of a radio broadcast he heard from a Cornwall station, Joseph Georges Omer Crevier was able to establish in Superior Court yesterday that the woman he married in January, 1935, already had a husband.

Crevier told Mr. Justice Philippe Demers that he learned his wife, Isobel Doreen Mary Davis, was married in 1919 at Cornwall to Milton Ross Gray. Attempts to find Gray failed until recently when his name was mentioned by the Cornwall station, with information Gray was in Stratford. Inquiry at Stratford showed Gray was the man sought.

The wife said she had not heard from Gray for seven years and believed she was entitled to remarry.

His Lordship annulled the marriage to Crevier.

ANTISEPTIC TALK

Noisome "disinfectants" so much used about municipal lavatories, restrooms and the like make on wonder whether the city's purchasing department is just gullible about "sanitary" matters or whether the politicians in charge are getting graft for continuing use of the stuff.

Certainly there is no scientific or common sense reason for using any sort of odorous disinfectant, germicide or antisepitc other than plain soap aand water for keeping such places and fixtures sanitary. And there is no more efficient antiseptic, disinfectant, germacide and deodorant for such use than ordinary economical "chloride of lime" (chlorinated lime, calcium hypochlorite).

A staff of operators doing tricks of duty at a microphone or telephone transmitter follows a silly, wasteful practice—buys an odoriferous "antiseptic" solution and wipes the instrument off with it before each operator takes over. In the first place there is no danger whatever from such source—unless the operator commits the inexcusable error of applying lips or tongue to the instrument. In the next place, plain soap and water would be at least as good an antiseptic or disinfectant solution to use to cleanse the transmitter or mouth-piece of the instrument, at practically no expense at all. This applies to telephone transmitters too.

People generally do not sufficiently appreciate the value of plain soap and soap solutions (soapy water) as an antiseptic agent. There is far too much prejudice against using soap in the mouth—perhaps due to unpleasant associations of childhood experience—plain soap, I mean the very wiseacres who are so prejudiced usually apply soap freely enough in brushing their teeth.

Illustrating the effectiveness of soap as an antiseptic, a patient with Vincent's angina failed to obtain any relief from ordinary remedies. The doctor prescribed a simple solution of ordinary hard toilet soap as mouthwash and gargle. In 24 hours there was a marked improvement in 48 hours the mouth had cleared and the temperature reached normal and the patient felt a desire to eat.

Soap solution has proved as strongly antiseptic or germicidal against the Streptococcus, the Pneumococcus, the Gonococcus and the Treponema pallidum (organism of syphilis) as it is against the spirillum of Vincent's angina (trench mouth).

More Help For Those With Epilepsy

The American Epilepsy League, Inc., 50 State Street, Boston 9 Mass., and The National Association to Control Epilepsy, Inc., 22 E. 67th Street, New York 21, N. Y., both have some excellent pamphlets on various aspects of epilepsy, which every patient parent, teacher or other person interested in the subject should read. I don't why there should be more than one such organization — it is confusing and unfortunate, but there it is. Incidentally, how's your epilepsy these days?—this is merely a rhetorical question — don't tell me about it, for I'm sorry there's not a thing I can do further than to refer you to these authoritative sources of information. But I must tell you sometime about my epilepsy. It is as interesting as my operation. Both of these organizations tribute one pamphlet which is especially valuable — Epilepsy — The Ghost is Out of the Closet or Public Affairs Pamphlet 98 — at ten cents a copy.

How To Gain Weight

I am five feet and four inches tall, 20 years old, and weigh only 106 pounds. How can I put on ten pounds? — I think 116 would be the right weight for me. I have always been skinny but healthy. (Adeline T.)

Answer — Girl of your age and height should weigh not less than 125 pounds, better 130. Send stamped envelope bearing your address and ask in writing (no clipping, please) for pamphlet How to Gain Weight.

Our wirehair (named Tony, after your famous pet) is just the urge I require for daily exercise. Answer — Thank you. It is an excellent suggestion, even for many who are still young —but lazy. Dog or no dog, send stamped envelope bearing your address, for pamphlet Young Folks and Old Folks, which tells how to get v-i-t-e.

Russian Wife Seeks Divorce From Canadian

Ottawa, Sept. 27 —(CP)— The story of a marriage broken by international complications was told by the External Affairs Department in a statement on Canadian Government attempts to obtain an exis visa for the Russian ballerina wife of George F. Power, attached to the department's consular division here.

Mrs. Power, unable to get out of Russia to join her husband since their marriage Feb. 4, 1945, has applied to Soviet authorities for a divorce.

The Canadian Government approached the Soviet Government seven times on behalf of Mrs. Power in unsuccessful efforts to obtain permission for her to leave Russia, the statement said.

The marriage took place when Mr. Power was in Moscow attached to the Canadian embassy, and five months later, on July 6, 1945, Mr. Power was posted back to Ottawa.

Hides and Leather Scarce At Kitchener

Kitchener, Sept. 27 —(CP)— A difficult situation — was reported here yesterday — shoe manufacturers complained of a dearth of hides and leather.

One manufacturer said the situation was so acute his plant was shut down. The plant is turning to a four-day week in an effort to cope with the lack of leather for production. Another producer said he also may nave to limit operations if the situation does not improve.

They attributed the leather shortage to the widespread packing strike, further aggravated by a long strike in one of the major Ontario tanneries. In addition leather has been difficult to obtain for some time.

Selected Girl Companions For Dionne Quints

Callander, Ont., Sept. 27--(CP)—The former Dionna nursery was alive with teenage chatter yesterday as the famous Quintuplets exchanged girlish confidences for the first time with girls of their own age. Nine specially-selected girls have enrolled with the Quints in Grade VIII of "Villa Notre Dame."

Only a stone's throw from the school in their palatial family residence, Mr. and Mrs. Olivia Dionne, were happy in solving one of the major problems in the upbringing of Marie, Yvonne, Cecilie, Emilie and Annette—how their 13-year-old daughters should be permitted to mix with other children.

Guarded safely against disease and kidnap threats since they were born in a humble farm home one sunny morning in May, 1934, the children have played only with their eight sisters and brothers for the most part. About the only contacts with other children have been on brief visits to North Bay and Ottawa.

The former nursery where the Quints were attended in the early days by the late Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, has been leased the Roman Catholic Sisters of the Assumption who now are in charge of the children's education. This fall the Quints were ready for Grade VIII and next year will enter high school.

The teaching Sisters and the Dionnes decided that companionship with children their own age was an essential in development of the Quints' personalities. Through teachers of the same religious order nine girls from Ontario, Quebec and the United States were selected on basis of family background and personal character.

Milverton Worth About $300,000

Port Colborne, Ont., Sept. 27—(CP)—The Great Lakes collier Milverton, at least eight of whose crew members were killed when she exploded after a collision with the tanker Translake in the St. Lawrence River near Iroquois, Ont., was valued at between $250,000 and $300,000.

This estimate was made yesterday by Capt. R. Scott Misener president of Sarnia and Colonial Steamships Ltd., owner of the vessel, now a fire-scarred wreck. He said the collier was equipped with all the latest safety devices—radio telephone, direction finder and echo sounder.

Capt. Misner said he had sent company representatives to the scene of early-Wednesday collision and fire to investigate the accident and to attend to the needs of the nine injured Milverton seamen in hospital.

Two men died of injuries after being rescued and the bodies of six others were found on the charred decks of the collier. Four men still are missing and their bodies are expected to be found in the wreckage. Two seamen escaped injury.

High School Boys of Province Study Duties, Rights as Citizens; May Drill as Cadets After School

(By The Canadian Press)

Ontario high school boys in grades X, XI, and XII this fall are learning their duties and rights as citizens — instead of the intricacies of small-arms drill — but most of them still may belong to the school cadet corps if they wish.

The new citizenship course, announced last August by Premier Drew in his capacity as Minister of Education, replaces the compulsory cadet training sponsored by the National Defence Department during the war.

The boys may still drill as cadets but now must do so on their own time, after school hours. Cadet work will not exempt them from the citizenship classes.

Urges Continuance of Cadet Corps

Mr. Drew urged schools to continue their cadet corps if possible. Whether or not they do the fanfare of school rallies and cadet inspection will still take place, with the boys parading five times a year. It is expected parents will be invited to the parades and that prominent citizens will inspect the corps.

A survey by The Canadian Press showed Kingston and St. Thomas the only centres reporting immediate dissolution of cadet corps. Owen Sound authorities still are undecided.

Kitchener has adopted the citizenship course but students will not be able to take it immediately because of overcrowding and lack of space. The course will be taught in full as soon as a new $890,000 wing to the school has been completed.

Stratford drafted a resolution protesting the change and urging that cadet training be put back on a compulsory basis. It was endorsed by the Woodstock Board of Education.

Modified Phases of Citizenship Course

In Niagara Falls modified phases of the citizenship course are being taught. The high school there is continuing its cadet corps.

Approval of the new course, allied with voluntary cadet training came from Brantford, St. Catharines, Windsor, Sarnia, London, Galt, Stratford, Peterborough, Lindsay, Oshawa, North Bay, Sault Ste. Marie and Hamilton.

The course for boys in grades X, XI and XII includes three periods a week of physical education, including basic drill, one period of health education and first aid, and one period of citizenship corps training.

Part of the classroom instruction will be the theory of rifle shooting and the rules and organization of games.

"A knowledge of the care and proper use of firearms is deemed valuable for the prevention of shooting accidents and for the avoidance of the cruelty and suffering involved in the wanton wounding of game animals," an education department spokesman said.

Discipline of Citizenship

Grade XI will study the discipline of citizenship with its necessity for playing according to the rules and living by law. This course also deals with emergency problems of citizenship: voluntary services, Red Cross, blood clinics, victory loans and aid to Britain.

Grade XII comes up to date with informal discussions of Canada's strategic position in the empire, the world and in air transport, the implications of atomic energy, the United Nations, peace treaties and the restoration of Europe.

After study of these problems the classes will proceed to national problems: the fifth column, functions of the armed services in peacetime, national unity, civil liberties and the assimilation of new Canadians.

MUSSOLINI'S

the Notre Dame De La Defence Parish.

Where there had been a handful of dissenters — "with communistic leanings" — to the inclusion of Mussolini, there now was as much confusion. The parishiners wanted earnestly to show their Canadian patriotism.

Finally it was decided that Mussolini, and necessarily a few in the immediate group, would disappear behind a layer of paper.

But the parishiners had no ladders long enough to undertake the job. So firemen clambered up and plastered a square of paper over a small section of the fresco that measures roughly 50 by 50 feet.

Until this summer Mussolini remained hidden. Then because of dampness the paper began to tear and unsightly strips hung down. What to do now? Well, tear it all off.

Back to the firemen went parish representatives. But the years had brought changes in the fire department. There was no record of the first operation. Maybe the Royal Canadian Mounted Police had ordered Mussolini blanked out.

The police said no, but they couldn't assent officially to removal of the paper. Maybe the government had decreed Mussolini's eclipse from the mural.

To the Department of Justice at Ottawa went perplexed parishioners. The department knew nothing.

The parishiners came back home, hired a contractor who owned high extension ladders. Off came the paper. And back came Mussolini, more resplendent than ever from the liberal application of water needed to remove his paper covering.

Charles W. Dykes Purchased By Toronto Leafs

(By The Canadian Press)

Toronto's baseball Maple Leafs have announced the acquisition of four players, one of whom is the son of a famous infielder of some years ago. Charles W. Dykes, the son of Jimmy Dykes-well-known member of great Philadelphia athletic teams of other days—is, like his father, an outfielder. He came to the Leafs from Bandergrift of the Middle Atlantic League.

Other purchases from the Philadelphia system under a working agreement with the Phillies were right-handed pitcher William Kiszarek and Frank Convery, catcher both from Schenectady of the Canadian-American League. The fourth player is outfielder John Welaj, from Boston by way of Louisville Colonels of the American Association. All four were purchased outright.

The Twentieth Century Sporting Club of New York has been fined $2,500 for what the New York State Athletic Commission said were dealings "with unlicenced individuals with criminal records." The dealings in question were said to have concerned staging of boxing bouts in Madison Square Garden.

The citizens of Brooklyn don't fool when it comes to their favorite sport and their favorite team—baseball and the Dodgers, formerly known as Dem Bums. The National League Champs, all 27 of them were paraded around the borough after winning the pennant, and then followed the high spot of the celebration—burning the Yankees in effigy.

Marcell Cerdan, European middleweight boxing champion, will meet Billy Walker, of Coquille, Ore., in a bout at Montreal's Forum Oct. 7. Lucien Ropp, Cerdan's manager said in New York.

The Hayes and Nesbitts had practically the whole limelight to themselves in the Boys' Division of the Listowel High School annual track and field meet. Don and Peter Hay won the intermediate and junior championships respectively and Lionel and Donald Nesbitt, 16-year-old twins, were runners-up in the senior and intermediate class.

Ken McAuley, 26-year-old hockey player, took on two new jobs in Saskatoon yesterday. He joined the staff of the local newspaper and signed a contract to play goal for the Saskatoon Quakers of the Western Canada Hockey League. Ken played for Regina Rangers in the 1942-43 season, spent the next two years with New York Rangers and for the past two winters has been with Edmonton Flyers.

Dark, Sunless Cellars Only Homes Thousands of Germans Know

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Essen, Germany, Sept. 27—(CP)—Below the heaped rubble of once proud German homes are thousands of dank, sunless cellars where, by a miracle of endurance, hopeless under-nourished people still cling to the habit of living.

There are some districts where homes were untouched and people appear to live comfortably, if austerely, but the general impression is one of hardship and suffering.

Essen, Dortmund, Dusseldorf and other key towns of the industrial Ruhr were smashed by heavy raids in the last days of the war. In Essen 15,000 are homeless. Of these some 7,000 live in cellars while 8,000 more are crowded into large, concrete air raid shelters known as bunkers.

In the bunkers, families sleep and eat in small cells, each with a three-tier army-type bed, a small table and two or three chairs. Meals, consisting chiefly of potatoes and thin soup made of lard and flour, are cooked in a central kitchen — when there are no power cuts — and served with thin slices of black bread washed down with occasional cups of weak tea or cocoa.

The bunkers exhale a fetid stench, yet most of the cells are clean and the children, though poorly clad—many without shoes—rarely look dirty. Because of a regional shortage of electric lamps some of the cells are candle lit.

Conditions in most of the cellars are worse. At the foot of a dark, trembling staircase underneath a mountain of rubble I found Herman Dietsch, his wife and five children — one lying sick on a rough canvas trestle in the corner, four others crammed into a bed scarcely large enough for two adults.

While Mrs. Dietsch scrubbed the stone floor with soapless water, her husband, in threadbare shirt and torn trousers, worked at his carpenter's bench with scraps of timber picked from bombed buildings.

"We have been here three years, ever since our home was destroyed," Dietsch said. "There are many like us. We have little hope of finding a home."

Often Dietsch works at night because it is difficult to operate his bench when children are around and meals are being prepared.

$10,000,000 Sunk in Sea Lures Divers

By GORDON TAIT

Sydney, Australia, (AP)—An Australian syndicate is investing thousands of dollars in an expedition to locate and salvage more than $10,000,000 worth of sunken gold, most of it in an American sailing ship that was lost 80 years ago.

The syndicate, formed by J. E. Johnstone, a marine salvage diver, plans to try first for the $1,000,000 worth of gold still in the liner Niagara, sunk by mines off the coast of New Zealand during the war.

Then it will seek the fortune, estimated at $10,000,000 in gold that disappeared when the 1,200-ton American sailing ship General Grant was lost on the largest of the desolate Auckland Islands, 289 miles south of New Zealand, May 14, 1866.

E. J. Sheehy, a Sydney accountant and member of the syndicate, said $24,300 was being invested in the treasure search.

The General Grant came to grief on a voyage from Melbourne to England via Cape Horn and 67 of the 82 aboard lost their lives. Violent gales drove the ship off her course, a strong tide drew her into a cleft on the lonely, uninhabited island and, at the end of the cleft, sucked the vessel into a huge cavern. Trapped by a rising tide in the cavern, she was smashed against the roof.

According to an old manifest, the ship carried 2,576 ounces of gold, but Sheehy said he was convinced that nine tons of "spelter" listed in the freight also was gold. All the passengers, he said, probably carried additional gold in their personal belongings.

(Gold frequently was shipped quietly out of the country in the last century to avoid an export tax and to conceal from crew members and passengers the value of bullion aboard).

Sheehy said that "with an eye on the gold" he had taken a lease on the 300,000-acre island on which the American clipper was wrecked from the New Zealand government in 1933.

"The New Zealand government has given me full rights to all gold that might be recovered," he said.

In the last 50 years six lives have been lost in unsuccessful attempts to recover the General Grant's gold. The new syndicate hopes that with modern equipment, including a diving bell, the search will be successful without particular risk.

Diver Johnstone raised $7,500,000 of Bank of England bullion from the sunken Niagara, but the salvage syndicate received only 2 1-2 per cent commission on that undertaking. Sheehy said that the Bank of England has notified Johnstone he can claim 50 per cent of any remaining gold recovered.

The Niagara is lying in 438 feet of water and the remaining gold, Johnstone says, is under a shelf on the ocean bed. Johnstone plans to go down this time in a new diving bell, from which he will have direct control of a grab.

The expedition plans to leave a New Zealand port in a chartered vessel in October and, after tackling the Niagara, will go to the Auckland Islands about the end of the year.

WEDDINGS

CALLAGHAN—SHANNON

Read.—St. Charles' Borromeo Church, Read, decorated with pink and white asters and tall standards of multi-colored gladioli, was the setting for a recent morning wedding, when Irene Margaret, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Vincent Shannon, of Plainfield, was united in marriage to William Raymond Callaghan, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Callaghan of Marysville. Reverend Joseph Shannon, uncle of the bride, performed the Nuptial Mass. Kenneth Power and Richard Walsh, cousins of the bride, were acolytes. Mr. William Hanley was at the console of the organ and the soloists were Mr. Arthur Shannon, uncle of the bride, Gerald and Adrien Shannon, brothers of the bride.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in white Duchess satin, the fitted bodice featuring a deep yoke of embroidered silk lace, and long sleeves ending in points over the wrists. The full skirt, fell gracefully into a short train, and on either side of the hip-line were triangular inserts of lace matching the yoke. Her full-length veil of silk illusion fell from a headdress of white satin and seed pearls. Her only ornament was a pearl and rhinestone clip. She carried an arm bouquet of deep red Bettertime roses and stephanotis.

Mrs. Adrian Callaghan, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, wearing aqua brocaded satin and net. She wore a matching hat and white lace mitts, and carried a Colonial bouquet of Briarcliffe roses, shattered carnations and pom 'mums. Miss Evelyn Callaghan, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid, wearing a similar gown of daffodil yellow with matching hat and white lace mitts. She carried a Colonial bouquet of Talisman roses, shattered carnations and pom 'mums. Little Miss Eleanor Shannon, cousin of the bride, made a winsome flower girl in lavender taffeta with matching halo and mitts of silk net. She carried a Colonial bouquet of Queen Elizabeth roses, shattered carnations and pom 'mums.

Harold Callaghan, ably performed the duties of groomsman for his brother, Francis Callaghan, brother, of the groom, and Clare Shannon, brother of the bride, were ushers.

A reception was held at the bride's home where about sixty guests were received by the bride's mother wearing beauvais grey crepe and French lace, with navy accessories. Her corsage was of Rapture roses. The groom's mother assisted, wearing black crepe and satin with black and gray accessories. Her corsage was of Bettertime roses.

The dining room was decorated in pink and white, the bride's table centred with a three-tier wedding cake and tall white tapers.

Out-of-town guests were from Rochester, N.Y., Toronto, Kitchener, Belleville and Tweed.

For travelling to the Georgian Bay district and Rochester, N.Y., the bride chose a suit of blue-gray English wool gabardine with brown topper and accessories. Her corsage was of Bettertime roses.

Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Callaghan will reside at Marysville.

Miss R. Dawkins Guest of Honor At Surprise Party

Last evening the home of Mrs. Doug. Ellis, Geddes Street, was the setting for a surprise party when approximately ten friends gathered there in honor of the birthday of Miss Rose Dawkins.

Entertainment took the form of card games: after which Miss Eliza Bell presented a number of gifts to the guest of honor, and on behalf of all present wisher for her "many happy returns."

Miss Dawkins graciously expressed her gratitude for the lovely gifts, and appreciation for the kind thoughts which prompted the giving of them.

Mrs. Holland assisted the hostess with the informal serving of dainty refreshments, which included an attractively decorated birthday cake.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

BY WINIFRED E. WILSON

AUTUMN SONGS

"Do listen to that Song Sparrow trying to sing!" Edith exclaimed. "Last spring his song was ten notes long, whereas now the first three are about all he can manage."

"Our pet White-throated Sparrow is the same," Alice nodded. "He made an attempt to sing after eating our bread crumbs. But he only got out 'Sweet, sweet.' The name Canada Bird doesn't fit any more because he never reaches that part of his song at all."

"However, I'm delighted once more to hear some birds after the long silence. Once the Red-eyed Vireo stopped I felt as though a great stillness had come over the country."

"Of course it is rather natural. In spring they sang their call songs, and in early summer told told everyone in earshot just where their homes were situated. Now the children are grown up the fathers sing only very occasionally, perhaps when they find some special delicacy."

"Like the Robin that found a mountain ash tree loaded with berries," Edith agreed. "He hadn't much of a song, but I recognized the Robin tone, and went to see where he was."

Most bird songs peter out as summer advances. When moulting birds are particularly quiet. Then, before they start of on migration, some of them begin again. Flocks of litle warblers often stop near us for a few days before continuing their long journey south, and we sometimes hear them talking gently to one another. But there is no joyous carolling, only soft murmurings.

Yet though the real songs are over for many months we are not entirely deprived of bird voices. Canada Geese honk as they wing their way to their winter homes, Crows caw overhead, and little Kinglets chatter together in the bushes.

Even when snow lies on the ground, if we are able to get away from cities and towns, we have the chance of hearing many species that remain in the north throughout the year. What a delight to come upon a band of Chickadees calling to each other from tree to tree! We are actually glad to hear the raucous voices of Blue Jays — now screaming like Red-shouldered Hawks, next shouting threats at their companions. The deeper we enter the forest, the more liable are we to see Quaker-dressed Nuthatches by following their "yank, yank."

Fashion Flashes

IT WILL BE NICE to come home to one of those handsome new velvet robes, some cold weather. Black velvet is used for a dressy design, quilted all over—except for a wide panel down the front of the bodice and the full skirt. Gold-threaded black chiffon ascot above snug bodice that closes with tiny self buttons.

DISCREET touches of glitter add charm to many frocks designed for Fall selling. Black crepe is used for an effective dress with high, round neckline and long, slim sleeves. A multi-color motif in beads and rhinestones is placed at one flanged shoulder and a similar one at the opposite hip, with soft gathers radiating from each. This frock in women's sizes.

HARD TO RESIST are the new suits prepared for autumn. Black broadcloth is used for a handsome suit, the jacket on boxy lines, with cutaway hem and flare in back. The small turn-down collar is of black Persian lamb and the fur also outlines the rounded, patch pockets.

IN KEEPING with long skirt lines, several houses have designed coats that offer a silhouette far removed from that with which we have become familiar. Black Chinese caracul is used for a handsome coat, of 47-inch length. Shoulders are rounded and sleeves have pointed front cuffs with envelope pleats in back. Tab collar and breast pockets. Skirt is softly gathered from the hipline below a very fitted waist.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Teen-Age Marriages

A bride of four months, who married when she was 19, writes to question me about some of the views I have expressed in regard to teen-age marriages.

She says she has noticed that every time a teen-ager writes me about being in love, I tell the teen-ager either that she doesn't know her own mind, or that she should wait a few years before deciding that she is seriously in love.

"Of course I can't help agreeing with you to a certain extent," she writes, "since there are teen-agers who do refuse to grow up. But there are also as many who mature very fast.

"In the case of my own parents, my mother was 16 and my father 21 when they were married, and they have lived together happily for 23 years. Also, I know girls who have married equally young, and they don't seem to be unhappy or to regret having married so early.

"In my opinion, married life is not very different from being single, except, of course, there is more responsibility. It is no mere to me than a young girl playing house, only you have two people working together.

"What I am really trying to say is, do you judge a teen-ager by the way she writes, or do you base your opinion simply on the fact that she is a teen-ager?"

Let me answer this last question, first, and in my answer I think this young correspondent of mine will find the clue to the views I have expressed in answering teen-agers' letters.

I judge a teen-ager by the way she writes, not merely by the fact that she is a teen-ager. In general, I do believe that most girls of 16, 17, 18, 19 and even 20, are still too young for marriage, so that when a teen-aged correspondent doesn't tell me enough about herself for me to form an opinion of her maturity, I usually advise her on this general basis. But it is perfectly true that there are girls who are unusually mature in their late teems, and so have a much better chance than others of the same age to make a happy marriage.

I don't think that the age at which anybody's mother or grandmother married has very much to do with the question today. In years gone by, girls had very much less opportunity to be active outside their homes, and so it was much more logical that they should feel ready to marry earlier than modern girls, who can either take a job or occupy themselves with a hundred different absorbing interests which their mothers and grandmothers did not have.

If a modern girl marries before she has experienced the satisfaction of either holding a job and earning her own money, or having a lot of the good times which the girls of her age normally should have, she is very apt to feel cheated and frustrated after the first excitement and thrills of marriage have worn off. It is all very well to think of married life as "a young girl playing house," as my correspondent puts it, but after all she has been married only four months, and is hardly sufficiently experienced, matrimonially speaking, to be a reliable judge. Too many girls, once they have to stay home and clean house, or take care of young babies, or get their husbands' meals, while their unmarried friends are out enjoying themselves, can easily become restless and dissatisfied with their lot. This is why I feel that, in general, the teen-ager should wait awhile before she takes on anything as permanent as married life.

Moreover, a girl so young is apt to think of marriage to the boy she loves as one long dream of bliss, whereas the bliss is usually short rather than long, and when the period of adjustment comes along, during which the first thrills should simmer down into an enduring contentment and companionship, she is taken by surprise and think her marriage has turned into a failure.

These are just a few of the reasons why my advice to the teen-ager has been as my correspondent reports it. I wonder if this answers her question. If not, I would be glad to have her write me again.

It's Apple Time Again

There is a smell of Fall in the air, a tang of cold, a whiff of drying leaves and that indescribable smell of ripening apples. While Summer apples are always a treat, the real apple season begins only when September is waning and leaves are turning color.

The apple is the stand-by fruit. Like bread the flavor blends well with many other foods. Apples, whether eaten raw or cooked are enjoyed by almost everyone.

Legends about apples are many and varied. They have been called the "Fountain of Youth" and a talisman of good health. Cures of warts, jaundice and other diseases have been attributed to "an apple a day". Poets and song writers have written many words about apples and although the home economists of the Consumer Section, Dominion Department of Agriculture do not burst into song, they are enthusiastic about the many, many ways in which apples may be used.

One such idea is an open face apple pie made with botton crust only and a generous filling of apples, sweetened to taste. Over the apples, instead of a top crust, the cheese crumb mixture is spread, and the pie baked at 400 degrees Fahrenheit, for 35 minutes.

Cheese Crumb Topping

1-2 cup bread crumbs
1-4 cup grated cheese.

Baked Apples and Peaches

6 medium apples
6 medium peaches
1-3 cup brown sugar
1-4 teaspoon cinnamon

Peel and slice apples and peaches. Arrange in alternate layers in a greased casserole, sprinkling each layer with sugar and cinnamon. Bake 30 minutes at 400 degrees Fahrenheit. Cool, serve with cream. Six servings.

Apple Ice Cream

2 cups grated apples (4 medium apples)

1-2 cup fine granulated sugar
1-2 pint whipping cream

Grate the unpeeled apples. After grating a small amount of apple, measure and sprinkle with part of sugar to prevent discoloration. Continue grating until 2 cups apple is measured. Whip cream and fold into apple mixture. Pour into the freezing tray and freeze without stirring. Six servings.

Apple Dumplings

2 cups flour
1-2 teaspoon salt
4 teaspoons baking powder
3 tablespoons shortening
3-4 cup milk (approximately)
6 apples
Sugar and cinnamon

Mix and sift flour, salt, and baking powder. Cut in shortening. Add milk to make a soft biscuit dough. Roll to 1-4 inch thickness. Cut dough in six squares. Place cored and pared apples in centre of each. Fill cavity of each apple with mixture of sugar and cinnamon. Draw dough up around apple. Pierce dough with fork. Place dumplings in buttered baking dish and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) until apples are tender—about 40 minutes. Serve with cream and sugar or a hot caramel sauce. Six servings.

FISHERMEN LAND IN OCEAN AS LADEN BOAT SINKS

Santa Monica, Calif., Sept. 27—The mackerel were running well for commercial fishermen Woodrow Kakatsuki and Katsumi Nishikawa.

So well, in fact, that they kept right on fishing after their 36-foot boat was filled to the gunwales. They fished all night, and early yesterday their overladen craft sank silently beneath the waves, depositing five tons of mackerel and two surprised fishermen in the ocean.

Another fishing craft rescued them.

Marina Svetlova

Youth, beauty, grace, a woman of infinite talent and intelligence — these describe Marina Svelova, prima ballerina of the Metropolitan. Press criticisms include: "She preserved a rhythm on the toes that was enchanting and the like of which has never been seen before."

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

A hint to the wise bridge player is usually sufficient. Tell him where the danger is and he can fulfill any makeable contract. He merely patterns his plays to fit the lay of the cards.

In the zillions of hands in a pack are only seven principles of play. Know where the cards are and apply one or more of these seven ways. That's all there it to it.

An expert may fail to make his makeable contract. But it will not be from lack of knowledge of the plays he could use. It will be only because he may not have learned who holds what cards.

This fact must be considered, when defending against an expert declarer. Therefore, doubling such a player is not a good policy. Especially when he has bid a slam.

Many a contract can be defeated no matter what the declarer does or knows. In such cases an expert tries to trap his opponent. Or catch him off guard. Or lull him into a careless act.

A very unusual deal is the one you see here:

NORTH
♠8 7
♥A 7 4
♦A Q J
♣A K 6 5 2

WEST
♠A J 9
♥Q 10
♦K 9 8
♣Q J 10 4 3

EAST

♥J 9 6 5 3 2
♦10 6 4 2
♣9 8

SOUTH
♠K Q 10 6 4 3 2
♥K 8
♦7 5 3
♣7

South became the declarer at six spades. West doubled. What must south suspect from this double? That west held the ace and jack of trumps that could take two tricks. And it was so.

The opening lead from west was a club. After looking at dummy, south decided on the play he must try to pull. It may not work. But there seemed to be no other hope of making the contract.

This involved reducing his own trumps to the same number as are held by west. Then, when west has nothing but trumps, hope that west takes the first trump lead. At least, it was a chance.

First I will describe the bidding in the hope that you may get something out of it. Meantime, lay out the deal on the table for your bridge club. See what they do to it. Or you.

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Sept. 27 —(AP)— Spending money is no problem for the glitter queens and kings of the movie factories, but spending time is another matter.

An independent survey (conducted by this independent reporter) shows that movie stars, who work a theoretical eight-hour day, spend an average of only 53.2 minutes of actual emoting before the cameras. Also, this vastly unscientific report declares, they donate 67.3 minutes for makeup (double this for women), 12 minutes to studying the script, 17 for arguing with the director, 14 for press interviews, 25 for miscellaneous functions.

This leaves a whopping amount of time to kill, and some slap the hours aimlessly, others make use of them. Joan Crawford, for example, is an inveterate knitter, as are Deborah Kerr and Jane Powell. Ronald Reagan and Robert Taylor talk pollitics with anyone around. Fred MacMurray, a frustrated artist, sketches anything in sight.

Guessing Games.

Cary Grant indulges in guessing games. Lana Turner is one of the few who read books between scenes and she always has a phonograph playing the latest records. Loretta Young sews things for her children. Clark Gable pulls a chair out on the set and shoots the breeze with the crew.

James Stewart tinkles with a piano if one is handy. Mickey Rooney and Red Skelton, the old hams, entertain the set with their routines. Abbott and Costello play a short-handed rummy game and Spencer Tracey eats candy in his room or if he's in a good mood, converses on the set. Bing Crosby just disappears.

In Manhattan

By PAT USSHER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Sept. 27 —(CP)— Gloomy talk about the lack of money for backing theatrical productions doesn't impress Louis I. Singer, producer and business man, who contends plenty of it is available for worthwhile shows.

"Money is plentiful if you give them something," Singer observed the other day. He finds time for an active interest in the theatre although he is owner-operator of a chain of 28 hotels and is in the investment banking business.

Co-producer with Eddie Dowling of "Our Lan'," the Theodore Ward drama which opens tonight at the Royale Theatre, Singer believes that the real scarcity is good properties, not money.

Showman's Invasion.

Henry (Terry) Duffy, a showman who has been in the theatre since he was 11, is invading New York for the first time with a costly operetta called "Music in My Heart." Duffy, who had a chain of 14 theatres in the 20's extending from Vancouver to Los Angeles, admits it was tough raising the backing for the production, which has Tschaikowsky music and is due to open Oct. 2. But he has done it and is nervously awaiting the outcome. If his current venture succeeds, he expects to make New York his headquarters.

SPORTS WRITERS SAYGAMESSHOULD BE CALLED OFF

Not Too Late To Have The Invitations Politely Withdrawn

By MICHAEL O'MARA
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Sept. 27 — (CP)—The 1948 Olympics are scheduled for London's Wembley Stadium but a number of British editorial writers and sports columnists have touched off a controversy by urging that, in view of the country's financial crisis, large-scale expenditure on sport is unjustified and the games should be called off.

To house 4,000 competitors and set up all the equipment necessary, argued the Evening Standard, "may well provoke a whistle — but not of admiration. Sane opinion will marvel only at the colossal thickness of hide which permits its owners, at this time of crisis in the nation's serious affairs, to indulge in grandiose and luxurious schemes for an international weight-lifting and basketball jamboree . . .

"It is still not too late for invitations, in view of altered conditions, to be politely withdrawn."

John Batson of the Sunday dispatch had this to say:

"Perhaps it would be wise to think ahead now and avoid having to call the whole thing off at the 11th hour . . .

"I am not cynic enough . . . to relish having to describe what shapes like the most threadbare, impoverished Olympiad ever held . . .

Other writers advanced the argument that Britain's present food shortage made it ridiculous for her to attempt to "play host to the world."

"I don't believe it," rebutted Alan Hoby of the People. "I think these critics are sadly and badly wrong. I'm not arguing whether we were right, in the first place, to accept the games. But we have, and it would be the worst possible world advertisement for Britain if we quit now . . .

"Are we so utterly bankrupt that we can't fork up the money for a new running track or a few extra seats at Wembley? . . .

"Cost? It was estimated that the (1936) Olympics were worth £8,000,000 ($32,000,000) in foreign currency to the Nazis. At a time when we are gasping for every dollar, drachma or kroner, the games should be worth even more to us — surely a substantial argument to carry on with them."

To drop the games is "a shocking suggestion," Jack Crump, British Olympic team manager, told reporters. "It would be the greatest dis-service that could be rendered to British sport."

Sports Roundup

By JOHN D. HAMILTON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York Sept. 27 (CP) — Two Canadian champion boxers figured prominently in the investigation which ended yesterday in the 20th Century Sporting Club, Inc., being fined $2,500 for "alleged dealings with negotiations with unlicensed individuals with criminal records"...

The Canadians are both Montrealers — welterweight champion Johnny Greco and lightweight Danny Webb ... Webb appeared before District Attorney Frank S. Hogan when Hogan was probing into the whole boxing picture ... it was alleged that Webb's management, unable to get fights in Madison Square Garden, tied up with a very tough gentleman ... the New York State Boxing Commission, which slapped the fine on the 20th Century, earlier had questioned Greco on the same point — but accepted his statement that his only manager was legally-licensed Frankie Dosle..

Times are Tough

Gossip has it that only "syndicate" boxers can get into the Garden ... it has been said that Ray Robinson for a long time didn't have the right "connections — and therefore was persona non Grata at the Gardens for years .. we don't know about that but we do recall that when Webb came back from England a year or so ago, his manager, Harry Sheppard, brought him down to train at Stillman's Gym here ... Sheppard at that time told us that he planned big things for the Canadian Army veteran ...nothing ever came of them locally, however ... and it may be noted that after Greco was mentioned critically locally, he didn't get another fight here ... still a big drawing card in Montreal, Greco now is fighting in places like Bridgeport, Conn., in the U.S....

Headline Headliner

When the Dodgers clinched the National League pennant at 11.39 p.m. EDT it was obvious that many of the players already were snuggled in bed and wouldn't celebrate until the next morning... the Topeka, Kas., State Journal took official notice of that fact with an eight-column headline: "Revelry at Reveille for Bums as Cards Lose."

Sportspourri

The sporting news reports at least two new class "D" baseball leagues are being organized for next season — the far west league and the Orange belt league. Which recalls the comment of a few to blow so that more players will be available. Our club needs them."

AT THE CAPITOL — Susanna Foster is prettier than ever in her new Universal romance-with-music, "Frisco Sal," in which she plays the title role. Her co-stars are Turhan Bey and Alan Curtis. George Waggner produced and directed the Barbary Coast film. The added feature, "Cross My Heart," opening Monday at the Capitol Theatre, stars Betty Hutton and Sonny Tufts.

AT THE BELLE

Bing in "Welcome Stranger"

Bing Crosby and Barry Fitzgerald, the dream team which thrilled the film-going world a few years ago in the memorable "Going My Way," are back together again in a picture that is reported to have done the impossible — topped that honor-laden masterpiece.

The widely-acclaimed new celve an enthusiastic welcome when it arrives Today at the Belle Theatre, with golden-haired Joan Caulfield co-starring with the distinguished duo.

The grand reunion of Bing and Barry casts the "Groaner" as a wanderlustful doctor who agrees to fill in for a small town practitioner while the latter takes a well earned vacation. Of course, the lovable old medico is Fitzgerald, and the two physicians first meet, as strangers, on the train heading for the little Maine village. Barry takes an immediate dislike to the flashily dressed young man who whistles and sings upon arising, and inadvertently steals his breakfast in the dining car.

And the relationship grows more strained when they discover each other's identity. Furthermore, Bing discovers that the whole town is not a stranger's paradise. But with song and scalpel, he wins his way into the town's heart, including Miss Caulfield's, and is instrumental in fulfilling Barry's dream of a hospital of his own.

Bing sings four new songs to "win friends and influence people" and in one of them he is joined by Barry Fitzgerald. The number is called "My Heart Is a Hobo," and the other Johnny Burke and Jimmy Van Heusen hits are "As Long As I'm Dreaming," "Country Style" and "Smile Right Back at the Sun".

An imposing supporting cast in "Welcome Stranger" is headed by Wanda Hendrix, Frank Faylen, Elizabeth Patterson, and Percy Kilbride. Elliot Nugent, of Broadway fame, directed the picture, and he is reported to have turned out a film that is as warmly human as a handshake and just as popular in its appeal.

FINDS LIVE MOUNTAIN RAM HANGING BY HORNS FROM CABLE

Los Vegas, Nev. Sept. 27 (AP) —Murl Emery, veteran Colorado river boatman, couldn't believe his eyes but "there was this wild mountain ram hanging by his horns from a cable stretched across the river 30 miles below Boulder Dam."

The animal, Emery opined, hooked a horn on the cable—put there during dam construction days to measure rise and fall of water, slipped, and struggled to midstream where the cable slacked.

"I pulled him off the cable," the boatman concluded, "and left him near a grasspatch. Half hour later he got his legs back and scampered over a hill."

STUDENT CONVICTED

Lawrence, Mass., Sept. 27 — (AP) — A 22-year-old Dartmouth College student convicted of striking a railroad conductor who remonstrated with him for smoking in a non-smoking compartment was sentenced yesterday to 2½ years in the House of Correction. A jury acquitted Donald P. Mead of manslaughter but found him guilty of simple assault in the death of Roland J. Boucher, 55-year-old conductor.

Solunar Tables

Duck Shooting and the Solunar Theory

Early season duck shooting all too often is apt to be a disappointing piece of business. September weather is noted for its clemency. "Blue-bird days" are the rule in September rather than the exception and the clear, sunny, windless days that are so typical of this month of early fall are not conductive to good sport in a duck blind. As soon as the dawn flight is over, the ducks usually settle down in huge ricks offshore where they take their ease, preen their feathers and talk things over. That sort of thing definitely does not make for good shooting.

But there are times during every blue-bird day when the birds become restless. After hours of inactivity, gradually and for no discernible reason, the ducks begin to move. Small bunches break away from the main ricks in deep water and trade about, evidently in search of suitable feeding locations.

These same small bunches will give you an hour or so of good shooting, as they decoy quite readily and do not seem to be particularly wary. Thus, on a blue-bird day, if a duck hunter can know in advance when this period of activity is apt to occur he can make his plans accordingly and thereby save himself many weary hours of patient duck-blind sitting.

* * *

We encountred one such day in a blind in upper Chesapeake Bay, during, of all times, the month of November. This day was a typical weather-breeder—bright sunny, windless, and unseasonably warm, actually to the point of discomfort. The morning flight had been good and a respectable stack of ducks was piled in the corner of the blind. But when the sun climbed into the sky, no breath of air stirred the glassy surface of the bay and the birds settled down well offshore to rest and hold general conclave, and we could hear their gabble and duck talk. Now and again a little rudd duck ("bar fowl" baymen call them) would appear from no place, always alone, well offshore and going like the hammers of hell, intent on urgent, personal business elsewhere. And that was all.

Garment by garment we began to peel down as the day became warmer. At last we were down to our shirts and still the weather was too warm for comfort. Bees, butterflies and at last, mosquitoes came into the blind to plague us—this, mind you, in late November. Not a gun had been fired for hours, our rear elevations began to suffer from that well-known ailment, familiar to all those who frequent the duck marshes, duck blisters. Coffee from the thermos bottles no longer tasted like coffee and cigarets began to pall. In short, all three of us were bored stiff.

To relieve the tedium, our host suggested that we go ashore, take the car and drive down to the village store to see if we couldn't find a cold drink of some sort. My son greeted this thought with high approval, but I declined.

I knew that a major Solunar Period was scheduled to arrive shortly and I wanted to be on hand to see what would happen. Not only that, but I warned them that they might miss some shooting. They allowed as how that was all right, too; they'd had all they wanted of duck-blind sitting for some time to come. They climbed down into the boat and shoved off.

* * *

Just about the time they reached shore, the first bird came in—a little broadbill hen, looking for company. She swung outside the decoys, searching for some sign of encouragement from the motionless block, so I called to her in broadbill language and in she came, nice as you please, wings set and feet outstretched. I rose and unlimbered the old Winchester and she fell among the decoys with hardly a flutter. That was the beginning.

When those two soft-drink hunter came back from their jaunt to the store, they had the dubious pleasure of picking up the balance of my limit of dead ducks from among the decoys. Had they been there with me, on the job as they should have been, they would have had equally good shooting, as small bunches of ducks kept dropping in regularly, one after the other, until the barrel of my gun was uncomfortably warm as I stood it up in the corner of the blind.

This is in no sense an isolated instance. I've seen it happen a great many times. Make up your mind to it — ducks become restless and hungry during Solunar Periods, regardless of the fact that it is a blue-bird day, and for an hour or so at least, they will give you some shooting. So it's a pretty good idea to plan your September duck shooting days with the aid of the Solunar Tables. They will save you many long hours of watchful waiting and tell you in advance what time to be in the blind so that you won't miss what shooting that day has in store for you.

Chandler, Taylor May Become World Series 'Sleepers' For Managers Harris and Shotton

Both Righthanders Enter Games As Relief Hurlers And Show Fine Form

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Spud Chandler and Harry Taylor, the two lame-armed hurlers who haven't been of much use to their respective teams lately, were in position today to become World Series "sleepers" for managers Bucky Harris and Burt Shotton.

Chandler, veteran right-hander of New York Yankees, yesterday made his first start since July 10, and while charged with the Yankees' 3-2 loss to Boston Red Sox, showed enough to raise Harris' hopes.

He yielded two walks and two hits for all of Boston's runs in the first inning. He fanned three straight in the second, surrendered a walk and another hit in the third and chalked up another strikeout in the third.

Taylor, brilliant right-handed rookie of Brooklyn Dodgers, who hasn't pitched since Aug. 18 when he was forced to retire in a game with St. Louis Cardinals because of a stiffness in his pitching elbow, also made a surprise appearance Thursday night against Philadelphia Phils. He pitched two scoreless relief innings and pronounced himself fit for action against the Yankees.

Boston Braves clinched third place in the National League yesterday when southpaw Warren Spahn shut out New York Giants 2-0 with seven hits. It was the 21st victory for the sophomore star who has lost 10.

Alpha Brazle pitched and batted St. Louis Cardinals to a 5-3 victory over Bob Chipman and Chicago Cubs. The lean southpaw allowed 10 hits for his 14th victory and made three of the Redbirds' 11 hits.

The second-place Detroit Tigers remained a game in front of the Red Sox in the American League by defeating Cleveland Indians 5-2. Young Art Houtteman limited the Indians to seven hits.

Philadelphia Athletics and Washington Senators split a doubleheader, the Athletics capturing the first game 11-8 and the Senators taking the second 4-3. Elmer Valo and Ferris Fain blasted two-run homers to win the first for the A's. Rae Scarborough outpitched Bill McCahan in the second.

No other teams were scheduled.

SENT TO REFORMATORY

Welland, Sept. 27 — (CP) — Convicted by an Assize Court jury last week of the attempted rape of an 18-year-old Niagara Falls, Ont., girl, Norman E. Blair, 29, of Niagara Falls, Ont., Friday was sentenced by Mr. Justice A. M. LeBel to two years less one day determinate and 4 months indeterminate in reformatory.

Sports Shorts from Britain

By MICHAEL O'MARA
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, (CP)—Bigger holiday crowds than ever have been watching the centuries-old sport of hound-trailing in the Lake District where the season lasts from April to October.

Aniseed oil and turpentine trails lead the dogs over about 10 miles of moor and field with the start and finish at the same point, where bookies cluster to shout the odds.

"Nobbling" of a favorite has been know nin the past—even to waylaying heavily-backed dogs behind hillside walls—but the sport's two ruling bodies, the Hound Trailing Association and the Border Association, now post stewards around the course to keep present-day nobblers at bay.

Sometimes other distractions interfere. At a recent meeting during Britain's sunniest summer in years the dogs, hot and thirsty after their long run, all stopped at a brook within sight of the finish-line for a hearty drink before pressing on.

Fortunately the favorite downed his pint first and loped home in front.

Hardest-hit innings of the cricket season must have been that of J. Milburn, playing for Burnopfield against Leslie in the Tyneside Senior League.

Milburn's 164 included 18 sixes and 11 fours. In one 10-minute spell he scored 66 in three overs.

New hurdles at Wimbledon Greyhound Stadium— "jumps without bumps"—are set up in sections so that if a dog strikes the bar he knocks his section to the ground and escapes uninjured. Hitherto many owners had hesitated to run their animals in steeplechase events, fearing the frequent damage to legs and ribs that the hounds suffered with the old-fashioned hurdles.

Add swimming enthusiasts: Otis, an 18-month-old Siamese cat owned by Lady Dorothy Hedges, of Exmouth, Devonshire.

One day Lady Dorothy went for a swim in the sea and left Otis on the beach. Turning to swim back, she found the cat paddling alongside with every appearance of enjoying himself.

Alf Gover, Surrey and England bowler who took 118 wickets for his county this season, has announced his retirement from first-class cricket at the age of 39.

Eddie Paynter, Lancashire and England batsman, on the contrary, says he intends to come back to county play next season at the age of 47.

SEVEN RESTAURANTS CLOSED

Niagara Falls, Ont., Sept. 27—(CP) — A city-wide survey of eating places by the Board of Health during the last two weeks, resulted today in the closing of seven restaurants. Dr. C.K. Whitelock, Medical Health Officer, said the premises would remain closed until the owners had complied with regulations governing them.

Philadelphia Rockets Hang 11-3 Defeat on Amateurs In Wide-Open Free-Scoring Game

1100 Fans Place Stamp of Approval On First Pro Hockey Tilt Seen Here — Amateurs Show Plenty of Speed and Ability But Lacked Finish Around Net

The Philadelphia Rockets, regulars and rookies, ushered in professional hockey to an enthusiastic crowd of 1,100 fans in Memorial Arena here last night, and the consensus of the cash-paying critics was, that the pro sport will do.

The professional squad, under the direction of Coach Wally Kilrea flashed a fine brand of hockey considering the fact that they had only a week's practice under their collective belts and hung an 11-3 defeat on the willing, fast-skating aggregation of amateurs.

Insofar as territorial play was concerned the score did not indicate the difference between the squads. It was fast, wide-open hockey from gong to gong with both teams skating all out and sparing neither the hickory nor the body.

A Test Match

In fact it was a test match in the true sense of the word, with Coach Kilrea with the pros, and Manager Max Kaminsky directing the amateurs, throwing the troops over the boards in various combinations in an effort to get the most effective results.

Actually the greater margin of difference lay in the pros' ability and finish around the opposing nets. True, the amateurs had a heavier, more experienced blueline bulwark to cope with in the husky defence of the pros, but even though they matched speed for speed with the regular hired help, they lacked that finish in front of the opposing goal.

Of course a gentleman by the name of Maurice Courteau who wore the pads of the pro blue and gold had a lot to say about the amateur scoring and he turned in a highly creditable exhibition of kicking out pucks when they were labelled for the twine.

Plenty of Defence

In front of him he had 205 pound Jack Portland, and husky Bill Walsh, not to mention huge Eddie Bush, and tricky Jimmy Drummond, "Rusty" Waldriff and Al. Shewchuk.

Up front on the attacking divisions Coach Kilrea hurled the Johnny Mahaffey Steve Wochy, Mike Narduzzi line, responsible for eight of the pros total of twenty scoring points. Mahaffey scored two markers, Wochy one, with Narduzzi getting three assists and Wochy a pair.

"Jimmie Jamieson winger on the Walter Stefaniw, Leo Richard line was the high scorer of the night getting two goals unassisted in sparkling forays and taking Richard's pass for another. Stefaniw skated miles and was deserving of at least a couple of tallies.

Kenny Kilrea parked the third line of Phil Hergesheimer and Chuck Kraiger, scoring two goals, one unassisted and the other from Jimmy Drummond's pass. Kraiger scored a neat goal in the first period when he picked up a loose puck to race around the amateur defence to poke the disc behind Freddie Sparks in the Ams net.

The amateurs collectively turned in a fine exhibition one that drew comments of satisfaction from their coach. Art. Thompson, of Port Colborne played an outstanding game both ways for the Rookies and with Walter Natchiuk Louie Milani Nick Bangay and Kovalchuk looked the best of the amateur squad. Tolton and Stewart and Barney Hilson went well on the defence while Freddie Sparks Ivan Walmsley and Bruce Philby looked impressive in the nets for the amateurs each work-a period.

Rockets Open Scoring

Rockets forged to the attack in the first period but were met with a hard-checking fast-skating aggregation of amateurs. Eight minutes of play had passed before Jimmy Drummond took Stefaniws pass in front of the goal mouth and tossed it home for the first score of the game. Jamieson, Kraiger and Kilrea each counted in this period and the chukker ended with the count 4-0.

Stefaniw took Jamieson's pass after one minute of play in the second period to put the pros five up, but Natchuik on a neat play broke the duckegg with a hard low shot in the far corner at the 2.56 mark.

Kenny Kilrea for the pros and Milani of the amateurs both scored in this period and the squads went out for the final heat with the Rockets leading 6-2.

The pros turned on the power in the final period scoring five goals with but a single return from the opposition. They sailed in close with neat passing plays and Mahaffey scored two by this method while Jamieson led lone sorties to notch a brace for himself. Loughead scored the Amateurs' lone goal of the period on a neat pass from Kovalchuk at the mid-period mark.

The game was not without its exciting moments. Both teams stepped into opposing attackers and many hard jolts were handed out. Twelve penalties were imposed by Referee "Toots" Holway and Linesman "Speedy" St. Louis, but all were for minor offences.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor.

Professional hockey made its debut, or at least a dress rehearsal of it, at Memorial Arena last night — and the reaction of fandom hereabouts was that it will do. It was not perhaps the heavy bruising type of hockey that characterizes battles between different teams of the American Hockey League, but the game between Philadelphia Rockets and their amateur aspirants gave the faithful a splendid conception of what type of game the professionals play. Not that the local guys and gals are strangers to National League Hockey, but for the greater majority of them it was the first glimpse of the American League style.

• • •

As a matter of fact, the game was highly satisfactory to all concerned, and that goes for coach Wally Kilrea. "I am satisfied with the way the boys played tonight," he said, in an after game statement, "Considering the fact they have only a week's practice, their exhibition tonight was good."

• • •

The teams raced at top speed from the first whistle until the last. Coach Kilrea in charge of the Rockets and Manager Max Kaminsky who directed the rookies, sent their various combinations over the boards in rapid sequence. And the result was fast, high class action that was sustained throughout the sixty minutes of play.

• • •

But through the hard-skating clever combinations of amateurs speed with the professionals, there was always apparent that line of demarkation between the clever amateur and the experienced professional. Johnny Mahaffey, Kenny Kilrea, Phil Hergeshimer, Eddie Bush, Jack Portland, Jimmy Drummond, Steve Wochy and others, crafty veterans of many a National League and American Hockey League campaign, used their sticks of experience to advantage, and the result was goals. True, the pros had a very heavy margin of advantage behind the blueline, but the attacking divisions knew what to do with the puck when they got it. The amateurs, clever, fast, tricky, zoomed into pro territory to dent the twine. The pros, with some clever combination plays at times worked to the goal-mouth before driving the rubber into the net.

• • •

However, 'twas a pre-season hockey spectacle well worth seeing. And although the amateurs went down to a 11-3 defeat, they were by no means disgraced nor outclassed to that extent. Particularly good, in this corners opinion, were Art Thompson, of Port Calborne (No. 14), Walter Natchiuk, of Brantford, (No. 6), Nicky Bangay of Markham (No. 7) who played here last winter against Trenton Flyers, Louie Milani (No. 9) of Port Arthur and Fred Kovauchuk (No. 12) of Quebec City. Keith Tolton, Stratford, and Stew Stewart, Kingston looked good on the rearguard with Barney Hilson, of Guelph, Freddie Sparks, Stratford goalie looked the pick of the netminding crop although Bruce Philby, Toronto and Ivan Walmsley, also of Toronto turned in good efforts. Maurice Courteau, goalie put in a busy night, and acquitted himself creditably.

• • •

Steve Wochy, Johnny Mahaffey, and Nick Narduzzi looked the best line out there. Wendell Jamieson.. and Walter Stefaniw were also effective with Leo Richard. Kenny Kilrea skated miles and helped himself to a couple of goals but Phil Hergesheimer, last year's scoring leader of the NHL couldn't find the twine.

• • •

Jack Portland and Eddie Bush heaved their weight at all and sundry behind the Rockets blueline with Jimmy Drummond aiding with several goal ward rushes, besides playing a fine defensive game. He was used on the forward line at one time and helped himself to a goal and an assist.

• • •

The Batawa Shoemen came through handsomely at the Exhibition Grounds last night in what seemed more like football than baseball weather, and annexed unto themselves the Eastern Ontario Intermediate "A" baseball championship by defeating the Peterborough squad 3-1 in their third and final game of the series.

• • •

It was a thrilling hurling duel all the way between Gordy Muffitt, Bata ace and Gordy Loucks, premier hurler of the Petes. Muffitt stifled the Petes war clubs with five scattered hits while the best the Shoemen could do was six safeties off Loucks delivery. Muffitt whiffed 13 batters, and showed plenty of pitching courage especially in the last innings when two men got aboard with none out. He struck out the next two hitters and forced the third to ground out weakly to the infield.

• • •

Clutch hitting paved the way for the Batawa win with Johnny Aquino coming through with a double and single and Solmes donating two two-baggers to the Muffitt cause. It was a close game all the way, and in fact anybody's battle until the eighth innings when the Shoemen shoved over the clinching run.

• • •

And while on the subject of baseball, there still remains that little item of the City League championship between the Trenton Flyers and the Shoemen, our grapevine informs us that the Exhibition Ground floodlights go bye-bye for the winter at the beginning of the week, so some quick arrangements should be forthcoming if the city title series is to be completed.

S. R. (Sandy) Burrows, honorary president of the Belleville Junior Hockey Association and executive member of the Ontario Hockey Association will attend the conclave of the latter body over the weekend. With artificial ice now available here, it is expected that the powers-that-be will include a junior squad from this city in a much more attractive grouping than heretofore. In any case Mr. Burrows will take up the cudgels for Belleville in that respect.

'PHYSICIANETTES' NEW NAME FOR NURSES SUGGESTED

Boston, Sept. 27 —(AP)— A new name for nurses—physicianettes—was suggested by Dr. Chester S. Keefer, physician-in-chief of Massachusetts Memorial Hospitals, in a speech to 48 new nurses at their graduating exercises. "A nurse is now often responsible, at least in hospitals, for the performance of many technical procedures that were carried out in former years by the doctor himself," he explained.

Rookies Continue To Set Pace In Canadiens' Camp

Montreal, Sept. 27. (CP)—The Rookies continue to set the pace at Montreal Canadiens Training Camp at the Forum here, As the oldsters take it easy warming up for the 60-game grind ahead.

Taking the spotlight at yesterday's practice sessions was Jacques Locas, a fleet-footed French-Canadian youngster from last winter's Montreal Royals. Locas rapped home four goals in scrimmaging and was a standout on the attacking line. He now has seven goals to his credit in four days' play, standing second only to Floyd Curry, another aspirant for pro ranks up from the Royals.

Murdo McKay, who saw action in a few games at the tail-end of last season when he was brought up from Buffalo Bisons of the American Hockey League, also notched four goals in a wide-open session yesterday to raise his total to five.

Maurice Richard, has been rounding into shape slowly, but yesterday he was showing flashes of his regular performance, the line of Bobby Carse, Johnny Quilty and Jimmy Peters is still the most consistent in camp, and indications are Coach Dick Irvin may start them as a line when the season gets underway.

Irvin is taking more rosy view of things than is his normal practice, as the boys show better every day. The only casualty yesterday was ex-Royal Tod Campeay, who had to crawl off the ice after turning his ankle, but he should be out again today.

Phil Maloney has been cut off the string, going to Barrie, Ont., to join Buffalo's Training Camp, and Irvin tried George Robertson on left wing with Curry and Murph Chamberlain. Robertson, along with Hal Laycoe and Joe Bell, came to Canucks in the trade that sent Buddy O'Connor and Frankie Eddolls to New York.

Batawa Shoemen Defeat Petes In Third Playdown Game To Win Eastern Ontario Title

Gordy Muffitt Edges Petes' Gordy Loucks In Stirring Pitching Duel — Game In Doubt Until Eighth Frame — Score Was 3-1

Batawa Shoemen eased themselves into the finals of the Intermediate "A" O.B.A. playdowns here last night under the lights at the Exhibition Grounds, when they defeated the Peterborough Marines 3-1 in the third and deciding game of their series. Despite the cold weather there was a large crowd on hand and they witnessed one of the best hurling duels that has been seen in this city in some time between Gordon Muffitt, ace righthander of the winning club and Gordon Loucks who came up from the junior ranks this year.

Bill Easton, manager of the Shoemen, won the toss with Ernie Summer O.B.A. convener flipping the coin. As was said before the contest developed into a hurling duel with Muffitt having the slight edge. He had a perfect curve working and his hard fast one went whizzing by on many occasions. He struck out thirteen of the opposition and after walking two in the first frame without a run being scored he settled away and the losers could do nothing with his offerings. Gordie was only in trouble once during the pastime and that was in the last frame with the team enjoying a two-run lead. The first man got on by an error by Cook and Bob Crowe ruffled a single over second. Muffitt went to work and struck out the next two batters and made the third roll weakly to second for the final out.

On the other hand Gordon Loucks was pitching a smart game. True he did not have as many strikeouts but he had a fast ball that gave the Shoemen considerable trouble. His control was nearly perfect, he walked only one man but his defence crumpled at times and the winners got their bingles when they meant runs. He whiffed five and walked one and allowed six hits, two of them doubles by Solmes. Coach Carman Cook juggled his lineup to get a winning combination and the result was more power in the top half of the batting order.

Shoemen Take Early Lead

The Shoemen went ahead in the first frame when Solmes lined a double to left centre and Burtt was safe when Girard dropped the ball and threw badly to first, Solmes taking third on the play. Aquino then clouted a high one to centre and Solmes scored after the catch. Burtt was forced at second and Spencer grounded to the pitcher to end the rally. The Petes got that one back in the fifth after two were out. Loucks was safe on Watson's error and on the overthrow to first went to second. He was singled to third by Scriver and then the prize play of the evening was made. Incidentally Scriver had taken second on the throw-in of his single and when he took a long lead, Aquino threw to Watson, who trapped Scriver but Loucks scored on the rundown.

Cinch Game in 8th

The Shoemen were not long getting the run back. Peacock was hit by a pitched ball in their half of the fifth and Rankin promptly sacrificed him to second. Cook went out when Garvey made a beautiful catch of a foul back of third base but Solmes came through with his second double of the evening, the ball hitting the third base bag and caroming into left centre field, Peacock scampering home on the bingle. For good measure Bata crew scored another in the eighth the last for the night. Burtt was safe on Garvey's bad throw and went to second on the overthrow. Aquino singled and Burtt raced home with Aquino going to second when the ball was relayed to the infield.. Watson grounded to Loucks, who threw out Aquino at third and Spencer walked, the first charity of the game for Loucks but Muffitt whiffed and Peacock rolled to Crowe.

The Petes made the only double play of the pastime, when Crowe took Muffitt's high pop back of second and got Watson at the plate. The hitting honors for the losers went to Bob Crowe at second base. He had three bingles and a walk for a perfect night, the other two hits, that Muffitt allowed going to Scriver and Garvey. Solmes was the heavy sticker for the winners with two doubles and Johnny Aquino was close behind with a double and single. Ken Peacock got a bingle as did Watson to complete the hitting of the Shoemen. The Batawa crew played solid ball, especially in the clinches and deserved their win and are worthy champions of Eastern Ontario and the district will be pulling for them to bring the Intermediate title back to Eastern Ontario.

SPORTSMEN LINK ARMS SLASH BAG

Old-Time Manitoba Market Hunter Now As Rare As Labrador Duck and Passenger Pigeon

By STAN BENTHAM
(Winnipeg Free Press)

The ranks of the old-time market hunter thinned with the disappearance of the passenger pigeon and the Labrador duck until today he is as rare as the nearly extinct trumpeter swam and whooping crane as Canada's sportsmen have become conservation conscious.

At long last, sportsmen of Manitoba have linked arms with provincial game authorities in cutting bag limits, studying game management, and practising conservation of wild life with all the reasoning and energy in their possession.

While the government has increased its number of game guardians by 12, sportsmen—through the medium of the Manitoba Federation of Game and Fish Associations—have asked for smaller bag limits on all branches of their sport—fish, big game, and migratory birds.

The Manitoba department of game and fisheries in co-operation with sportsmen has constructed eight feeding plots for upland game birds this season. Trained biologists are working the lakes and streams while four others—members of the United States department of the interior and wild life institute—are on loan to study water levels and marshes.

The change in the sportsman's attitude and his eagerness to study and apply methods of conservation may be attributed to many factors. However, it is believed the sportsman realized the error of wanton slaughter in the late '30's when Ducks Unlimited was organized and swept through Western Canada with its streamlined publicity system.

Hired Biologists

In wake of this organization came the drop in the grouse population and bag limits dropped until a closed season was declared. Then, three years ago, individual game clubs banded together into a federation to better understand and exchange information on game conditions.

On the other hand, Manitoba's game department started hiring biologists to study conditions of game, commercial fish problems and fur rehabilitation schemes. During 1943 Manitoba's first sport fish hatchery—the Whiteshall trout hatchery—was opened for restocking of Manitoba's lakes with sport fish and millions of fry distributed annually.

Ring-necked pheasants have been purchased from the United States in lots of thousands and released. The Hungarian partridge was aided in establishing itself and planting of Chukar partridge and Bobwhite made in Manitoba. Unfortunately, the latter two birds increased and then, suddenly disappeared.

Yes, today, the sportsmen, the government, and the tourist camp operators have ceased to work for their own interests alone and have banded together for the sole purpose of conserving the game we have and are studying the problem through better understanding in game management.

All in Manitoba realize that hunting and fishing is big business and must be handled as such if the pleasures and profits of the sport are to exist.

Milwaukee Brewers Meet Syracuse Chiefs

Syracuse, N.Y., Sept. 27 —Milwaukee Brewers of the American Association and Syracuse Chiefs of the International League meet here tonight in the first game of baseball's Little World Series.

Both teams finished third during the regular season, both were forced to seven games in their best-of-seven playoff series and both pack plenty of power at the plate.

The Brewers captured batting honors in the Association with a .287 average and the Chiefs led the International league with a .276 team mark.

Syracuse Manager Jewel Ens is epected to start southpaw Jim Prendergast, who won 20 and lost 15 during the regular season. Nick Cullop, Brewer manager, will use either Al Epperly or Buck Ross both righthanders. Epperly posted 15 wins and five losses during the season and Ross won 10 and and won an equal number.

The first three games of the best-of-seven series will be played in Syracuse, the remainder in Milwaukee.

Syracuse reached the series by eliminating Buffalo in the International League playoff finals and Milwaukee qualified by debeating out Louisville.

The lineups are the top batters of both leagues. The Brewers have Berlin-born Henix Becker, who led the Association with a .363 average.

Protective Laws Save Wild Life in Saskatchewan

By E. R. "PHAN" PHANEUF
(Regina Leader-Post)

Forgive us, O God of Hunters we have sinned. In Your Great Paradise of migratory and upland game birds, fightingest fish, and fine fur-bearing animals we are atoning for our misdeeds. We now are conserving wild life.

"Conservation of Wild Life"—that device really means something in Saskatchewan. The authorities are legislating, Ducks Unlimited is leading, keen leaders, sportsmen and honest citizens are co-operating. We are bring back a hunters' near-Utopia—it did come too near the vanishing point.

One of our great tourist attractions, we realized, was fading badly. We noticed that more so in the last ten years—there were fewer of those good sportsmen coming to visit us, there were no more chartered railway cars at sidings, the temporary homes of dozens of scatter-gun experts who would later return to their homes as in former days, taking bird limit bags way beyond normal. We have paid the price, we miss our old friends, and now we are correcting that condition.

From year to year government authorities, after consulting with leading sportsmen, have issued regulations. Times there were when these regulations were apparently made to be broken, but a few stiff fines, confiscation of licences, guns, ammunition when it was so scarce, even cars, brought respect for the law of the people. That respect grew into a code—"Be certain your aim is good before you shoot." It is a good code, for now there are fewer game birds maimed that escape, always a serious loss from the bird population, and also to the sportsman.

Conservation Program

Government activity in conservation in Saskatchewan includes besides the yearly regulations for bag limits, closed season for certain birds, re-stocking of lakes and rivers with fish fry, establishment of game preserves, employment of active game wardens—quite a few too—protection for all game birds and furbearing animals, full reports of kills, forest fire fighting, encouragement in killing destructive birds such as crows, magpies etc.

That of itself is quite a program, but authorities aided by keen leaders, and sportsmen have encouraged the dissemination of knowledge among the young folk. They also made an urgent plea to youth to protect wild life in Saskatchewan, not forgetting to teach them to destroy bad wild life that preys on useful birds and animals. This has resulted in a wholesome love for wild life, and is a bigger program of conservation.

Truly aroused by the facts, of the need of protection, the young of today who will be here tomorrow, will have that sound national pride in their loved Saskatchewan, they will protect and conserve, and wherever and whenever possible work for the increase of game birds and animals in a greater hunters' paradise of the future.

YANKEES PICKED TO BEAT DODGERS IN SIX GAMES

American League Champions Have Better Outfield and Best Player In DiMaggio

By GAYLE TALBOT

New York Sept. 27 (AP)—Though the memory of what St. Louis Cardinals did to Boston's supermen a year ago still is green there seems nothing to do but stick with the percentages and pick the favored New York Yankees to down Brooklyn Dodgers in about six games.

The American League champions boast the better outfield and they have one of the game's greatest players in Joe DiMaggio.

Their pitching looks superior to that of the Dodgers and they will have the advantage of playing the first two World Series games in their own park.

The Dodgers are a good, sound team, full of fight and imbued with a winning spirit that has made them vastly respected in their own league. They have in Jackie Robinson a streak of lightning who might break up a tight game with his base running, and they own the best of the series catchers in Bruce Edwards.

The question mark of the playoffs appears to be the Brooklyn pitching staff. It has been an erratic group all season with only Ralph Branca the 21-game winner who will face the Yanks in the opener showing consistent form. Vic Lombardi a vestpocket lefthander came up brilliantly in the latter stages of the race and so did Joe Hatten another southpaw, but neither belongs quite in the top drawer.

Much could depend upon whether Harry Taylor, Brooklyn's rookie righthander is able to take a turn. He has the fastest and sharpest curve on the Dodger staff and some of the experts feel he might stop the Yanks. He has had a bad arm though and made his first appearance in five weeks last night when he worked two scoreless innings against the Phils in Philadelphia.

Metropolitan writers agree that the freshman sensation looked fast and that his curve was breaking. Manager Burt Shotton has assigned him to do another stint against Boston on Sunday and if hes passes that test impressibly the odds against the Dodgers now approximately 21 might shorten.

Mental hospitals in Canada now are discharging 60 per cent of their patients within one year of admission and some cases require only a few weeks' treatment.

The Death of a Doll

By Hilda Lawrence

CHAPTER 24

The figure that vanished up the stairs was both real and imaginary. Real because he knew who she was and what she had done, even though he hadn't seen her. Up the stairs from the first floor to the second, turning the key in Mrs. Fister's door retriving the extra costume from the packroom, returning to the lobby to stalk Ruth Miller, to put Ruth Miller within reach of Miss Plummer's arm.

What had he thought about when she followed Ruth to that eight-floor room? Nothing new, nothing that she hadn't thought for years.

He saw her as she must have looked five years before when she first came face to face with the girl she would later kill. Norman Crawford said they'd brought her to his office, calm and undisturbed in spite of the evidence, ready to talk herself out of it. She'd taken small things, glittering things, gilt compacts, novelty jewelry, little boxes set with semi- - precious stones. She'd told them they were purchases, that she'd been collecting them one by one, that she'd been looking for a clerk. She had no charge account, there was no money, no checkbook in the handsome capacious handbag. Only the small, glittering things, the little boxes. She'd like little boxes.

Then they'd confronted her with Ruth Miller, who had seen her last, uick movement at the counter. Ruth Miller, standing with her back to the light for her own protection. The detectives had told her where to stand. They knew their stuff. And they'd told her not to speak. Protection, but it hadn't been enough.

Norman Crawford said he would never forget it. The other one had broken loose, screamed, fought, tried to reach the girl who identified her. Crawford said: "We sent Miss Miller away, we had to. She went to pieces. I nearly did myself. I still quake when I think of it. Demoralizing, horrible.... The other girl got the usual sentence, plus medical care." Crawfoird repeated the psychiatrist's report. It was hideously accurate. And he'd asked what he could do, his voice showing plainly that he knew the answer. Nothing.

Ruth Miller in the Hope House lobby, clinging to her suitcase, wrinkling her eyes, peering at the new faces, seeing an old, familiar one. No wonder she had tried to keep Roberta from investigating the shoplifter at Blackman's. Roberta had given him that story in parenteses, but he'd known it was important. And when Libby had described the short-change episode, he'd known that was important, too. So had Libby . . . A good saleswoman, one of the best, who said she had never worked before.

He walked on, thinking, talking to himself. It was ten-thirty. He didn't want to know the time, but the clock on the Metropolitan tower told him with a bright face and emplasized it with chimes. After a few blocks he called a cab.

Miss Small looked at the traveling clock on her desk, looked at the silent telephone, and began to pace the floor. It was half past ten. The phone had been silent since nine-thirty, when Kitty Brice had called from the lobby. Kitty had sounded miles away because she was whispering.

She'd wanted to know if any-desk when Miss Brady walked in. All Miss Brady said was, "Changed my mind. Couldn't sleep after all."
one had told Miss Small about the policeman. She'd tried to tell Miss Brady, but Miss Brady wasn't in her room or else she wouldn't answer her phone. Somebody ought to be told. There were policemen on every floor, and the one in the lobby wouldn't let anybody out.

"I'm sick," Kitty had said. "Miss Small, I'm sick. I want to go to the doctor, but the cop won't let me out either. And Mrs. Fister and Jewel quit, so I'm all alone."

Miss Small had told her to go to bed. That was the first she had heard about the policeman, it was the first time Monny had failed to consult her. She thought it over, wondering.

She was still thinking about it an hour later. Was Monny trying to keep things from her? Monny had been strained at lunch, and she hadn't even come down to dinner, And she hadn't phoned . . . Miss Small sat at her desk and put her aching head in her hands. If this thing came between her and Monny, if it broke their lives and happiness, canceled out the years ahead and the planning— She whispered fiercely to herself. "It can't, it can't, not when we have so much!"

She reached for the phone, let her hand fall, and reached again. When the other voice answered, her own was almost too choked to reply.

"You didn't call me," she said. "I'm worried about you. Are you all right?"

Miss Brady admitted to a headache.

"Is it too bad for company?" Miss Small asked. "I mean, would you like me to come up?"

"Not tonight."

Miss Small replaced the receiver and looked at her surroundings. She hardly saw them, even though the carefully chosen lamps were bright, and the English chintz was gay and arresting.

She was blind to everything but an absent face and filled with a pain that was like a drug.

Miss Brady didn't answer his knock. He gave her a minute before he opened the door and went in. She was clearing out her desk, tearing sheets of paper and dropping the fragments to the floor.

He said, "This afternoon we got the background. A story, a name, and a psychiatrist's report. It's an old report, but it's as good today as it ever was."

He told her about the telephone number, and reported Norman Crawford's conversation as Foy had repeated it to him. "So you see how it adds up," he said. "The girl who killed Ruth Miller was born wanting things. She was ambitious, devious, lazy. A psychiatrist said that five years ago when she was up for shoplifting. ambitious, devious, lazy, although she did take jobs when they were worth her while. She could fit herself into any sort of job if her particular pot of gold was at the end of it. Nobody ever checked on her, she was too good for that. She could be, and act, anything."

"Yes," Miss Brady said.

"And there's another thing about her that worries Foy. She's a bad loser. If she can't have what she wants, nobody can."

"Foy's wrong."

He got up and went to the door. He'd said enough. "I'm going now Would you rather—I mean do you want to go down with me?"

"No."

He shut the door behind him.

Miss Small was still at her Miss Small said, "I know. I couldn't either . . . Monny, I'm frightened. The place is crawling with policemen! Why, Monny, why?"

"Don't ask me why," Miss Brady said. "Don't ask me why about anything . . Got anything to drink?"

Miss Small sighed. "Brady," she said. She reached into the desk and hunted out the bottle. "It isn't very good brandy, but it's all I can offer. I'm sorry. Will it be all right?"

"Sure."

"I'll wash out the glasses." Miss Small went into the tiny bathroom and returned. "Anything new on Lillian Harris, Monny?"

"She's all right."

"That's good . . . Here, Monny. Don't spill."

They touched their glasses, held them high and smiled. "After this, beddy-bye," Miss Small said.

There was a shout, the world rocked, and Miss Brady fell to the floor. Her mouth was bleeding where a hand had struck her. Foy's hand. Foy's. His square hands were on her shoulders, gripping, no hurting lifting her up. He was lifting her up and talking to someone across the room. He was talking to East.

She put her hands to her head; she had hurt her head. I fell, she said to herself, I remember falling. He struck me, he struck the glass out of my hand and I fell.

"Why did you do that?" she asked vaguely.

Foy's answer came from a distance, al'hough he was standing beside her.

"Because there was poison in your drink," he said.

Then East's voice, living, close beside her. "I tried to tell you."

"Oh no," she cried. "Not to me!"

Little by little Mark told Roberta. Foy had watched the door himself waiting for the house to grow quiet. But when he saw Brady go in, he began to worry. He thought of all the things that could happen, a tip-off, suicide, poison, and he moved in closer. He heard them talking. Talk, just talk. And then they had laughed. Together. He hadn't liked the sound of that, so he'd singnaled to the nearest man on duty, and the signal had traveled up and down the stairs from floor to floor. After that it had been a near think. In time, he had heard the clink of glasses. In time, he had reached Brady. But only Brady.

Roberta shivered. "Bad."

He went on, quoting fragments of his first interview with Plummer. "Miss Plummer unconsciously gave us the answer when she told Brady that Small went down to the kitchen when the chef was hurt. That didn't say anything to me, but it said a lot to Brady. I saw how she looked at Plummer. She looked like somebody getting a preview of hell. You see, she knew Small hadn't gone. She'd been there herself, the whole time, so she knew . . . A few hours later everything broke and Norman Crawford and Clara mopped it up."

"Mark, has anyone said anything about suspecting her?"

"Not in words. But when Foy and I left, we met Kitty Brice in the lobby and she didn't look crushed. . . . It was a made-to-order job from the start. When Small went to Hope House as a boarder, she couldn't face the character investigation they required. So she turned on the charm and the grave, sweet talk about private rights and the un-American way. Brady was enchanted. Right off the bat she gave our girl a job, and the reference rule was tossed out. Our girl climbed up and up. When Ruth Miller came on the scene, she was pretty close to the top of her world, and she wasn't climbing down. So Ruth had to go. Ruth's fear was too obvious, the story was bound to come out eventually."

Roberta said gently, "Poor Ruth."

Mark saw the woman he had left only a short time before, slumped in a chair, looking at the drift of torn paper on the floor. Letters, notes, travel folders—

He answered Roberta, but to himself. He said, Poor Monny.

TEN KILLED IN BOMB EXPLOSION AT HAIFA

U.S. Destroyer Strikes Mine 16 Mi. off Trieste

Three Killed, Some Injured; Ships Propellors Smashed

Trieste, Sept. 29 (AP) —Three men died today when the United States destroyer Douglas H. Fox hit a mine off Trieste.

The explosion knocked out both of the destroyer's propellors and both rudders.

Four other men were injured critically and eight more required hospital treatment.

United States naval headquarters here said the destroyer Owen had been sent to the rescue.

Reports reaching headquarters said the Fox still was able to move under her own power, but that the steering equipment was damaged.

Trieste is the former Northeast Italian port city, now included in the free territory of Trieste created from an area ceded by Italy at the head of the Adriatic Sea. Yugoslavia borders the territory on the east.

McCarthy, who left the Yankees in May, 1946, because of ill health, takes over his new job at once. Cronin refused to divulge either his or McCarthy's salary.

Doctor Testifies Nurse Died Of 'Strangulation'

Cochrane, Ont., Sept. 29 — (CP)— Dr. W. L. Robinson, Toronto pathologist, told the court that Nurse Valair Vandebelt died June 22 last "of asphyxiation, the result of strangling or throttling" as the preliminary hearing of a murder count against Roger Gauthier and Rocco Sisco opened today.

Although both of the Cochrane men are charged separately in the "party" slaying, their counsel agreed to proceeding on a joint charge. Dr. Robinson said he did not consider the pretty Toronto nurse could have taken her own life in the bush where her body was found at Silver Queen Lake, 20 miles from here.

Dr. Roy P. Smith of Timmins who conducted the original autopsy in Cochrane described the girl's face as covered with blood and severely swollen, with a deep bruise above the right eye. A bruised area above the left ear resulted from a blow by something "more substantial than a fist."

Marks on the front of the girl's legs had been caused by walking through the bush. A red plastic belt knotted once around her throat had been fairly tight because of a ridge in the flesh of the neck. He thought he had noticed a skull fracture and reached the conclusion the girl had been struck a blow and lost a lot of blood. Death had been "aided by strangulation."

WORTHY OF ONLY HANGMAN'S ROPE SAYS PROSECUTOR

23 Nazi Commanders Accused of Slaying More Than 1,000,000

Nuernberg, Sept. 29 (AP) — Twenty-three Nazi commanders whose terror squads are accused of slaying more than 1,000,000 Jews, Russians and Gypsies, were assailed today by United States prosecutors as the greatest killers of all time, worthy of only the hangman's rope.

Trail of the "Einsatz Gruppen (group)" officers opened with the prosecution's declaration that any leniency for such men means that the world "must live in fear."

Prosecutor Benjamin B. Ferencz said he would prove from the Gestapo's own records that the defendants were guilty of at least 1,000,000 murders in the planned extermination of whole races.

"We ask this court to affirm by penal action man's right to live in peace and dignity regardless of his race or creed," Ferencz told the three-man tribunal. He said the Einsatz groups were formed by Gestapo Chiefs Henrich Himmler and Reinhard Heydrich in 1941 to follow the Wehrmacht's dash into the east and systematically execute all persons considered inferior to the Nazi master race."

The prosecutor recalled testimony of the chief defendant, S.S. Maj.-Gen. Otto Ohlendorf, before the International Military Tribunal. Ferencz quoted Ohlendorf's admission of 90,000 killings by his group.

FIVE ARE KILLED IN TRAIN WRECK NEAR KAMLOOPS

Three Truant Indian Boys Among Victims When Freight Train Hits Rockslide

Kamloops, B.C., Sept. 29 (CP) —Fireman George Hallmark of Kamloops, lone survivor of the Canadian National Railways' train wreck 37 miles west of here Saturday, was waging a grim battle for life in hospital today while plans were under way for a joint inquest for the five victims of the disaster.

Killed in the crash were two other Kamloops men, engineer Frank A. Brookall and brakeman George W. Shirley and three young Indian boys who had been playing hookey from the residential school here.

The boys, whose bodies were found in the twisted wreckage of the locomotive and 12 derailed cars, were identified as Ambrose and Francis Alex of Shalalth, B. C., and Leonard Major of Pavillion, B.C. They ranged in age from 12 to 14 years.

Hallmark, who survived the wreck but was reported in serious condition in hospital, was scalded by steam escaping from the shattered boilers of the locomotive after it had toppled off the track.

The accident happened when the freight, travelling around a mountain bend crashed into a rockslide. The locomotive and five carloads of new automobiles were destroyed, six other cars jumped the tracks and varying damage was caused to nearly all the remaining 48 cars. Mainline traffic was resumed over the route late Sunday.

Boy Smells Smoke, Gives Alarm, Saves Six at Cottage

Sutton, Ont., Sept. 29 —(CP)— A seven-year-old boy, Paul Copeland, wakened early Sunday by the smell of smoke, gave the alarm which saved the lives of four adults and two other children as a summer cottage at nearby Balfour Beach went up in a blaze visible for 10 miles.

"If my little boy hadn't smelled the smoke, we all would have been burned to death," said his father, Max Copeland of Toronto, owner of the cottage. Also asleep at the time were Mrs. Copeland; her other two children, and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Addison, weekend visitors from Toronto.

A chemical truck from this Lake Simcoe town arrived too late to control the flames which leaped about 75 feet into the air. Total loss was estimated at about $9,000.

Preparations for Royal Wedding Show Britain's Loyalty to Throne

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press Foreign Affairs Analyst)

The eagerness and affection with which Britain is preparing for the forthcoming Royal wedding despite economic crisis underlines the United Kingdom's loyalty to the throne.

It also seems to answer in the negative the question of whether Britain is swinging toward communism. Observers in general find no present indication that John Bull is bent on anything more than moderate socialism.

Princess Elizabeth will have a wedding such as befits the girl who is expected one day to sit upon the throne. She and Philip Mountbatten will be married in Westminster Abbey and there will be a magnificent procession through London; a great reception; eight wedding cakes weighing 300 pounds or more each; many and wonderful wedding presents, and the whole country will be en fete.

However, the wedding will lack the splendor of bygone days. Costs will be kept as low as possible. The Princess will forego a trousseau, and we even find the august Lord Ch announcing that gentlemen attending the wedding may wear ordinary lounge suits instead of the customary morning dress of long tails and striped trousers.

Deference to Pocketbooks

Thus deference will be paid to slim pocketbooks. Still, the people didn't want an out and out "austerity" wedding for the Princess. The reason is that the King and Queen and their children are looked upon as a part of the English family as a whole, comprising all classes. In war and in peace, royalty in modern times has marched with the "rank and file." It belongs among cherished traditions.

Furthermore no political line can be drawn about present day British Royalty. It exercises no influence on the political thoughts of the people. It is head of the social structure but knows no class.

There are some extreme British leftists, especially the communists, who are bitterly opposed to the monarchy and would do away with it. The opposition which they express is political,

'Acts of Aggression' Committed by Russian Satellites Says Greece

Lake Success, Sept. 29 —(CP)— France today moved to break the American-Soviet stalemate over the Greek-Balkan dispute with a request that both sides relax their charges and demands.

Yvon Delbos, French minister of state, in the political committee, asked the United States to withdraw demands that the Assembly hold Albania, Bulgaria and Yugoslavia guilty of aggression against Greece.

Then he asked Russia to appeal to the three Soviet satellites to cooperate toward a peaceful settlement of the guerilla warfare on the Greek border.

The French intervention followed closely after an impassioned appeal from Greek delegate Constantin Tsaldaris who declared that every moment lost in settling the disputes was costing lives and property.

Neither State Secretary Marshall nor Russia's Andrei Vishinsky were present to hear the French compromise appeal, which asks the Assembly to forget the majority report of the Balkan commission finding the three states guilty, and the Greek charge that they were at that very moment helping Greek guerrillas with arms and equipment.

Tsaldaris told the General Assembly's 55-power political committee that "at this very moment while we are considering this question, Albania, Bulgaria and Yugoslavia are sending into Greece arms and ammunition in increasing amounts and with ever increasing boldness."

He charged that the representatives of the Soviet bloc had not denied that they were sending aid to Greek guerrilla fighters, but instead had resorted to evasion and delaying tactics in an effort to becloud the issue."

"The simple fact remains, and it cannot be hidden by sophistry," Tsaldaris said, "that Albania, Bulgaria and Yugoslavia have been, and they now are, arming bands for the purpose of destroying the political independence and the territorial integrity of Greece."

The Assembly's political committee, meanwhile, had before it an American resolution asking the Assembly to put an end to aid allegedly given the guarrillas by the three satellites.

It has also a resolution, presented Saturday by Russia's Andrei Gromyko, asking the Assembly to believe the three Balkan states are innocent and to order Greece to cease inciting border incidents.

The Russian resolution also asks the Assembly to order all British and American troops out of Greece.

Another stalemate is expected to be ended by Russian veto in the Security Council this afternoon when the membership applications of Finland, Bulgaria, Hungary, Romania and Italy are considered.

The majority of the 11 members of the council favor entry of Finland and Italy but do not welcome Hungary or Bulgaria and are lukewarm on Romania.

But Gromyko, this month's chairman, supported by Poland, has tried to make Italy's admission contingent on the admission of the three Balkan States which presumably would give Russia control of three more votes in the Assembly and its main committees.

LaFrance and Tomlinson also were each sentenced to concurrent two-year terms for theft of government - owned revolvers from the armouries at London. They absolved May of any connection with the revolver theft and at the crown's request that charge against May was withdrawn.

Brantford Men Asked to Identify Alleged Trio

Brantford, Sept. 29 — (CP) — James McCoy and Thomas Miller, both of Brantford, who were kidnapped and robbed on a sideroad on a highway two miles southwest of Paris late Friday night were taken to Woodstock today by Provincial Constable Vern Welsh to determine whether three men held in Oxford county jail were the trio that robbed them at gunpoint and then fled in a car.

The two Brantford men, who were waiting for a bus to return from Paris to Brantford, were offered a ride by the trio in a car. The car headed toward Brantford but turned off the highway and stopped a short distance up the sideroad and the men were robbed of $35. The trio then sped again toward Paris.

3,500 ADDITIONAL WORKERS MAY JOIN PACKERS' STRIKE

Labor Ministers of Six Provinces Declare Walkout Illegal At Close of Conference

With the two-weeks old packinghouse workers' strike declared illegal by six provinces, the threat of a new walkout which would make severe inroads into the already-reduced meat supply looms today on Canada's labor horizon.

Fred W. Dowling, Canadian director of the United Packinghouse Workers of America (C.I.O.) —announced last night that with 12,000 U.P.W.A. members on strike for higher wages, a further 3,500 workers will vote this week on whether they will join the tie-up to seek a similar pay boost of 17 1-2 cents an hour.

At present 21 plants operated by Canada Packers, Swift Canadian and Burns and Company are shut down by the strike. Dowling said the strike vote will start at once in another 21 plants operated by smaller independent packers—three in British Columbia, one in Alberta, three in Saskatchewan, eight in Manitoba and six in Ontario. The present strike is on in all provinces but Nova Scotia, which has no packing houses.

The independent plants now are operating under extended wage contracts or under contracts nearing expiration.

Violates Provincial Law

Labor department representatives of six of eight provinces which participated in the two-day Toronto conference which ended Saturday declared the U.P.W.A. strike illegal in that it violated provincial law. Agreed on this point were Ontario, Quebec, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Manitoba and Alberta. Saskatchewan dissented and Prince Edward Island's representative attended only as an observer. British Columbia was not represented.

Deliberately Rolled Into Place Outside Police Station

29 British Constables And 48 Others Injured

Jerusalem, Sept. 29 —(AP)— Ten persons were killed and 77 injured today when district police headquarters in Haifa was hit by explosives which the Jewish underground reported it had set.

Irgun Zvai Leumi asserted in a "communique" that the 6 a.m. explosion was in reprisal for the deportation of Jewish immigrants who arrived off Palestine without certificates, and who were deported eventually to Hamburg. The underground agency said the explosion equalled that of a 2,000-ton bomb.

Four British and four Arab policemen were killed as were a 16-year-old girl and a Syrian coffee vendor.

The injured 29 British constables, of whom 13 were critically injured, and various Jewish and Arab civilians.

Shook Whole Area

Police said the bomb — a tar barrel loaded with high explosives —was dumped from a truck which backed up to the wire barricade surrounding the police stationed and dropped an improvised ramp over the barrier. Rolling down the ramp and crashing into the building, the barrel exploded moments later with a roar which shook the whole harbor area.

The truck, which pulled away just before the blast, later was found abandoned in a nearby square.

Irgun Zvai Leumi, Jewish underground organization, immediately issued a communique declaring that its agents had carried out the attack in retaliation for trans-shipment to Hamburg of the the Exodus 1947 Jews and the deportation to Cyprus of refugees who reached Palestine Saturday aboard the Afalpi.

15 MILLION BY 1981

London, Sept. 29 —(CP)— Canada will have a population of 15,00,000 by 1981 if present trends continue, but it will be a nation of "wheel-chair operators rather than pram-pushers," says Dr. Edward G. Pleva, assistant professor of geography at University of Western Ontario. "The last census in 1941 showed there were over 1,000,000 children up to the age of four years in the country," he said, "but figures show by 1981 the number will be reduced to 893,000 due to the fact that Canada is approaching an era of stationary or decreasing birth rate."

By ERIC GOTTGETREU

Haifa, Palestine, Sept. 29 (AP) —Between 200 and 300 policemen were in the seven-storey police headquarters here today at the time of the explosion.

"Its a wonder not more of us were killed," one of them said.

Half the men were still abed when 6 a.m. blast went off. The dead included three British and four Arab policemen. At least 29 other officers were injured.

Witnesses said only one man was with the driver on the truck from which a barrel of explosives was rolled to the building over an improvised ramp.

The police building still stands, but all the inner walls are cracked. Iron shutters and windows were blown out. Practically all furniture was smashed. All windows within 1.000 fee of the explosion were broken.

The whole area was cordoned off immediately, preventing looting windowless buildings.

Hafia residents have been inured to explosions long since. As soon as this latest one echoed through the city, shopkeepers living in other parts of town and from Mt. Carmel thronged quickly to Kingsway, business centre of this city, to learn their losses.

Two policemen accompanied this reporter through the headquarters building. The staircase still was covered with blood stains.

In one registry room, a clerk and two assistants were trying to sort out heaps of secret general files.

The barrel of explosives went off in the guards room on the ground floor of the street front. The barrel was rolled over a wire enclosure which was up to 13 feet wide.

"I was awakened by wild shouting from the street," one of the policemen recalled, "I sounded the alarm to my comrades. More than 40 seconds elapsed and then came the big bang. All around us was one mess.'

Bussey Remanded Until October 7

Owen Sound, Ont., Sept. 29— (CP) — Fred Bussey of Regina, charged with murder in the sex-slaying of 11-year-old Betty Playford was formally arraigned today in Grey County jail and remanded to Oct. 7 by Magistrate E. C. Spereman.

The 22-year-old suspect, arrested in Montreal, was brought here yesterday as small groups of curious bystanders looked on. In his cell, a few hundred yards from the scene of the crime, he was remanded first by William Breese, Justice of the Peace.

Bussey's arrest came after he allegedly signed a confession in Montreal that he killed the little girl with a claw hammer here Sept. 21. No date was set for his preliminary hearing on the murder charge.

Adm. Halsey's Views on Liquor And Fighting Man Irk Methodists

Washington, Sept. 29 —(AP)— The Methodist Board of Temperance came up fighting at Adm. William F. (Bull) Halsey's remark that "as a general rule, I never trust a fighting man who doesn't smoke or drink."

"Shocking," said the board. "Adm. Halsey's unfortunate statement is exceedingly injurious to the navy."

In a discussion that filled six newspaper columns of its publication Clipsheet, the Methodists asserted:

"Many of the greatest military men the world has produced have been notably abstemious."

The Methodists passed out their own verdict on whisky and fighting men:

"Drinking frequently makes a man fight; it does it in thousands of saloons every day, but we have never known it to make any one fight better."

The article was not signed.

In San Francisco, Halsey, who has retired from the United States Navy, said he had "no comment."

The whole thing started with a series in the Saturday Evening Post. It was written by Halsey, in collaboration with Lt.-Cmdr. J. Bryan III.

In the first article Bryan says of Halsey:

"Occasionally he takes a beer or martini, but his staple drink is Scotch whisky and plain water. He has said, "There are exceptions, of course, but, as a general rule, I never trust a fighting man who doesn't smoke or drink."

In a later article, written by Halsey, the admiral says he never has "been convinced of the wisdom" of the order that barred liquor from navy ships.

"To a man who has just had a tense, hazardous flight or a wet watch," said Halsey, "there is no substitute for a tot of sound spirits, as the Royal Navy well knows."

Because of this conviction, said Halsey, he ordered 100 gallons of bourbon taken on for his pilots.

"I don't remember," he said, "if it ever was approved officially."

This decision by Halsey, the Methodists said, was "an astonishing breach of navy discipline." It called whiskey a "habit-forming, irritant, anesthetic drug."

Speaking generally, the article added: "Alcohol is a deadly menace to the country's safety, whether it is in the brain of admiral, general, or diplomat."

The piece wound up with a quote from Proverbs 31:4:

"It is not for kings, O Lemuel, it is not for kings to drink wine; nor for princes strong drink."

Playing cribbage with friends the Dean of Belleville's aldermen held three fives and the jack of hearts in his hand and had the good fortune to turn up the five of hearts, giving him a perfect score of 29 points.

POLICE CIRCLES COMPARATIVELY QUIET OVER THE WEEKEND

With the exception of a number of inebriates who ran afoul of the law for imbibing too frequently and well, police circles were comparatively quiet over the weekend with both city and provincial police officers reporting only routine matters.

Three minor motor accidents were reported, none of them amounting to any more than fender or grill damage and were settled amicably between the parties concerned with no charges being laid.

A Bridge Street West resident complained to police that boys in the neighborhood had found his pear tree with a diminishing quantity of pears being noted as the days passed.

Also an aged woman residing west of the river was reported to have taken rat poison. A medical man pumped the aged woman's stomach out and she was reported well on the way toward recovery.

OVER 500 ENJOY SKATING AT RINK

The largest crowd in years attended the first public skating session held in Memorial Arena on Saturday night. It was estimated that over 500 people of all ages enjoyed the first run on the blades when Manager Walt Gerow threw open the facilities of the new artificial ice plant to the general public. Small boys were in the majority, and everybody, according to reports "had a whale of a time."

DUCKS MORE PLENTIFUL THAN LAST SEASON

With the duck-hunting season opening on October 4th, next Saturday, local nimrods are busying themselves this week in readying for the annual trek to marshes and rivers, lakes and other haunts of the black, the mallard and the canvasback.

Reports from various parts of the district state that the ducks appear to be more numerous than last year at this time. Travellers from the northern sections of the district tell the same story. The season lasts from Oct. 4th to November 17th, in the southern section. Hunting was legal in the northern section on September 27th and will continue to Nov. 10th.

The bag limit is seven ducks per day not to include more than one wood duck. Possession limit at any time is 14, exclusive of merganzes.

PARTS OF MARSH FLOAT INTO RIVER

Like the strung-out formation of a battle fleet in action, long, narrow section of bullrushes, torn from their "home grounds" by some mysterious force were seen floating down the bay and in the mouth waters of the Moira River today.

A southerly wind, swept large sections of the rushes into the river where they "anchored" near the retaining walls south of the lower city bridge.

In the bay proper, the "islands" some of them over one hundred feet in length moved more or less majestically in the van of the strong breezes.

Carpet Dedicated At Christ Church Festival Service

With solemn dignity, the restored fabrics, renovated interior, and a new heavy, rich carpet, were dedicated in Christ Church at its Harvest Festival services yesterday. The carpet was a gift of the Parish Guild. The wardens, Messrs. Maurice Button and Horace Wright, petitioned the rector to perform the dedication ceremony.

Canon Bertal Heeney, D.D., who was the rector of the parish forty-two years ago, was the preacher in the morning and took for his text,—"The living God, which made Heaven and earth, and the sea and all things that are therein; who in times past suffered all nations to walk in their own ways. Nevertheless, He left not Himself without witness, in that He did good, and gave us rain from Heaven and fruitful seasons, filling our hearts with food and gladness". (Acts 14, verses 15, 16, 17.) In words appropriate to the harvest season, Canon Heeney emphasized the truths concerning "this great God".

Rector Conducts Service

In the evening, Lt.-Col. the Rev. Canon W. E. Kidd, M. C., of Deseronto, preached on man's responsibility to God, relative to the harvest, and took as his text the opening verses of the "Te Deum".

Rev. J. Grant Sparling, rector of Christ Church, conducted the services, assisted by Rev. Everett P. Smith and Mr. George Meades, L. R. The church auditorium was decorated with the fruits of the harvest from gardens of the parish. Mrs. G. G. Wright convened the group responsible, while Mrs. Ashton and members of the Sanctuary Guild were in charge of the altar decorations. Flowers were in memory of Mrs. B. Leeman, Archie Mason and Clarence Buker.

Harvest music of a high order was rendered by the choir under the direction of Gordon McCulley Black, Mus. Bac., the anthem being "The Prayer of Thanksgiving".

In the afternoon Christ Church Sunday School children were present at a harvest service in the church before attending classes in the parish hall.

Two of Six Muskie Bites Prove Lucky

Marmora — Two of six muskie bites coming to William Fray and son, Dr. L. M. Fray, of Washington, Pa., guests at Wanganui Lodge, while fishing in Crowe Lake on Wednesday evening, proved to be lucky ones. Changing from a herring to a double Buffalo spinner, the elder man got a beauty measuring forty-five inches and weighing twenty-five pounds. The other fish weighed about twelve pounds. The guide was William Revoy. It was the first visit of the Frays to this district and they informed Proprietor Gordon Bennett of the lodge that they were coming back again.

Four Out of Five Germans Would Like to Emigrate to Canada

By NORMAN CRIBBENS.

Essen, Germany, Sept. 29 (CP) —One of Essen's 15,000 bombed out victims—a thin, fair-haired mineworker—stared up at an enlarged photograph of sunny Vancouver harbor and in precise English inquired: "Do you think some time we German people will be allowed to go to Canada?"

It was the same everywhere I went in Germany. Miners, laborers, business and professional men all talked of emigration as their only hope of escape from poverty and ruin, and four out of every five Germans I met seemed to favor Canada.

Here in bomb-battered Essen, the question was prompted by views of Canada displayed on the white, stucco walls of a large information centre — one of 26 now established throughout the British zone. Elsewhere, people sought me out as a Canadian newspaper man and expressed their willingness to work hard if given a chance to enter the Dominion.

An American business man of German origin who was visiting his mother in the British zone argued: "Germans are recognized as good settlers in both Canada and the United States. They are particularly adept at agriculture, but at whatever they do they work hard. Surely there is room out there for some of them."

In Dusseldorf, Anto Deutsch, leather worker, who receives food from a brother Henry in Toronto, talked of Canada as the land of promise.

Hans Mueller, former Essen lawyer, now living in an underground bomb shelter, who professed to dislike the "sheep-like" German mentality, said: "I would go anywhere out of Germany, but preferably to a free democratic country like Canada or the United States where people still believe in individuality."

Mueller admitted that he once joined the Nazi party "not because I like it but because it was essential to my work." He explained how German householders — particularly apartment dwellers — were organized into membership by Nazi block leaders. "It was always dangerous to refuse."

At Solingen, close by a large Polish displaced persons settlement, I met Germans who were envious because large numbers of Poles were being allowed to emigrate to Britain, France, Belgium, Canada and other countries.

"These countries need good honest labor, a German cutlery worker said. "Does it matter if we lost the war when we can work as well as any? We are as good workers as the Poles."

Fear of Cholera Grips Area Of Mediterranean

Cairo, Sept. 29 — (AP)—Fear of a spreading cholera epidemic gripped the Mediterranean area today as travel was virtually cut off to and from Egypt, where 140 'suspected' cases of the dread disease have been reported to date. Eleven sufferers died yesterday.

British and American planes rushed vaccine and other medical supplies to the stricken country.

The governments of Iraq, Iran, Palestine, Syria and Lebanon have notified their Cairo consulates not to issue visas to travellers from Egypt unless they produced certificates of anti-cholera vaccination. It also was announced that such travellers would be placed under five-days quarantine on arrival.

The Palestine government also ordered all employees of railways, customs, migration and health departments, and all labborers in sea and air ports to be inoculated against cholera because of the spreading epidemic.

A number of cholera cases have been reported in strife-torn India but official reports said late last week that the disease had been brought under control at Amritsar and other cities.

(Cholera, which has taken many lives in Europe and Asia in the past, is an acute epidemic disease which often kills infected persons a few days after incidence.

(The cholera bacterium is carried chiefly by infected persons travelling from place to place. Contaminated water is the principal means of infection.)

ERRORS PROVE FATAL

Brockville, Sept. 29 — (CP) — Coming from behind with a five-run rally in the top half of the ninth inning, Oshawa juveniles edged out Brockville juveniles 9-7 to win the semi-final series of the Ontario Minor Softball Association here Saturday.

It was the second win for Oshawa in four games played between the two teams. One game ended in a tie. Oshawa will now meet either Stratford or Toronto in the final round.

Errors proved the downfall of the Brockville team during the game played in cool weather more appropriate for football.

Lewis Impressed By Moscow's Cleanliness

Ottawa, Sept. 29 (CP) —Stanley Lewis, Ottawa's globe-trotting mayor, arrived back home during the weekend after a visit to Moscow, said the Russian capital could show Ottawa a thing or two about keeping streets clean, declared Britain might be down but was not out and just shook his head at what he had seen in Europe.

Mayor Lewis, who visited Moscow as a municipal officer, landed at Dorval Airport at Montreal and then came to Ottawa, greatly impressed by Moscow's cleanliness, its transportation system and the other size of the Russian capital's public buildings.

"I might say at the outset that I was able to around Moscow without a guide, and without a guard," he said. "I could go where I liked and I could do what I liked," adding he had taken 300 feet of film in Moscow on his movie camera without question.

Of Britain he said she "is down but she is not out," but he believed the food situation there now "is worse than when I was there in 1943." No one was actually going hungry" but there was a monotony of diet. He was impressed with the determination of people he met in Britain.

In Europe it was a different story.

"I can tell you that after visiting a good many European places the over-all picture of Europe today leaves me frightened," he said. "The things that have depressed me have been the black markets in money, the black markets generally, the price of food, the shortages, the indifference of the people and the numbers who do not want to work.

"It's a demoralizing situation."

Quadruplets Born To English Mother, All Are Thriving

Bradford, Yorks, Eng., Sept. 29 —(Reuters)—Quadruplets — all girls — were born to Mrs. Eileen Horner, at St. Luke's Hospital, here, last night.

The smallest weighed one pound, 13 ounces, another one pound, 15 ounces, and their two sisters two pounds, seven ounces, each. They are all thriving on a diet of glucose and water.

Mrs. Horner already has two other children.

The husband, a 32-year-old former serviceman and truck driver, was delighted. He was not at his work today.

"He should have been on at midnight but he was given the night off to recover," a member of the firm said.

Fortune Teller Fails to Return, Woman Out $60

Chicago, Sept. 29 —(AP)— A fortune teller promised 23-year-old Mrs. Nellie Vullo she would "take the curse off us so we could be happy," but instead duped the young mother out of $60.

As a result, Mrs. Vullo lay critically wounded today, a bullet lodged beneath her heart.

Police said Victor Vullo, 27, a laundry truck driver, told them he heard a shot fired from his apartment Saturday as he returned from work and found his wife lying on the floor, a pistol in her hand. This note was on the kitchen table:

"Dearest Darling: . . . An old lady came here today who wanted to read my palm. She said she would take the curse off us so we could be happy, she told me to get all the money in the house. She would walk to the corner and pray as she went, and then she would come back. She didn't come back."

The Vullos have two sons and a daughter.

German Prisoner Weds Sweetheart After Law Change

Hampton Lovett, Eng., Sept. 29 (AP)—Werner Vetter, German war prisoner married his British sweetheart, Olive Reynolds, yesterday while their five-months-old daughter looked on—climaxing a widely publicized case which resulted in a change in British law enabling German prisoners to wed English girls.

The 22-year-old couple met while Vetter was working on a farm. As a result of the birth of their child Veter received a 12-month prison sentence from a British military court for "consorting" with an English girl. Later he was released.

Wedding services were conducted in English while a German prisoners' choir sang. A wedding breakfast was served with food which the prisoners had saved from their rations and English girls danced with prisoners to the music of a prison camp orchestra.

Last evening Vetter was returned to prison camp at Hampton Lovett while his bride and child went to the town of Droitwich a mile away where the couple has a small apartment.

SEIZE COUNTERFEIT BILLS

Paris, Sept. 29 — (AP)—The French news agency said last night police arrested nine men and seized counterfeit United States bills with a total face value of $234,000,000 in a raid in Marseille. A seven-ton rotary press was found in the counterfeiters' establishment.

Russia Rejects U.S. Protest Over Insulting Article

Washington, Sept. 29 (AP) — The United States has demanded that Russia disavow a Soviet writer's article comparing President Truman with Adolf Hitler and Moscow has flatly rejected the American protest.

This was disclosed today by the State Department.

It said the United States called the article insulting.

Foreign Minister Molotov turned down the American protest in a bitterly-worded note that flayed the American press for its criticism of the Soviet Union.

Lt.-Gen. Walter Smith American Ambassador to Moscow presented a stiffly-worded protest Thursday against an article by Boris Gorbatov in the "Literary Gazette No. 39." Smith advised the Russian government the article was libelous" on President of the United States.

In the official Russian reply, Molotov said the Russian government "cannot bear the responsibility for this or that article and so much the more, cannot accept the protest you have made in that connection."

Tanker Translake Limps Into Port

Montreal, Sept. 29 (CP) —The badly-holed tanker Translake, whose collision with the freighter Milverton near Iroquois, Ont., last Wednesday resulted in the death of 11 Milverton crew members, limped into port here today under her own power.

The Translake will be taken to the oil docks for examination before being placed in drydock for repairs.

Boy of Three Years Drowns in Trench

Belle River Ont., Sept. 29 (CP) —Three-year-old Roger Rivait of nearby Purvis Beach drowned in 3 1-2 feet of water yesterday just 50 yards from his home.

The boy drowned in a trench built for a new water main in Maidstone township. He was playing with a young friend at the time and apparently slipped unnoticed into the ditch, for, when his playmate returned he said he didn't know where Roger was.

Frantic search by the boy's parents was followed by a call to Provincial Police who dragged the ditch and found the body.

social and economic. The upkeep of Royalty always has been a particularly sore spot with these folk.

Looking back through the centuries we find that it has cost England a pretty penny to maintain the Royal House. However, the modern setup presents a different picture.

Royal Family Wealthy

The Royal Family over the generations has acquired much property. For example the King is said to own priceless real estate in the heart of London and in New York City. But in recent reigns the ruler has surrendered private revenues to the government, and in the case of George VI the annual total is some £1,207,470 ($4,829,880).

The government pays the King £410,000 yearly, and on this transaction makes a profit of £797,470. Out of this the government pays allowances to other members of the Royal House, such as £15,000 to Princess Elizabeth, £50,000 to the Duke of Gloucester, £70,000 to dowager Queen Mary, and £6,000 to her eldest daughter, the Princess Royal. The net gain to the government is still considerable.

There is Royal property from which the government doesn't draw revenue. For instance, Queen Mary is said to be very rich. The Duke of Windsor is reputed to be a millionaire, with heavy investments abroad, including the United States.

So, despite the debatable cost of maintaining royalty, it strikes me that Elizabeth's wedding gives us a fair line on the significance of socialism as at present practised in Britain.

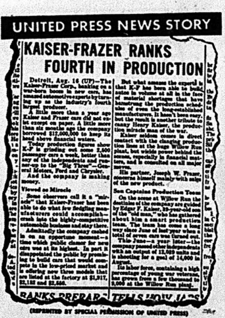
KAISER-FRAZER NOW WORLD'S FOURTH LARGEST PRODUCER of AUTOMOBILES!

More Than 87,000 Kaiser and Frazer Owners— as Production Records Soar at Willow Run!

MORE THAN A CAR A MINUTE

UNITED PRESS NEWS STORY



KAISER-FRAZER RANKS FOURTH IN PRODUCTION

Detroit, Aug. 16 (UP)—The Kaiser-Frazer Corp., banking on a war-born boom in new cars, has amazed automotive experts by turning up as the industry's fourth largest producer.

A little more than a year ago Kaiser and Frazer cars did not exist except on paper. A little more than six months ago the company borrowed $12,000,000 to keep its head above financial waters.

Today production figures show K-F is grinding out some 2,500 passenger cars a week, better than any of the independents and runner-up to the "Big Three"—General Motors, Ford and Chrysler.

And the company is making money.

Viewed as Miracle

Some observers call it a "miracle" that Kaiser-Frazer has been able to do what few fledgling manufacturers could accomplish—crash into the highly-competitive automobile business and stay there.

Admittedly the company cashed in on an opportune moment—a time which public clamor for new cars was at its highest. In part it disappointed the public by promising to build cars that would compete in the low-priced market and is offering now three models that are listed at the factory at $1,917, $2,152 and $2,550.

But what amazes the experts is that K-F has been able to build autos in volume at all in the face of material shortages that have hamstrung the production schedules of even the long-established manufacturers. It hasn't been easy, but the result is another tribute to canny Henry Kaiser, the production miracle man of the war.

Kaiser seldom comes in direct contact with the clanging production lines at the huge Willow Run plant, but wields power behind the scenes, especially in financial matters, and is consulted on all major moves.

His partner, Joseph W. Frazer, concerns himself mainly with sales of the new product.

Son Captains Production Team

On the scene at Willow Run the destinies of the company are guided by Edgar F. Kaiser, 39-year-old son of the "old man," who has gathered about him a smart production team. The team has come a long way since June of last year when a total of seven cars was turned out.

This June—a year later—the company passed other independents with an output of 12,039 units and is shooting for a goal of 14,000 in August.

Its labor force, containing a high percentage of young war veterans, has grown from a few thousand to 9,000 at the Willow Run plant.

Half Year's Traffic Record

In the January to June period fatal traffic accidents increased in Ontario from 232 in 1946 to 249 in 1947, an increase of 7.3 per cent, while personal injury accidents increased this year from 3,717 to 3,828, or 3 per cent. Property damage only accidents rose from 3,381 to 5,005 or 48 per cent and the total accidents reported rose from 7,330 to 9,082 an increase for the first six months of 1947 of 23.9 per cent.

In this period in 1941 there were 309 lives lost while in 1946 there were 252 fatally injured. For this year the increase has been 19 deaths or 7.5 per cent.

The damage reported jumped 54.9 per cent for a total this first half year of $1,959,260.

There was an increase of 31.4 per cent of drivers in all accidents reported in the first six months over the comparative figures for last year. 317 cars were involved in fatal accidents from January to June this year, an increase of 11.6 per cent.

The number of vehicles registered increase 9.4 per cent to 727,780 and the number of licensed drivers was up 5.6 per cent to 1,018,094.

Classification of fatally injured persons shows that 70 were drivers, 66 passengers, 118 pedestrians, bicyclists 7, motorcycle drivers 6, motorcycle passengers 2 and two others.

5,279 persons were injured in the first six months of 1947.

In this period of 1947 there were 4,427 accidents in cities, 532 in towns, 141 in villages, 2,764 on King's Highways, 696 on country roads, 522 on township roads, all showing increases.

In the age group of those killed were 16 children up to 4 years as against 21 in last year in the same six months and in the group 55-64 there was a decline in fatalities of 20.7 per cent. For those 65 and over the fatal toll rose 45.7 per cent from 35 to 51.

In the non-fatally injured group there were declines in all up to 35 years, increases from 36 to 64 years and a reduction in the number over 65 who were non-fatally injured.

There was a marked increase in all accidents at dusk in the half of 1947, the increase being over 60 per cent. Daylight accidents were up 28.5 per cent from last year's period and an increase of 14.2 was shown in the time of dark.

Daylight fatal accidents increased 15.2 per cent in the first six months of 1947 and accidents in dusk rose over 14 per cent.

In January to June this year the record shows that 2,606 accidents of all groups took place at street intersections, 2,225 between street intersections, 532 at rural intersections, 2,522 on the straight road, 101 on private property, 556 on curves and 294 on hills, 5 at railway crossings with man on duty or gates, 25 on railway crossings with automatic signal, 92 at unguarded railway crossings, 120 on bridges and one on a car ferry.

Out of the 9,082 accidents, both fatal and those causing personal injury and properey loss, 4,232 were on dry surfaced roads, 1,592 on wet surfaces, 23 on muddy surfaces, 1,418 on snowy surfaces and 1,822 on icy surface.

8,897 of the accidents were on roads in good condition, in 119 accidents there was defect in the roadway and in 53 cases the road was under repair and in 13 cases there were obstructions.

Put Seized Gold to Good Use

Gold which the German looters seized from European countries and which by a judgment of fate fortunately fell into the hands of the Allied armies, is going to serve a useful purpose. What loss Germany caused in her aggression cannot be fully made good by the amount of gold which fell into Allied control, but it will be well used for relief of some of the woe and misfortune which have come upon these lands on whom the tyranny of Hun tyranny and brutality fell.

Scotland's Enterprise

Although "Enterprise Scotland" was planned as an exhibition and not as a Trade Fair, overseas buyers arriced prepared to order as much as the Scottish manufacturers can produce. A typical example was the representative from Turkey who came with the intention of spending over a million dollars. He expressed himself as particularly impressed with the textile section and explained that he had come to Britain specially to see what Scotland could do to supply his country's needs. Before the war, Turkey bought chiefly from Germany and the Balkan countries. Attendance figures rose steadily from the opening day and much favorable interest was expressed in the 3,000 exhibits which comprised examples of all that is finest in Scottish goods. The exhibition amply fulfilled its aim of letting the world see and judge the skill and enterprise of Scotland's industries. It also provided a welcome opportunity for Scotland to renew her contracts with the export world in addition to acquiring many fresh ones.

Weather Most to Blame

There are some grounds for consolation and hope in the probability that the food shortage is in fact a crisis that will pass, or be modified. It is not bound up with the collapse of post-war Europe so much as with the accidental misfortunes of cold and drought. Since such abnormal weather conditions are unlikely to recur next winter and spring, there is the reasonable prospect that better harvests in Europe and America should ease the conditions of food supply after next year's harvests.

Unquestionably everything should be done to remove all policies and practices that may be restricting agricultural output in Canada, as elsewhere, or which may be making food prices higher than need be. But the fandamental fact should never be lost sight of that a food shortage without precedent is gripping and challenging the whole world. Anyone who, at this time, would seek to ascribe the food shortages or the food costs entirely to some particular local grouch of his own is neither to be greatly trusted, nor highly regarded.—Montreal Herald.

Battle of the Hem

With somewhat more vigor than usual, women are lining up for a battle against the longer skirts. This would be more convincing if we did not have history to indicate just how futile are such crusades. Every radical change in styles has inspired some such revolutionary movement. The record does not show one dictate of the dress designers that has thereby been headed off.

This time, the women have an added argument. They protest that the longer hemlines will force them to spend a lot of money on new wardrobes. When the skirts went up, all they had to do was trim a few inches off those they had, and they were immediately in style. Now, they have to buy new.

But even this will not avail. Someone on a mysterious Olympus of fashion has issued the decree that the hems must go down. The women can protest all they choose. It will not be long until they begin to feel out of style with short skirts, and that will settle the matter—until the powers that be have another whim.—Windsor Star.

More Honey and No Stings

Experimenting with artificial fertilization of bees to stabilize superior traits, Department of Agriculture entomoligists have announced that queen bees which are given a dose of carbon-dioxide gas shortly become mothers. Contrary to the traditional "birds-bees-and-flowers" story, no fathers are required. The fatherless drone (or male) bees then are mated with their queen-bee mothers. Scientists predict the gas-induced motherhood and remating may lead to inbred bees which will produce more honey, bees which will be immune to disease, and bees which won't sting, says Newsweek.

A Sharp Contrast

One of those new immigrants brought from Great Britain painted a picture for Canadians in a sentence just after he entered this fortunate land. We should pause to think about it seriously. The arrival announced with gusto "I have had four weeks' egg rations for breakfast this morning." — Brandon Sun.

BIRTHDAY

Last night, still six years old, she said
Her prayer to God in Heaven,
But in her place when night had fled
There rose a miss of seven.

The lovely child of six had gone
And left us all forever.
Now charms of six we'd looked upon
Can be recovered never.

'Tis plain that, love them as we may,
Adore them all, and cherish,
Such glories are to pass away;
Within a year they perish.

Yet, lovelier graces she'll display
With every new day dawning.
She who was six but yesterday
Is seven years old this morning.

It had been expected that the conference might agree on appointment of a common conciliator but the statement issued at its close said the provinces — with Saskatchewan again dissenting—decided that the strikers must return to work as a preliminary to further settlement moves.

Discuss Possibilities

The formal conference over, four provinces discussed conciliation possibilities. Labor Minister Smith of Manitoba announced that Alberta, Saskatchewan, New Brunswick and Manitoba favored appointment of a common conciliator, preferably L. W. Brockington of Ottawa, and added it was thought British Columbia would concur in this view.

But Ontario's Labor Minister Daley disagreed. In a Sunday night statement he said that any attempt to name a conciliator in advance of a return to work "and before consultation with all parties to determine whom they are prepared to accept can only cause confusion and must inevitably delay settlement."

DELIBERATELY

Troops of the British 6th Airborne division were immediately rushed into Haifa with Bren gun carriers, armored cars and tanks. They strung barbed wire across street intersections to isolate the pot area from the predominantly Jewish Hadar Hacarmel area.

It was the second time this year that the Haifa police district headquarters had been attacked by extremists. Several months ago members of the so-called Stern Gang drove a dynamite-laden laundry truck into the security zone around the building and touched off the deadly cargo, killing five persons and wounding a dozen others.

This morning's explosion ripped a gaping six-by-12-foot hole in the wall of the police headquarters.

Parts Blown 50 Yards

Parts of bodies were blown 50 yards across the wide avenue into buildings opposite the headquarters. Buildings across the street were damaged and windows were broken within a radius of a quarter mile.

Irgun, in a comminque issued to Tel Aviv newspapers, asserted that the barrel of explosives used in the attack was equivalent to a one-ton bomb.

Four Jews were reported arrested in another part of Haifa shortly after the explosion, but there was no immediate indication as to whether the arrests were connected with the blast.

The official version of the bombing said the truck "later was found abandoned in a square nearby. In it was found a hand grenade. Two Jews were reported to have been seen running away from the vehicle."

Willing to Form Jewish State

Jerusalem, Sept. 29 — (AP)— Confidence in the ability of Palestine Jews to take care of themselves should the British pull out was reflected today in a Zionist leader's declaration that his people are "both willing and able to implement settlement" of the Holy Land problem by establishment of a sovereign Jewish state.

David Ben-Gurion, head of the Jewish agency executive and chief political spokesman for Palestine Jews, made the declaration Sunday in commenting upon Britain's decision to surrender her Holy Land mandate — announced Friday to the United Nations.

In affirming the Jews' readiness to work out for themselves the problem of assuming statehood, Ben-Gurion asserted that they would make every effort to achieve co-operation with the Arabs, but he added firmly:

"It now is clearer than ever that there can be no settlement nor can Palestine become really independent unless a Jewish state is established."

Called to Action

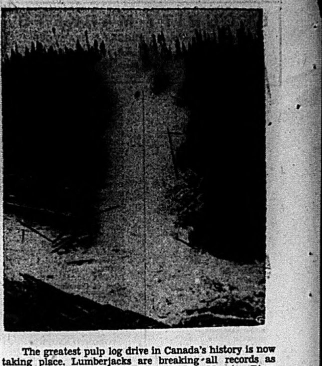
At the same time an Arab spokesman in Baghdad called upon the Arab states to take "decisive action to save Palestine."

The spokesman, Senator Sadi Albassam, a member of the Iraq delegation to the Arab League meeting which opens in Baghdad Saturday, declared that "abrogation of oil and economic concessions, and boycott of British-American trade, are our best weapons which we can and must use at this stage."

Advices from Istanbul, meanwhile, quoted Turkish port authorities there as saying that two ships crowded with 4,016 homeless European Jews passed through the Bosphorus yesterday and headed into the Mediterranean.

Captains of the ships, identified as the 1,000-ton Northlands and 1,551-ton Paducah — both flying the flag of Panama, said they were bound for Cuba, the advices declared.

Dynamiting Logs at Lake Tuque, Que.



The greatest pulp log drive in Canada's history is now taking place. Lumberjacks are breaking all records as 12,000,000 logs are boomed down the St. Maurice River into Lake Tuque in Quebec. It's Canada's answer to a world-wide paper demand. Log jams are commonplace and require frequent dynamiting to keep the pulp logs running down the stream. Pictured is one of those jams being dynamited. Logs fly like matchsticks in a gale.

EGGS ARE TOO HIGH TO WALK ON

My fried egg was spoiled this morning by an item in the paper which told me eggs are 88 cents a dozen. I felt indignant about it and I suppose the unpleasant emotion arrested or retarded digestion of the egg. I felt that a loafer like myself has no moral right to eat a 7 1-3-cent egg in the first place, for such nutritional essentials as egg supplies are really needed by expectant and nursing mothers, growing children and honest working people—if you don't know what honest work means, it is something that makes you sweat. But that isn't all. The item quoted an officer of the Produce Exchange who predicts that eggs may be selling at $1 a dozen by November. Ah, for the good old days when eggs were nine or ten cents a dozen. In some lines of work men were paid as much as ten cents an hour. Now what am I saying?—what I meant to say is just that too many men walk on eggs just because they have had one or more bouts of coronary thrombosis or something of the sort.

After all, the heart is just a muscle, and it keeps in better condition if used every day, as do the skeletal or voluntary muscles. Disuse makes muscles soft and flabby, whether they be muscles of the abdominal wall, muscles of the chest wall, muscles of the face or neck (which are used in the proper mastication of natural food such as wheat or apple or celery.) or the heart muscle.

When repair of damage by injury, inflammation or strain or sprain is necessary, complete rest of muscles involved may be advisable, in some cases for a few weeks, in some cases for two or three months (say after coronary occlusion or thrombosis). But in nearly every case, from sprained ankle to coronary thrombosis, it is just as important that the patient resume daily use of the affected muscles after the repair has been completed as it is to give muscles complete rest in the first place.

This may seem reasonable enough to one with a sprained ankle or a strained back, but a lot of men who have had coronary episodes become obsessed with the idea that they must forever walk on eggs if they walk about at all, and this obsession is very bad medicine for such men.

On the contrary it is vitally important for their welfare that men who have had coronary occlusion or conorary thrombosis eagerly resume reasonable physical activity at the earliest possible time the physician will permit it. By all means the best activity for them is walking. Graduated walking — that is gradual increase of the daily dose, beginning with a few steps across the room and back to bed the first day. Twice over that route the second day. Across the room and out in the hall and back again the third day. Half way down to the bathroom and back the fourth day. And so on, carefully graduated exercise, until one can enjoy a stroll around the block twice a day and in the course of a month or so a mile walk morning an afternoon.

I do hope no reader who walks on eggs will dismuss this as just another of my pipe dream, for it is not my idea at all, but the finding of the best physicians of the day. I'll give any physician who asks for it the reference or references, but not layman.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Why are Kentuckians called Colonels?

Kentuckians are called Colonels from the great number of honorary colonels commissioned by the Governors of that State.

The appointment of a pseudo-military staff of aides-de-camp by Governors in their capacity of commander of the State militia is a time-honored American custom.

In Kentucky such commissions were granted for many years more freely than in other States. Governor Isaac Shelby, who commanded a regiment of Kentucky volunteers at the Battle of the Thames in 1813, later commissioned as honorary colonels all the men who had served in the regiment. In 1825 John Marshall, while being entertained at a banquet in Kentucky, was asked to give a toast in rhyme containing the word "paradox." The Chief Justice responded with the impromptu epigram:

In the Blue Grass region
A 'Paradox' was born.
The corn was full of kernels
And the 'colonels' full of corn.

The first woman to become a Kentucky colonel was Annie Poage, commissioned by Gov. James D. Black in 1918. Flem D. Sampson, governor from 1929 to 1931, commissioned 577 colonels. His successor, Ruby Laffoon, during his two terms from 1931 to 1935, commissioned 2,363. In 1938 while Governor Laffoon was out of the State attending the races at Indianapolis, Lieut. Gov. Albert B. (Happy) Chandler added 24 colonels, three generals and two admirals to the governor's staff.

Although Chandler had appointed 700 colonels while acting governor at different times, during his own administration (1935-1939) he restricted the number of such appointments to 10 with a view of putting a stop to the practice of appointing colonels for publicity purposes. In 1933, when the grand total of Kentucky colonels had reached about 17,000, the "Honorable Order of Kentucky Colonels" was formed.

In 1936 Beverly M. Vincent, attorney general of the state, declared he was unable to find any constitutional or statutory authority of the governor to commission honorary officers. He ruled that all such commissions expire when the governor issuing them retires from office, and asserted that, since Gov. Chandler had not yet issued any such commissions, "no person has a right now to be designated as a Kentucky colonel, either in Kentucky or elsewhere."

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

A Child's Sense of Appreciation Needs Constant Cultivation

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My 10-year-old daughter received money from her aunt as a birthday present. Her aunt handed it to her as she said "Happy birthday dear, and please buy something you want with this". My Dorothy gave her a big hug and kiss and said "Thank you". This was about a week ago, and since then she has bought with the money three books she has been wanting for some time and a special kind of pencil she has also hoped to have. My husband thinks she should write her aunt a thank-you note telling her about her purchases. But I think the thank-you she said and said so affectionately was enough. What do you think?

Mother

I most enthusiastically agree with your husband's fine and courteous point of view. Indeed I think your young daughter should have been directed to write a thank-you note to her kind and generous aunt as soon as possible after she had received the gift. Developing in a child a sense of appreciation is one of the greatest gifts a parent can give that child, a gift always endearing. Think what a lesson this can be to your child: "wasn't it lovely of Aunt Grace to give you such a nice birthday present? I'd be very proud of you if you write her a little note and tell her so." Or now, after she has bought the items with the money. "I'm so glad you bought the books you wanted, and the pencil. And think how glad Aunt Grace will be if you tell her what things you bought with her money-gift, and how happy you are to have them!" From such seeds of gentle direction grow mighty oaks of appreciation!

Finding Out if Bride Received Wedding Gifts

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I sent a wedding gift to a Fall bride, and as yet I have not had any word from her that she received it. The gift was an organdie luncheon set, which I made and embroidered with her initials and although I registered the package, I did not ask at the post office for a signed receipt to be returned to me. What do you think I should do? Wait longer for her to acknowledge my gift? Or do you think it would be discourteous of me and embarrassing to her if I write asking if she received it? Or would you advise me to notify the postoffice at once, showing my receipt.

Delia S.

I advise that first you write your friend asking her if she has received your gift . . certainly after so long a wait this would not be discourteous of you, even though it may embarrass her. However, there is always the possibility that her thank-you letter to you may have gone astray, as a letter sometimes does, and you might mention this possibility as the "gentle approach" of your inquiry to her. Then if she writes she didn't receive your gift, you can start the postoffice inquiry.

Baby's Weight Not Written on Birth-Announcement Cards

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I've been shopping for birth-announcements cards, and before I make my decision as to which one I like best, I would like to have you tell me if I should choose one where there is a space for weight. Is it necessary to send this information on these cards?

Mother-toTo-Be

No, this weight-notation is not only not necessary but it is not considered in good taste to send this information on cards. On birth-announcement cards, either formal, engraved ones, or informal, printed ones, there are only three items necessary: (1) parents' names; (2) baby's name; (3) date of baby's birth.

Question of Teaspoon With Tomato Juice

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it ever correct to have a teaspoon placed to use with a glass of tomato juice or tomato juice cocktail? I have never seen this done until the other day when I attended a luncheon where the hostess and at least two of the guests used their spoon to taste the tomato juice and then drank.

S. A. L.

Yes, when the first course is tomato juice, either plain or as tomato juice cocktail, it is proper, if the hostess wishes (though it is not customary) to have a teaspoon placed at each place. This is so that the guests may, if they wish, add salt and/or pepper and stir the seasoning in with the teaspoon.

Joyous Bride-to-Be

Her Royal Highness Princess Elizabeth, whose forthcoming marriage to Lieut. Philip Mountbatten is creating world-wide interest, is pictured in this striking bowler-type hat which she wore when she received the freedom of the Royal Borough of Stirling, Scotland, both in her own rights, and on behalf of the Argyle and Sutherland Highlanders, of whom she is colonel-in-chief. Her Royal Highness is seen wearing a simple tailor-made two-piece suit. The hat has east-to-west velvet trimming.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Make-up For Blondes

There is one beauty law for the light-headed sister that cannot be disregarded: be careful with the items in the make-up box. Brunettes can go the limit with synthetic complexion coloring, and nobody has a word to say. But blondes receive critical looks if they do not use a restrained hand. There is a good reason; the blonde has a delicate, fine skin and her golden nimbus is definitely put out of the picture if rouge is too heavily laid on, lipstick too startling. The contrasts are too great.

The powder must be carefully selected. It is a mistake to use flesh tints, as a rule, as the golden girl usually has a golden cast to her complexion.

The lipstick should convey a clear fresh tone. On the young face a vivid color is becoming; on the older countenance it is wise to select the rich, warm, wine shades that are popular at the present moment. An orange-red may be out of character. However, if one has been toasted by the rays of the sun, it will serve. There is always the chance of orange-red conflicting with the gilded halo. It is difficult to set down definite rules, as the color of the hair varies, and the hair must be taken into consideration.

Little rouge should be used; it should never be placed low or it will give the face too much color. Start at the check bone and sweep the compact pad out toward the temple. The factory blush should be in harmony with the lipstick; that detail is important.

Make-up specialists believe that the blonde is entitled to use eye shadows if she tones down the lipstick and uses but the slightest film of rouge. Shadows are being used more and more as other items of make-up are becoming more restricted and subtle in their application.

Green or blue shadows are the favorites because they are soft in character. The brown-eyed blonde can substitute a faint bronze that will be friendly to her eyes and her golden tresses. A pure brown shadow is much too heavy. Sometimes blue and green pigments are blended. But that trick requires skill, should not be attempted by the home face-decorator.

Brunettes can go the limit with synthetic complexion coloring.

Light-colored eyebrows are a problem. A little darkening agent, carefully applied, will give depth and character to the face. In extending the eyebrows with the crayon, it is best to follow the contour of the eye so the brows will not look obviously artificial.

Scanty eyebrows can be lengthened at both the inner and outer terminal, if necessary. The color of the pencil must not be too dark. A rich brown tone is the happiest selection.

Women's Activities

PLAINFIELD W. M. S.

The September meeting of Plainfield W. M. S. was held in the home of Mrs. C. A. Platt, Wednesday afternoon, with an attendance of 22.

The meeting opened with quiet music played by Mrs. Ralph Wilder, and a Psalm was read responsively. Devotional was conducted by Mrs. Clarence Marshall, in the absence of Mrs. Violet Elliott. Mrs. R. Wilder contributed a vocal solo with Miss Rita Gow as accompanist. Mrs. Marshall and Mrs. Clarence Hall offered prayers.

Mrs. Hall, group leader, presented the following program:—Mrs. Erle Denyes, in her usual capable manner, gave "Highlights from the School for Leaders", which recently convened in Whitby Ladies College. Mrs. Hall introduced the new study book, "Great Is the Company", and described the work of two pioneers, "Jerome" and "Wycliffe" in translating some of the Bible into Latin, and told of the hardships and trials that endured so that we might have the Bible today.

In closing Mrs. Hall conducted a "Do You Know?" quiz, with which several other members assisted.

BOUND TO SCORE on the campus is a three-quarter-length coat in corduroy, made with a full swing back, curved patch pockets and turned-back cuffs. Has a detachable hood. One-button closing at the neck.

Motor Accidents Play Major Part In 26 Fatalities

(By The Canadian Press)

Eastern Canada counted 26 deaths today from a weekend in which motor accidents played a major part in running the toll to that figure and in which four lives were claimed in each of two separate mishaps.

At Baie Comeau, Que., four youths were drowned when their car tumbled off a 40-foot cliff into the harbor waters.

Four other men died in a Saturday night car accident near Petitcodiac, N.B. Three were burned to death in the flaming wreckage of the car, which plunged off the road at a sharp turn, while the fourth died while being taken to hospital in an ambulance.

Three men were drowned in Northern Ontario in canoeing accidents while duck hunting. James Simpson, 49, of Timmins, and Geo. Geddes, 57, of Barrie, were drowned when their craft upset on Anderson Lake, near Matheson. C. A. Wilkie, 39, of Copper Cliff, was drowned in Rat Lake, 20 miles from Sudbury, when his canoe tipped over.

A two-car collision near Cornwall caused the death of Lynden Watson, 22, of Monckland, Ont. Robert Hogg, 26, of Politmore, near Ottawa, lost his life when his car swerved through a bridge railing and tumbled into a creek.

Fire Takes Two Lives

Fire took two lives other than those lost in the Petitcodiac car crash. Vera Jacquard, three, died at Yarmouth, N.S., when her clothing caught fire while she was playing with matches. The destruction by fire of the sergeants mess at the R.C.A.F. station at eastern passage, near Halifax, caused the death of Sgt. James A. Williams, 38, of Rimouski, Que.

A jump from a moving taxi cab was believed responsible for the death of Mrs. Jeannine Grenier, 24, in Montreal. Claude Juteau, 18, also of Montreal, lost his life when he fell from a moving truck. Another Montreal fatality involved Mrs. B. Chaif, 65, who fractured her skull in a fall from a third-storey balcony.

Body Recovered

Car accidents resulted in the death of William Gibbs, 23, of Sarnia, William F. Sproat of Seaforth, Ont., Michael John Foy, 21, of Niagara Falls, Ont., and Mrs. May Russell, 64, of Oshawa.

Body of Charles S. Tait of Buffalo, N.Y., fisherman missing since Sept. 20, was recovered from the Niagara River. Others who were victims of drowning were Roger Rivet, three, of Belle River, Ont., and William Pheasant, 20, of Gore Bay, Ont.

James McGorie, an 83-year-old Orillia farmer, died in hospital after being gored and trampled by a cow.

WEIGHS POUND AT BIRTH

Owatonna, Minn., Sept. 29 (AP)—A premature baby girl weighing "about a pound" with a head the size of an orange was alive today more than 55 hours after birth.

The infant was born at Owatonna Hospital Friday to 33-year-old Mrs. Warren Gray, wife of a Waseca, Minn., athletic coach. They have named her Sara Jane.

Dr. Lyle V. Berghs, a brother of Mrs. Gray, said his tiny niece was gaining on her quarter-ounce feedings of breast milk donated by other mothers in the maternity ward. Dr. Berghs gave the baby a "good chance to survive.

Fifty Firemen Suffer Injuries In $5,000,000 Fire

New York, Sept. 29 — (AP)—A blaze that spread like a forest fire through the timber supports of a Grace Line pier was brought under control early today after causing damage estimated by fire officials at more than $5,000,000.

Fifty firemen suffered minor injuries. Nearly 80 pieces of fire equipment and six fireboats were called to fight the stubborn blaze on the North River waterfront.

The fire was discovered under pier 57 and spread landward to a large structure connecting that pier with pier 58 along which the Grace liner Santa Rita was berthed.

When the flames threatened pier 58, tugs pushed the Santa Rita, scheduled to sail late today for Chile, into the midstream channel.

Fire Commissioner Frank J. Quayle said that 700 or 800 bales of cotton caught fire in the second storey of the shed of pier 57. Though under control, the fire "may go on for days," he said.

Gene Tierney Out of a Job

Hollwood, Sept. 29 —(AP) — Actress Gene Tierney, who had been drawing down something like $3,000 or $4,000 a week from 20th Century-Fox, is out of a job today.

The studio announced that Miss Tierney has been suspended for refusal to take a role in a film called "Walls of Jericho."

Gene said there is nothing personal in the beef with the studio. "I simply couldn't undertake the role because I didn't think it was right for me," she said. "I felt it would be a great mistake for me to appear in it."

The studio said Anne Baxter will take the role originally designed for Miss Tierney.

National Cancer Institute Meets To Review Work

Ottawa, Sept. 29 — (CP)—The National Cancer Institute of Canada will meet here Tuesday to review the work done since the Institute was established last January and to make plans for the coming months.

The meeting will bring together medical representatives from all provinces who agreed at a two-day cancer conference last January to establish the Institute as the first step toward a coordinated drive against cancer. The disease is the second highest cause of death in the Dominion.

Possibly the meeting, the first since last March, will study the use of isotopes, atoms made radioactive through bombordment of an atomic pile. Some scientists have said that isotopes, now available in fairly large quantities, could be used in cancer research.

The institute has undertaken a survey of all cancer facilities for diagnosis, treatment and research in all parts of the Dominion. On the basis of this survey plans will be laid for a National campain aimed at stimulating research and at encouraging early treatment of the disease among sufferers.

Trade talks: — The new world tariff schedules now being drawn up at Geneva, expected to be announced about the end of this month, are not likely to become public until some time late in October and possibly even into November.

These are the trade barriers which government experts have been working on for months at the International Trade Organization meetings in Geneva.

It had been expected that the general tariff agreement would be signed about Sept. 30, with announcements to follow on the details of how the new tariffs would apply as among various countries.

Now, however, it appears that the work of the negotiators of the 17-odd nations has slowed up again and that their discussions will take several weeks more.

McConnell Lake Swarming With Prospectors Again

Fort St. James, B. C., Sept. 29 (CP) —McConnell Lake, a region noted for rich placer gold recoveries during the Yukon and Alaska gold rushes in the early 1900's, is quoted swarming with grub-staked prospectors again.

John Gerlitzki yesterday claimed the region had produced one of the best discoveries of gold in Northern British Columbia. He said claims, staked 725 miles north of here and more than 600 miles north of Vancouver, had ore with visible free gold.

Three grab samples showed assays ranging from a half to two and a half ounces of gold. Samples which Gerlitzki displayed were reported well-sprinkled with free gold.

Gerlitzki said the main gold vein was traced on the surface for more than two miles and covered by crosscuts for 3,000 feet.

Ferry, Freighter Collide in Fog, Woman Injured

Seattle, Sept. 29 (AP) — The stream-lined Black Ball Line ferry M. V. Chinook and a freighter collided in Pudget Sound Sunday night midway between Victoria B. C., and Seattle, sending several hundred passengers into momentary panic and injuring one woman.

The U.S. Coast Guard said the freighter was identified by Black Ball Line officials as the Dagmar Salen of the Salen Line, outward bound from Seattle to Vancouver and the Orient.

The two vessels struck in a dense fog.

Harry Eaton, of Seattle, an eyewitness, said the freighter's bow struck the port side of the ferry at about a 45-degree angle and knifed into the forward lounge of the $2,000,000 luxury vessel.

The woman passenger, Mrs. J. W. Bootle, 30, of Vancouver, B. C., was taken to hospital when the ferry arrived in Seattle under its own power. She was said to have back injuries received when the collision threw her from a chair to the ferry deck. Her 10-month-old baby was hurled from her arms by the impact but was not injured.

IMMIGRANT ARRESTED

Toronto, Sept. 27 (CP)—George A. Warne, 25, who police said is a British immigrant who arrived in Toronto by airplane three days ago was remanded yesterday to Oct. 3 on a charge of attempted robbery of Harold Garden, 34-year-old taxi driver. Warne was arrested in a downtown drug store last night minutes after Garden

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Freedom of speech is one of the rights of a bridge player. But he must watch his language. He must not talk out of turn. His words must be confined to the bidding vocabulary.

Only these 15 words are available: One, two, three, four, five, six, seven, clubs, diamonds, hearts, spades, no-trump, pass, double, redouble. He must use no more than two of them at a time.

In the manner of a code, the words have precise meanings. Each meaning depends on the spot in which the words are used. Even the same words have a different meaning when used in a different spot.

North opens with one club in this pair:

SOUTH
♠K Q 10 6 4 3 2
♥K 8
♦7 5 3
♣7

NORTH
♠8 7
♥A 7 4
♦A Q J 7
♣A K 6 5 2

In the opening spot, any bid of one shows a hand that contains better than average in all essential qualities. These are tricks, high cards, sure tricks, and trump suit.

With this, south sees enough for a game in spades. The signal for keeping the bidding alive to game is a jump bid. So, consider whether south has an immediate jump right here.

An immediate one-jump also promises two sure tricks. No such two sure are in south. So, an immediate hop to two spades is not the way to handle this situation.

An immediate high jump to game is the code signal for asking partner to stop bidding. And there may be a slam in their pair. So, an immediate hop to four spades is not the ticket.

South should bid one spade, a normal responding takeout. A takeout to a new suit is forcing for one round. It is the signal for ordering partner to bid once more.

Knowing the bidding will come back to him, south can jump on the second round, if necessary. He can tell more of his story on the later round. Curb your tongue.

NO SLACKS FOR WOMEN

Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 27 — (AP) — Neckties and coats for men students, no slacks for coeds was the rule today at Le Moyne College.

Rev. Joseph Beglan, Dean of the New Jesuit School, said students would be given a few days to comply "but next week we will take more rigorous action if such action is necessary."

Women students were required to wear "ladylike clothes," which according to the dean, means no slacks, shorts or the like.

Saskatchewan Farmer Makes Watering Trough

Out of the wreckage of old and outmoded implements, farmers in Saskatchewan sometimes concoct the odd useful piece of equipment. The wheel of an old steam tractor, eight feet in diameter, didn't seem to be doing much good on the farm of E. F. Altwasser, Yellow Grass, Sask., so the farmer, with the aid of a bag or two of cement, made himself a stock watering trough with it. Altwasser set the wheel in the yard near the windmill after spokes had been removed, poured a cement bottom, plugged boltholes, and completed a piece of equipment which, he claims, will last forever.

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Sept. 29 (AP)—As you might have guessed, Bob Hope's activities are moving into high gear, despite his declarations that he was going to get a rest.

Bob finishes "The Paleface" tomorrow and hops a plane for the world series. He returns after the games and then will make plans to tour with his air show. And—so far he is keeping this fairly quiet—he'll go overseas on a special project.

"Sorrowful Jones," Bob's next film, will get started sometime next year, depending on when he can find a new "Little Miss Marker." He says this is the first time he has been sympathetic with child actresses.

"I use to hate 'em in the old days," he relates, "because on amateur nights my partner and I would knock ourselves out and them get second prize to some kid who recited a nursery rhyme."

No Rest For Nelson

Nelson Eddy finished up his music hall summer air show but he won't be idle. He decided to do a concert tour in March and April and the dates were sold out in four days. And he tells me a new film is in the wind.

"I'll be able to play Eddy, not a dashing young cavalier," he says. "I won't have to worry about someone yelling, "keep your chins up, Eddy'!"

Around the Lots

Betty Hutton, it's reported, will not return to Paramount after her second child is born in April. Instead, she'll go to Sam Goldwyn for her first film away from the home lot....Lucille Ball is being paged for "Are You With It?" with Donald O'Connor....Red Skelton was due to visit "The Paleface" set to sell brushes as a gag stunt for his next picture. But MGM nixed the idea, not wanting to publicize a Paramount film. Reds making the film at Columbia You figure it out.

Bing Crosby gets back in town this week and preparations swing into action for "A Connecticut Yankee". Lone Star Staters may be pleased to learn that MGM's new phone number is Texas 03311.

ATTEND SQUINT

No matter how young a child is he should be given special medical attention if he squints for if left too long, the vision in the squinting eye may be lost thru disuse, say medical authorities.

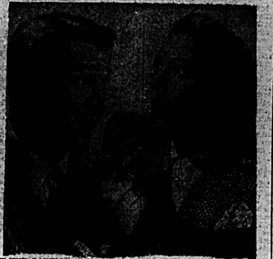
KINGSTON TROUNCED

Kingston, Sept. 29—(CP)—Toronto Pete Woods trounced Kingston Athletics 7-2 Saturday in the first game of Ontario Baseball Association junior A playoffs. Date of the second game has not been announced.



AT THE CAPITOL — Sonny Tufts and Betty Hutton are co-starred in Paramount's new comedy, "Cross My Heart," about an honest-to-a-fault lawyer and a chronic liar whose romance travels a very rocky road. The film now at the Capitol Theatre features Michael Chekhov. On the same program "Frisco Sal," stars Susanna Foster, Turhan Bey and Alan Curtis.

AT THE BELLE

Bing in "Welcome Stranger"

The first time Bing Crosby and Barry Fitzgerald got together in a picture, "Going My Way," they made screen history. Well, history, as it usually does, repeated itself Saturday at the Belle Theatre with Paramount's "Welcome Stranger" the new and even better joint effort of this terrific twosome.

With beautiful Joan Caulfield co-starring with Bing and Barry, and lending romance to the light-hearted, tenderly human comedy, "Welcome Stranger emerges as a movie masterpiece. Elliott Nugent's smooth direction has the film flowing from one enchanting sequence to the next.

"Welcome Stranger" tells a story as earthly as the smell of new mown hay. It is a tale of a typically American town and typically Americans. Into this particular community, a young carefree doctor, snappily dressed and with a ready song on his lips comes to fill in for the old Doc while the latter takes a well-earned vacation. The two physicians are, of course, Bing and Barry, and the latter takes an intense and immediate dislike toward his onorthodox substitute.

Barry's hostile attitude toward Bing is shared by the villagers, but not for long. As skilful with tonics as he is with tunes —Bing sings four new Burke-Van Heusen hits — Crosby soon has many friends and patients, and has won Miss Caulfield's heart. Bing is not one to tarry too long in one spot, but Barry must be helped in his fight to head the new hospital, and the lovely Miss Caulfield is not the kind of girl one leaves behind.

Bourgeau's Take Sheridans 13-9 In Softball Tilt

Breaking out with a seven-run splurge in the fourth innings, Bourgeau's Garage overcame a three-run deficit and went on to defeat Sheridan's Billiards 13-9 in a Commercial Softball League playoff.

The game was a free-hitting affair with the winners smashing out seventeen clouts and the Billiards crew accounting for eleven safeties.

Sheridans scored five runs on the third innings after the winners had notched one each in the first and third. Came the disastrous fourth and the Garage bats clicked merrily for seven hits for as many runs to put the game in the bag. They scored four more in the seventh.

Sheridans shoved three runs across the plate in the sixth but couldn't overcome the margin.

Carson worked the route for the winners on the mound with Connie Harris doing the flinging for the Billiards team.

The Score:

Sheridans.	005 013 0—	9	11	4
Bourgeau's	101 704 x—	13	17	3

AT THE McCARTHY — In a tense scene from Universal-International's "The Web," starting tomorrow at the McCarthy Theatre, Edmond O'Brien grabs the accused killer, Vincent Price, as William Bendix, who has exposed the murderer looks on. Ella Raines is also featured.

Little Benny's Note Book

We had a perfect dinner for supper, being sowerkraut and frankferters to start and lemon merrang pie to finish, and I ate 3 helpings of sowerkraut and frankferters and would of of ate 4 if I'd been doing the serving instead of just the asking and ma brawt in the lemon merrang pie, being even more perfect looking than usual, and I said, Oh boy, leed me to it, this is going to be grate.

It's going to be nothing of the kind, ma said. You're so full of frankferters and sowerkraut, it's a mistery to me how you can even think of dizzert, she said, and I said, I'll solve the mistery for you, ma. Leed me to it, I said.

Now stop using that silly phraze, ma said. I'll give you one normal slice of pie, and that's the last I want to hear of the subject, she said.

And she cut me a slice no bigger than usual, and I started to eat feeling sad on account of realizing it was the ferst and last piece I was going to have, and I said, if I accidently swollowed some germ and got sick, I wouldn't even be able to eat one slice of pie, no matter how mutch you wanted me to.

Now that's a sad thawt, pop said, and ma said, I'm sure I just couldn't bare to see you in a condition where you couldn't look at a pie with a welcoming smile.

If I'd been born into somebody else's family I wouldn't be here even eating anything, I said, and pop said, Perish the thawt, and ma said, I'm overcome with emotion. I'm sure you haven't got room for another morsel, but go ahead and eat all the pie you want. Eat 6 slices, finish the whole thing for land sakes, she said.

Many Records Tied, Broken And Baseball History Created As Major Leagues Close Year

Best Pitching Feat Turned in by Ewell Blackwell, Who Won 16 Straight

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

Major League baseball for the 1947 season is ended for everybody but the Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Yankees today, but few of the more than the record 20,000,000 paying customers who have watched the big league stars perform will forget the tumultuous events which have occurred during the past six months.

First of all, they have seen baseball history created when Jackie Robinson made his debut with the Dodgers to become the first Negro to crash the majors in modern times.

Then the fans saw the peculiar picture of a New York Giant team smash out a record breaking 221 homers and yet wind up fourth in the standings, 13 games off the pace. Led by Johnny Mize, Willard Marshall, Walker Cooper and Bobby Thomson who collected 151 circuit blows among them, the Giants broke the old mark of 182 set by the 1926 New York Yankees.

Mize crashed 51 to tie Ralph Kiner of Pittsburgh for the major league lead and fell five behind Hack Wilson's National League record of 56 and nine behind Babe Ruth's major league standard of 60.

The 1947 season also saw the suspension of Leo Durocher by Commissioner A. B. (Happy) Chandler as manager of the Dodgers for "conduct unbecoming a major league manager" and the insertion of Burt Shotton to replace him.

The Yankees, in cruising to their 15th pennant, tied a 41-year-old record by stringing together 19 straight victories. The old Chicago White Sox of 1906 were the only other club to do it.

Blackwell No. 1 Pitcher

The best pitching feat was turned in by sophomore pitcher Ewell Blackwell, who registered 16 straight victories during one stretch to easily rank as the number one pitcher of the year. The Cincinnati Red hurler also pitched a no-run, no-hit game and came within two outs of tying Johnny Vander Meer's record of two straight no-hitters when he followed his hitless game with an 8 1/3 hitless innings job against the Dodgers before Ed Stanky singled thru his legs in the ninth inning. Pitchers Don Black of the Indians and Bill McCahan of the Athletics also hurled no-run, no-hit games.

Feller and Newhouser proved pitching disappointments. Regarded as the two top pitchers in baseball and reported to be earning $80,000 and $60,000 respectively, Feller was just able to reach 20 wins while Newhouser would up with a 17-17 record.

The hitting honors were captured by Ted Williams of the Red Sox and Harry Walker of the Phils. Williams' American League leading mark of .343 was not surprising, but Walker's top .363 figure in the National League fooled many experts including manager Eddie Dyer of the St. Louis Cardinals who traded him to the Phils for outfielder Ron Northey. Williams also led his loop in home runs, runs batted in, bases on balls and runs scored.

Cobb and Speaker Play

The Yankees closed their season yesterday by drawing 25,000 for the old-timers game which saw a team composed of old time American League stars, headed by Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker lose to a team of former Yankees 3-0 in a two-inning exhibition "game."

The Yankees closed their season yesterday by defeating the fifth place Athletics 5-2 in the regular scheduled game to win the American League flag by 12 games. The Tigers defeated the Indians 1-0 as Fred Hutchinson bested Bob Feller to retain second place by two games over the defending champion Red Sox who lost to seventh place Washington 5-1. Although Dizzy Dean, former great of the Cardinals of the 30's, pitched four scoreless innings in his first big league appearance since his retirement in 1940, the last place Browns were beaten by the sixth place White Sox 5-2.

The third-place Giants and seventh place Phils split a doubleheader, the Giants winning the opener 4-1 and the Phils taking the second 3-1.

Johnny Schmitz pitched the sixth place Chicago Cubs to a 3-0 victory over the second place Cardinals while Ernie Bonham pitched a two-hit 5-0 win for the Pirates over the fifth-place Cincinnati Reds.

HEN TAKES OVER CAT'S FAMILY

Decatur, Ill., Sept. 26 — (AP)— Because Virgil Bland's cat ignored the box he had prepared for her expected kittens and invaded a hen's nest for the birth, she has lost her family temporarily.

Katsy, who had tested the softness of the nest last year, returned to it last week to bear five kittens. When she left the nest temporarily, the hen moved in and took over the mothering job.

Now the hen won't let Katsy near the nest. Owner Bland has to remove the kittens when their feeding time comes.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor.

The Belleville Junior Hockey Association will start its season's groundwork here on Tuesday night, and today officials issued a call to all hockey players of junior age in the city and district to report to the Memorial Arena on Tuesday night at seven o'clock.

* * *

It is extremely important that all juniors turn out at this initial practice, as B.J.H.A. officials are anxious to discover what talent is available. In addition, officials of the Philadelphia Rockets hockey club will be on hand to look over the youthful crop. There is a strong possibility that two junior players who turned out with the Rockets will remain here, and in addition probably two more will be on hand.

* * *

There is also a possibility that a well-known hockey coach, with years of experience behind him, may come to the city this winter and take charge of the junior pucksters. All this is in the tentative stages, but something definite will be forthcoming within the next forty-eight hours.

* * *

Last year's junior team will be minus seven or eight players due to age limits but there are several prospects in the city and it is felt that with the acquisition of the imported youngsters, the Belleville team this year should be able to give a fine account of itself. However, nothing is being left undone by the executive to bring the team to the strongest possible status.

* * *

Hurst and Taylor, the latter sixteen years of age, have been working out with the junior aspirants of the Rockets team and the latter shows exceptional promise. He never turned out with the squad last year, but showed up well in the fast beardless company that practised last week. Hurst went well on a defence position and should cop the nod for a berth with the "B" team this year.

* * *

However, to repeat, all junior players are requested to be at the Arena Tuesday (tomorrow night) with their skates. All will be given a tryout, and there is plenty of room for everyone. Be there, melads, at seven o'clock sharp.

* * *

What should be a decided professional hockey tidbit will be iced here on Wednesday night when the Washington Lions of the American League play the Philadelphia Rockets in the first inter-club tilt of the season. The Lions are training at Barrie, Ont., under the eagle eye of Jack Riley, professional player.

* * *

The Lions are returning to the hockey wars after a lapse of four years due to war difficulties. Riley has signed up some thirty-five young amateur hopefuls from which they expect to obtain a reasonably good representative for the city on the banks of the Potomac. In addition, the Lions have been promised two players from each of the National Hockey League squads, and with these forming the nucleus, the team should be heard from in American Hockey League circles this season.

* * *

In the meantime Manager Max Kaminsky and Coach Wally Kilrea of the Rockets have reduced their initial squad from sixty to thirty-two. A drastic weeding out process took place after Friday night's exhibition game, and it is expected the squad will get further reductions. Coach Kilrea with the amateur and junior jobs, in the major part, off his mind will concentrate on the regulars, and those signed from the other ranks. The team started heavy drills today, and from now until the breaking of the camp here, approximately October 12th, it will be nothing but drive and work.

* * *

With tumbling fumbling deeds and an imposing array of penalties due to holding and other causes, "Red" Townsend's senior B.C.I. collegian gridders were set back by a 29-0 score at Albert College on Saturday. The heavier Peterborough C. I. pigskinners took advantage of nearly all the B.C.I. miscues, and ran up an imposing score although the count does not indicate the difference between the squads.

* * *

Sisson, fleet flying wing of the victors, was the hero of the piece from a Peterborough viewpoint, the speedy youngster accounting for four of the winner's five major scores. The last touchdown came when Sisson intercepted a Belleville forward pass at the fifty-two yard line and galloped all the way for the score.

* * *

Belleville's stars, Haggis and Braden, did sterling work with fleet-footed Jerry Moher accounting for some good gains. But the squad nullified what yardage they made on plenty of occasions through breaches of the rules and the subsequent penalties. And they fumbled the ball consistently. However, they got a bad game out of their systems, and the next tilt should see a vastly improved squad.

SYRACUSE CHIEFS NOW TWO UP ON MILWAUKEE

Winners Will Use Herm Wehmeier in Third Game at Home

Syracuse, N.Y., Sept. 29 (AP)— Syracuse Chiefs will depend on the right arm of Herm Wehmier their most dependable hurler of the International League playoffs when they try for a three-game lead over Milwaukee Brewers tonight in the little World Series.

The Chiefs who added a 7-1 victory Sunday to their 7-6 triumph in the opener Saturday, will travel to Wilwaukee tomorrow for the next games of the series with the American Association winners.

Wehmier, who defeated Buffalo Bisons twice in the International League finals, will be opposed on the mound by Glen Elliott, who won none and lost one in the Brewers' final series with the Louisville Colonels. Elliott had a season record of 14 won and five lost.

The Chiefs yesterday scored 6 runs in the first frame and routed starter Vern Bickford of Milwaukee before he could retire a man.

ARGOS DEFEAT OTTAWA 8-0 IN BIG FOUR GAME

Hamilton Tigers Without Frankie Filchock Win and Lose With Alouettes

The college boys also maintained some semblance of order, in their exhibition tilts in exhibitions preparatory to the Eastern Intercollegiate Union's openers Oct. 11, University of Toronto piled up a tremendous 65-0, victory over University of Saskatchewan at Saskatoon and McGill University defeated Ottawa U., 26-3, at Montreal.

Festeryga, up from junior ranks for his first senior session, showed a brilliant mixture of field generalship and accurate forward passing to defeat Alouettes at Hamilton. He climaxed it with pitching a 30-yard touchdown pass to Leo Deadey in the closing minutes that spelled victory.

There were 17,000 fans on hand in Montreal to see Alouettes break away with two first-quarter touchdowns and race to victory in the return engagement. Festeryga scored the Tigers only touchdown after passing them into position for it and Pat Santucci contributed three points with his second placement of the series.

Argos Back in Race

With 19,000 customers jamming Varsity Stadium, Argos decisively made amends for their opening 23-6 loss to Ottawa. Hemmed in all the first quarter, they scored a lightning touchdown early in the next on a forward from Joe Krol to stocky Doug Pyzer, which Krol converted, and adding singles by Krol and Bob Hazel in the last half.

A fighting wingline coupled with a grand individual display by halfback Bill Addis lifted Windsor to victory after they trailed the Indians 7-1 at halftime. Addis tossed a 25-yard forward to Vic Schmidt, who raced another 35, for Windsor's first touchdown and plowed through for another himself. Garry Dawson punted two singles to complete the Rocket's scoring.

Don Crowe plunged for Indians major, which he converted and Ralph Larue kicked their other point.

In the free-scoring Ottawa game, Trojans made two touchdowns by Joe Farley and one by Arnie McWatters against Sarnia Majors by Turner and Don Knowles. They maintained the five-point margin with two converts a safety touch and a single against Sarnia's two converts and a placement, the latter kicked by Hank Galloway.

Mother Braves Cement Incline, Fast Current, in Daring Rescue
WINS DOW AWARD

From her home near the embankment, Mrs. Maudsley heard the shouts of spectators. Immediately, she raced to the rescue of the drowning boy.

Mrs. JESSIE MAUDSLEY OF LONDON, ONTARIO
saves life of 7-year-old boy

The two young boys had been wading in the shallow water of the Thames River at Cherry Avenue in London, Ontario, when the current caught them by surprise and carried them into mid-stream. One of the lads was able to fight his way safely back to the shallow water, but 7-year-old Bobbie Nestie was carried farther and farther away by the current.

WOMAN HEARS CRIES
Hearing the shouts of onlookers, Mrs. Maudsley, mother of two children, ran from her house to the river. By this time the boy had been swept almost 100 yards by the current. Mrs. Maudsley raced along the sidewalk, climbed through a fence and then, disregarding the risk to herself, scrambled down the 60-degree-angle cement embankment and leaped into the rapidly-flowing river. Within a few minutes she had reached the frantic youngster and dragged him safely to shore.

GALLANTRY RECOGNIZED
Due to the prompt and daring action of this brave Canadian mother, young Bobbie Nestie's life was saved. We are proud indeed to pay tribute to Mrs. Jessie Maudsley of London, Ontario, through the presentation of The Dow Award.

After an exhausting swim through the swift current of the Thames River, the brave woman managed to get the youngster safely to shore.

THE DOW AWARD is a citation for outstanding heroism and includes, as a tangible expression of appreciation, a $100 Canada Savings Bond. Winners are selected by the Dow Award Committee, a group of editors of leading Canadian daily newspapers.

WILLIAMS WINS AMERICAN LOOP BATTING CROWN

Third Time Boston Red Sox Player Has Copped the Honors

New York, Sept. 29 — (AP)— Harry Walker of the Philadelphia Phillies and Ted Williams of the Boston Red Sox are the new major-league batting champions, displacing Stan Musial of the St. Louis Cards and Mickey Vernon of Washington.

Unofficial averages, including yesterday's final games, give Walker .362 mark for a comfortable 45-point edge over runner-up Bob Elliott of Boston at .317. Williams' .343 average was 13 points better than Barney McCosky of Philadelphia who finished second at .330.

Walker, traded by St. Louis Cards to the Phillies in early May, thus rounds out the first brother team ever to cop the championship. Dixie Walker of Brooklyn, Harry's brother, won in 1944.

It was Williams' third batting crown, climaxing a late season spurt after a disappointing start. He had won with a .406 average in 1941 and at .356 in 1942 before going into service. Last year he was runnerup to Vernon with .342.

Behind Walker and Elliott in the National came Augie Galan of Cincinnati at .314. All three leaders had been sold since last season. Elliott was sent by Pittsburgh to Boston and Galan went to the Reds from Brooklyn for Ed Heusser.

Galan was third at .314, followed by Ralph Kiner of Pittsburgh who hit 51 homers to tie New York's Johnny Mize. Kiner hit .313, Musial .311, Whitey Kurowski of St. Louis .310, Phil Cavarretta of Chicago .309; Tommy Holmes of Boston and Pete Reiser of Brooklyn, .308 each and Dixie Walker of Brooklyn .306.

American League averages behind Williams and McCosky showed Johnny Pesky of Boston and Taft Wright of Chicago, tied for third at .324 with Detroit's George Kell fifth at .320. Dale Mitchell of Cleveland, the only rookie to make the top 10 in either league, held sixth at .316 with New York's Joe DiMaggio right behind at .315.

Lou Boudreau of Cleveland was eighth at .307 followed by Chicago's Luke Appling, .306 and New York's George McQuinn .304.

Phil Marchildon Wins Nineteen For Athletics

(By The Canadian Press)

Big Phil Marchildon of Penetanguishene, Ont., rang up his 19th pitching victory of the 1947 season for the Philadelphia Athletics Saturday by downing the champion New York Yankees 2-1. Ace of the Mackmen moundsmen, Marchildon allowed only six hits in a contest that went into 10 innings.

Ben Hogan of Hershey Pa., who earlier this year scorned to play for promoter George S. May yesterday won May's second International Golf Tournament at Chicago with a nine-under-par 135 to grab the $5,000 first prize. Hogan closed the 36-hole showdown among eight hand-picked players with a two-under standard 70, finishing three strokes ahead of South African Bobby Locke.

At Galt, Bush McWhirter was presented with a wrist watch, radio, chest of silver and the 1922 Ontario Baseball pennant Saturday to mark completion of 25 years' duty with the Intercounty Baseball League and 40 years with baseball.

McWhirter, product of the Toronto Sandlots, has served as manager, coach and umpire in the Intercounty loop and came out of retirement this year to coach the Galt Terriers.

Max Schmeling won his first fight in a comeback campaign yesterday by knocking out 26-year-old Werner Vollmer in the seventh round of a fight at Frankfurt. The scowling "Black Uhlan," who also celebrated his 43rd birthday, looked a lot different from the battler who once held the world's heavyweight championship.

Four world speedboat records were shattered at New Martinville, V.A., yesterday during the running of the eighth annual Ohio River Regatta.

Dr. William H. J. Oxenham of Toronto shot an 18-hole 129 yesterday to take an early lead in the three-day International Invitational Golf Tournament of the Blind.

The first two bleacherites encamped at Yankee Stadium late yesterday to await the sale of tickets for the World Series which opens Tuesday. Prices for seats at the series are 60 to 70 cents more than last year and a box seat costs more than twice as much as those at scheduled games.

RALPH BRANCA LIKELY TO HURL OPENING GAME

Harris of Yankees Will Depend on Freshman Frank "Spec" Shea

By JACK HAND

New York, Sept., 29 (AP) — Freshman Frank (Spec) Shea, named by manager Bucky Harris to pitch tomorrow's World Series opener for the New York Yankees, probably will be opposed by 21-year-old Ralph Branca, Brooklyn's ace 21-game winner, with lefty Vic Lombardi a strong second choice.

Harris tabbed Shea, the first American League rookie ever to hurl the first game of a series, for opening duty after yesterday's season finale with the Athletics, but manager Burt Shotton still refused to name his starting Dodger.

Branca, the top man of the staff on the won lost records, is the best bet. If Branca works tomorrow he'll be ready to come back full rested for the fifth game. A full three day rest is a "must" for Branca who is not effective with less.

If Shotton operates on the theory that left-handed pitching is his best bet against the Yankees, he may call on Lombardi, a half-pint southpaw who makes up for lack of a zooming fast ball with a fine curve and good control.

Outside of some concern about catcher Bruce Edwards, whose right finger tips, have been battered by foul tips, the Dodgers are in good shape for their final tune-up at Ebbets Field this morning.

The Yankee lineup will carry no surprises. Harris disclosed he will follow his customary batting order with George Stirnweiss at second base, Tommy Henrich in right field, Larry Berra catching, Joe Dimaggio in centre field, George McQuinn on first base, Bill Johnson at third, Johnny Lindell in left field, Phil Rizzuto at shortstop and Shea, whose season records is 14-5 as compared with Branca's 21-12.

While early arrivals combed the big town, looking for scarce hotel rooms, there was every indication that an attendance record for a single series game would be set tomorrow at the Yankee Stadium, site of the first two games. About 72,000 persons are expected to pay a new gross gate high of $300,000.

On the basis of their pitching staff and a decided edge in the outfield combination of Dimaggio, Henrich, and Lindell, the Yankees remained heavy favorites of about 2-1.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

New York, Sept. 29 (AP) — Now that Billy Herman has been given the bounce, wonder who will be the next major league manager to get it?... There have been rumors about Steve O'Neill and Eddie Dyer being in danger, Joe Cronin moving up to the front office and Lou Boudreau agreeing to disagree with Boss Bill Veeck, but no definite word so far. Brooklyn, of course, has its Shotton vs. Durocher argument and Muddy Ruel can stand another season with the St. Louis Browns, he has more endurance than you'd think ... look for the Phillies to get very tough in another year or so when their farms really begin to produce. They won pennants and|or playoffs in Utica, Terre Haute, Vandergrift, Selina, Wilmington, Schenectady and Carbondale this year. Next season they'll have a triple-A club under a working agreement with Toronto and Eddie Sawyer likely will be the manager.

Monday Matinee

Lamesa, Texas, is claiming the title of "Biggest Little City in Baseball" after drawing 66,124 cash customers with a fourth-place club. The town's population is about 8,000 or one eighth the attendance total. Twin Falls, Idaho, only outdrew its population about 6 1-2 times.

Ways and Means

While Michigan's footballers were staging two-a-day drills during torrid weather, Leonard Ford, Lanky end, came out of the field house for the afternoon session, looking warm and weary ..."Rarin to go, Lenny?" asked a passing reporter ... "Which way?" Ford said waving his long arm toward the field, "out there? Or in there?" — and he pointed back toward the dressing room.

PITCHERS' DUEL WON BY EDGAR OF PETERBORO

Marines Win Fifth and Deciding Game From Toronto Staffords 1-0

Toronto, Sept. 27 — (CP) — Behind a pitcher's duel all the way, Peterborough Marines managed to squeeze out a 1-0 victory over Toronto Staffords here Saturday to take the fifth and deciding game of the O. B. A. semi-finals and win the right to meet either London Majors or Niagara Falls Houcks in the finals.

Although Bill Edgar of Marines gave up four hits to Staffords' John Hrycia's two, the combination of Staffords' errors and timely spot pitching by Edgar gave the Marines their win. Staffords committeed four miscues.

The Marines grabbed their only tally in the fifth inning on a brilliant effort by Joe Stewart. Stewart singled to open the inning then stole second and went all the way to third when Staffords' catcher Jim Borthwick failed to touch the bag at third on the throw-in. Red Jubenville then singled him in.

Edgar faced only the minimum of 22 batters until seven and one-third innings. Borthwick of Staffords managed to reach first on a single in the sixth but was caught stealing, retiring the side.

Staffords garnered their four hits in three innings. Borthwick singled in the sixth and then in the eighth Harry Eckler and Kitch Keffers reached first on safeties only to have the two next batters pop up, for no score. Another single was rapped out in the ninth by Babe Gresko.

Some stellar fielding by Tom Foley and Red Jubenville managed to liven up an otherwise dull and uninteresting game. Several of Foley's running catches looked as though the ball was labelled for sure hits. Jubenville played quietly but very smoothly as he gave a faultless exhibition of keystone fielding.

Both pitchers struck out three players but Hrycia of Stafford's walked two men while Edgar did not issue a single free pass.

Being the fifth and deciding game of the series Peterborough won the toss-up and became the home team for the game.

CANADIAN SPORT SNAPSHOTS

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, Sept. 29—(CP)— Britain's financial situation is daily taking on growing importance in the world sports picture, and editorial writers and sports columnists overseas have gone so far as to urge their government to call off the 1948 Olympics.

Other reasons have been advanced for calling off the big show at London's Wembley Stadium and the latest comes from Phil (Montreal La Patrie) Seguin who says the "true reason ... is that the British fear a too-humiliating defeat."

Phil writes that British sports participants since the end of the war have not fared well in international contests, such as golf and tennis. In those they lost to Americans, and, says Phil, lack of training during war years and a continuing shortage of food were the reasons for such "humiliation."

Seguin believes, however, the games will be played as scheduled and points out that the British government already has granted subsidies for all-out training of athletes.

Phil further comes up with his argument supporting London as the 1948 site by saying that the 1936 Olympics in Berlin brought Hitler's government $32,000,000 in foreign currency and therefore should be a desirable attraction for dollar-short Britain.

The Fox on the Run

Sammy Fox, the loquacious Ottawa Rough Riders' coach, came up the other night with his opinion on full-time versus teaching-ranks football coaches for Canadian high schools.

Sammy opines that the educational system in Canada puts in the jobs men who sometimes don't thoroughly understand the game and often are only ordinary teachers.

Up comes Baz (Montreal Star O'Meara) in support of George Laughren, teacher in Ottawa Technical School, who blandly asked where did Fox get most of his players.

"Fox forgets that in many schools in Canada if an athlete doesn't qualify academically he is automatically barred." Writes Baz. "We wonder if the same thing obtains in some of those football schools in the United States ... where the coach receives as high as $5,000 a year ..."

"We think that if brother Fox is set back on the seat of his pants a few times he won't be so eager to tell us how deficient we are in these matters."

Veteran Toe Blake signed his National Hockey League contract Saturday and right away the still-spry Canadien left wingman let everyone know he is out to break Bill Cowley's all-time points record. Toe needs 46 points to pass Cowley's mark of 548 points during season play.

The new Montreal line of Bobby Carse purchased from Celeveland Barons, Johnny Quilty and Jimmy Peters continues to burn up the Forum ice and right now is a pretty safe bet they'll be together when the season opens.

Frank Boucher, who introduced the "shuttle system" of netminding whereby Chuck Rayner and Sugar Jim Henry rotated in the nets, apparently has given up the idea for good. The manager-coach of New York Rangers says that Rayner "unquestionable" will be the team's goaltender this year, with Henry likely playing for New Haven. "I'd be prepared to trade Henry if I could get a good left winger for him, but that doesn't appear likely," Boucher added.

Boucher expressed himself as "highly elated" with player performances in an intra-squad game Sunday in which the Blues took the Reds into camp 10-5. Grant (Knobby) Warwick led the scorers with three goals.

Describing the club as "fast rounding into shape", Boucher said that "they'll be nearly ready to go" after another week of intensive practice. Exhibition games are carded for Ottawa Oct. 8 and 11, for Shawinigan Falls, Que., Oct. 12 and Quebec City Oct. 14.

Gus Mortson will return to the Leaf practice sessions at St. Catharines Monday after a week rest. He worked one day but had to retire due to sore neck muscles and received heat treatments for a week.

Ted Kennery is the only Leaf player still sidelined with injuries. He is in hospital for closer observation on a cut foot suffered in a scrimmage. Day will continue to use Poile at centre between Vic Lynn and Howie Meeker. Kennedy is expected to leave the hospital Wednesday.

ROSE OF SOLEDAD

By George E. Holt

CHAPTER 1.

A silver-winged bird circled high in the blue summer day which lay upon Southern California high over the brown velvet hills—so high that it seemed no bigger than a flashing sea-gull.

It spiralled downward in great loops; grew larger; a faint mutter reached the hills from it, like the beating of wings.

Lower it came—but still so high that it was more of a flash than an object. Circling.

And now the sound grew plainer. Not the steady beat of flying wings, but a broken, interrupted pulsation as of a man's heart fighting for life, or of wings beating frantically against a cage.

For a little space this continued. Then a tense menacing silence. The silver bird still circled downward.

But now a new bit of feather was added to its silver plumage—a swift black feather which trailed behind, dragging; a flash of a flame-like feather, which was gold even against the bright sky.

And in the next breath, a black dot appeared just beneath the flying silver thing. It dropped swiftly. The great bird burst into a blast of golden plumage and plunged downward, the gold changing to funereal black.

From the falling dark speck there shot a sudden upward puff of silver white, like a cannon fired. A white mushroom. It hung motionless the black dot swaying beneath it, like the weight on the end of a pendulum, beating out the seconds until the smoky trail of the once silver bird should reach the brown hills. Counting it out, as a referee a fallen fighter.

The black curve ended, with a little cry of pain, which floated over the shallow valley.

And now the white mushroom, with its pendant black dot, was dropping swiftly through the breezeless air.

Lower and lower, and the mushroom showed its corded ridges; the dot became a man, hanging, swaying a little at the end of many ropes.

Down—down—down—until the hills were upon him.

Suddenly the white mushroom was distorted a little, as the pendant man reached up, seized certain ropes, and redistributed his weight upon the buoyant silk—the only rudder the voyager by parachute may have.

But it was too late. The man's eye had miscalculated. Or the silken float had not reacted as he hoped.

Down—farther—and he was swung into the branches of a huge elm tree. Fortunately for him there was no stir of air. Fortunately for him, also, the parachute ropes instantly became entangled in the strong elm limbs. The bag settled over the tree like the rumpled hide of an ancient elephant. The man, holding to one limb, found footage on another; swiftly unbuckled the belt which had held him to the 'chute. The boughs swayed with his weight, for he was tall and his flying outfit gave him much bulk. He inched inward toward the mighty trunk, found a strong crotch, sat down in it, removed his goggles, produced a somewhat soiled handkerchief and wiped his face.

"And thus at last," he told himself, "I join the Caterpillar Club. Well, well, well! And poor old Pegasus has gone where the good Peggys go."

At that moment the sound of whistling reached him. He listened, unable to place the source of the sound. Listening further, it seemed to him that the whistling held a derisive note. And a familiar one. What was that tune? Something old, old as childhood. It came to him. Some inpertinent whelp was whistling "Little birdie in the tree, sing a song to me."

He bent over and looked downward. Nobody there. Nothing but a golden ground splattered by violet shadows. A hundred yards away stood a long row of eucalyptus trees, which were soldiers marching; beyond them a sweet rise of green land on which stood a far spreading white house with arches marching along the front, and red tiles on sloping roofs, and crimson bougainvillea splashed like blood against the pale walls.

Still the derisive whistling proceeded.

He twisted around in the fork of the tree, to see behind him, and grunted.

"So you're the bright lad, are you!" he said. "I suppose you think you're funny. Well, sign off and go on being the man with the hoe."

It was quite a ways down to the ground from his lofty perch, for the old elm tree had been a tree when Father Serra plodded his dusty course along the King's Highway. Wherefore the person to whom he addressed his indignant speech seemed unduly tiny. But manifestly the broadcaster of the derisive melody was a kid in faded blue trousers, khaki shirt, a blue bandana handkerchief about his neck, and a battered, broad-brimmed straw hat low on his head. He leaned upon his hoe, but his gaze was upon the ground. His head was thrown back, revealing a tanned, oval face, two lips still puckered in the production of melody, two eyes squinting upward, and a fringe of curling black hair.

Thus rudely addressed, the kid ceased his tune, leaned more heavily upon his hoe, cocked his head a little more impudently upward.

"You look sorta ridiculous," he asseverated slowly, judicially. "Yeah; that's the word." The voice was smooth and throaty, a singing voice one would have said—except that its owner seemed to prefer to whistle.

"You're an impertinent brat," announced the man in the tree. "That's the word, too. I might add that you are impudent, rude, uncivil, saucy, unmannerly, disrespectful, and violating the rules of good breeding."

The blue and khaki figure scratched its nose.

"Oh, now I know who you are," he said brightly. "You're Mr. Thesaurus. I've got one of your books." Again the lips puckered and the derisive melody warbled forth. The man in the tree straightened up, inched forward along a limb, his eye dangerous.

"Do you always get down from your plane this way?" The whistling stopped to make room for the question.

"Only," replied the man in the tree, "when I am in a hurry to chastise an impertinent young imp."

"Oh, you mean me?" asked the kid, pointing at himself. "You're going to chastise me? Is that it? 'Cause I whistled a tune for you?"

"You," asserted the man. "Absolutely, you. I'm going to chastise you precisely where it will do the most good." He inched along the tree limb. "With my hand," he added, malevolently. "Just like mother used to make."

"Dare you!" said the kid.

With surprising swiftness the aviator now seized the rope toward which he had been inching—one of the 'chute ropes, which was firmly entwined about a strong branch, and which swept toward the ground. He clutched the rope, kicked off from the limb on which he stood, and the rope swished through his gloved hands as he flashed downward, laughing.

"Oh-h!"

Before the impertinent one in blue and khaki had time to move, he was seized in rude arms, tipped horizontally, and a heavy hand descended upon the plumply filled trousers.

One sound whack.

And then he was suddenly turned upright, set down on his feet. The flyer jumped backward as if he had stepped on a rattlesnake, his face crimson.

"Help!" he groaned. "A girl!"

For one awful and seemingly endless moment the girl's dark eyes held his, blasing him with their dark lightnings. They were of a blue violet color, and now held green lights. She inhaled deeply. Her hands tightened upon the hoe which she still clung to. Her face had gone from red to white. And then, as she noted the crimson shame written upon the man's face, her pallor faded, her breath came from her lungs in a released stream. She smiled—and it was a strange, strange smile.

And then she turned her slender back upon him and strode away, hoe in hand. And when she had gone a little way, Shane O'Hara, staring ruefully at that slim figure in the blue and khaki, and still seeing the blazing purple eyes beneath the tattered old straw hat, heard a familiar sound.

Somebody was whistling.

The tune was 'Little Birdie is the Tree."

Shane O'Hara watched the girl until she was lost to sight behind the eucalypti. She did not look back. She whistled and went her way. Shane shrugged his shoulders and turned to look at the 'chute spread on the elm tree. He shrugged his shoulders again, whether for the same reason he had shrugged them the first time, or for a new one, was not apparent. Then he strode over to the tree, sat down, leaned against its trunk, cast aside his gloves, fished out the makin' from as interior pocket, and rolled himself a cigaret.

Searchers Find Hammer Used In Rape-Slaying

Owen Sound, Sept. 29—(CP)—While small groups of curious bystanders looked on, 22-year-old Fred Bussey of Regina, charged with the rape-slaying of 11-year-old Betty Playford, arrived at Grey county jail here yesterday and was placed in a cell just a few hundred yards from the scene of the crime.

Preliminary hearing of Bussey, who signed a confession in Montreal that he slew the girl with a claw hammer Sept. 21, is expected to be held today.

There was no demonstration when Bussey and his Ontario Provincial Police escort arrived at jail. The trip from Montreal to here was made by automobile and police had made an overnight stop at Toronto before proceeding here.

In his confession to a Montreal Herald reporter last Friday, Bussey said he slew the girl with a hammer which he threw away shortly before the car stalled. On Saturday a blood-stained hammer, believed to be the murder weapon, was found by searchers in a bush near the edge of a highway less than a mile east of nearby Thornbury.

The finding of the hammer apparently tallied with his voluntary confession. Shortly after his statement was broadcast, the stolen car which Bussey said he used was found near Thornbury.

The tiny brown tam worn by the girl the night Bussey said he struck her with a hammer while driving through the rain toward the northeastern outskirts of this city, was found by police when they searched the stolen car.

J. W. Thompson, Inspector of Detectives at Hamilton, said the car was stolen in Hamilton while Bussey was employed at a carnival there.

Coastal Shipping Wallowing Thru Running Seas

Jacksonville, Fla., Sept. 29 — (AP) — Coastal shipping from Florida's Keys to North Carolina wallowed today through a running sea which beat heavily against the shore and which already has disabled two ships, sent a tug to the bottom and cost two lives.

The S.S. Bayano reported a man lost overboard off the eastern tip of Cuba, while farther north the United States Navy tug 274, off Georgia, yawed until she broke her towline, capsized and went down carrying one man to the bottom.

At Savannah, Ga., the Coast Guard cutter Aurora put out to the assistance of the motor vessel Julius H. Barnes, disabled drifting 85 miles off New Smyrna, Fla.

From Charleston, S. C., the Navy's tug Ata 209 poked her bow into the swells and made for the Cuban steamship Gibrara which reported she was without a propellor. The American tanker Esso radioed she had the Gibrara in tow, awaiting the tug.

Meanwhile, the turbulent Atlantic was making a mess of some of Northern Florida's playgrounds. High tides, whipped by a stinging northeast gale, destroyed two houses near Jacksonville and damaged several others.

Albert College Takes Close Game From Regiopolis

In a hard fought game played under lights at MeGaffin Stadium in Kingston, Albert College Senior C.O.S.S.A. team took a 9 to 7 verdict from the Regiopolis boys last Saturday evening.

The deciding points came in the last quarter when Geoff Scott kicked across two single points, one of them being a long one that went clean over the fence.

Regio fielded a much improved team over the one that met Albert in two exhibition games last year, most of last year's junior championship team having moved up to the higher company.

Most of the game was played around the centre field strip after Regiopolis had taken advance of an Albert fumble early in the first quarter and pushed across for a converted touchdown. Albert pushed down the field early in the second quarter and forced a Regio play back over their own goal line, where the ball carrier was trapped on a tackle by Shepperd for a safety touch and 2 points to make the score 6 to 2.

Just before half time after a series of running plays, and passes, Geoff Scott went across the Regio line standing up from the five yard line for a major score on which the convert was missed, to make the score 7 to 6 for Albert College at half time.

After the interval play centred around centre field — until Regio putting on a drive drove the ball into Albert territory—however the line held and a single point was the outcome. This tied the score at 7 all at three-quarter time.

In the final quarter Dewar, Albert end, took a short flip pass across the centre line and plowed for twenty-five yards. Geoff Scott made no mistake with his kick and the Regio receiver was downed behind his own line to give Albert the lead 8-7. Towards the end of the game Albert again got the ball into Regio territory and Scott again booted a single from the 20 yard line—this time the ball going right over the fence.

Some forty Albert students made the trip to Kingston for the game and took in the afternoon game at Richardson Stadium between the Cobourg Ghosts and Queen's II's. Don Huycke, Albert Coach, played in the afternoon game which the Cobourg team dropped by a score of 1 to 0.

The Albert line-up:

Snap, Wiley; insides, Boa, Showers; middles, Shepperd, Baker; ends, Middleton, Dewar; quarter, Merkley; full backs, Lill, Martin; half backs, Taugher, Scott. Alternates, McGaughey, Derbyshire, Sexsmith, Beatty, Beares, Leslie, Delaney, Holmes, Silverthorne.

No Need to be Dowdy

Does a woman need to lose all her freshness, her crispness, her charm when she marries. Definitely not, chorus smartly turned-out Canadian matrons. To prove their point, wives and mothers from across the continent have turned in their grooming tricks. For instance, Laura McDougal of Calgary, has lots of fresh aprons. She makes them out of flour bags, sugar sacks, gay scraps of print and lawn. They're starched and ruffled and mighty cute. A pretty apron gives her the same lift a new hat gives any woman. Youths Released After Questioning In Slaying Case

Had Been Held by Police At Thessalon for N.F. Killing

Thessalon, Sept. 30 —(CP)— Two youths held here since Monday night for questioning in connection with the slaying of 56-year-old James Bell near Niagara Falls, have been released. Police said they were satisfied the youths were on a legitimate motorcycle trip to British Columbia.

The two 17-year-old boys gave their names as Karl Brant and Edward Grundy, both of Strathroy. They were held while police checked the possibility they might have been Norman Kindy, 16, and Edwin Farrington, 20, wanted for the slaying of Bell, who was shot and killed in his Stamford Township house.

Provincial Police along the Sault highway were placed on the alert last night when it was reported that two youths believed to be the suspects were on Manitoulin Island and bound for the West.

The youths who gave their names as Brant and Grundy were apprehended here at 9.45 p.m. by Provincial Constable W. W. Allen and Town Constable Dick Hoath when the pair stopped to purchase gasoline.

Meanwhile the search continued for Kindy and Farrington and warrants have been issued for their arrest.

Son of Housekeeper

Police identified Kindy as a son of a woman who was Bell's housekeeper before her death. Farrington is from Glendale, R. I.

The warrants charge Kindy and Farrington with the murder of Bell.

Police said youths answering the descriptions of the wanted pair were seen leaving Bell's house within one-half hour of the slaying. Bell's body, lying in a pool of blood, was found later by a bread delivery man.

The pockets of the slain man were turned inside out, police said.

The hunt for the youths turned first to New York State after a taxi driver told police he drove two passengers to Buffalo, N.Y., shortly after the murder.

Fitted, Description

The cab driver said both passengers, who fitted the description of Kindy and Farrington, had large sums of Canadian money. Another taxi man reported later that he drove a similar pair of youths from Buffalo to Dunkirk, N.Y., Wednesday night.

An automobile owned by Farrington was found in a Niagara Falls, Ont., garage. Farrington had tried to claim it Sept. 22 — two days before the slaying—but had been forced to leave it in the garage because of a $300 bill on the vehicle.

Says Descriptions Do Not Tally

Niagara Falls — (CP)—Chief Constable R. W. Worm of suburban Stamford township said he had been informed that two youths in custody at Thessalon do not answer the descriptions of Norman Kindy and Edwin Farrington, wanted here for murder.

Police at Thessalon identified the suspects as Kindy and Farrington, accused of the fatal shooting last Wednesday of 56-year-old James Bell of Stamford township.

Chief Worm said he talked with Thessalon police and found the descriptions do not tally. He said the youths held at Thessalon gave their names as Don Bell of Hamilton and Edwin George Grundy of Strathroy, Ont. Constable Richard Hoath said that the suspects were identified as Kindy and Farrington from newspaper pictures of the wanted pair.

SEVEN THOUSAND WEST CANADIANS NOW OUT ON STRIKE

Employer - Employee Relations in Number of Plants Not of the Best

Winnipeg, Sept. 30 — (CP) — Financial contributions from the Canadian Congress of Labor and its various councils and from other groups representing organized labor are expected to provide dinners in a number of Western Canadian homes this year unless current labor difficulties change for the better within the next few weeks.

Contributions are being received in response to national, provincial and local appeals, United Packinghouse Workers of America (C.I.O.-C.C.L.) sources said today.

A Canadian Press survey showed that Labor leaders and industrialists fear a much more serious strike situation as a result of present precarious employer - employee relations in a number of western plants.

In British Columbia especially is the situation described as bad. More than 2,100 packinghouse and other employees are now walking picket lines, with unsettled disputes threatening to send at least 3,000 others into strike ranks.

Manitoba in Bad Shape

From a manpower standpoint, Manitoba is worse off than British Columbia, with 2,360 workers on strike, but apart from independent packinghouse employees, additional strikes are not indicated at the moment.

Elsewhere in the west, 1,450 workers are absent from their jobs in Alberta and 900 are striking in Saskatchewan.

In all four provinces present figures will be augmented considerably if employees at the independent packinghouses follow the strike action of United Packinghouse Workers of America (C.I.O.) at Canada Packers Limited, Swift Canadian Company and Burns and Company.

Strike votes are scheduled for this week in eight independent Manitoba packing plants, three in Saskatchewan, one in Alberta and three in British Columbia.

Union officials say that demands for wage adjustments, occasioned by rising costs of living, are the root of nearly all strikes in progress or pending in the west.

BOMB EXPLOSION NEAR JAFFA GATE CAUSES JITTERS

Believed Intended To Intimidate Arab Shop Owners Who Have Broken Boycott

Jerusalem, Sept. 30 (AP)—The explosion of a bomb outside an Arab shop near the Jaffa gate touched off a eight-minute general alarm today in Jerusalem, still jittery from the bombing of a Haifa police station in which 10 persons died yesterday.

No casualties were reported from today's bombing, which police believed was intended to intimidate Arab shop owners who have broken an Arab boycott against trading with Jews.

Almost simultaneously advices from Haifa reported that the engine tender and two coaches of the Egypt express had been derailed by a mine explosion on the Cairo-Haifa line 20 miles south of the latter city.

Officials said there were no casualties in this incident either.

Meanwhile, three ships loaded with more than 4,500 Jewish immigrants were reported nearing the Palestine coast in an attempt to run the British blockade.

Unofficial sources said the vessels were expected to arrive in Palestine waters within the next 24 hours. They were tentatively identified as the 1,000-ton Northlands, bearing 2,465 Jews; the 600-ton Paducah, with 1,550 aboard and a third craft described as a sister ship of the Despite, which was intercepted by the Royal navy last week with 450 illegal refugees.

Turkish authorities had reported Sunday night that the Northlands and Paducah, flying the flag of Panama and carrying 4,500 Jews from Bulgaria, had passed through the Bosphorus ostensibly en route to Havana.

ONE OF QUADS DIE

Bradford, Yorks, England, Sept. 30 (AP)—One of the quadruplets born Sunday night to Mrs. Eileen Horner died today in hospital.

Doctors said the other three tiny girls were "all right at present." The infants were born about 10 weeks prematurely, physicians said, and have been fed on glucose and water.

Three other sets of quads have been reported in Britain this year, but none has survived.

Cripps Named Britain's Economic 'Czar' In First Cabinet Shakeup

London, Sept. 30 — (AP) — Sir Stafford Cripps took over today as Britain's economic czar and informed sources said it was but the first installment of sweeping changes in the Labor cabinet.

There was general agreement among Britons that Cripps' appointment as Minister of Economic Affairs to lead this dollar-short country's fight for economic recovery at home and abroad was a step in the right direction.

The choice of 31-year-old James Harold Wilson, so-called "boy wonder" of the government, as president of the Board of Trade to succeed Cripps was termed indicative of the government's decision to introduce new blood into the labor regime. Wilson, as secretary for overseas trade, had been Cripps' top assistant.

Resignation of Arthur Greenwood, a veteran Labor politician who had been a minister without portfolio, was considered to be a further demonstration of Prime Minister Attlee's determination to bring in younger men to fight the economic battle of Britain.

Cripps, whose new appointment was announced last night, buckled down immediately to the tasks confronting him.

He scheduled a meeting with union leaders to discuss the export drive — ordered in an effort to get more dollars — and means of meeting the proposed targets.

Dalton Not Affected

Informed government sources said the further cabinet changes expected would not affect Hugh Dalton, Chancellor of the Exchequer, or Foreign Secretary Bevin, who with Cripps and Herbert Morrison, Deputy Prime Minister, make up the "Big Four" of the Attlee cabinet.

Attlee's official announcement said merely that "other changes in the government are under consideration and will be announced later."

The names most frequently mentioned in speculation concerning additional cabinet shifts included those of Defence Minister A. V. Alexander, Transport Minister Alfred Barnes, Supply Minister John Wilmot and Fuel Minister Emanuel Shinwell. Shinwell, especially, has been under a heavy barrage of criticism from inside and outside the party.

The British press, in commenting on the changes, generally followed their party leanings, with the independent Times of London remarking that "new wine is needed, not only new bottles."

Cripps' new post was one created especially to centralize in one man broad powers for dealing with Britain's economic crisis, specifically for "a much closer integration of internal and external economic policy."

Cripps as Economic Boss of Britain Has Power Second only to Attlee

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Sept. 30 —(CP)— Sir Stafford Cripps, one-time Labor party outlaw, today became the economic boss of Britain with authority to plan second only to that held by Prime Minister Attlee.

Political gossip said this self-assured centre of innumerable political storms now looks like the best bet for the leadership if Attlee should retire, a possibility often rumored although the Prime Minister has never indicated any intention of quitting.

Cripps' appointment as chief economic planner for Britain means that old antagonisms within the Labor party have been sunk to allow him to use his cool brain in leading Britain's drive back to prosperity.

Attlee has given him extraordinary powers as minister of economic affairs. He will be able to demand co-operation from colleagues whose favor he has never courted. They had a part in casting him into the political wilderness eight years ago when he was expelled from the party because of his denunciation of Chamberlain's appeasement policy.

Sir Hugh Dalton, cancellor of the exchequer, and the deputy prime minister, Herbert Morrison, both mentioned frequently as aspiring to the government leadership, lose some power by the new appointment. Morrison leaves the economic planning field where he was responsible for domestic policies, apart from probable membership in the small top-level committee where Cripps' reports will be heard.

Morrison will concentrate on the Commons leadership and the Legislative program. He is generally recognized as the most able practical politician among the party leaders and must try to keep warring factions within the party in harmony in the House.

Foreign Secretary Bevin, another member of the "Big Five" of the Labor party, has shared the crisis limelight with Cripps as a forthright, invigorating speaker. But Cripps' appointment indicates that Bevin is ready to stick to his foreign office chores and leave the more spectacular job to Cripps.

Attlee remains the balance wheel of the administration, his traditional role. He will be an important factor in smoothing difference Cripps will not hesitate to face.

Bengough Unanimous Choice As Trades And Labor President

Hamilton, Sept. 30 — (CP) — Percy Bengough, machinist from Vancouver, was re-elected unanimously today as president of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada.

At the annual election of officers in the T. L. C. convention here, Mr. Bengough's name was the only one placed in nomination.

For secretary-treasurer, John W. Buckley of Toronto was elected to succeed J. A. (Pat) Sullivan, who resigned last May. Mr. Buckley has been carrying on temporarily in Mr. Sullivan's old job.

Selection of Mr. Buckley—who has been Congress vice-president for Ontario — was unanimous.

For the one vice-presidency, J. A. D'Aoust of Hull, a papermaker, was re-elected in a contest with J. Elphege Beaudoin of Montreal, president of the Quebec Federation of Labor. The vote was 289-242.

T. J. McManus of Montreal, secretary of the Canadian Seamen's Union, also was nominated for the Quebec office but declined to run.

Beaudoin, in a heated speech after his defeat, brought the first direct reference to Communism in the election.

"Last year I was labelled a fascist," he said. "This year, they labelled me a communist. I don't understand that attitude." He added he would continue to fight for the best interests of labor.

A three-way fight developed for the Ontario vice-presidency between Bill Genovese, president of the Toronto and district labor council; Hugh Sedgwick, president of the Hamilton district council, and William Edmiston, Toronto, vice-president and Canadian director of the International Chemical Workers' Union.

Genovese won the office, vacated by Mr. Buckley after many years' service.

Bruce Magnusson of Port Arthur, official at the Lumber and Sawmill Workers' Union, also had been nominated but declined to run.

Some regarded this vote as a direct test of strength between communists and anti-communists in the Congress, as the chemical and woodworkers unions have been described as red-tinged.

Two ballots were necessary. On the first, Genovese led with 217, followed by Magnusson with 164 and Sedgwick with 152.

Sedgwick's name was dropped on the second vote, and Genovese came through with a 323-208 plurality.

Expected to appear on the order paper during the day also was the question of "unity" among Canadian labor unions. Executive members said yesterday resolutions calling for closer liaison with the Canadian Congress of Labor — the other major labor body in the Dominion—would be presented to the 600-odd delegates.

Soon to come to the convention floor also were proposals for the resumption of price control on staples recently freed from restrictions, for the creation of a Congress public relations department, as the C. C. L. has done, and for continuance of a 25-cent levy for organizational work.

Expectations were, too, that the Congress would be called on shortly to deal with the question of communism in Canadian labor's ranks. Up until now, this question has been treated somewhat gingerly, but it probably will erupt over two resolutions on the order sheet.

One, from the Cape Breton district Trades and Labor Council, calls for the barring of communist party members from office in the Congress or its affiliates. The other, from the Montreal Lodge of the International Association of Machinists, asks for the expulsion from unions of any persons advocating communism, fascism or nazism.

Canada Elected Member Security Council of U.N.

New York, Sept. 30 —(CP)— Canada today was elected for a two-year term on the 11-member Security Council of the United Nations, along with Argentina.

The vote on the first ballot gave Canada and Argentina 41 but did not give the necessary two-thirds majority to a third member.

Today's election gives Canada membership on two of the major bodies of the United Nations, the other being the Economic and Social Council where the Canadian term expires at the end of 1948.

Election to the Security Council means that the Canadian Government will have to establish a permanent delegate in New York, with a small staff.

There has been much speculation over the appointee and it is believed here he will be L. D. Wilgress, present ambassador to Switzerland and former ambassador to Moscow.

NEW DIRECT AIR SERVICE WITH IRELAND OPENED

Montreal, Sept. 30 —(CP)— A new direct air service between Canada and Ireland will open today with the inaugural flight of a Trans-Canada Air Lines "North Star" from Montreal to Shannon. This new link in the chain of Canadian air routes with overseas countries will give effect to a bilateral agreement between the two countries, signed recently by Reconstruction Minister Howe.

TWO ACQUITTED OF PLASTIC BELT SLAYING OF NURSE

Insufficient Evidence To Warrant Committal For Trial Found By Magistrate

Cochrane, Sept. 30 — (CP) — Two Cochrane youths, Roger Gauthier, 22, and Rocco Sisco, 23, were free today of charges they committed the 'plastic belt' strangling of pretty Velaire Vandebelt.

Finding insufficient evidence to warrant committal for trial, Magistrate E. R. Tucker late yesterday dismissed charges of murder against the two in the death of the Toronto nurse whose body, a plastic belt about her neck, was found last June in the bush near Sisco's cottage.

An outburst of applause from 300 spectators greeted the ruling. The demonstration was silenced by police and then Gauthier and Sisco left the courtroom with relatives and friends.

The decision came at the end of a day-long preliminary hearing. The girl was slain last June 22 after an evening of drinking, dancing and talking at Sisco's cottage. Her body was found at nearby Silver Queen Lake by two Boy Scouts and the two men were arrested early in August after a coroner's jury decided she was murdered "by person or persons unknown."

Magistrate Tucker yesterday heard addresses from Crown prosecutor Clare Hope, John Robinette of Toronto, representing Gauthier and G. T. Evans of Timmins, appearing for Sisco.

Ontario Govt. May Act to Curb Illegal Strikers

Toronto, Sept. 30 (CP) —The Evening Telegram said today that Ontario legislation which would impose a penalty of up to $2,000 a day on unions engaged in illegal strikes may be the outcome of the current nation-wide strike of packinghouse workers.

The report said that "taking a serious view of the flouting of the law by union leaders, Queen's Park is also taking steps to empower the government to take an independent strike vote as a means of curbing illegal activities."

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, Sept. 30 —(CP)— Synopsis: An outbreak of cold air which swept into Northern Ontario on Monday now covers the entire province. Considerable cloudiness persists this morning over most of Ontario. Temperatures again dropped below the freezing point in the Lower Lakes regions where skies cleared during the night. Cloudy skies with scattered snowflurries and rain showers over Northern Ontario this afternoon will be followed by a clear cold night.

Would Attach U.S. Army Officers To Greek Units for 'New Initiative'

Athens, Sept. 30 (CP)—United States officials in Athens have proposed to the war and state departments in Washington that United States army officers should be attached to Greek army operational units fighting the guerrillas it was learned today.

The scheme, designed to "instil new initiative" into the government forces, would, in the form in which it has been submitted to Washington, involve between 30 and 40 officers.

It was understood to be one of a number of proposals for intensifying anti-guerrilla operations being considered by Maj.-Gen. Stephen Chamberlain, head of the United States army intelligence service now visiting Greece. Chamberlain today met members of the British military mission.

Information that British forces in Greece numbering 4,000 to 5,000 will shortly move to winter quarters was taken to confirm that no decision for their withdrawal had yet been reached in the conversations between Washington and London.

Meanwhile, Greek reconstruction under the United States aid grant was reported temporarily stalled today because of a world oil shortage.

Dwight Griswold, head of the American Aid Mission, told a press conference the oil supply for Greece would be greatly curtailed for October and November.

Roof Falls In On Ralph Branca, Dodger Hurler

Jackie Robinson Worries Yankee Hurler, Walks Twice

First Innings

Dodgers

A great cheer greeted Shea's first pitch, a called strike on leadoff hitter Ed Stanky. Stanky swung at the next pitch and sent a long fly to Lindell.

After ignoring three straight bad pitches, Robinson watched two strikes sail over the plate, then fouled a pitch into the dirt and finally drew a base on balls.

On Shea's second pitch to Reiser Robinson lit out for second and beat Berra's hurried throw which Rizzuto was forced to take on one bounce, crediting Robinson with a stolen base.

Reiser hit the next pitch right back to Shea and Robinson was caught in a rundown between second and third with Rizzuto making the putout. Robinson, however, held up the play long enough for Reiser to reach second. Shea was credited with an assist.

Walker punched a single into short left field scoring Reiser with the first run of the game. Lindell apparently lost the lazy fly in the sun as the ball dropped almost at his feet.

Hermanski watched a third strike breeze by.

One run, one hit, no errors, one left.

Yankees

Stirnweiss hit the second pitch directly at Stanky who threw him out.

After pitching two balls to Henrich, Branca struck him out with the next three pitches.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Second Innings

Dodgers.

Edwards, swinging at the first pitch, sent DiMaggio back about 375 feet for his long drive.

After working the count to three and two, Jorgensen went down swinging.

Rizzuto scooped up Reese's grounder and threw to McQuinn at first for the out.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Yankees.

Reese grabbed DiMaggio's chopper near second base and threw to Robinson for the out.

McQuinn bounced high to Jorgensen who whipped across the diamond to retire the batter.

The Dodger bench was doing a good job of jockeying the Yankee batters as they marched up to hit.

Johnson was an easy out, Stanky to Robinson.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Third Innings

Dodgers.

McQuinn gobbled up Branca's roller and tossed underhandedly to Shea who covered first for the putout.

Johnson backtracked for Stanky's high chopper and fired a long throw across the diamond to McQuinn for the out.

After fouling an attempted bunt, Robinson for the second time worked the count to three and two and for the second consecutive time drew a base on balls, the only walks issued by Shea so far in the game.

The crowd set up a howl when Shea almost nipped Robinson who had to slide back to first base on his stomach. Shea made two more tosses to first before pitching to the next batter.

Robinson finally forced Shea to commit a balk as the pitcher in attempting to throw to first for the first time let the ball slip out of his hand. Robinson apparently had Shea worried. The ball that Shea threw hit Robinson on the leg.

Yankees.

The Dodger bench now was concentrating its jockeying on third base coach Chuck Dressen of the Yankees who formerly coached the Dodgers. The players kept imitating Dressen's shrill whistle.

Lindell struck out, swinging at the last strike.

Rizzuto flied to Hermanski who apparently, bothered by the sun, looked like a tightrope walker before camping under the high fly.

Shea became Branca's third strikeout victim when he swung feebly at a low outside pitch.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Fourth Innings

TEAM OF RIDING HORSES STOLEN

Despite the fact that the present is very definitely a mechanical age, the day of horse thievery is still with us, according to a report from Prince Edward County on Monday night.

Last evening Ross Pearsall, residing across the highway from Rickarton Castle, one mile east of Picton, stabled his two mares and retired for the night. This morning when he went to tend the animals they had disappeared. Bridles and saddles had gone with the horses.

The two horses were described as a chestnut mare age six years and a brown mare age three years. Saddles taken were of Western make.

Provincial police were notified of the theft, it later being reported the two horses had been seen in the vicinity of Mountain View. Police are still investigating.

LEFT KEYS IN CAR, IS NOW SORRY MAN

The old saying that it is better for the owner to take the ignition keys from his car than for some stranger to do it, goes double for Mr. Harry McCreary of Plainfield.

This morning he had business with county officials at Shire Hall and parking his car on Church Street stepped into the county offices. A few moments later he came out to see his car, a 1936 model, disappearing around the corner.

County officials did not believe the owner when he rushed back into the office asking for a car to chase the offender who took his car. The result was the thief made a clean getaway. Police were told later by Mr. McCreary that he had left the keys in the car.

STUDENTS INVITED TO ENTER CONTESTS

Council Members Given Report On Commission

Members of city council heard a detailed report on the activities of the Belleville Industrial Commission when at their regular meeting Monday evening Chairman of the commission R. A. Pringle addressed the council with vice chairman Harry Rollins.

Explaining the presence of the two Industrial Commission members, Mayor Follwell stated the two men had been invited because of adverse criticism of the commission which had been heard in council.

Explaining that the purpose of the commission was to encourage industries to the city, Mr. Pringle stated that the local organization was formed in 1940.

Bringing his report right up to date he referred to the vote of the taxpayers authorizing the expenditure of $25,000 for the purchase of an industrial area. Negotiations had been entered into for the purchase of some 50 acres outside the easterly limits of the city and efforts made to service the area with railroad facilities. This land was intended to be resold to potential industries at cost.

Refers to Property

The commission chairman referred to the Gordon-Young property at the north of the Industrial area and also spoke of the owner's offer to exchange 20 acres of the property for installation by the city sewer facilities to their plant. In view of the cost of this project, he did not feel that it would be "good business."

Advantages of personal contacts by members of the commission as a means of encouraging industries to locate in the city were outlined by Mr. Pringle. "This", he said, "had been the reason for the trip of industrial commission members to New York last summer."

Expenditures of the commission were an open book declared the chairman who stated that during his eight years as chairman he had not been openly criticized of the commission's activities. Budget of the commission this year had been $4,000 with $1,000 of this being turned over to the Chamber of Commerce.

Alderman Clarke here pointed out that the current budget of the commission had been overdrawn by between $400 and $500. On question from Alderman Duffy as to the budget needed for Industrial Commission work another year, Mr. Pringle replied that he considered $7,000 would be a fair figure.

Tribute Paid

Harry Rollins as vice chairman of the Commission assured that the organization of an Industrial Commission had worked out immensely for Belleville. He paid tribute to Mr. Pringle for his work as chairman declaring that his services were worth many thousands of dollars to the city.

Industrial expansion in Belleville was due not only to the work of the Commission, but was the result of co-operation through council and other organizations.

"The commission has been criticized for bringing industries to Belleville before homes were constructed," he concluded. "But I say we would not need the homes if we did not have the industries."

26 Housing Units Proposed For Reynolds Property Will Be Started Soon by Contractor

Thurlow Township Reeve Announces to City Council Building Permits Will be Issued

Immediate commencement on the construction at least of some of the 26 housing units proposed for the Reynolds property north of College Street in Thurlow township was forecast at city council Monday evening when it was assured by members of Thurlow township council that building permits would be issued to contractor J. R. Rashotte today.

Announcement by Reeve H. Harrison that the required building permits for the construction of the houses would be issued came following a lengthy discussion by members of city council, representatives of Thurlow council and representatives of the contracting firm, who stated that an immediate start must be made if construction was to take place this autumn.

Certain members of city council made no bones of the fact that the reason for the delay in the development of the Reynolds property was due principally to the refusal of Thurlow township officials to sign applications to provide water and other services to the area in question.

Plans Approved

Alderman Armstrong stated that the plans had been approved and were now at the registry office, while Mayor Follwell added that the city had done all it could do and all that remained before construction could commence was the issuing by Thurlow of the necessary building permits.

Here Alderman Duffy interjected that the agreement regarding the services for the area had been signed but that one of the parties now did not want to carry out his part of the bargain.

"I think Alderman Duffy is a bit too severe in his remarks," pointed out Alderman Allin. "Thurlow township is desirous of serving a greater area than just that upon which the 26 houses are to be built."

Thurlow Hesitant

"Before there was any agreement concerning the Reynolds property Thurlow and their planning engineer decide on routes for water and sewer," said Alderman Armstrong. "Thurlow is now hesitant in going ahead when the city does not want to service more than the 26 houses."

Reeve Harrison admitted that Alderman Duffy was possibly right in placing the blame for the delay on Thurlow but pointed out his township had for the past two and a half years been working for an agreement with the Belleville public utilities to supply water to township areas. Surveys had been made and the engineer's report as to water and sewer routes had been received.

"We feel that the water mains going to serve the Reynolds property should be placed so as to serve a wider area," he said. "After all, we have to live with our township residents, many of whom have wanted water service for years.

Going to Provide Service

"Thurlow is not asking something for nothing," he went on. "The water rate in the city is something like six cents per thousand gallons. Thurlow is willing to pay 15 cents. Thurlow is going to service its suburban areas with water, even if it has to install its own pumping system. We have got to have water for more than 26 homes."

Alderman Hyde felt that the agreement to supply the services should be signed at once. "Why wait for annexation proceedings?" he asked. "We don't need it. Thurlow is willing to provide the sewers at no cost to the city and we would sell them the water at a good profit."

Alderman Lazenby pointed out that when the city took over the Reynolds property Thurlow was agreeable to supply sewers to the area if they were supplied with water. Alderman Chamberlain stated that the public utilities commission had no authority to sell water outside the city limits.

Claims No Ulterior Motive

In view of the fact that the agreement between the two municipalities was for the supply of water to two properties only in the College Street area, Alderman Follwell declared it was no time now for the township to say that if they did not get water for Donald Street they would not agree to water on the Reynolds property.

Reeve Harrison admitted the township wanted water for Donald Street but denied there had been any ulterior motive in holding up the agreement. "The reason was that our own plans were not far enough advanced," he said.

Here Alderman Armstrong came to the support of the Thurlow township officials' viewpoint and stated that the township's reason for wanting to supply water over a larger area was purely a financial one. It simply means that it would be more remunerative for Thurlow to extend the service in another direction."

Area Defined for Alderman

Alderman Tice asked what areas were wished by the township to be served with water and Reeve Harrison stated that this area was east to Herchimer Ave., northeast to the northerly limit of what is known as Hillcrest and on a line west from that point. "All this is far in the future but we had to make our area large enough so the costs would not be prohibitive."

Here Alderman Follwell suggested that Thurlow still did not know exactly what area they desired to be serviced and asked if there was any valid reason for their not signing the original agreement.

"Possibly because we have lost faith in Belleville" returned the Thurlow reeve. "We worked along with the public utilities to have water service and then suddenly we find everything up in the air. It got under our skins and it is not the first time," he said. Mr. Harrison was referring to a council recommendation passed before the summer recess that the public utilities commission sell no more water to rural areas without consent of council.

Never Turned Down

"The agreement with the public utilities to supply the township with water over a large area has not been turned down by council," pointed out Alderman Follwell.

"Press reports are misleading then," replied the Thurlow reeve.

Deputy Reeve Seldon Homan felt that the agreement for the supply of water over the larger area should come first with the township. To pay for this service the township must levy on a water distribution area and over a long period.

Here the agreement between the two municipalities for the supply of service to the Reynolds and Smith properties was read by City Solicitor Collins.

Brig. Fulton of the Northern Electric Company pointed out the urgent need of housing and stated that his firm intended to move about 300 key personnel to Belleville. Of these at least 100 families would need houses which simply did not exist.

Alderman Duffy agreed that housing was a necessity, but stated Thurlow would not agree to the original plan to service the Reynolds property, while the city would not agree to the overall plan to supply water to a larger township areas.

Must Have Compensation

"Thurlow township must have compensation for its capital investment. That is the reason for their wish for water service over the larger area," again pointed out Alderman Armstrong.

Alderman Allin declared that no councillor wanted to be unfair to Thurlow, but Alderman Tice held if the entire area was serviced the property would never be annexed to the city, and "I am not being unfair to the township either" said the Alderman.

"Good will goes a long way toward making for annexation," pointed out Mr. Homan.

Here Reeve Harrison suddenly agreed to issuing the necessary building permits, to permit a start in the construction of the housing units, but asked that a meeting be held in an effort to arrive at an agreement for water service over the larger area.

Later council passed a recommendation forwarded by Alderman Allin that "in order to proceed immediately with the proposed housing project on the Reynolds property that this council go on record as being in favor of public utilities commission furnishing water to that area to conform with a plan laid down by the engineer of Thurlow township."

Henri Maillard Tells of Meeting World's Great

Toronto, Sept. 30 —(CP)— Head waiters, chefs and maitre d'hotels who have served kings, prime ministers, marshals and generals were guests themselves last night at a dinner held by the Toronto branch of the International Geneva Association of Hotel and Restaurant Culinarians.

Henri Maillard of Belleville, Ont., told of meeting Herbert Hoover when President, Franklin D. Roosevelt when Secretary of the Navy, Alphonso of Spain when King and Marshal Joffre.

"I can tell you something about Joffre," he said. "I noticed that when eating a chicken drumstick he picked up the bone and chewed on it."

Mr. Maillard is the proprietor of the Chez Henri restaurant in Belleville.

Sheriff J. O'Flynn Honored by Staff Of Courthouse on Eve of Retirement

Tangible tribute to thirteen years of happy associations, was paid to Sheriff J. D. O'Flynn, by members of the various staffs of the County Courthouse yesterday, when they presented him with a handsome brief case on the eve of his retirement from public office.

Mr. O'Flynn ends his connections with Hastings County as local Registrar of the Supreme Court, and Surrogate Court, county registrar, county court clerk and sheriff today. He is succeeded by Mr. Thomas W. Solmes of Stirling.

Tribute by Judge Anderson.

County Judge J. C. Anderson, in a presentation speech, stated that it must be a pleasure to Sheriff O'Flynn to know that his staffs have an interest in his welfare. "It is the first time the complete staff has been together, and that in itself is a warm tribute."

"During my brief sojourn here as judge, I must say I have received the fullest co-operation from the Sheriff in that capacity and as Registrar, I personally appreciate this fact, and on behalf of the staff I must add that you have received their fullest co-operation. This has meant that we have been one harmonious family."

"The day after tomorrow," Judge Anderson went on, "you will be a 'free man,' one who will not be bothered with the responsibilities of this office. When we realize the extent of the authority placed in your hands thirteen years ago, we all appreciate the efficient way in which you have carried out your duties. All instructions were given by you in a pleasant manner and they were carried out in the same way."

"While you will be sheriff no longer, you will always be an officer of the court, and I hereby give notice to the barristers and solicitors of this city that from now on they will have keen competition.

"It gives me great pleasure," Judge Anderson said, "to present you with this small token of appreciation of the staff for the fine job you have done in your dual offices."

Expresses Appreciation

Sheriff O'Flynn in a brief address of appreciation for the splendid gift, told his former associates that during the entire thirteen years of association with the staff there had been a strong feeling of comradeship existing among all. "This feeling made it easier for all of us to work in harmony together. I see friends everywhere and while I cannot say I am sorry I am going back to my law practice, I shall miss every one of you. It will be hard leaving all the friends I have made in this courthouse, but my first love, the legal profession, calls me. I want to thank you one and all."

Brief addresses of appreciation of the many years of harmonious co-operation were made by Mr. Joseph Samain, former jail governor who was associated with the former sheriff for twelve years, and who recently returned from a 14-months visit to England; Cecil Fralick, Mrs. R. B. Chadwick; Mrs. Bennett; Mrs. Raynor, the Misses Mary Butler, Mary Lloyd, Gladys McDonald; Jail Governor J. McCaw; Archie Winters and Messrs. Sculthorpe and Sunderland.

The former sheriff will assume his legal practice in a downtown office within the next few days.

Citizenship Basic Binding Agent Rotarians Told

"Citizenship is the basic binding agent in a nation. No matter what a man's origin, his language or his church, he has one thing in common with his neighbor — citizenship. We must therefore create a greater understanding of the privileges and responsibilities of Canadian citizenship for it is through it with its implications of common interests that constructing national unity is built," Willis Jackson, manager of the Bellevue Finance Corporation, told the Rotary Club on Monday.

The speaker defined a good citizen. "First," he said, "he must be obedient to the laws of the government. A good citizen must be willing to co-operate with the government by voluntarily and intelligently performing those special duties asked of him, such as serving on juries, holding public office and serving in military forces. He or she must exercise the right to vote. Participation of young people is most essential in this respect for in a modern democracy, the voters are the rulers of the land."

"A country," the speaker said, "can be no stronger, no more intelligent and no more righteous than are the great body of its citizens. This fact constitutes weakness as well as strength of democracy. It is the duty of a citizen to help create an intelligent, just and a righteous public opinion. For in a democracy public opinion tends to rule and it can rise no higher than the beliefs and ideals of the citizen.

Answers Own Question.

Answering his own question, "What right has a government to impose duties upon its citizens?" Mr. Jackson stated that the history of civilization shows that without government there can be no justice, no protection of the home and family life, and no security in business life or the pursuit of happiness.

"Since therefore the things we value most are possible only under the protection of government, it is only right to have faith in the rulers of the land and ourselves," he said.

"The C.C.A. is an act of faith on our country," Mr. Jackson concluded. "We have won the respect of other nations during the last few years, but the respect of others, no matter how great means little unless we have respect for ourselves and our nationhood."

Rubinoff's Strad Violin Insured For $100,000

When Rubinoff appears in the city on October 8, in a program of popular concert music, he will play on one of the most precious instruments in the world, the famed Romanoff-Stradivarius violin insured for $100,000.

The violin is famous for its silken, lustrous tone, its full range and almost unbelievable depth. Made in 1731 by the master of all violin makers, this particular Strad eventually found its way into the hands of the Romanoffs, one time rulers of Russia, and still bears the bejeweled crest of that family. During the revolution it was smuggled out of Russia and eventually was purchased by Mr. Rubinoff.

Sensitive to heat, humidity, altitude and the risks that beset any treasure of such vast value the Stradivarius is guarded and handled with deference and extreme care at all times. The ancient instrument still retains the original varnish and is the acme of perfection in musical instruments.

Included in Rubinoff's program are "Warsaw Concerto", Chopin's "Polonaise", the ever popular "Rhapsody in Blue" by Gershwin; and the haunting melody of DeBussy's "Clair de Lune"; all these famous compositions will have their premier performance as violin solos arranged and played by the maestro. Rubinoff will appear at B.C.I. Auditorium.

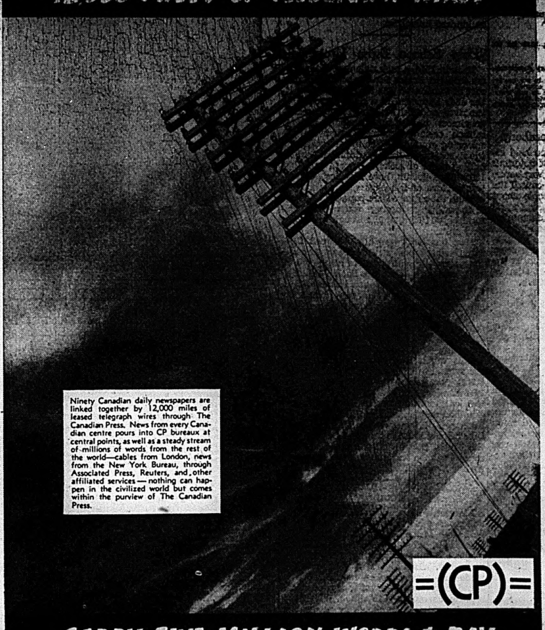
Thousands to Witness Hangchow Tidal Bore

Shanghai, Sept. 30 (AP) —The famous Hangchow tidal bore, a moving wall of ocean water from six to 20 feet high, will hurl itself against a massive 1,200-year-old seawall at ancient Hangchow Oct. 2, with thousands of spectators on hand to watch. The tidal bore occurs annually at the seaport on the 18th day of the eighth moon of the Chinese lunar year. It forms when a high incoming ocean tide clashes with the swift-flowing Chien Tang River, and rolls in like an elongated battering ram.

'SIMPLE GUIDE TO BASEBALL' FOR VISITORS TO U.N. ASSEMBLY

New York, Sept. 30 (AP) — In case the goings on here this week might puzzle foreign visitors attending United Nations sessions, "a simple guide to the great American game of baseball" was distributed yesterday to the representatives of 55 countries. It cautioned:

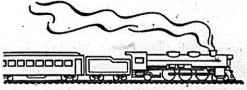
12,000 MILES OF TELEGRAPH WIRES



Ninety Canadian daily newspapers are linked together by 12,000 miles of leased telegraph wires through The Canadian Press. News from every Canadian centre pours into CP bureaux at central points, as well as a steady stream of millions of words from the rest of the world—cables from London, news from the New York Bureau, through Associated Press, Reuters, and other affiliated services — nothing can happen in the civilized world but comes within the purview of The Canadian Press.

CARRY FIVE MILLION WORDS A DAY

. . . by Plane



. . . by Train

. . . by Ship

. . . by Radio, by Cable, by Telephone

Did you ever stop and think how the news in your daily newspaper gets there in the first place?

Of course, you didn't. You're too used to finding the world wrapped up in your paper every day to wonder about it. It's a familiar, routine event in your life . . . like breakfast, dinner, and supper . . . like going down to work, or getting the kids off to school.

But even while you are reading this paper—today's paper . . . news is reaching your editor by a dozen different means. Seasoned traveler—it comes by plane, train or ship—by radio, by cable or telephone. Like a river flowing down to the sea, day or night, this news-stream never ceases.

It comes from as far away as the Antarctic—as close by as the corner of 5th and Main. It's news of Science, Sports, Society, Business, Homemaking, and all the other things you live by. It's news—capital N-E-W-S. Just suppose it ever stopped . . . and you had to go news-hungry!

Your grocer closes his shop. Your doctor may take a vacation. But your newspaper—as important as either for your well-being—goes right on,

Another Trial at Nuernberg

Attila the Hun of old has been held before man as one of the most notorious killers of history for he cut his way across Europe with his sword and caused the deaths of great numbers of people about the time the old Roman Empire was at its lowest ebb. Attila's crimes were done in an age when the sacredness of human life was not considered by such as Attila as it is today. But the Nazis of Hitler's age never considered the life of anyone sacred. Theirs was a cynical, cruel world that admired power and all that is foul and selfish.

The other day twenty-three Nazi commanders faced the Allied tribunal at Nuernberg and heard the United States prosecutor charge them with the slaying of more than a million Jews, Russians and Gypsies. Hitler's Nazis lived in an age which was supposed to have climbed out from savagery but theirs was a code of cruelty and brutality which still leaves a sense of shock in the world though Nazism and Hitlerism were crushed. The Nazis had run counter to every principle of humanity and showed the depths to which human greed and depravity can sink men. Mankind at large had thought the world was growing better but the Nazis of Hitler's aggression revealed the shocking degradation of the Nazi philosophy of life.

These Nazi commanders face the most serious charges that can be brought against a human being. They are named as being the worst killers of history as one of the prosecutors said in his charge.

But they will receive a fair trial and justice. That is the principle of justice in the democratic world.

Immunization Week

Diphtheria, whooping cough and smallpox can be guarded against, provided proper methods of immunization are followed, it is stated by Viscount Alexander, Governor-General of Canada, in a message issued on the eve of National Immunization Week, October 5-11.

National Immunization Week is an annual observance sponsored by the Health League of Canada, of which voluntary agency His Excellency is patron, in co-operation with health departments throughout the nation.

His Excellency's message calls the attention of the people of Canada to the importance of the observance. The object of this campaign is to impress upon everyone the importance of taking protective measures against three major menaces which threatens the children of Canada, namely diphtheria, smallpox and whooping cough.

"All these diseases can be guarded against provided the proper methods of immunization are followed. In order that these safeguards can become effective it is necessary that everyone, everywhere, should follow the program which is being sponsored by the Health League of Canada," says Lord Alexander, commending the league in its efforts to "provide means whereby thousands of young Canadians, boys and girls, can be safeguarded from the scourge of these diseases."

Jet Bombers' Speed

Plans to build jet-propelled bombers which will open a completely new era in military aviation have been announced by the British Ministry of Supply. It is predicted that the basic design of the new bombers will consist of a strangely shaped wing which will house the crew compartments. There will be no fuselage or tail. Jet motors will be "buried" in the wing. While technicians are working to solve problems concerning fuel consumption and effective pressurization of crew quarters, others are evolving a new bombing technique and new methods of accurate navigation made necessary by high speeds at high altitudes. "Much remains to be done" states the Ministry. "However it is probable that contracts will very shortly be placed for two of these new long-range bombers."

A Bright Spot

British shipbuilding is a bright spot in the economic structure of Britain today. At the present there is building in British yards shipping to the amount of three million gross tons of shipping and an even greater volume of activity is the repair and conversion of 3,500,000 tons of ships from war use to peacetime service. These ships are nearly all fast passenger and cargo carriers, says the New York Times, pointing out that there is little naval building except in experimental ships.

Over a third of a million workers are employed in the British shipyards and there are many thousands more employed in kindred industries.

Help Salmon Swim Upstream

Back in 1913, a rock slide dumped boulders into the Fraser River, about 130 miles east of Vancouver. As luck would have it, the slide happened in a narrow section of the river, and Hell's Gate Canyon became an almost impassable barrier to sockeye salmon seeking to reach their age-old spawning grounds on the upper reaches of the river. Since 1913 it is estimated that 15 million cases of sockeye, worth probably 180 million dollars, have been lost. Countless millions of fish eggs were never laid, because the sockeye were pounded to death in the swirling, surging waters of Hell's Gate, only 110 feet wide, through which the river boils.

Man has built specially designed fishways on both sides of the Fraser through the narrow defile. They were completed in 1946, and officials of the Pacific International Fisheries Commission estimate that by 1951, when the 1947 spawn returns from across the Pacific, there will be a record salmon catch.

The fishway on the west bank, where the C.P.R. tracks run, is 220 feet long, 20 feet wide, and 40 feet deep, with baffles at intervals which provide resting waters for the salmon in their upward climb. On the C.N.R. side, the fishway is 300 feet long and 12 feet wide, and a second section is 160 feet long and 20 feet wide. The work cost a million dollars, but in coming years the fishermen of the West coast will get old-time catches and the people of Canada and the United States and the world will get canned salmon in greater quantity.—Port Arthur News Chronicle.

Chemurgy

Farmers, industrialists, scientists, technologists, will foregather at Cincinnati next week at the Mid-American Chemurgy conference. What is chemurgy? It is not magic, but applied science of a remarkable versatility. When soybeans or peanuts are made into plastics, when fabrics are produced from corncobs or milk, or paper from bagasse, chemurgy is in action. When new uses for old farm products or wastes are found, when new crops useful to industry are developed, chemurgy is progressing. From prosesses that have thus transformed resources of the soil into new riches has come knowledge so organized that it can be of incalculable value in relieving the want that now depresses Europe.

The late Henry Ford was a great advocate of the infinite uses and value of soybeans, as one base for many creations of the laboratory.

Military Medicine's Success

The report of an American death in the infantile paralysis epidemic in Berlin, rather than being cause for alarm, calls attention to the tremendous success achieved by the military services and military government during the entire war period in the prevention of serious epidemics.

Wars traditionally breed disease, and in this war conditions were more perilous than ever in the past, what with the bombing of cities, the destruction of buildings and water and sanitary systems. However, epidemic has not got out of hand.

Infantile paralysis normally is seasonal, so there is every reason to expect that it will be checked in Berlin. — Cleveland Plain Dealer.

LOST RAPTURE

We loved the moonlight on the lake;
At dawn, the eastern sky.
We heard the call of duck and drake
And watched them winging by.
We loved all things of land and sea
In splendor round us thrown.
Now different they seem to me,
Who look on them alone.

The sunrise was a joy to share;
The sunset rich delight.
We thought that it was rapture rare
To walk in moonbeams bright.
But now, from scenes we thrilled to see
The old-time charm has flown,
And all seem common-place to me,
Who look on them alone.

Now, strangely, little care have I
To watch the moon appear.
I see the ducks go winging by
And know the fall is near.
But all that now is left to me
Are memories I own . . .
And loveliness no more can be,
Since I must walk alone.

Proposed Area For Annexation Given Council

The proposed area for annexation into the corporation of the city of Belleville was outlined to council members Monday evening by Mr. C. Meadows, of Meadows and Critoph town planning engineers, the request for the information having been made by council at a previous meeting.

In presenting his report to council, Mr. Meadows outlined requirements of annexation proceedings pointing out that generally speaking the larger the city the more it costs to operate and the more it costs to live in.

In considering annexation the engineer claimed that schooling entered greatly into the picture, it being undesirable for city boundaries to bisect present rural school sections.

Taking this into consideration Mr. Meadows suggested as an area to be included in the corporation by annexation proceedings land extending to the rear of lots on the east side of Herchimer and from a line extending from the golf links north to about one mile north of the present city limits. On the west the area would extend to about seven-eighths of a mile beyond the city limits.

Must Consider School Situation

"These boundaries would be adopted with the school situation solely in mind and the total area may not be needed by the city for years to come," stated Mr. Meadows. The area within the corporation would then be 5,750 acres and would be capable of accommodating a population of 55,000 persons.

Objections of rural residents against being annexed into the city would have to be ironed out, keeping in mind that services could not be supplied by the township as cheaply as by the city. "There was no reason why much of above property suggested for annexation should not continue to be taxed as farm lands," he said.

Mr. Meadows admitted that annexation proceedings may be lengthy, especially if any opposition from rural residents was met with.

Maps of the proposed area for annexation will be prepared by the engineers with copies to be sent each councillor and to members of the planning board.

CUCARACHA, CUCARACHA

In the booklet Unbidden Guests (for copy send twenty-five cents and stamped self addressed envelope) we make no bones telling the householder how to use a poison to rid the premises of cockroaches (sometimes known as Croton bugs, and down Mehico way as cucaracha).

Can't take chances of misprints here, so if you don't mind we'll omit the poison and suggest a safer, yea a remarkably effective cockroach repellent, as many readers have assured me.

But first, as we say on the radio, a brief introduction of the guest we are about to eradicate.

Of the hundreds of species of the roach family (Blattidale) four have been domesticated, namely the American roach, the Oriental roach, the Australian roach and the German roach. Blatta orientalis, commonly called black beetle, is the European or English roach. Blatta germanica is otherwise known as the German roach or the Croton bug — the popular species in America. Light brown, smooth, slippery, the smallest of the domesticated roaches, omnivorous, feeding on leather, woolens, cloth and leather book bindings when animal or vegetable food is not available, and perhaps eating each other.

Cockroaches are smart, wary, agile, the males winged, the females Yankeefied, producing only one generation a year. Altogether they are dirty pests and besides they probably carry typhoid, dysentery and other intestinal infections to any food they can find in your pantry. In Asia cockroaches have been found feeding on the excrement of cholera patients — they may then deposit the cholera germs in whatever food they happen to get at.

The comparatively safe repellent which a good many readers have found so effective is borax.

Sprinkle powdered borax freely along the trails the roaches follow, around water and drain pipes, in crevices and corners of pantry shelves. On the floor under cupboards, bins or heavy furniture. Use several ounces of borax, make a thorough job of it, overlooking no point where the roaches may enter the house or the pantry. That's all. If you have spread the borax upon or across every approaching trail, next morning you'll find your unbidden guests have quit the dump in a huff. They just don't like the looks, feel or taste of borax. Or so my readers tell me.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Stop That Infernal Noise

If you can tell me anything that will lessen, much less stop that infernal head noise I have had for fifteen years or more, I'll keep you supplied with your own choice of pipe and tobacco and will you a fund to continue.

(Mrs. G. R. C.)

Answer — Remember, now, I have your answer in writing. But I promise nothing in return. I send you the pamphlet "Tinnitus and Deafness" tinnitus means head noises — which contains suggestions that have lessened or stopped head noises in many instances. Any reader may have the pamphlet on written request (no clipping, please)—inclose stamp-envelope bearing your address.

Nice Work If You Can Get It

Having reared five children in a locality thirty miles from the nearest doctor, I know how true the things you tell really are. The doctor's fee was a dollar a mile.

(Mrs. V. M. A.)

Answer — Ow, wow! It takes me back to Penn Yann in horse and buggy days, when I tried to soak a wealthy farmer three dollars for driving 1½ hours through the mud or slush to attend a member of his family. He gave me two dollars and challenged me to sue him for the rest — two dollars was the fee established by some real doctor before my time, and that was that. Today a doctor can whiz thirty miles out, take pulse, temperature and $30 and be back at the office within 1½ hours. Well, that's one reason why every well regulated home should have a copy of the Brady Baby Book — sent twenty-five cents and stamped self-addressed envelope and ask for it in writing (no clippings, please.)

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Why is Ohio called the Buckeye State?

Ohio got its nickname from the fact that the natural range of the horsechestnut tree known as the buckeye was restricted largely to the Ohio River watershed.

In his "History of American Forest Trees" (1810) Francois Andrew Michaux named this species "Ohio Buckeye" because of its relative abundance in that region.

"Buckeye" was suggested by the fact that the dark-brown nut with its pale scar was fancied to resemble the eye of a deer. "Hetuck," buck's eye, is said to have been an Indian name for the nut.

Just when Ohioans were first called buckeyes is unknown. One story is that it was first the nickname of Colonel Ebenezer Sproat, sheriff of the Northwest Territory, whom the Indians called "Buckeye" or "Big Buckeye" upon seeing him lead the procession at Marietta when the first court was opened in 1788. In time, according to the story, the sobriquet passed from Colonel Sproat individually to Ohioans generally.

Edwin James, in "Expedition from Pittsburgh to the Rocky Mountains (1823), wrote that "the indigenous backwoodsman is sometimes called buck-eye, in distinction from the numerous emigrants who are introducing themselves from the eastern States."

Daniel Drake (1785-1852), pioneer physician, scientist and writer, did much to popularize the buckeye as the emblem of Ohio. He called his home in Cincinnati "Buckeye Hall," which he adorned with buckeye sprigs and where he dispensed good cheer from a large bowl made of buckeye wood. Dr. Drake sponsored the "Buckeye Club," and in 1832, Cincinnati's 45th anniversary, he delivered a famous address in which he extolled the virtues of his favorite tree.

Ohio became nationally known as the Buckeye State during the Log-Cabin and Hard-Cider presidential campaign of 1840, when cabins, cider kegs, walking sticks and all sorts of articles were made of buckeye wood as a tribute to William Henry Harrison, Ohio's first citizen to run for President.

CURBS IMPOSED BEFORE EDITOR GIVEN PASSPORT

Similar Pledges May be Asked of Other Writers for Red Papers at U. N. Assembly

By EDWARD BOMAR

Washington, Sept. 30 —(AP)— The State and Justice departments may slap sharp restrictions on the activities of all foreign correspondents admitted to the United States to report sessions of the United Nations Assembly for Communist publications, it was learned yesterday.

Officials said a new official policy under discussion would apply generally the curbs imposed on Pierre Courtade, a writer for the Paris Communist Daily L'Humanite.

Courtade arrived in New York last week. Before he was granted a passport visa to come to the United States he was required to pledge that he would:

1. Enter and leave by an Atlantic port.
2. Remain in New York City and the Long Island meeting places of the United Nations.
3. Depart when the Assembly session is completed.
4. Engage in no subversive or propaganda activities nor agitate against the United States during his stay.

Prior to Courtade's arrival, several other foreign correspondents for the Communist press had been permitted to come to the United States temporarily to report on U. N. developments without such restrictions. Most were from countries in the Soviet orbit.

The pending proposal is to require that these visitors give the same pledges as Courtade.

Officials noted there are correspondents at U. N. headquarters from Communist - dominated Yugoslavia and Poland, from a Greek Communist paper and from Soviet Russia itself. They said they did not know how many.

Soviet Citizens in U. S. Not Affected.

The Soviet citizens in this country all have diplomatic or official status and would not be effected.

Asked whether the new policy would conflict with the United States' free press guarantees, a State Department official replied that on the contrary it would represent a gain for freedom of information.

Congress, in a resolution passed, Jan. 10, 1944, called for a world-wide right of interchange of news, gathered by agencies or individuals "by any means" and "without discrimination."

The State Department itself is preparing to negotiate for bi-lateral agreements which would permit free movement of correspondents between the United States and any countries ratifying the treaties.

The State Department official explained, however, American immigration laws dating from 1918 bar from the United States certain class of individuals deemed to be dangerous, and the attorney general has ruled these include Communist party members and those who carry on Communist propaganda.

Dr. Felipe Carranza, senior surgeon of the Institute of Experimental Medicine at Buenos Aires, suggested that this be accomplished by increasing the representation of the cancer committee of the International College of Surgeons.

RALLY SERVICE

Madoc Jct. — The annual Rally Day service for Eggleton Sunday School was held Sunday morning at the church.

The superintendent, Mrs. Warren Harlow, presided over the program which began with a song service with Miss Rosella Fitchett as pianist.

Members of the boys' class took charge of the worship period.

Mrs. C. Fitchett gave the blackboard story.

The primary class of 16 little folks sang "Praise Him" with Mrs. Bruce Stapley playing their accompaniment.

Mrs. Stapley also played for the members of the girls' class who sang "Oh to be More Like Jesus."

The offering, which amounted to over thirty dollars, was accepted by Vernon Clarke and Carl Reid and dedicated by Mr. Chas. Bridges. This offering has been sent to the Tornado Relief Fund at Coe Hill.

The guest speaker, Mrs. J, Herity of Moira, was then introduced and gave a very interesting address.

The service closed with prayer by Mrs. Carl Bridges.

By KATE AITKEN

Peggy Anstruther, charming 23-year-old career girl, is getting married next week. One of the most interesting showers she had was the snapshot party some school friends organized. When the food came in later, it was just as interesting... a buffet that would thrill any bride-to-be. Here is the Shower Buffet Menu: Fruit Punch; Canapes; Jellied Salmon Ring; Garnished Salad Loaf; Relishes; Olives; Celery; Lovers' Knots; Heart Ice Cream Moulds; Iced Cakes; Golden Fancies. WEDDINGS

EMBURY-DAWE

A quiet early Autumn wedding took place on the evening of Sept. 17th., in St John's Anglican Church, Ottawa, when Emmie Frances Dawe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. R. Dawe of St. John's, Newfoundland, became the bride of Philip Embury, son of the late Biard D. Embury and Mrs. Embury, of Belleville.

Rev. Canon Northcote Burke officiated and the wedding music was supplied by the organist, Mr. Fass.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father's friend, Mr. Harold Derraugh, looked very charming in a street length dress of romance blue crepe, with matching shoulder length veil and gloves. Her arm bouquet was of Talisman roses.

The bride's only attendant was her sister, wearing a dress of fuchsia crepe with brown accessories and a corsage of roses.

Mr. James Woodruff, of Montreal, ably supported the groom.

Following the ceremony a large number of friends and relatives attended a reception held at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Edward Derraugh, where her mother received in a rose crepe gown, with black accessories, and wearing a corsage of roses. The groom's mother assisted, wearing an ensemble of black and white, with a rose corsage.

For wedding journey to Montreal, the bride chose a two piece woollen costume in a rose shade, with a smart light grey top coat and black accessories.

The bride's mother, Mrs. Wm. R. Dawe, left by plane, Tuesday, Sept. 23rd for her home in St. John's, Newfoundland.

ROGERS—COWAN

The First Presbyterian Church, Brockville, was the scene of an interesting ceremony at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon when Alice Jane, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas S. Cowan, 86 Garden Street, and Dr. Robert Thomas Rogers, of Albany, N.Y., only son of Mr. and Mrs. George M. Rogers, 196 King Street east, were united by Rev. Henry Cousens, B.A., B.D., minister of the church. The church was attractively decorated for the ceremony with gladioli of pastel hues and ferns and Darwin Stata presided at the organ, "Because" being sung by Mrs. A. E. Hetherington.

The bride, who was given away by her father, wore white faille designed on Empire lines with a bouffant skirt ending in a short train. Her floor-length veil was fastened to a Queen Anne headdress of tiny seed pearls and she carried a cascade bouquet of American Beauty roses and stephanotis.

The maid-of-honor, Miss Jean Timmerman, of Belleville, wore a floor-length gown of azure blue crepe dechine with a matching head-dress, a shoulder-length veil and blue low mittens. Her flowers were pale pink sweetheart roses.

Dean Seaton, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, was best man and the ushers were Albert E. Hetherington, of Brockville, and Dr. P. d'Entremont, Ottawa.

At the reception in the Hotel Manitonna which followed the ceremony the bride's mother wore a two-piece dress of brandy brown wool crepe with satin trim, a corsage of cream roses, and a hat of beige ostrich plumes. Mrs. Rogers, mother of the bridegroom, wore a two-piece dress of aqua blue wool crepe with black accessories and a corsage of pale pink rosebuds.

For her honeymoon the bride wore a suit of cinnamon gabardine with pine green accessories and a corsage of gardenias. At its conclusion, Dr. and Mrs. Rogers will take up residence at 180 Fairlawn avenue, Albany, N.Y.

Among those from out of town attending the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Timmerman and Miss Jean Timmerman, Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. S. Cowan, Kingston; Mrs. J. Parke, Toronto; Mrs. Leonard Gates, Gananoque; Mr. and Mrs. George Denton, Albany, N.Y.; Mrs. Arnold Hartwick, Ottawa; Dr. Charles McLean, Woodbridge, Ont.; Dr. D. Hunt, Marlbank, Ont.; Mr. and Mrs. K. C. Cotton, Tweed, Ont.; Dr. P. d'Entremont, Ottawa, and Dr. O. Murphy, Toronto.

LICKFOLD—ELLIOTT

A large number of friends and relatives gathered in the home of Rev. E. Farnsworth, Bleecker Ave., to witness the marriage, Thursday last, of Vera Elliott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Revell, Brassey Street, and Reginald John Lickfold, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Roden Lickfold, Cannifton Road.

The bride wore a dressmaker suit of aqua blue gabardine, with black hat and matching accessories. Her corsage was of pink roses. Mrs. Gladys Latta, of Hamilton, Ont., sister of the bride, was her only attendant, wearing a dark brown suit with matching accessories. Her corsage was of Briarcliff roses.

Mr. Bernard LaMorre, of Trenton, ably supported the groom.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. Mrs. E. Revell received the guests wearing a dress of grey crepe, with black accessories. Mrs. J. R. Lickfold, assisted, gowned in a navy ensemble with matching accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. Lickfold left later for a trip to points in the United States. They will take up residence at 29 Parker Street.

Soapless Soap Here to Stay

By DOROTHY CAREW

New York —(AP)— Soapless soaps have taken a permanent place on kitchen shelves.

Edging in beside traditional soap chips and powders since the war's end, the synthetic detergents at first met the housewife's scepticism. Now she has accepted them on their merits.

They rank among the top-selling shampoos, are used for dish washing and hand laundering, and recently heavy duty soapless soaps have appeared for use in the family washing machine.

Despite the fact that they are not soap at all, but chemical compounds made from petroleum or vegetable oil derivatives, soap manufacturers concede that synthetic detergents are here to stay and advertise their own detergents right along with their more familiar soaps.

The new cleansers are particularly effective in hard water areas. To them it means an end to the gummy residue left when soap combines with lime or manesium in the water. The detergents are soluable in any kind of water — hard or soft, hot or cold.

Synthetic detergents were used on a broad scale industrially before the war, but the household version was a mere infant when the war cut off production for civilian use.

Production capacity of synthetic detergents at the end of last year was estimated at 250,000,000 pounds annually, compared with soap sales of 3,500,000,000 pounds.

Facilities for producing the detergents have been expanded and research and testing of products are going on at a fast pace. Thus far the industry has been concentrating on powdered household detergents and liquid and cream shampoos, but among other "logical outgrowths" in the offing, some in the industry say are bar toilet soap and a wide variety of preparations tailored for special used and varied types of water.

See Compromises Next Spring In Fashion Trends

By ENID NEMY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Hollywood (CP) —Paris and New York say the fashion picture has changed completely but two of Hollywood's top designers still believe in individuality.

"If a woman looks good in a dress and it feels comfortable and it appeals to a man, she should wear it. The woman of today thinks more of what is right than of what designers and fashion magazines say," says Edward Sevenson.

He approves of longer skirts because "women were wearing them too short anyway" but for street wear the hem shouldn't reach the ankle. But as far as rounded shoulders and padded hips go, he gives forth with an emphatic "no."

"Women's figures should be helped and presented as attractively as possible, not hindered at every turn."

Stevenson says the general trend is toward more feminine clothes and feels that by next spring a balance will have been reached.

"There will be a compromise picture with women wearing what is best for them, what does the most for their figure and perhaps with a few of fashion's edicts thrown in."

Against Padded Hips

His opinions are shared by tiny, brunette Edith Head, chief designer of a large studio. Miss Head thinks shoulder pads are necessary and dismusses padded hips with "women's hips are big enough."

A skirt shouldn't be longer than 12 inches from the floor for daytime wear and longer skirts are much better on tall girls than on their more petite sisters, she says.

Miss Head, who has been designing for 16 years and recently completed the wardrobe for Betty Hutton in "Dream Girl" and Phyliss Calvert in "My Own True Love" has definite ideas on accessories, too.

"The current vogue for colored stockings to match costumes is fine for evening wear, but forget them when it comes to street wear. And as for that flat-heeled shoes, they are all right in their place but they certainly don't belong with the longer skirts."

And Miss Head isn't just talking. She uses herself as a "guinea pig" for all her ideas and even in Hollywood people turn when she walks by.

Storage of Winter Vegetables

Experimental Farm News

Farmers and others who have vegetables for household use in the winter, and have suitable storage space in the cellar, should check on their storage facilities to see that everything is in order. There is no secret to the proper winter storage of vegetables, says C. E. Ste. Marie, Dominion Experimental Station, L'Assomption, Que., all that is required is plain common sense and the observance of a few simple rules.

Storage space must be adequate with proper ventilation, and fairly high humidity. If these conditions are lacking, or are faulty, they should be corrected before storing is begun.

Whether the vegetables to be stored are bought or are home grown, only products of good quality are worth storing — those that are sufficiently matured, free from insect or other injuries and diseases.

As a general rule vegetables will keep better and for a longer period if stored in slatted crates or slatted bins to provide ventilation. Losses will be reduced considerably if moisture can be kept at a rather high level, particularly for potatoes, beets and carrots.

The walls and ceiling of the root cellar should be well insulatedo to prevent fluctuating temperatures and loss of moisture. If these requirements are not met much of the produce will be lost.

Vegetables which are to be stored over winter should not be brought directly from the fields into the storage. The sorting and grading and also the cooling, should be done before storage so that the temperature in the root cellar will not be changed seriously.

The nearest Experimental Station will gladly give any information concerning the storing of vegetables.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Better Be Free A While Longer

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I moved away from my home town two months ago, where I had been going steady with a boy for more than a year.

Before I moved, he told me he did not want me to date any boys in the new place. He has come to see me once, and says, if I ever find anyone else, to just send his ring back. He is very serious and says if he doesn't get me he will be a bachelor.

He doesn't write me very often because he is so busy working with his car. His time is taken up with car racing. He is out of school and has a very good job. I hear from friends that he doesn't date girls and he doesn't want to go out with anybody but me.

Do you think it is wise for me to go through my senior year in high school supposedly going steady and waiting for him, when he writes me so seldom and yet tells people that he loves me?

"Mixed-Up"

Dear "Mixed-Up":

I think it would be very foolish of you to commit yourself so completely to this one young man that you pass up all chances to go out with others. Since you are still in high school, it is likely that you will meet other boys in your new environment who may interest you even more than this one. There is no sense whatever in tying yourself up so that you don't feel free to go out and have good times with them.

If your young man were as serious about you as he apparently wants you and others to think, he would certainly make a point of taking time from his car to write you. As for his remaining a bachelor if he doesn't get you, don't give it a second thought. He won't.

I suggest that you tell him you think it wiser for you both to feel free to have social engagements with other people for a while before deciding that you wish to spend the rest of your lives together.

How's Your Entertainment Value?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a high school girl of 16 and have gone out with four different boys in the last two weeks. I can get boys very easily, but my problem is to hold them. I am supposed to be "personality plus" according to the kids in my class. I meet a boy and he gives me the old line that he loves me — I am beautiful and all that. He calls me, takes me out a few times, and I never hear from him again. But I always have so many others to console me, it doesn't bother me. My mother is always mad because I date so many fellows.

I don't want to go steady, but I just want to keep a fellow a few months like others do. Could you please give me a few points on how to keep one?

"Eileen."

Dear "Eileen":

You say it so easy for you to get boy friends that when they throw you over it doesn't bother you. It sounds to me as though it bothered you a very great deal, or you wouldn't be writing to me about it.

I am afraid that the "kids in your class" have given you a somewhat exaggerated idea of your charms. If you were really the glamor girl you have been led to believe, the boys would hardly brush you off so fast.

You don't tell me enough about yourself for me to form any good opinion of what your troubles may be, but my guess is that you are probably very pretty and that your appearance makes a quick appeal to the boys, but there isn't enough behind that pretty face to interest them long. A girl has to have something besides good looks in order to "keep a fellow" as you put it.

Better go over your "entertainment value" and see where your're lacking. Are you good at sports, dancing, and so forth? Are you the kind of a girl who has a lot of interests so that you have plenty to talk about? Do you enjoy a lot of different things, or is your idea of a good time just sitting around and being admired?

Try to look at yourself as though you were looking at another girl and advising her about herself. This ought to help.

Stop Playing See-Saw

Dear Miss Fairfax:

About four years ago, I met Doris at a party. I thought she was swell. We went together for two years, but, like most such couples, we were too young to be serious and so we finally broke up. To this day, she is still in love with me.

For a while I went around with everyone and had fun. Then I met a girl with whom I am still going and whom I think I want to marry. For almost two years we have been very happy, but lately all we ever do is fight.

Well, now I keep thinking about Doris and have a mad desire to go back with her. Yet, when I think of breaking up with this other girl, it kills me. We have planned on getting married and have even saved money. I am all mixed up about it.

"D. N."

Dear "D. N.":

You don't tell me how old you are, but I feel sure that you are still too young to settled down and get married. If you were not, you wouldn't be in such a state of conflict over these two girls.

My advice to you is to be perfectly honest with this second girl and tell her that you feel very undecided at the moment, and think it would be better for you both to be free for a while to go out with other young people. Of course, this will hurt her, but it would be far better to hurt her a little now than a lot later on, if you found that, in the end, you didn't want to marry her anyhow.

I certainly wouldn't go flying back to Doris, however, and start courting her again. You will only confuse yourself more with this game of see-saw.

Better do as you did before for a while — go around with everyone and have fun — until you are surer of yourself.

A Boy Who Is Making A Fool Of His Girl

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a girl of 21 and have been going steady for five years with a boy of 22. He has broken off with me quite a few times but has always come back.

A while ago, we set our wedding date, but, after a few days, he broke off with me again, saying he didn't love me any more. I have been seeing other boys, and he other girls. Now he wants to come back again. Can you help me decide what to do?

"Confused."

Dear "Confused":

Don't let this boy make a fool of you by dropping you and then taking up with you again as he pleases. It is time for you to be a girl who is harder to get than that. Tell him that since he has changed his mind so many times, you think he had better wait until he is sure of what he wants to do before the two of you go back to your old relationship. Say that you think you had both better keep on going out with others for a while, but that, if, after a certain period of time, you are mutually anxious to get back on your old basis, you can then do so.

Of course, this doesn't mean that you should never go out with him, but simply do so as though he were just another boy, and don't let him attempt to monopolize your time.

More Broad-Mindedness Is Needed Here

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have been going with a very nice fellow for about six months and neither of us have been going with anyone else during that time. Last week, he and his best boy friend went on a little vacation. I stayed home every night by myself while he was gone.

When he came back, he told me that one night he had had a date with a girl up where he was staying. He told me all about it and I believed him.

Now I am wondering if it would be right for me to go out with a boy that I used to know before I met this one, just for one time, to pay him back. Or should I forget the incident?

"Troubled."

Dear "Troubled":

If you are so childish that you want to do something just "to pay somebody back," then you have a long way to go before you should be taking romance seriously.

I think you were very silly anyhow to stay home every night while your boy friend was on his vacation, and I certainly don't see any harm whatever in his having had a date with a girl while he was away. You will have to become a great deal more broad-minded and understanding than you are now, if you are ever going to make any husband happy.

If you have any sense at all, you will not only forget this incident, but never make an issue of anything of the sort again.

Fashion Flashes

CHANGES in line are reflected in raincoats, as evidenced by models now going into the stores for autumn. Eelskin satin — in gray, shocking, royal, black, and white — is used for a series of raincoats made on generous lines with very full back and detachable hood.

WE CAN JUST SEE teen-agers going all out for a series of scarfs with a printed design made up of the signatures of famous folks, mostly connected with show business. Another idea is a design made up of Spanish and English sayings, bordered with Latin-American fiesta scenes.

STILL IN THE LEAD is the well-done alligator bag, but on soft lines rather than the rigid satchel so popular for so long. A new model is a big pouch, softly shirred onto a gothic-type gilt metal frame. Deep side gussets and a triangular, wide-base line.

IT'S NICE to see the younger set going in for gloved hands, and why shouldn't they, when there are such pretty designs to be had? Black or white cotton is used for a neat little glove which has pink rosebuds embroidered at the fingertips and on the flared cuff.

EVERY WOMAN, it would seem, will be wearing a scarf-draped felt casual, judging from orders placed by the stores. Pearl gray beaver felt is used for a pretty hat, its medium brim softly rolled back in front. Trimmed and draped with a silk chiffon scarf that shades from matching gray to violet.

THE LIMELIGHT shines on fabrics for many smart afternoon frocks, rather than on trimming or extravagant detail. Iridescent taffeta, metal threaded wool jersey, rich satins, are all in the fabric line-up, often made up into effectively simple shirtwaist dresses, or into youthful frocks with simple, snug-fitted bodices and full skirts.

Sidewalk Snowplowing Referred Back For Further Consideration

City council will further consider their recommendation of last Thursday night calling for doing away with sidewalk snowplowing which was inaugurated last winter with questionable success.

"There are many elderly people in the city who cannot do their own sidewalk shovelling and who cannot get any one to do it for them," pointed out Alderman Clarke as the recommendation came up for ratification Monday evening. "Last winter we were told that jeeps would plow the walks and now we are told by the city engineer that they will not. I would like to know where we stand."

Alderman Chamberlain was of the same opinion maintaining the V-type plows could take care of the snow this winter. "It is only fair that we continue plowing this winter after money has been spent on equipment," he said. "We should not throw the plan up because of one winter of heavy snow."

Against Plowing

Alderman Follwell declared the whole sidewalk snowplowing program nothing but a farce from start to finish. Over ten thousand dollars had been spent in equipment and not one street in the city was plowed properly last winter. "It was a wonderful idea but we have the engineer's word for it that it will not work."

Alderman Tice felt that the V-plows would do more work than the straight plow and more efficiently. He was also in favor of going on with equipment at hand. Alderman Harvey agreed with Mr. Follwell that to do the job properly seven or eight plows would be necessary. "There is just no use monkeying around like we did last winter he said.

The original motion was then turned back for further discussion.

Turned Back to Committee.

A second recommendation of Thursday evening regarding charitable organizations appealing for funds through one community drive was also turned back to committee for further consideration.

"There are many angles to this matter," stated Alderman Vanner as he moved the matter be referred back. He stated that he agreed with the idea of one community drive but business men were needed on the committee to decide on the proper distribution.

The matter ultimately was referred back to committee with council passing a recommendation placed by Mayor Follwell asking that the city clerk write all organizations that usually conduct community drives for welfare funds, advising that council is contemplating passing a by-law restricting such canvass to one combined canvass only in each year. The recommendation also called for the organizations to form a committee and advise council their wishes after reaching a mutual agreement.

Re-open Discussion.

Council re-opened for discussion the proposed purchase by the city of a lot at the corner of St. Charles and Ridley Streets and ultimately passed a recommendation for the purchase.

The recommendation called for the city to purchase from Earl Buker the property situated at the northeast corner of St. Charles and Ridley Streets for a park and recreation ground for children for the sum of $1 and out of pocket disbursements. If the property is not utilized by the city as a park within one year the property will be re-conveyed to Mr. Buker.

The yeas and nays were called on the question by Alderman Clarke who pointed out that the purchase had been voted down on two previous occasions. Voting for the purchase were Mayor Follwell, Aldermen Allin, Armstrong, Follwell, Harvey, Hyde, Lattimer and Wilbur. Opposing were Aldermen Chamberlain, Clarke, Duffy, Lazenby, Tice and Vanner. The opposition were not against the placing of a park in that area but the procedure would set a precedent.

Order Payments.

Payment of $1,192 to Howe and Hagerman for the installation of a furnace at the public lavatory on the market square was authorized, as was balance of the contract price to W. McKenna for plastering.

Concurrence was given to a resolution from the city of Calgary asking that the Federal Government remove the 8 per cent tax on consumer gas sales.

Council passed a recommendation tabled by Alderman Duffy asking that in view of the drastic shortage of housing accommodation that the Parks Board be asked to turn over part of the new horse stables at the fair grounds for emergency accommodation of needy families with the understanding that the stables be returned to the Parks Board at the first opportunity.

Owing to the lateness of the hour all council business was not transacted and was laid over until a special meeting to be held Thursday evening.

Old Home Week Committee Statement

Following is the financial statement prepared by the Old Home Week committee for presentation to city council. The statement was asked for by council in a recommendation at the last meeting.

Plans were to read the statement before council at Monday's meeting but owing to the lateness of the hour this was deferred until a later date.

Mayor Frank S. Follwell,
Chairman, Old Home Week
Committee, Belleville, Ont.
Dear Mayor Follwell:-

Attached hereto please find Financial Report of our Old Home Week Celebration as approved by the Committee. In view of the City Council's recent request, will you please present this report to them at the next meeting. If Council desires any further or more detailed information we will be pleased to furnish it.

The Week was certainly a social success as everyone seemed to have a good time and there were no complaints at my office.

One of the objects of the Week was to obtain publicity for the City. My large scrap-book which I would be pleased to show to Council has clippings from newspapers from Pr. Edward Island to British Columbia and points in between. From both a newspaper and radio standpoint we received a great deal of publicity which could not be bought and which no doubt will reflect to the advantage of the City.

While it would be impossible to list all people who helped to make the celebration a success, Council and the general public should know that the assistance given the Committee by the management and staffs of the Ontario Intelligencer and Radio Station CJBQ contributed greatly to the success. Also the assistance given by Mr. Bruce Smith, and Mr. Howard Aselstine, both of whom gave that entire week, gratis, to assist me The thanks of the Community should be given the above firms and gentlemen.

It is to be regretted that I have been unable to collect enough money as yet to pay the Arena account or the City Council the original grant, but it is hoped that this will be taken care of within a reasonable length of time. In the purchase of the bunting from Peterborough I was able to save the City some $800.00 on these much needed decorations, and we turned over to the City Engineer's Dept. a considerable amount of lumber and rope as well as some pulleys and other material needed by that Dept. at no cost to the department.

In view of the above and the Financial Statement for our operations here, compared to the published reports of similar ventures in other Cities I cannot help but feel that our venture was an outstanding success from every angle and sincerely hope that Council and the Citizens of Belleville generally will feel the same.

Respectfully submitted,
C. Neilson Nicholson,
Executive Director.

Oldest working blacksmith in York County, Joseph Ballard, 81, of Nobleton, still shoes an occasional horse for old customers. Most of his smithy toil, however, is repairing implements for farmers, doing odd bits of iron work. When that business is light, the veteran works in his garden and yard, or gets into his auto and goes for a ride.

Accidental Death Verdict of Jury

The adjourned inquest looking into the death of Mrs. Edith Murrell, Toronto, who died more than a year ago following an accident on the Trenton - Belleville highway near Bayside, was held Monday afternoon with the jury returning a verdict of accidental death. The inquest was held before Coroner Dr. J. J. Robertson with Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan.

The jury found that Mrs. Murrell came to her death as the result in part of personal injuries received when the westbound car in which she was riding and which was driven by Thos. Murrell, was in collision with an eastbound car driven by Ethel Wallace. The accident was termed as unavoidable.

The adjourned inquest was delayed owing to witnesses being unable to attend owing to injuries suffered as result of the accident.

Jury foreman was C. B. Treverton with jurors being W. Storms, D. Grills, J. Aselstine and L. Stork.

BOMB EXPLOSION

Reports of minor outbreaks of violence came from various sections of Palestine.

Two British soldiers were wounded when a road mine exploded under a military truck near Lydda, southeast of the all-Jewish city of Tel Aviv. Four other soldiers investigating the blast escaped injury when they were fired upon from a passing automobile.

Shortly after dark last night occupants of a speeding taxi fired several shots in the Jewish quarter of Haifa, but no casualties were reported.

One Way to Get Rid Of Folk Annoying Artists

London, Sept. 30 (CP) —When a long-suffering artist wrote to the Times of London and asked: "Why do members of the public think themselves entitled to peer over the shoulders of, and even advise or rebuke, an artist painting or drawing in a public place?" Many others responded with letters of sympathy.

The solution offered by one correspondent was that: "A hat, inverted, prominently displayed and bearing a notice with the legend 'Thank You,' will cause all but the most brazen of critics or most generous of patrons to pass by with averted eye."

Peruvian Consul Lived at Home Of Mrs. E. McKee

Toronto, Sept. 30 (CP) — A private detective's evidence of the relations between Mrs. Evelyn McKee and Max de la Fuente whom he observed "frequently kissing each other in public" highlighted testimony yesterday at the hearing before Mr. Justice Dalton Wells to establish whether Mark T. McKee or Mrs. McKee, his divorced second wife, should have custody of their seven-year-old son, Terry.

The evidence, given last spring as a deposition before a California Commissioner, was supplied by Bernard J. Cunningham, 61 Los Angeles private detective and former Federal Bureau of Investigation man, for this hearing. The detective had been hired by Mr. McKee to watch Mrs. McKee's house in Los Angeles after the McKees had separated in 1941.

Read by George Locheed, counsel for Mr. McKee, Mr. Cunningham's evidence told how he had watched the house during April and May, 1942, and had observed from Mr. de la Fuente's movements that he was living at Mrs. McKee's home during this time. Mr. de la Fuente was then Peruvian consul at Los Angeles.

Terry, then three, Cynthia McKee, and Mrs. McKee's son by a former marriage, Gerald Berry, were also living at her home.

In addition to day-to-day movements of the household, Mr. Cunningham also testified about an over-night trip taken by Mrs. McKee and Cynthia with Mr. de la Fuente to a town 350 miles from Los Angeles where the Peruvian consul appeared as speaker at a Rotary Club luncheon.

Followed Car

As he followed the car, Mr. Cunningham reported he had seen Mr. de la Fuente "frequently kiss Mrs. McKee as he was driving."

Mrs. McKee, seated beside her counsel, G. R. Brock, K.C., smiled as this evidence was read.

Mr. Locheed received permission to break into the reading of depositions to call to the stand Arthur Bowman of Waterloo, whose wife is a second cousin of Mr. McKee's first wife, now deceased.

Mr. Bowman told of his five-year acquaintance with Mr. McKee and of how Terry had come to the Bowman home frequently to play with Mrs. Bowman's young nephews who live in the upper duplex. Asked about Terry's health, he said the child appeared in fine health. He's a very active child, always seemed to be up and going."

Always Clean

Mr. Locheed asked if the child was clean and Mr. Bowman replied that he "was always clean and well-dressed when he came to our place." Mrs. McKee has charged that Terry is being kept dirty and untidy.

Mr. McKee who has been living at Kitchener and at his farm at Linwood, 23 miles from Kitchener since bringing his son to Ontario last December, often called at the Bowman home to take Terry home.

"He seemed to get along fine with his father," Mr. Bowman said. "They had fun together and Terry always did what his father asked."

Asked if Mrs. A. W. Ament, with whom Terry lived at Kitchener, was a clean housekeeper who took good care of the child, Mr. Bowman testified amid smiles in the court that she "wouldn't stand for dirt in her house. I had to put paper under my shoes once when I went there," Mrs. Ament is Mrs. Bowman's aunt.

Swell Motor Trip

Mr. Bowman told of a "swell" two-weeks motor trip he and his wife had taken last month to Quebec and the Maritimes with Mr. McKee, Terry and Mr. McKee's two grandchildren, Joel and Andrea Stelle, aged 15 and 11.

Legal aspects of the status of United States court decisions in Canada occupied the court and Mr. Locheed submitted, on the precedent of previous cases, that while there might be "great weight" attached to a foreign court decision at a Canadian hearing, it was not enforceable in Canada and when introduced at a Canadian hearing could be regarded "only as evidence."

Mr. Justice Wells said that if this was so "I am entitled to look at anything to see which custody would be most beneficial to this child." Mr. Brock has objected to the re-introduction of evidence of happenings before previous hearings in the case.

Hotel Manager Given $4,000 By Harry McLean

Cape Town, Sept. 30 —(CP)— Described as "the most wonderful tribute ever paid by a guest to a hotel manager," a credit of £1,000 ($4,000) has been placed in the account of C. D. Fraser by Harry F. McLean, eccentric Canadian contractor, the South African Press Association reported yesterday.

The dispatch said Fraser received word of the "tip" from a bank at Somerset West where McLean had spent four days at a guest farm managed by Fraser.

McLean, the dispatch said, "toured South Africa earlier in the year on a goodwill mission for the Canadian Government."

PLOWS INTO PLANES

Chesapeake, O., Sept. 30—(AP) — A United States Army C-47 plane made an emergency landing Sunday at the Huntingdon airport here and plowed into five private planes, airport manager Carlton Clark reported. Blaming the accident on "inadequate lighting," Clark said none of the 14 military personnel aboard was injured. The plane was en route from Austin, Tex., to Greenville, S.C., when it lost its course.

Third Indian Is Being Charged In Assault Sequel

London, Ont., Sept. 30 —(CP) —The R.C.M.P. divisional office here said yesterday that a third Indian is being charged with assault as the result of a near riot following the Muncey Indian Fair last week in which three R.C.M.P. constables were injured. Two of the injured constables required hospital treatment. The other two Indians arrested shortly after the outbreak are awaiting trial.

50 Organizations Of Women Study Consumer Issues

By KAY REX
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Sept. 30 (CP) —Canada's emblem, the Maple Leaf, has become a symbol of the Canadian Association of Consumers now forming under the guiding hands of the women who kept an eye on consumer problems during the war.

Wearing Maple Leaf tags, the more than 125 delegates from across the Dominion, representative of almost 50 national women's organizations, last night discussed economics with representatives of the Prices Board, Finance Department and Agriculture Department.

A knowledge of prices, standards, planned spending and saving, the home market — this is the kind of background the women of Canada must develop, said Miss Harriet Parsons of Toronto, in summing up the main points on which women consumers, many of whom worked for consumer branches of the Prices Board during the war, are seeking information.

Improvement of Canadian living standards tops the list of objectives already named for the new association. Consumer problems also are of prime concern.

Mrs. R. J. Marshall of Agincourt, Ont., in her address as chairman of the interim committee of the consumers group, warned that Canadian women felt a definite need for a permanent consumer association to help stabilize the economic life of the country.

And while the C.A.C.'s basis was the federated group of existing women's organizations, it would be developed to include eventually all Canadian women.

TOWER OUT TWO FEET

Hamilton, Sept. 30 — (CP) — The tower of Hamilton's city hall may yet rival the ancient Leaning Tower of Pisa. Concern over the tilt recently noticed was first expressed last week when a resident believed the tower to be "out" by three feet. Checked by members of his staff with a plumb line, W. L. McFaul, city engineer, says the measure of the tilt is two feet. He does not believe this to be dangerous.

ARRE TRIO AFTER TILLSONBURG HOLDUP

Gordon McLean, 21, John Sholtanuk, 20, and Elgin Walker, 19, of St. Thomas, are seen as they were taken to Oxford County jail in Woodstock yesterday after their arrest on a charge of holding up two U. S. to ists in a diner at Tillsonburg Saturday m ning. They are also suspected of another ldup in Brantford late Friday night.

Fascist Group in Britain Preaches Anti-Semitism to Gain Support

By MICHAEL O'MARA
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Fascism — cloaked in a Union Jack — is being preached in Britain two years after the fall of Hitler.

Its exponents are members of the British League of Ex-Servicemen, an organization about which few facts can be learned except that its leaders had close ties with Sir Oswald Mosley's British Union of Fascists, outlawed at the outbreak of war. Chief weapon in the league's armory is anti-semitism.

Their rallying cry, "Down With the Jews!" finds some ready listeners in the cramped slum areas of London's East End where the league holds weekly meetings.

Walking through the dense crowd at one of these meetings I watched bystanders — who had probably joined the group out of curiosity — join in the cheering and hand-clapping as the speaker shouted into his microphone:

"We British men and British women will win through in the end and rid Britain of the Jews—Britain for the British."

Many non-extremist observers say the applause emphasizes the danger to the community of the spread of this type of race hatred.

They say the experience of pre-war Germany shows it is not always necessary to preach pure Fascist doctrines in order to create Fascist mobs.

The pattern is to give listeners something to hate. The next move toward power is multiplication of followers, many of whom do not understand where they are going.

The semi-disciplined group I saw forming a phalanx about their speaker, cheering his anti-Jewish references and crying: "We want Mosley," appear to moderate sections of the public to be just as much convinced Fascists and potentially as dangerous as many of the ill-informed Brownshirts who thrust Hitler into power.

Mosley has denied any connection with the present recrudence of Fascism — but league speakers make thinly-veiled league references to "a strong man to lead us in our fight" and chant in unison: "We want Mosley!"

But reception of the Fascist speakers is not always unanimously friendly. Meetings frequently break up in fights with Communist party members or with hot-head Jews provoked into retaliation.

Labor unions and other public groups have been quick to protest to the government that such meetings should be stopped by police action, arguing that Britain's traditional right of free speech has been clearly transgressed by the allegedly seditious nature of the Fascist harangues.

One legal authority has defined sedition in part as any action "to excite ill will between different lasses of the King's subjects." ll will" is a mild phrase for the ti-Jewish feeling fostered by league.

Jolliffe Outlines What C.C.F. Will Do if Elected

Toronto, Sept. 30 (CP) — A "clear statement of what a C.C.F. government in Ontario would do during its first term of office," will be presented in broadcast speeches by E. B. Jolliffe, the Ontario C.C.F. leader said tonight.

"In subsequent broadcasts you will be fully informed, point by point, of the C.C.F. provincial program," said Mr. Jolliffe in a speech prepared for delivery over the Ontario network of the CBC. His speech last night dealt with what he called the present "artificial temporary boom."

Things that "urgently" needed to be done included a serious effort by the Ontario Government to reach agreement with the Dominion about taxation, about jurisdiction over such matters as Labor relations and over standards of social services, pensions and health services.

"The Ontario government should at once take steps to recover control of these natural resources which have been plundered by private enterprise, above all the forests of this province. There's no excuse for further delay in this matter."

At another point he said the Ontario government "should say now that if, as and when federal rent controls are removed, the province will institute a fair and reasonable system of rent control…"

MAIL COURTSHIP ENDS

Guelph, Sept. 30 — (CP) — Courtship by mail ended this week for Bill Kefalas, local restaurant chef, and his fiancee, Miss Diamond Andonopoulis of Astros, Greece. After hiding from Greek guerillas for three months in Athens, she flew to Canada last week and now is busy getting ready for her marriage next month.

Will Continue All Production At Polymer Plant

Sarnia, Sept. 30 (CP) —Production of chemical raw materials at Canada's only synthetic rubber plant will continue "regardless of its future in manufacturing rubber," fifth birthday celebrants of the $40,000,000 Polymer Corporation were told last night.

While the crown-owned company released figures showing steadily mounting production of millions of pounds of rubber, officials and workers heard a message from Reconstruction Minister Howe which was believed a reply to rumors that falling prices of rubber might cause curtailment of Polymer production.

"Polymer has become a source of raw materials for a great and growing organic chemical industry in the Sarnia area," said Mr. Howe's message, read by Deputy Minister V. W. Scully.

"Polymer will continue to manufacture raw materials for those industries regardless of its future in manufacturing rubber. However, provided costs of production can be held at present levels, I believe that Polymer will have a permanent place in the rubber market."

Speaking of the future of the plant, built in 1942 to offset loss of natural rubber resources in the war, president E.J. Brunning of the corporation said: "It is the government's policy to continue operation at Polymer provided the plant is run efficiently."

As for the future "the answer is around you in the many plants which are springing up in the vicinity on which $10,000,000 are being spent by private capital and which rely on the basic raw materials only from this plant."

SLOW GROWTH

Hemlock trees mature in 150 to 200 years.

Mrs. T. H. Jackson, Farlinger's Point, Cornwall, writes: "Super Suds is my helper in all my housework and I find it grand for washing clothes. It makes them so soft and white. Another thing, Super Suds is a safe soap, therefore, it makes the clothes last longer and my coloured things always look gay and bright. Super Suds gets out dirt so easily and quickly and it never hurts my hands."

Thank you, Mrs. Jackson, for your swell letter. You see, Ladies, Super Suds is Concentrated. Super Suds actually gives you far more washing-power … livelier, richer suds, without hard rubbing. And Super Suds costs no more than ordinary washday soap.

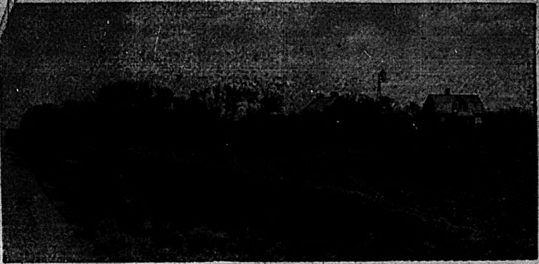
"WIND BREAK ON A SASKATCHEWAN FARM"



One of the most effective controls of dangerous soil drifting in Saskatchewan is the wind break or shelter belt around the farm yard, and at intervals across the fields of prairie farms. The purpose is to break the wind and prevent its lifting the soil in choking clouds. Since the "dry '30's" thousands of prairie farmers have adopted this method, and have grown trees literally by the millions. Above is a typical shelter belt around a farm near Belle Plaine, Sask.

TWO ACQUITTED

"I doubt if I have ever been connected with a case where there was such an obvious lack of evidence against an accused," said Mr. Robinette. "This case is most remarkable for this lack of evidence. There is not a tittle to incriminate Roger Gauthier in Velaire Vandebelt's death.

"According to Crown evidence today, the only time that Roger Gauthier was alone with the girl was at 3 a.m. on June 22 and then only for six or seven minutes. On the evidence of Crown witness Dr. W. L. Robinson, examination of the girl's digestive organs after her body was exhumed, indicated she did not die until 4 a.m. or later . . ."

Mr. Evans said that nowhere had the Crown produced any suggestion of a motive for the murder and at no point in the evidence was Rocco Sisco connected with the girl's death.

Two hours after hearing dismissal of the charges Sisco said last night he was going to get used to his chesterfield again "then I think I'll take a few days off and maybe go duck hunting."

A few blocks away there was a quieter, more emotional celebration as Gauthier's six brothers and three sisters congratulated him. His mother, Mrs. Clara Gauthier, said: "I cannot find words to express my feelings."

Is Japan Still a Menace?

Is Japan safe for democracy? Japan's whole future depends on the correct answer to that question. General MacArthur and his staff have made an excellent job—as far as it goes. But men who led their troops with courage in the field are not necessarily good peacetime administrators. Their training, has not included economic and social problems which will decide whether Japan is or is not to become a democracy in anything but name. General MacArthur wants to go home, and when the Americans go, everybody will go—except the Communists. What will be the result? Read The Standard this week—5 big sections! At her fingertips . . .

EVERY LONG DISTANCE operator has every telephone literally at her fingertips. Through her switchboard and over a network of lines and cables, she reaches out across the country — or across the world!

Every month we are adding some 10,000 new telephones, catching up with unfilled orders as materials become available. More telephones mean more calls — both local and long distance. To-day our operators are handling more long distance traffic than ever before.

Our aim is continuous improvement — better service. More service plus better service — and always at the lowest possible cost — means greater value to every telephone user.

"WHOLE LIFE" INSURANCE

SOME PEOPLE mistakenly look upon a "Whole Life" policy as a "die-to-win" proposition.

✡ It is true that the policy is payable at death—and premiums are calculated on that assumption (although some "life" policies mature at age 85, if living).

✡ However, the assured has the right to stop paying premiums at any time. Depending upon the period over which premiums have been paid, there will be cash values if desired, or else a "paid-up" policy (for a reduced amount) payable at death but not requiring any additional premiums.

✡ Many men, however, who wish lifetime insurance protection also feel that they want to stop paying premiums before their best earning years are over. "Life" policies, therefore, are available with slightly higher annual premiums—but with the premium-paying period limited to 15, 20, 25 or 30 years, after date of issue, or stopping at age 60 or 65 if desired. These are popularly known as "Limited-Payment" policies.

✡ For the young man contemplating getting married, or for the young husband, or father—a "life" policy enables him to provide maximum insurance benefits to his family no matter how long he lives or how soon some unexpected event or illness takes him "out of the picture".

✡ Do not confuse "Whole Life" policies with "Endowments". Each serves its own purpose admirably . . . We shall be glad to tell you more about "lifetime protection" for your family's interest in your living earning power.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Akoolap Oxhead has skidded a long way from facts in his bids. He likes what he likes. But he can offer no proof of the correctness of his likes. There are times when he must be reminded.

We are discussing this pair:

SOUTH
♠K Q 10 6 4 3 2
♥K 8
♦7 5 3
♣7

NORTH
♠8 7
♥A 7 4
♦A Q J
♣A K 6 5 2

North opens with a club and south responds with a spade. This takeout to a new suit is forcing for one round. North must not pass. South will get a chance to bid again. So says rule.

When south responds with a bid of any kind, he admitted having more than two tricks. Among his tricks he admitted having at least two high cards. This is what every non-jump responding bid admits.

Bids follow the order of choice in T-A-N; takeout first, assist next, no-trump last. No other biddable suit has north. Nor is his club suit rebiddable. In other words, he has no takeout.

His two spades are not adequate support for an assist of a suit that was bid only once by his partner. The only type of bid left is no-trump. His second bid is thus one no-trump; a non-jump, non-force.

Why not jump to two no-trump in north? Such a jump is forcing to game. It would say he saw nine no-trump tricks needed for a game at no-trump. Does he see that many?

A no-trump is any high card, an ace or king or queen. He has five. Partner has promised no more than two so far. This tells us that a jump to two no-trump in this spot is not correct.

Why is his club suit not rebiddable? One honor in addition to a biddable suit makes it rebiddable. Take away one of his club honors. You then see that the balance of his clubs would not be biddable.

If they have a game in something will they stop too soon? No. If south has nothing more, they have no game. If he has more, he is in position to bid again. Any argument?

Sumurai Sabre Given to R.M.C.

Kingston — Too valuable to beat into a plowshare, a fine old Japanese sabre captured by the Americans has been presented to the Royal Military College at Kingston.

The sword is a Samurai sabre made in the Kenmu area, 614 years ago. Its water-tempered steel blade was forged by Kunimitsu, famed Japanese swordmaster of that time.

Last week, General Robert L. Eichelberger, Commanding General 8th U. S. Army, Yokohama, Japan, presented the relic to the officers and cadets of R.M.C. during an investiture at the American Embassy in Ottawa. In the absence of General Eichelberger who is still in Japan, the sword was turned over to the College by Colonel R. E. S. Williamson, U. S. Military Attache to the U. S. Embassy in Canada. Lieutenant-General Charles Foulkes, Chief of the General Staff, Canadian Army, received the sword for the Commandant, R.M.C.

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Sept. 30 —(AP)— Ingrid Bergman, who now is achieving her life's ambition by filming Joan of Arc, is wondering if Joan will become her "Frankenstein's Monster."

Two French actresses made film versions of the Saint. Neither made another film since that one. Bergman, like most actresses, is a little superstitious. But her worries about the future are based mainly on whether she will have enthusiasm for future stories.

Bergman has been living the role of Joan for almost a year. She is probably one of the best informed people on the French Saint, barring a few Ph. D. S. I watched her as actors, trying out for parts, came on the set.

"Oh, he is the Dauphin," she shouted as Jose Ferrer approached.

She has studied the characters in the story so carefully that she knows what they should look like.

Her associates on the film are impressed with her Joan-like qualities. During difficult moments in preparing the film, (it will cost more than $4,000,000) Bergman would up and quote from Joan. Gets a little spooky.

Fortunately Miss B. has but one definite commitment when she completes this film. That is "Under Capricorn," to be made for Alfred Hitchcock. No other film stories have aroused her interest. "Joan" is too much competition. And as for plays, she wants to return to Broadway soon. But again, no play has caught her fancy — except "Joan."

"And if I don't find one," Ingrid laughed, "I'll go back and play Joan again — but in a couple of years." Otherwise, Bergman on film would be competing with Bergman on Stage.

Ten Second Interview.

"Son of Love" (MGM) is a spirited treatment of the lives of Schumann and Brahms, with a little Liszt thrown in. Although sometimes tedious, the film teaches several dramatic heights, aided by credible performances of Katharine Hepburn, Paul Henreid and Robert Walker. The piano playing, enough for three pictures, is ably handled behind scenes by Artur Rubinstein.

Plan Increase Certain Freight, Express Rates

Ottawa, Spet. 30 —(CP)— The Railway Association of Canada announced before the Board of Transport Commissioners yesterday that it was planned to increase certain freight and express rates by 30 per cent, effective Nov. 1, as a result of the recent freeing of transportation rates from price control.

The announcement was made as the board resumed hearing of a general application by the railroads for a 30-per cent increase in freight rates. The hearing has been adjourned since mid-August.

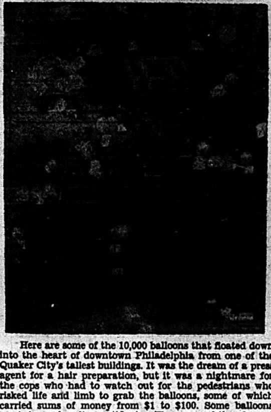
BALLOONS BRING PENNIES FROM HEAVEN



Here are some of the 10,000 balloons that floated down into the heart of downtown Philadelphia from one of the Quaker City's tallest buildings. It was the dream of a press agent for a hair preparation, but it was a nightmare for the cops who had to watch out for the pedestrians who risked life and limb to grab the balloons, some of which carried sums of money from $1 to $100. Some balloons carried merchandise certificates. The name of the plugged preparation escapes us at the moment.

Terms Will Not Be Disclosed Until Vote Taken

Ottawa, Sept. 30 — (CP) — Terms under which Newfoundland might join Canada as a 10th province will not be disclosed until after the result of the Federal by-election in the Brunswick constituency of York-Sunbury is known.

This was disclosed yesterday by External Affairs Minister St. Laurent after the final meeting in discussions between Dominion and Newfoundland representatives which began June 25. The Newfoundland delegation left today and was due to meet Oct. 10 with the National Convention elected last year to recommend the future form or forms of government for the commission controlled island.

F. Gordon Bradley, chairman of the Newfoundland delegation, said that no matter when the terms are made known it will not be possible to submit a referendum to the people of the island before next May.

Many of the island's isolated ports are not reachable until spring and the people in Labrador also have to be consulted in the referendum. And getting to people in the 110,000 square miles of Labrador territory, which leans on Quebec like a spiralled iceberg, is not easy.

The British North America Act made provision in 1867 for Newfoundland's entry as a province. As a result all that is needed now is passage of an order-in-council by the United Kingdom Government to make the union complete..

However, the whole question hinges on the vote of the Newfoundland people in the referendum.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was looking at the headlines on his way to the sporting page and whisseling to himself, and ma said, I wish you'd stop that whisseling, William. Really I meen really, it's enough to get on the nerves of a frozen statue, she said.

Now that does cast me down, pop said. I remember, in the erly days of our mutual pardenship, how you used to tell me that the brightest spot of your day was when you heard me come whisseling homeward up the street, he said, and ma said, Well naturelly, that was different, I meen you used to whissel all the latest tunes. It wasn't just a case of sitting there endlessly blowing. Where oh where has my little dog gone till a sensitive person could screem. Anyway, how can you reed he paper and whissel at the same time for land sakes? she said.

It's not easy, but I can manage it if I concentrate, pop said, and ma said, Dont concentrate for my sake.

And she sneezed a small sneeze, saying, Goodness, I seem to be sneezing a lot lately.

That's what I was thinking, pop said. Why dont you take an aspirin or something? There's no sense going around sneezing your head off without doing something about it, he said, and ma said, William Potts, I remember the time when you insisted that I had the cutest sneeze you ever heard, and it reminded you of a humming berd.

Yee gods, my dear, we both must be older or something, but I assure you I'm fonder of you that ever, even if you are tired of me and my perpetual whisseling, pop said, and ma said, Why you crazy thing, I wouldn't exchange you for a whole regiment of ignorant young whisselers.

Thank you, my dear, what do you say we go to a movie? pop said, and ma said, I'd just love to.

The result being they went, holding hands going down the street.

Literary Litter Upsets Librarian

Montreal (CP) —If environment really has any influence on character, four well-educated kittens, whose mother wished to give them an early start, should develop into Einsteins of the feline world.

Mrs. Sybil Cadloff, librarian at the Young Men's Hebrew Association was quietly attending to her various duties when Mabel the Main Street Terror walked into the room with great fixity of purpose. Recognizing that Mabel was not a member of the institution Mrs. Cadloff expressed feelings with a violent "Shoo!"

Mabel of course, paid no attention to this and calmly walked around the desk and deposited herself in one of the shelves between "Gentlemen's Agreement" and "How to Raise the Young."

Mrs. Cadloff, unaware of what was about to take place, gave out with another 'Shoo!' It was then that nature smiled, the blessed event took place and Mrs. Cadloff left the literary precincts on the double.

At the latest reports, Mabel, the kittens and Mrs. Cadloff are all doing nicely.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor.

Junior hockey players who are requested to report to the Memorial Arena tonight at seven o'clock should bring all equipment in their possession with them. The Rockets management has not sufficient to dress the large crowd of youngsters expected to turn up for the "look over" session and requests the youngsters to bring all hockey gear with them.

* * *

With the squad cut from 62 to 32 players following an extensive weeding out process by Manager Max Kaminsky and Coach Wally Kilrea, the Philadelphia Rockets yesterday launched into serious training routine. The squad has shown much improvement over their performance of a week ago and according to Coach Kilrea are rounding into shape. "They are improving each day and by the time the opening date with Washington roles around they should be in first class condition," he said.

* * *

Manager Max Kaminsky announced today the sale of Bobby Walton, right winger, to the Washington Lions. Alex Motter, veteran Detroit Red Wings and Indianapolis defenceman, has announced his intention of reporting to the Rockets and is expected here today. He will bolster a defence that already looks strong in every combination.

* * *

Ralph Buchanan, who scored 66 goals with the San Francisco Seals last season, was the first rookie to sign a contract. Manager Kaminsky got his signature today. Eddie Bush has also come to terms with the team and others are expected to follow suit shortly. Lou Trudel, purchased by the Rockets, will not report here but will likely return to the Springfield Indians.

* * *

Ten junior players were sent to the Rockets farm team in Galt, Ont., and some six or seven are expected to remain with the Junior "A" squad of that city.

* * *

Alex Motter is a name well-known to National Hockey League fans hereabouts. The husky defenceman started his pro career with the Boston Cubs of the Canadian American Hockey League way back in 1934-35 and after two years with that club went to the Boston Bruins. He played the next year with the Rossmen and spent the next two seasons with the Providence Reds. He played six years with Jolly Jawn Adams doughty Red Wings and two years with the Indianapolis team before going to Cleveland in the 1945-46 season. He spent three years in the United States Army. The addition of Motter to the Rockets defence gives the gold and blue team what appears to be one of the strongest blue line aggregations in the American League.

* * *

Today and tomorrow Coach Kilrea will concentrate his attention on the various attacking and defence combinations in preparation for the Washington Lions game at the Arena tomorrow night. The Lions recently acquired two Toronto Maple Leaf rookies, and will bring a strong aggregation here for the tilt. The probable starting line for Washington will be: goal, Duncan; defence, Archambeault and Wilson; centre, Schultz; wings, Clumon and Bob Walton, former Rocket.

* * *

Mr. Peter Tyrrell, manager of the Philadelphia arena, Peter Tyrrell, Jr., and others arrived in the city on Sunday to look over the Rockets squad and will remain for the Rockets - Lions game tomorrow night.

* * *

With Mr. Tyrrell came Mr. Harry "Popeye" McNamee, well-known Philadelphia business man, and a dyed-in-the-wool Rockets fan. "Popeye" stole a march on his fellows in the Quaker City by motoring to this city to get the first eyeful of the 1947-48 edition of the squad. But he had other motives. He heard that four or five aspirants were after the job of the team's mascot, so armed with a suit of pyjamas that would encase an elephant, one suit of clothes, a toothbrush and a lot of optimism, he stowed away in the Tyrrell car, and if he had not been nearly suffocated while riding in a spare inner tube, he would have arrived here unknown to his friends.

* * *

By judicious manipulation of the valve the Tyrrells extricated "Popeye" from his precarious position, although had he known it he could have crawled to safety through a puncture in the tube. Incidentally "Popeye" is minus his synthetic molars, bicuspids, and wisdoms, and anyone possessing a spare set, size forty-two, who would be willing to loan them for a day or so, will earn the undying gratitude of this personable gentleman from the City of Brotherly Love. P. S.: Bubble gum attachments preferred, but not essential.

The party was in full swing and one of the lushes, who had imbibed a bit freely, decided to go home. His host called a taxi, and after a five-minute wait, the lush decided to go look for it.

He staggered a bit as he wended his way down Bridge Street. A sleek car sped up the hill and pulled to a halt as the lush hailed it. He climbed into the back seat and muttered a bit thickly, "42 So-and-So Street." The car moved off. In a few minutes it jerked to a sudden stop. The lush looked out the window and his eyes opened wide. "Shay," he said, "I don't live here."

"No, bud," murmured the driver, "we want to entertain you for a while."

He did. The lush had mistakenly hailed a police cruiser.

Yep—you guessed it. Ten and costs.

ROCKY GRAZIANO HAS BEEN BANNED FROM ILLINOIS

Boxing Commission Rules Dishonorably Discharged Soldiers . Banned From Boxing

Chicago, Sept. 30 —(AP) — Middleweight champion Rocky Graziano already barred from boxing in New York States, has been banned from fighting in Illinois as well.

The Illinois Athletic Commission yesterday barred dishonorably discharged service men from boxing in Illinois in an order which Roy D. Keehn, commission member, said referred to Graziano.

Keehn said the commission had accepted the United States War Department's record of Pte. Rocco Barbella as that of Graziano. That record showed Barbella was convicted sentenced and dishonorably discharged from the United States Army on a charge of being absent without leave in 1942.

"Graziano's application for a permit to fight Tony Zale here last July was signed by both names — Rocco Barbella and Rocky Graziano," Keehn declared..

Graziano who lives in Brooklyn, could not be reached for comment, but his manager, Irving Cohen, said in New York that he had in his possession a letter from John D. From, Assistant Adjutant at the Leavenworth prison, which he said stated that Barbella's dishonorable discharge was "suspended."

The War Department said records showed that Pte. Rocco Barbella was tried by court martial in 1942 and was convicted on a charge of being A.W.L. The record showed Barbella was sentenced to one year in Leavenworth and was given a dishonorable discharge after serving 10 months of the sentence.

Graziano is barred from boxing in New York for alleged failure to report an attempt to bribe him to "throw" a fight.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

New York Sept. 30 (AP)—Although the Yankees are lopsided favorites to win the World Series Branch Rickey insists this is one Brooklyn team that isn't beaten before it starts ... Branch talks about "quiet confidence" and at the same time Leo Durocher, in his intmate circle, hints that Billy Herman's trouble at Pittsburgh was that he thought he could manage a ball club and still be a nice guy. ... That's what you'd call opposite viewpoints ... Now that Joe Cronin has moved up to the Red Sox front office and Joe (Retired) McCarthy has signed as manager American Leaguers are looking toward Cleveland for the next big change ... one tipster reports: "If Lou Boudreau moves it won't be up to the front office." ..... and, incidentally, whatever became of the Boudreau-Dyer shift of stopping Ted Williams?"

Three of a Kind

Joe McCarthy, already listed as the only major league manager ever to win championships in both leagues, might conceivably become the second to win pennants with three different clubs ... Bill McKechnie did it in Pittsburgh, St. Louis and Cincinnati ... McCarthy takes over the remains of the 1946 champions, who have picked up some reinforcements and might win again with added strength in a few more spots.

..Cleaning the Cuff

If Bucky Harris sticks to Spec Shea as today's opening pitcher, it is certain to be a duel between World Series "freshmen." None of the possible Brooklyn flingers ever has been in the big show... Story from Brooklyn is that the Bums voted Durocher a full share of the World Series dough after Happy Chandler gave his approval.

N.H.L. Puck Chatter

(By The Canadian Press)

Mindful maybe of Frankie Boucher's declaration that the Canadiens are washed up as perennial National Hockey League front-runners, Coach Dick Irvin decreed double-time for his charges. Starting today, the Habitants will practice twice daily in the Montreal Forum—at 9 a.m. and 4 p.m.

Irvin, who has yet to show evidence that he takes Boucher's crack seriously said he wants the squad to be in top shape for their first exhibition game Saturday against the American League Buffalo Bisons. Incidentally, Bisons Coach Leroy Goldsworthy expects to mold a top A.H.L. contender from his present players and future Canadiens discards.

The Bisons already have such former Canadiens as Leo Lamoureux, Mike McMahon, Paul Bibeault, Doug Lewis and George Pargeter in lineup.

On the same day that the Boston Bruins reported to training for their first practice, the Bruins management announced that no season tickets are available for new applicants because 97 per cent of last season's holders renewed subcription.

Manager Art Ross headed the Bruins who reported in at Hershey, Pa., yesterdaw and went through some preliminary ice drills yesterday to shake out the kinks. The squad was minus a few of last eaon's plyayers, including Bill Cowley, Bobby Bauer, Eddie Barry, Bill Shill and Terry Reardon. The latter coaching Providence Reds in the American League.

Some of the Red Wings railbirds had criticism for Eddie Bruneteau, Jim Conacher and Billy Taylor for failure to backcheck in recent workouts at Detroit's Olympia. A lot of the older veterans are really hustling, though, with a whole horde of good-looking rookie prospects trying ti take their jobs.

The injury bugaboo hit Toronto Maple Leafs again yesterday at St. Catharines. A body-check by bulky Garth Boesch put veteran Don Metz on the sidelines for a few days with a twisted ankle. Ted Kennedy, injured last week, is expected to be released from hospital Wednesday. The Leafs other cripple, Gus Mortson, who reported to camp with core neck muscles, got into action yesterday, however .

Dodgers Scared Over Catcher Bruce Edwards' Bruised Right Hand as Stage Set For Opener

Dodgers Deep in All Departments But Dangerously Thin in Catching

By JACK HAND

New York, Sept. 30 — (AP)— Lingering doubt about the condition of Dodger catcher Bruce Edwards is the only disturbing note on the World Series front today as Ralph Branca of Brooklyn and Frank (Spec) Shea of the New York Yankees brace themselves for their tests in the Yankee Stadium opener.

Edwards definitely will start but there is deep concern in the Dodger clubhouse over the stocky catcher's badly bruised right hand. As deep as the Brooks are in all other positions, they are dangerously thin in catching. Back of Edwards they have Bobby Bragan, rusty from disuse after catching only a half dozen complete games, and rookie Gil Hodges.

Shortly before the 1:30 p. m. EST starting time, manager Burt Shotton is expected to confirm Branca's selection by sending him out to warm up before some 73,000 customers. If there should be a last-minute shift after a Shotton conference with Branch Rickey the honors would go to Vic Lombardi, crafty little left-hander.

Excused for Cold

Second baseman Eddie Stanky, excused because of a cold, and Shotton, attending a pre-series conference with Commissioner A. B. Chandler and the umpires, were absent during the final workout. All the Yankees reported in ship shape.

Shotton is following his season-long formula by starting Gene Hermanski in left field against a right-handed pitcher, Shea.

Jackie Robinson at first, Stanky at second, Pee Wee Reese at short and Spider Jorgensen at third will be the Dodger inner defence with Hermanski in left, Pete Reiser in centre and Dixie Walker, the elder statesman, in right field.

Harris announced his lineup Sunday night, reserving the privilege of shifting batting positions of catcher Larry (Yogi) Berra from third to eighth with left fielder Johnny Lindell moving to sixth and shortstop Phil Rizzuto seventh in case a lefty goes for Brooklyn. The infield will have George McQuinn at first, George Stirnweiss at second, Rizzuto at short and Bill Johnson at third. Lindell will be in left, Joe DiMaggio in centre and Tommy Henrich in right.

The weather man predicted showers in the morning and clearing in the afternoon.

MOST OF SMART MONEY WILL BE ON ARTHUR KING

Chocolate Soldier Will Meet Joey Bagnato in Rubber Match Wednesday

Toronto, Sept. 30 (CP) — In their first two meetings Li'l Arthur King and Joey Bagnato grossed $29,400 for promoter Frank Tunney and there's good reason to believe the lightweights will push that total well above the $40,000 mark when they clash in a "rubber" eight-round bout here Wednesday night.

Bagnato, in the twilight of his fight career, has no world championship hopes such as Li'l Arthur, but he's smart enough to know that if he can duplicate his showing in the first meeting between the pair, there's at least two more good purses in sight for him. King was lucky to finish on his feet in the first bout but he decisioned Joey handily in the return engagement.

Various excuses for managerial worries to poor condition were advanced as the season for Bagnato's showing in the second go but he's hitting so fiercely in training camp now that the Italian community is giving him three cheers for every move he makes in the gym.

But most of the smart money will be on the chocolate dropper, still a few months away from the age when he can legally vote and sign contracts for himself, and more than 10 years younger than his opponent. If King wins there doesn't appear to be anything in his way to a return bout with another Negro Danny Webb of Montreal, Dominion lightweight champion.

What may prove the major test in the career of London's promising young middleweight, Bob Flanagan, finds him pitted against Detroit's Bobby Dawn in an eight-round affair. Many of the fans who saw the American Negro in a stirring draw with Cliff Beckett of Sudbury here, will be back to see him in action.

STILL WORRIED ABOUT WEAKNESS BEHIND THE LINE

Johnny Gottselig of Black Hawks Will Have Four New Rookies in Action

Regina, Sept. 30 (CP)—Still worried about weakness behind the blue line, Coach Johnny Gottselig last night announced starting lineups for this week's two exhibition games between Chicago Black-Hawks — self-styled question mark club of the National Hockey League—and their Kansas City farm club.

Gossip around the Hawk training camp suggested the same roster would — barring unexpected developments—open the season for the Hawks, who finished last year in the N.H.L. cellar.

Manager Bill Tobin is banking heavily on rookie talent this year and four newcomers—Doug Baldwin of Winnipeg, who came up through the Toronto Maple Leafs farm network, Metro Prystal from Moose Jaw Canucks, Cy Thomas of Edmonton Flyers and Art Michaluk of Calgary Stampeders—will start the season with the Hawks.

The fast-stepping forward line of Bill Mosienko and the brothers Bentley, Max and Doug, which accounted for 172 scoring points last season, is back in harness.

George Gee, Adam Brown and Alex Kaleta are teamed for the second line.

Rookies Prystal and Thomas will play with right winger Red Hamill on the third line and Dick Butler, up from Kansas City Plamore, is utility forward.

Emil (the Cat) Francis will spend his second N.H.L. season in the Chicago nets.

Johnny Mariucci, Hawks' bad boy who served 110 minutes in the penalty box last year, captains the squad and is back on defence with Baldwin, Michaluk, Bill Gadsby and Ralph Nattrass.

Montreal, Sept. 30 — (CP) — This, for veteran hockey man Toe Blake is the "big year" — season No. 13 under hockey's big top.

The captain of Montreal Canadiens signed his contract last Saturday, on terms similar to those of last year and Paul (Le Canada) Parizeau reports that all-time record of points registered by Bill Cowley, famous centre who retired at the end of last season from Boston Bruins.

Blake has no easy task. Cowley scored 195 goals and 353 assists for 548 points while Blake, during his 12 seasons in the National Hockey League has 503 points made up of 226 goals and 277 assists. That leaves him 45 to go this season.

Not many will argue that Blake has more than the current season left in the big time but Parizeau says that after watching hurrying Hector in training it seems obvious that he has at least one more good season left in him.

All but six of last year's Canadiens stars have signed up again. Those still to come are Emile Bouchard, Maurice (The Rocket) Richard, Billy Reay, Kenny Mosdell, Leo Gravelle and Bob Fillion.

Gravelle's case seems doubtful. He didn't show up as well as expected during the pre-season practices. And at least a couple of right wingers among the rookies seem to have a good chance to jump in the majors. Floyd Curry and Jacques Locas.

EXPERTS PICK YANKS TO WIN

New York, Sept. 30 — (AP) — An Associated Press poll of 60 of the nation's baseball experts picks the New York Yankees as a tremendous favorite to defeat the Brooklyn Dodgers in the World Series which opens at the Yankee Stadium today.

On the three score writers polled, 43 selected the Yanks to win, ranging from four straight to a long drawn out set of seven games. Only 17 selected the National League champions.

The consensus favored the Yankees in six games, 25 writers giving the Dodgers but two victories. Only one thought the Yankees would sweep the series in the shortest possible time of four games. Eleven favored five games and three figured the Yankees in seven.

Of the 17 Dodger votes, 10 expected the series to go six games and seven predicted the limit of seven.

STALLED BY WEATHER

Syracuse, N.Y. Sept. 30 (AP)— The fast-moving Syracuse Chiefs of the International League, stalled by threatening weather last night, will attempt to make it three in a row over Milwaukee Brewers of the American Association tonight in the little World Series.

World Series Notes

By TED SMITS

New York, Sept. 30 (AP) — Even before the disorder is created, scores of men have been marshalled to clean up Yankee Stadium and Ebbets Field for the World Series.

At Ebbets Field there will be 120 ushers instead of 40, 50 special police instead of 20, with even greater increases for the Stadium.

Guy Lombardo, speed boat racer and orchestra leader, born at London Ont., is bringing his band for the incidental music. Helen Jepson, the opera soprano, is down to sing the Star Spangled Banner to open the proceedings.

Larry MacPhail is the first man to be president of pennant winners in both leagues. Now president of the Yankees, he was formerly president of the Dodger Club.

All the Yankees needed to do is step on the field to set a World Series record. This is their 15th series. Next on the list come the New York Giants with 12.

MEN OF VISION

Completed in 1902, the Pacific Cable from Canada to Australasia formed a new and vital link between the Dominions. Father of this great achievement, Sir Sandford Fleming devoted a long life to Canada's development ... as engineer-in-chief of the Canadian Pacific Railway, pioneer of standard time, scientist, author and Chancellor of Queen's University.

In 1904 FLEMING said:
"Build up Canada"

In 1622 CALVERT said:
"I came to build"

THREE HUNDRED YEARS ago Calvert, Man of Vision and founder of colonies in the New World, said: "My resolution is to build ... and prepare for the future."

In 1622 Calvert advised his early settlers to "Be partners. It is a good country ... join in the good of it." Well may Calvert have foreseen Canada's great promise when he wrote: "Preserve unity ... the land will yield us many things."

Famous 17th century English Statesman and Secretary of State to King James I, Calvert's ideals of unity have been shared by all men of vision since Calvert's time three centuries ago. Today ... every Canadian can be a man of vision, and "the land will yield us many things."

The full measure of our stature as a nation depends upon unity of purpose. There is only one Canada for clear-headed Canadians.

ROSE OF SOLEDAD

By George E. Holt

CHAPTER 2.

"Not only the Caterpillar Club," he said aloud, "but some other sort of society. In which I was the goat. "Don't know what to call it," he reflected, "but it's certainly not mighty like a rose." In which he was very much mistaken as time was to reveal to him. "The Young - Men - Who-Go-Around-Beating-Girls," he suggested to himself. "No. Too Isjunny. The Squaw-Beaters; how's that? Nope; too modern. The Girl-Spankers; I guess that's about it," he thought ruefully. "Or the Skirt-Paddlers. But regardless of all that," why didn't my neck get tangled up in those chute ropes Shane O'Hara coming three thousand miles to fall into a tree and beat a California farmerette. That is good. That is very good. Eutah Place would be delighted. To say nothing of Charles street."

His tobacco tasted vile, and he shot the cigaret into the golden dust. He leaned back, closed his eyes against the bright California day. His head was full of a medley of thoughts, connected and unconnected. But most vivid and disturbing of all was the memory of a squirming little figure tucked under his left arm; of a heavy gloved hand descending with the forle of irritation upon the seat of a pair of blue denim pants.

O gosh!

Now, young men from Baltimore do not become entangled in elm trees in Southern California without some reason.

It had not been on Shane O'Hara's agenda at all to become entangled in an elm tree in Southern California in spite of the claims of the San Diego or Los Angeles ,chambers of commerce as to the advantage of California elm trees over all others as elm trees in which to become entangled. Nor had he been so overcome by the beauty of the California cista, nor the salubriousness of the California climate, nor, the appeal of Californian progressiveness, that he had set fire to his ship in mid-air, and descended by 'chute to an elm tree, saying. "After this, there is nowhere else to go."

No; the old crate had just given out, as he knew it would give out some day and cause him to go overside. And he had flown by somewhat easy stages from the city on the Chesapeake to the land of the setting sun neither because of scenery climate or progres, but because, the O'Hara fortune having gone flooey, he had either to content himself in a small stucco house in one of Baltimore's uninspiring suburbs, and probably get a job as bond salesman—if bonds again were saleable—or fly west and locate and take over the old and abandoned ranch which had been the one piece of real property standing in his name—a gift from his father albeit a laughing one, when he had cast his first vote.

Many things had changed in these United States in the three years since then. Yea, verily!

When Shane cast his first vote, the O'Hara family of Baltimore—Mrs. O'Hara was of Calvert stock, which leaves nothing to be said—was sitting pretty on the top of a large and juicy fortune. Three years later Frederick O'Hara was dead the fortune wiped out. There was a life endowment for the widow which would enable her to exist in some degree of comfort, but no luxury; there was another small endowment for Betty O'Hara, Shane's younger sister, which would see her through college. There was not a dollar for Shane; nothing for him but the old California ranch a father's half-jesting gift. which he had never seen, knew nothing about.

Wherefore Shane O'Hara, having learned to fly his own plane in times of prosperity turned his magnificent biplane into the family jackpot bought a rusty old crate which he had once owned, and pointed its nose toward the blue Pacific.

A certain Miss Billie Porter of Eutah Place. had bidden him farewell without much enthusiasm. Wealth. or the lack of it, causes a variation of farewells as well as greetings. Anyhow, they had not been formally engaged—just an understanding. Fortunately. For Miss Porter was ambitious.

Well Baltimore was behind him now, long ago and far away, and although there really were plenty of busses running. Shane O'Hara had a feeling that some interesting things might happen on a California ranch. Things had happened already, for that matter. Things that never had happened before, He assuredly had not ever spanked Miss Billie Porter of Enutah Place. Nor had he ever fallen into a Maryland elm tree and had a brash girl whistle "Little Birdie" to him. Maybe, after all, there was something in this Los Angeles chamber of commerce stuff. Although, come to think of it, his ranch was in San Diego county, not Los Angeles. Somewhere near—what was the name of the place?—San—San Feliz: that was it. San Feliz, Saint Happy? or Happy Saint? He didn't know. Odd names they had for things out here. Los Angeles—the Angels. Hmh! Not according to the Times or Examiner. San Diego: St. James. Capistrano—what did that mean?

Back to the ranch. How big was a ranch in California? A real ranch. His own was only a thousand acres. He had sure crossed a lot of thousand acres on the way west ,even since he'd been inside the California state limits. California was a whopper of a state. no doubt about that. And a thousand acres? Hadn't he read of some of the great ranches, the Spanish grants as they were called which ran into the hundreds of thousands? Probably his ranch would be somebody's back garden.

I was time he decided, to take and go forth and discover where he was.

He arose and made his way toward the marching line of eucalypti, behind which his tormentor had gone, passed them, climbed the easy grade to the big white house with its arches and its red tiled roofs and its crimson bougainvillea against the walls. And to an old white,-bearded man sitting at ease in a great cane chair, smoking a pipe. A huge man, huge even sitting, whose faded blue eyes twinkled a little as they watched the khaki-clad figure climbing the path, swinging his goggles by their ribbon. A man with a beard like an Italian doge....

Age and Youth took stock of each other for a suspended moment.

Age saw Youth, a tall figure in enveloping flying togs, a foot set tentatively upon the bottom step. A brown-faced, clear-eyed youth. Age guessed at two dozen summers ,and guessed rightly. The brown eyes were unfaltering, but in them was hesitation now. The lips were as ,they should be, owning neither to the fullness which is indicative of a sensuous trend, nor that thinness which is selfish, though often strong. Yes, Age thought, it was a good example of the modern type—the generation of Youth born to wings.

Obvious? Again the sharp blue eyes gave the lie to that thought. But imperturbable.

Shane O'Hara turned his head and shoulders to glance backward at the ancient elm tree. Yes it was plainly visible from where the old man sat. But not the ground beneath it. Oblivious? Never. With the calm of old age, this venerable one had sat rocking slightly in his chair, watching the meteor path of the stricken plane. the slow drift earthward of the 'chute with its human burden, the stranding of the aviator in the branches of the elm. Seeing these things, which no previous generation could have seen, he still sat in his rocking chair and imperturbably smoked his pipe, his old hands combing his white beard or resting listlessly upon the chair arms.

Imperturbable.

Shane O'Hara did not realize that because of the great United States Naval Base at San Diego, areoplanes were as common as flies to the walking people of Southern California; nor that few indeed had not seen a plane streaking downward in a plume of smoke; or that almost none existed beneath the mushroom of a prachute. The keen blue eyes had seen all that had happened—or almost all. Had seen no reason, once the lucky flyer was astride a bough, to lay aside pipe and easy chair and rush wildly about. The young man would climb down out of the tree, make his way to the house, and there, no doubt, as others had done,, would desire to telephone headquarters where he was and what he intended to do about it—and then would have to be told that to be without a 'phone was one luxury upon which they insisted.

AS FORMER PRINCIPAL OF McGILL UNIVERSITY IS HONORED

Convoy of Sugar Proceeds After Clash in Paris

Paris, Sept. 30 (CP) — Agence France-Presse reported today from Verdun that an army truck convoy loaded with 400 tons of sugar destined for the French zone in Germany had left the city this morning after a new clash between police and civilian pickets trying to halt the shipment.

Six policemen and one civilian had been injured in similar scuffling yesterday when demonstrators erected barricades in an effort to prevent movement of the 142-truck convoy.

The disorders, which Premier Ramadier's Socialist party termed a Communist manoeuvre to embarrass the government, began a week ago when a crowd halted two bargeloads of sugar intended for Germany.

The sugar came originally from the United States and was refined in France, but the demonstrators maintained it was a French sugar and bitterly opposed its distribution in Germany.

Among demonstrators were miners from Bouligny who went into the town after the weekend clashes. Nearly 4,000 Communist led civilians were estimated to have manned the barricades which were built of vehicles, wine casks and tree trunks.

Miners armed with mining tools and townspeople who attacked the guard round the docks last night were beaten off with tear gas.

Nazi Commentator Gets 9-Year Term, Banned as Editor

Nuernberg, Sept. 30 (Reuters) — The German Denazification Court here today sentenced Hans Fritsche, Hitler's ace wartime radio commentator, to nine years imprisonment in a labor camp, after rejecting his appeal against a previous sentence of nine years' imprisonment already passed on him.

The court directed that its sentence would take into account the time that Fritsche had already spent in prison under the original sentence.

The German court classified him as a "main culprit" and banned him for life from acting as an editor or radio commentator. It further directed that his property be confiscated apart from an amount necessary for his bare existence.

Mrs. M. Clair To Stand Trial

Toronto, Sept. 30 — (CP) — Mrs. Margaret Clair, 30, of nearby Concord, yesterday was committed for trial on a manslaughter charge arising from the fatal shooting of Cecil J. Hemmings of Welland, Ont., during a party at Maple near here Sept. 12.

Hemmings, who worked as watchman at a gravel pit at Maple and held the party in the cottage he occupied near the pit, was wounded by a blast from a shotgun kept in the cabin for use in hunting foxes. He died in hospital several hours later.

Evidence was that Mrs. Clair found the shotgun during the drinking party, waved it about the cabin kitchen at the five other guests and shouted, "Bang, bang, bang."

She was told to put the weapon away and did so. Then she brought it out again.

Police said that in a statement to them Mrs. Clair said she intended to point the gun at Hemmings and another man and, tell them to "stick 'em up." As she carried the gun into the kitchen, it discharged, police quoted her as telling them. Hemmings fell to the floor, shot through the chest.

10,000 ATTEND MASS

Auriesville, N. Y., Sept. 30 — (AP) — The Roman Catholic Feast of the North American Martyrs was observed here Sunday with more than 10,000 pilgrims attending a mass in which the responses were sung by a Mohawk Indian choir in its native tongue.

The use of the Indian language for responses, instead of Latin, was a rare privilege, Shrine officials said. It is believed to be the only place in the United States where they have been sung in the native Indian.

The choir was from the Caughnawaga Reservation at Quebec.

The shrine is in honor of three Jesuit missionaries who were killed by the Indians.
